SAUNTON SANDS IS ISOLATED COURSE

Qualifying Round of Women's Open Championship Starts Saturday.

(By Frank H. King—A.P. Staff Writer).

SAUNTON, North Devonshire, May 26.—Saunton Sands, where luminaries of Britain's golfing contingent will start play to-morrow in the 36-hole qualifying round of the women's open golf championship, is one of the most isolated spots in golfdom.

Ride a trail due west from London, through Bristol or Bath, veer left through North Devon until you are about to fall into the Atlantic, and there is Saunton.

It's a glorious golfing country, but nobody can accuse the good woman of the British L.G.U. of trying to attract big galleries, of attempting to commercialize the game.

Saunton isn't as long and punishing as other layouts on the British championship rota, but it is the same general type of linksland. It measures 6,693 yards and carries a par of 74. There are thrills aplenty with the long shots from pulpit tees over ranges of sandhills or through valleys of curving fairways.

Upper Canada Beats St. Andrew's Thirds

AURORA, May 26.—By the narrow margin of six runs, Upper Canada College III., defeated St. Andrew's College III. in an interesting prep. school cricket fixture, played at St. Andrew's College.

Ideal weather, after a rather threatening morning sky, featured, and the campus on which the match, and also a second team match, was played provided an interesting and colorful spectacle. Upper Canada batsmen went in to bat first, and scored a total of 56 runs. St. Andrew's followed, but by dint of good bowling on the part of Garcia and Sawyer for U. C. C., were retired for 46 runs. A second innings was played, but was incompleted. For St. Andrew's, Vibert and Hare, with 10 and 9 runs, respectfully, were high scorers. Housser accounted for 5 wickets, and Neal for 4. Griffith, with 14 runs, and Fuller, with 13, were outstanding for Upper Canada.

Upper Canada College—Sawyer, Fuller, Bonnyman, Logan, Griffith, Martin, Towell, Chisholm, Tobin, McHugh, Garcia.

St. Andrew's—Green, Herrin, Vibert, Hamilton, Housser, Neal, McKerrow, MacDonald, Hare, Donovan, McColl.

HAMBURG, Germany, May 26 (A.P.)—George Gross, artist, who caused a sensation two years ago by showing a picture of Christ on the cross, with Christ wearing a gas mask and a pair of Wellington boots, sailed on the liner New York to-day to teach art in New York City.

Gross was tried for blasphemy as a result of his painting, and was acquitted. The court found that the work was of high artistic quality and in no way attempted to ridicule sacred subjects.

the Scots-Canadian, who is generally regarded as being the outstanding swimming marathon coach today, is busy lining up the members of his training camp in preparation for the 1932 marathons at Toronto. To be picked by Walker is looked upon as a distinct honor among swimmers. His camp will again be headlined by George Young, Catalina champ, and Margaret Ravior, last year's winners in the long distance events in icy cold water, while other selections will certainly include Anderson, the Sydney, N.S., comer. BELLEVILLE, May 26. — Mary Hurley and Harry Ridley, two youthful members of the Belleville Golf Club, won the low net for the afternoon's meet, while Miss Jean Wallbridge and Mr. Train won the second flight. CASUAL COMMENT

The Examiner men's softball team looked pretty good last night in beating All Saints' 13 to 8. They got all their runs in the first three innings while holding the opponents to three. But the Saints kept pecking away one at a time until they had eight by the eighth inning. As the shades of night were falling fast and the boys were playing ball "by ear," it was finally called.

* * * * * * *

The Saints looked good late in the game, Jack Hope getting steadier as the game progressed and his fielders tightening up, as well as hitting hard. But the Pressmen received good pitching, steady hitting and excellent fielding. This is a tough combination to lick, and the newspoiper guys are liable to make them all step in the men's loop this summer.

Despite threatening weather, the Girls' Softball League opened for the season before a good crowd at the Bowl last night with Maple Leafs getting the nod over Choates, 16 to 14. Mayor Denne and several of the aldermen officially opened the game after the two smartly-attired gals' teams had paraded on the diamond. Both teams looked neat, with the Choate damsels wearing dark shorts instead of the customary bloomers. Not being style experts, we cannot describe the outfits in detail, but they were neat.

* * * * * * *

The game itself was classy for so early in the season, a big seventh inning for the East City nine putting them in the race after the Leafs had got away to an early start. There was some man-sized clouting seen, including Barbara Blade's two four-baggers and a triple, Mrs. Austin's homer, and three-base blows by four others. The pitching on both sides was good most of the way.

The senior and intermediate Y.M.C.A. Basketball League champs, Riley & Hickey and the Bruins, were presented with their trophies at a banquet in the "Y" last night. The Cressman Cup and individual medals were handed over to the Clothier champions, while the intermediates received the "Y" Trophy.

Two Peterborough ball players are playing on temporary grants by the O.B.A.A. at present but will likely receive permanent permission by that body shortly. They are Frank Scully, of the seniors, who applied some time ago for a change of residence from Toronto to his home town here, and Archie Weir from Niagara Falls to Peterborough.

The 'rasslers are back in town again to-night, the bulky boys who massacre each other for lucre. They go on this p.m. at 8.30 in the Brock; three bouts that are liable to go close to three hours. And do they pack action into the time they're in—and out—of the hempen enclosure! We're not asking, we're telling you. But those who never miss one of these Donnybrooks don't need telling.

Whitey Hewitt, from Memphis, will attempt to unravel the Masked Marvel from his hooded head-covering in the main frisco, a two-hour limit, best two out of three falls. Babe Caddock and Abe Kashey wade into each other in the semi-final for forty-five minutes or one fall. What should be a peach of a preliminary is the thirty minute of one-fall rough-house between the colorful Wild Bill Lewis, Nsowth Cawlinah, and the Evansville gorilla, Art Dick. Sounds like a real show.

Softball games to-night are: Brintons vs. Westclox girls at the Bowl at six bells—and that doesn't mean 6.30; and C.M.R. vs. C.G.E. at 6.15 up at Central in the Men's League. And to-morrow evening at the Bowl, C.G.E. gals tangle with Park Hill; while Deck's meet the Daily Stars in the male tussle at Central.

At eight bells to-night in Duffin', the City Baseball League meets and there should be a big turnout. All teams must be entered at this time, entry fees paid and a whole flock of other business handled. At least three, and probably four junior teams will be in, the Pirates being one o fthem along with Fosters and the Cubs. Four bantams have entered already, and two juveniles. If two more come in to-night the league will be all set and the biggest in years. Looks like a great year for the minor loop.

* * * * * * *

The City Lacrosse League gets away to a start to-morrow night at the Brock at 8.30 with Orde's playing Brintons. Both teams are strong, being made up of lacrosse and hockey players, and it should be a lively battle. C.G.E. plays Orde's next Tuesday, and Brintons meet the Electrics one week from to-morrow, all games being in the Brock.

JAPAN PRESENTS HANDSOME CUP FOR CANADIAN RUGGER

MAY USE IN FINALS

By ROBIN E. MERRY
(Special to The Examiner, Copyright 1932)

TORONTO, May 21.—The disquieting rumblings of Mars along the Manchurian front have not, to the least degree, affected the good will between the sportsmen of Japan and Canada, particularly insofar as rugby is concerned.

And as a result a brand new trophy has just made its appearance in this country. This is the handsome Nippon-Maple Leaf cup, presented to the Rugby Union of Canada by the Canada-Japan Society of Tokio during the recent invasion of Japan by the Canadian all-star fifteen.

The cup, which is to be used for such competition as the R.U. of C. may decide, is a striking affair of beaten bronze and cloisonne. The base is provided by an inverted Japanese tub, with fifteen copper rugby balls for nameplates. A silver plate bears the inscription.

The presentation is extremely timely, what with the 1932 season already under way in several cities, notably Winnipeg, where some 12 schools and eight senior teams play the game.

Winnipeg has, however, no monopoly on rugby, apart from British Columbia and the maritimes, where it is played almost exclusively. There are eight clubs in Montreal, fourteen in Toronto, four senior teams in Moose Jaw, and four in Regina, with a good sprinkling of clubs in various parts of Ontario.

And the game is spreading to the American colleges. Harvard, for instance, has just started its third rugby season, its schedule including the French Sporting Club of New York and Princeton Tigers. Harvard this year used the New Zealand formation, which calls for seven forwards instead of the usual eight. They find that by using the eighth man as a wing forward, who plays outside in the open, the play is speeded up.

Rugger seems to have made a hit with the Harvard American football squad. Whitney, sub quarterback, and Hardy, rugged tackle on the '31 eleven, are members of the Crimson fifteen.

The storm of discussion that arose after the last Olympic games in Amsterdam caused the cancellation of the 800-metre run in the women's track and field events.

LACOSTE MATCH IS POSTPONED

Rene Lacoste's First Singles Will be Played on Saturday.

STAGING COMEBACK.

AUTEUIL, France, May 26 (C.P.).—Rain to-day caused postponement until Saturday of Rene Lacoste's first singles match in the French tennis championships. Lacoste, former Davis Cup star, is returning to the courts after an absence of two years. His match was to have been the feature of the first round of singles play.

Play proceeded in other divisions with Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingstall and Henri Cochet moving into the quarter-finals of mixed doubles with a 3-6, 6-2, 6-3 victory over Hilda Krahwinkel and Von Cram of Germany.

Jean Borotra and Antoine Gentein defeated the English Davis Cup doubles team of G. P. Hughee and Ian Collins, 7-5, 5-7, 7-6, 6-1, 7-5, to enter the semi-finals of men's doubles.

Mrs. Dorothy Andrus Burke, of Stamford, Conn., was eliminated in the second round of mixed doubles with her Austrian partner, Baron Von Kehrling. They were defeated 6-4, 4-6, 4-6 by Mlle. Colette Payot and F. M. B. Fisher.

Betty Nuthall and Fred Perry won from Anna Pietz and Heinrich Kleinschrott, of Germany, in another second round match, 6-3, 6-2.

As the rain continued, the doubles appearance of Sidney Wood and Gregory Mangin, in the men's event and Helen Wills Moody and Elizabeth Ryan in the women's doubles, also were postponed. Only eleven of the less important singles matches were played.

The winner of the Wood-Mangin match with Christian Boussus and Marcel Bernard to-morrow will reach the semi-finals against Jean Borotra and Antoine Gentien.

MAKE PILGRIMAGE TO SHRINE OF ST. THOMAS

London Hiking Club Members Follow Chaucer's Footsteps and Forgotten Paths

London.—Twenty-one members of the St. Francis Hiking Club—14 women and seven men—and as cheery a band of pilgrims as ever took Watling St. with Chaucer, started from London on a recent morning on a four days' circular hike to the shrine of St. Thomas in Canterbury cathedral and back.

One of the party writes: "After spending the first night in Rochester and visiting the cathedral and Dickens buildings, we hiked the 20 miles to Faversham, where we spent the night.

"Mile after mile, with the women making the pace, we tramped over the rolling Kentish weald. Hikers from London and the engineering towns on the Medway have gone farther south and left these primrose and wild crocus-kissed paths to us.

"Here and there we have found our way with difficulty along old right-of-way, paths closed, overgrown and almost forgotten.

"Here, in east Kent, the countryman still passes the time of day with the stranger."

BARONET MUST GO TO THE WORKHOUSE

Southampton, Eng.—Sir James Alexander Russel Murray, 57-year-old Scottish baronet and count of the Austrian empire, has notified the labor exchange here that he intends to apply for admission to the workhouse unless he obtains unemployment pay or work.

Sir James, who is the 12th baronet and a descendant of the Murrays of Philiphaugh, is living in an upstairs room of a house in the poorer quarter of Southampton. It is more than two years since he had regular employment.

The publicity given to him has brought a number of letters from all parts of the world.

"I have had 23 offers of marriage," he told a reporter. "One of them was from a wealthy American woman staying at Brighton. I was unable to accept any of these offers because I am already married and have grown-up children."

RESTORING OLD ABBEY

Ten Years at Work on Rievaulx in Yorkshire And Not Finished Yet

Leeds, England.—Rievaulx Abbey, founded in 1132 by Walter L'Espec Lord of Helmsley, and some time ago handed over to the nation by the Earl of Feversham, is situated amongst the most beautiful scenery in North Yorkshire.

For the past ten years the office of works has been cleaning and restoring this glorious old building, which is one of the most important sites they are now working on. There is still much work to be done at the Abbey.

Mrs. Glenna Collet Vare In England

The British Women's open golf championship gets under way next week, and it looks as though it will be an American victory—providing the weather is good.

Fresh from their international matches played at Sandwich on Saturday last, the strong American team headed by Mrs. Glenna Collet Vare, Miss Helen Hicks, United States champion, and Miss Maureen Orcutt, Canadian titleholder, are slight favorites to take the British title from Miss Enid Wilson, present English champion.

But Miss Diana Fishwick, and Miss Wilson can be depended upon to give a good account of themselves at the Staunton course. Both are strong players, particularly long and accurate hitters, and know the course well. Add to this the fact that they are used to playing in soggy weather characteristic of English golf, there is really nothing much to choose.

If Miss Joyce Wethered were entered, there would be an outstanding favorite, for she is undoubtedly the greatest feminine golf star in the world to-day. Without her, the honor rests with Mrs. Vare, who is making her sixth attempt to take the elusive title back home. Five times has Mrs. Vare tried for the title, and five times has she been nosed out. This year she is determined to take it back.

The matches will start early Monday morning, May 30, and continue until June 2.

Pirates Entering City Hardball Loop

The Pirate Juniors are entering the City Baseball League at to-night's meeting, making the third junior team to promise entry in this division to date. The team holds its first workout this evening at the Exhibition Grounds at six o'clock. A large turnout is hoped for to get the team organized soon. Equipment will be loaned the boys by Len Foster.

Every place on the lineup is open and players are urged to try out for the team. The following juniors are asked to be out this evening: McCulloch, Tranter, Mowry, Hetherington, Davern, Whatman, Jones, Jack Sweetman and any others eligible. Every player and prospective one will be given plenty of opportunity to make a place for himself with the Pirates.

WALKER MIXES WITH SEABURY

New York's Mayor Defends Political Honor Against "Suspicions."

ISSUES CHALLENGE.

NEW YORK, May 26 (C.P.). — Jimmie Walker, song hit man who rose to rule New York, tangled anew with portly Samuel Seabury to-day in an epochal joust that may tumble the loser to oblivion.

Challenging Seabury, silver-haired descendant of John and Priscilla Alden, to charge him openly with corruption, Mayor Walker returned to the affray to-day prepared to explain more of a series of circumstances Seabury, as counsel for a legislative committee of inquiry, calls "exceedingly suspicious."

Before a dim-mad throng in which the Bowery and Park Avenue rubbed elbows and mingled roars of "You're on the ropes, Sam" with faint hisses for Walker, the Mayor fought flashily yesterday in defence of his political honor while Seabury lumbered doggedly to the attack.

ANNUAL BANQUET BASKETBALL LOOP

Some Thirty Officers and Members Attend Gathering In "Y" Dining Room.

Some thirty officers and players of the Y.M.C.A. Basketball League attended the annual banquet held in the "Y" dining room last night, at which the trophies for the year were handed out. Players of the champion teams, Riley & Hickey's and Bruins, were there in force as well as a number of other league players

President Scotty McLeish was chairman, and Charlie Cumming presented the cups. He congratulated the Riley & Hickey squad on their fine showing in the senior section the past winter, and Ed. Riley thanked him on behalf of the team. The Cressman Cup was given to them as well as individual players' medals.

Mr. Cumming also presented the Y.M.C.A. Cup to the Bruins, champions of the intermediate division, and he was thanked by Dick Williams, who received the silverware. Friends of the League who had donated sweaters to the players were also thanked at the conclusion of the banquet.

The events will be separate, and those for women will be limited to three sports—track, fencing and swimming—but the competition will be just as determined.

Orioles And Bears In Tie For International Lead

NEWARK DROPS 3RD STRAIGHT

And Baltimore Cops 7-6 Win to Bring Them Into Tie for International Lead.

HAVE 23 VICTORIES.

(By the Associated Press)

The International League to-day was very close to that ideal state—from the box office point of view at least—where all the teams are first and drawing first-place crowds.

All of the clubs weren't in the lead, or even in the fight, but three were locked in a virtual tie for first place, two of them absolutely tied, another was only a half game behind after being rained out of a chance to get into the thick of the battle and the fifth place Rochester Red Wings were only two games below the top.

The Baltimore Orioles were the principal factors in tying up the league race in the tightest knot so far and in depriving the Newark Bears of their undisputed hold on first place for the first time in about a month. Baltimore took its third straight game from the Bears, 7 to 6, to draw up into a first-place tie, each with 23 victories and 14 defeats.

Montreal, which downed the champion Rochester Red Wings for the third time in a row, also by a 7-6 count, was tied in the win and lost reckonings, but a few points behind in the percentages. The Royals have won 25 games and lost 16. Buffalo, rained out at Toronto, had the same number of victories as Newark and Baltimore, but one more defeat.

Baltimore and Newark slugged it out on almost even terms with the Bears rallying for three runs in the sixth to tie the count. But a triple by Jordan and McGowan's fly brought in the Orioles' winning run in the eighth with Big Jim Weaver, fourth of Newark's five pitchers as the victim. McGowan drove in four runs before the deciding tally with a homer and a single.

Homer for Fuoimenti

Montreal and Rochester concentrated the thrills of a tight game in the ninth inning. In the first half of the frame George Puccinelli walloped his 14th homer of the season with two on base to give the Red Wings the lead. But Thomas promptly belted one past the boundary to tie it up again and Ripple tripled and scored the winning run on an infield play.

The last two clubs in the standing, Jersey City and Reading, divided a pair of close games. Jersey's Skeeters took one first, 5-4, despite homers by Horn, Legett and Barton and with the aid of one by Warner. Reading came back behind the five-hit pitching of Adams and Milstead and won the second, 4-3.

LAKEFIELD, May 26.—(Examiner Correspondence).— The girls' softball league got away to a good start on Tuesday afternoon when the A.Y.P.A. team met Les Canadiens in a snappy seven innings fixture which attracted and held a large crowd of spectators. Reeve Tanner, president of the L.A.A.A. pitched the first ball and announced the batteries and the game got away to a good start with R. C. Chittick as plate umpire and B. Blewett on bases.

The score opened with each team scoring seven in the first and then see-sawed up and down till Les Canadiens got in the fifth a strong lead which was overcome in the sixth when the A.Y.P.A. ran up a big score giving a lead which they held.

Both teams have good material and are keen as mustard and the league promises to hold the local interest throughout. There are only the two teams entered and ten games will be played on Monday and Friday evenings at 6.15.

The line up was as follows:

Les Canadiens—Elsie Tighe, p; Dorothy Pearson, c; Assunta White, 1b; Ellen Patterson, 2b; Jean Elngdon, 3b; Phyllis Charlton, ss; Ethyl da Hunter; Edna Higgins, lf; Merle Webster, cf.

Score by innings:

Les Canadiens ..... 70262 2 0—19

Aussies May Stop U.S. Davis Team

RACQUETEERS OF ANTIPODES MAY PUT SKIDS UNDER YANKS

Jack Crawford Heads Strong Team From "Down Under" Against U. S. To-morrow.

DAVIS CUP PLAY

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 26 (Special to The Examiner)—Can the Australians stop the rush of the United States to the Davis Cup tennis finals?

There are a great many critics here who think so.

The team from the Antipodes this year is the strongest the British colony has presented in years—ever since the days of Gerald Patterson and Hawkes.

This year's team is comprised of Jack Crawford, acknowledged as one of the greatest singles players in the world to-day; H. O. Hopman, another veteran, who ranks high among the best in the game; Clifford Sproule and John Clemenger, both of whom, while not so experienced, are nevertheless stronger than any the U.S. team has met to date.

Jack Crawford

It is not likely taht either Clemenger or Sproule will be seen in action against the American quartet. Crawford and Hopman are scheduled to carry the brunt of the play in both the singles and the doubles against Ellsworth Vines, and Francis Shields, although Alison and Van Ryn play together in the doubles.

Vines Meets Crawford

To-morrow's games will bring together Vines and Crawford in the first match, and likely Shields, and certainly Hopman in the second. If Vines shows no better form than he displayed in the games with Mexico, and Crawford lives up to the splendid play against Cubs, it is probable that Vines will meet with his first Davis Cup tournament defeat. Shield if at the top of his game should beat Hopman, being a flashier player with a devastating service and excellent net play.

H. O. Hopman.

The doubles team of Van Ryn and Alison are a mighty hard duo to beat and the Australians have not yet had an opportunity of showing their best. Individually, the team from Down Under ranks better than Uncle Sam's doubles hope, but they may not team up so well.

The games commence to-morrow afternoon and continue on the 28th and 30th for the North American zone championship and the right to meet the European winner in the finals for the historic Davis Cup.

The U.S. team have already disposed of Canada and Mexico, while the Australians are fresh from an inspiring victory over Cuba.

GRIMES BEATS FORMER MATES

BRAVES RETAIN LEAD.

(By Gayle Talbot, Associated Press Sports Writer)

Burleigh Grimes admitted from the witness chair only three days ago that he was just about washed up as a big league pitcher, but he would never have gotten away with it had the St. Louis Cardinals been sitting in judgment.

The Red Wings were ready to swear to-day that the 38-year-old spitballer still has plenty of jolts left in his aged right arm. They had proof that Burleigh still can toss a vindictive curve when he feels in the mood.

Should memory fail, all they needed to refresh their minds was a glance at yesterday's box score, in which they encountered their former teammate for the first time since he helped pitch them to a world championship last October.

Blanks Cards 3-0

Toiling for the Chicago Cubs, he set his old comrades down with seven scattered hits and shut them out, 3-0, which wasn't at all bad for a semi-invalid. It was Grimes' fourth start for the Cubs and his third victory.

The triumph not only was a source of satisfaction to the veteran, but was a great help to the Cubs in their neck and neck scrap with Boston for the National League top, enabling them to stay within eight percentage points of the pace-setting Braves. The defeat, on the other hand, nearly tumbled the Cardinals out of the first division, leaving them a half-game ahead of the fifth place New York Giants.

Braves Retain Lead

Bobby Brown, the 20-year-old sensation from Binghamton, kept the Braves at the head of the class by defeating Brooklyn, 4-2 on four hits. The youngster who began his big league career by licking Dazzy Vance in a mound duel a month ago was invincible in all but two innings. He received some valuable assistance from another of the Braves' rookies, Fritz Knothe, who pounded in two runs with a double and scored a third.

For the third straight day the Giants and Phils engaged in an old-fashioned slugfest, and the Giants made it two out of three for the series by winning, 12-8. Bill Terry led the winner's attack, knocking in four runs, in his tenth homerun of the year, a double and a single.

Fumbles by Heath and Hafey helped Pittsburgh score five runs in the first inning and eventually trim Cincinnati, 9-4, for the second straight day.

Games Washed Away

Only two games were scheduled in the American League. One at Chicago was rained out completely and the other, at Detroit, was washed away in the fourth inning with the St. Louis Browns ahead, 1-0. It was no contest.

COWIE FILLY REPEATS KING'S PLATE SUCCESS

TORONTO, May 26—R. W. Cowles' Queensway picked up ten pounds over her King's Plate weight and agagin defeated the best of the rest of the King's Plate horses at Woodbine yesterday. She ran a greater race in the Breeders Stakes than on Saturday, carrying 122 pounds and she answered every challenge hurled at her, to come away in the final drive to add to her lead and win by two lengths. The start was delayed by the antics of Easter Dandy, while Queensway stood like a cavalry horse, ready, but quiet. As the barrier rose, Frankie Mann was alert and so was his mount and they broke in front with Spey Crest, the field bunched on top of them. At once began a duel between Queensway and Spey Crest, the latter in at 112 pounds. They raced head and head, opening up a gap of a couple of lengths on the rest of the field with Easter Dandy backing away somewhat from the stiff pace and Easter Hatter coming on from the turn into the eastern run.

the rising new British tennis star, who is expected to make a place on this year's Wightman cup team which will meet the United States early in June. Miss Stammers, still a novice at the game, and only a youngster compared to other star English players, won the praise of tennis critics all over England, who have watched her sensational play. Recently she furnished Betty Nuthall, first ranking British star, with the feature battle of the hard court championships, being eliminated after forcing Miss Nuthall to a 7-5 set in the third round. Miss Stammers has a brilliant future.

FITZPATRICK AND HOLLAND CONNECT FOR PAIR SINGLES

Leafs Beat Choates 16-14.

Ladies softball, the sport which has made almost every resident in East City a rabid ball fan was ushered in for the season of 1932 last night at the Riverside Bowl when the Maple Leafs tangled with the clever Choate team in the initial game of the City and District League, after an official opening by the City Fathers and a colorful parade around the diamond by the two teams in uniform.

Mayor Denne twirled the first ball with Alderman Cotton behind the bat, Alderman Stocker batting, Alderman Holland at first and Alderman Fitzpatrick as umpire. His Worship's offering dazzled Alderman Stocker to such an extent that he struck out, while Alderman Holland and Fitzpatrick who each took a turn with the willow both singled to left and the lid was pried off for the season.

The element of surprise was injected into the hard-fought struggle when the Maple Leafs, the only new entry in the league won a place in the heart of fandom by trouncing the brilliant Choate Hardware team, who were real contenders last season and have been strengthened considerably this year, by the score of 16-14. The count would have been considerably less had the Leafs not become shaky in the seventh and permitted their opponents to register seven tallies only two of which were earned.

Kay Rowland started on the mound for the winners and backed up by neat fielding, performed like a veteran, showing both speed and control until the seventh when her teammates showed signs of stage-fright. Genevieve Foster started in the eighth and finished the game without trouble although her offerings lacked steam.

Alberta Would pitched again for Choates and twirled nice ball showing plenty of control and deserved a closer count on her performance, but her teammates were shaky at critical periods, wasting many chances. Jean Munro started in the sixth and finished the game showing promise of becoming a valuable hurler for her team.

The Leafs are undoubtedly a hard-hitting, well balanced team which will give the opposition plenty to worry about before the home stretch is reached in the league, while in Mrs. Austin they have a catcher of merit, who can hit as well as field. The outfield is also exceptionally good.

Leads Batting Strength

Barbara Slade playing at second for Choates led the batters on both teams by slashing out two homers and a triple while Della Tucker was next in line with a triple. For the winners Ballantyne, Goldie and Gates all connected for three base clouts and Mrs. Austin banged out a home run.

Carpentier Seen Again in Young British Fighter

the latest English threat for the heavyweight supremacy of the world. This young lad, who is just out of high school, and not yet twenty-one years old, has startled the entire sporting fraternity of the British Isles by his remarkable showing since turning professional. As an amateur, he won the amateur "cruiserweight" championship of England, and immediately joined the pro ranks. Since then he has fought fifteen battles, and has yet to taste defeat. Amongst his victims was Charlie Smith, reputed to be the second best British heavyweight, who took the count. Peterson hails from Cardiff, and got his early training from his father, himself an expert boxer. His father wanted him to be a doctor, but Jack had other ambitions, and after winning the amateur title was taken in hand by a syndicate who have looked after his interests ably. He is hailed as a second George Carpentier, and he resembles the great French fighter in both physical and fighting characteristics, being both fast on his feet and a heavy hitter with both hands.

PRINTERS WIN 13-8 DECISION

Examiner Tallies Eight Runs in Third Inning to Gain Victory.

FROST CLOUTS HOMER

The Examiner men softballers opened their season at Central last night with an impressive 13-8 win over All Saints in eight innings. One big frame, the third, put the game on ice for the Printers when they banged in eight runs. A fair-sized crowd attended but were disappointed when the Saints got off to a bad start through errors and wild pitches.

Jack Hope twirled for the losers and he was touched for thirteen hits, including a triple by Gillespie and Westbrooke's double. Hope struck out three, walked four and had six wild pitches. His teammates were shaky early in the contest, their five errors being costly.

The Examiner's mound selection was "Scotty" Galbraith, a southpaw. He pitched three innings, allowing five hits and three runs while fanning one, walking one and having one wild pitch. Price succeeded him and struck out five with his smoke ball, walking two and throwing a couple of wild pitches. Seven hits were gained off his delivery. Among the extra-base blows rapped out by all Saints' hitters were Frost's homer, Wilson's three-bagger and a double by Frost.

Olaveson, Frost, Scott and Wilson each got a pair of bingles for the losers; while Dugan led the Pressmen with the willow, getting three safe blows in four times. Creighton and Taylor both got two. The Examiner fielders worked together like a machine, only two misplays marking their defensive showing.

Victors Score Early.

The victors started early, crossing the plate four times in the first inning, and getting one more in the second. The Saints were blanked till the third when they counted three on four hits,(a walk and a wild pitch. In the Printers' third spasm, they trotted wearily around the paths eight times on five singles, a walk, a double and a triple. Neither side scored in the fourth, but All Saints got one run in the fifth and another in the sixth. The Examiner being held scoreless the rest of the way.

Frost Connects for Homer

A mighty four-base smash to deep right by Frost made the count 13 to 6 at the end of the seventh. Playing in the dusky eighth inning, without turning on the lights, the Saints helped themselves to two runs to finish the scoring, two singles and Wilson's three-baser winding up the game. The teams:

All Saints—Olaveson, c; Sanderson, 2b; Frost, ss; Hope, p; Worsencroft, lf; Goodison, cf; Scott, rf; Wilson, 1b; Evans, 3b.

'WILD BILL' LEWIS ONE OF BEST GRAPPLERS IN WRESTLING GAME

Match with Art Dick Provides One of Highlights in To-night's Card.

AT BROCK STREET ARENA

Preliminary

"Wild Bill" Lewis, Rocky Mountain, North Carolina, vs Arthur Dick, Evansville, Indiana. One fall, 30-minute time limit.

Semi-final

Main Bout

The Masked Marvel vs "Whitey" Hewitt, Memphis, Tennessee. Best two out of three falls, two-hour time limit.

"Whitey" Hewitt, the "blonde tiger" from Memphis, Tennessee, is one wrestler who is a firm believer in the old adage that "a strong offense is the best defense" a fact that appears to bode no good for The Masked Marvel who will be Hewitt's opponent in the main bout of the Queensbury Club show at the Brock street rink this evening. Having met such men as "Gus" Sonnenberg, Earl McCready (who greatly outweighed him), Henri Delange and other outstanding mat stars, Hewitt will have no need to worry over the reputation which The Marvel's long string of victories has given the latter.

The bout is an important one for both men. A loss for the Mystery Man would kill his chances of a return bout with Jim Londos while, on the other hand, Hewitt will be in line for some lucrative main events if he can stop the winning streak of this hooded heavyweight. There will be little difference in weight and, as each man will be trying to take the initiative, there should be thrills and spills aplenty.

Flashy "Babe" Caddock will attempt to duplicate his victory over "Dewey" Marchioni but this time he will meet Abe Kashey, a heavier and more experienced wrestler than Marchioni. As a matter of fact Caddock will be giving away weight but that will be nothing new for him and he is confident that he will not only win but to do so in such impressive manner that Promoter Corcoran will give him the next main bout here.

There should be no lack of action in the opening bout either. Arthur Dick, who won a great bout from Frankie Hart at the last local show, has a reputation as a consistent crowd pleaser. He meets a good man in "Wild Bill" Lewis of Rocky Mountain, North Carolina, and will have to be in right form to win.

SUSSEX GOLF TITLE

D. Watson (Royal Ashdown Forest) won the Sussex amateur golf champions, defeating C. S. Hudson (Royal Eastbourne), last year's runner-up, at the 37th hole on the Royal Ashdown Forest club's course at Forest Row.

It seemed as though Watson was heading for a runaway win when he finished the first round with a lead of five holes. Hudson, however, recovered, and Watson's advantage had been reduced to two holes before the players reached the tenth tee in the second round. Hudson, continuing to play exceling golf, squared the match and unlucky to sustain defeat at the extra hole.

You Will See Something at the Professional Wrestling at BROCK STREET RINK TO-NIGHT at 8.30 o'Clock

Three Bouts on a Program that is guaranteed to please

"WHITEY" HEWITT.

PRELIMINARY:

"WILD" BILL LEWIS vs. ARTHUR DICK (EVANSVILLE)

One Fall, 30 Minutes Time Limit.

SEMI-FINAL:

BABE CADDOCK (NEW YORK) vs ABE KASHEY (ARMENIANCHAMPION)

One Fall, 45 Minutes Time Limit.

MAIN BOUT:

The Masked Marvel vs. "Whitey" Hewitt

BEST TWO OUT OF THREE FALLS. 2 HOUR TIME LIMIT.

"Whitey" Hewitt, from Memphis, who meets the Masked Marvel, is a favorite in Toronto, having appeared in a number of main bouts, and is one of the headliners in wrestling in the class with "Gus" Sonnenberg, Ed. "Don" George, Pat McGill, Ray Steel and Strangler Lewis.

"Wild Bill" Lewis of Rocky Mountain, Cal., who is up against Arthur Dick, is, according to Lou Marsh in the Star, a colorful performer, and "stole the show" on his first appearance in Toronto.

This show is under the personal direction of Jack Corcoran, promoter, and the Queensbury Wrestling and Boxing Club, and Mr. Corcoran states he will give to Peterborough programs at all times that will include the "Big Shots" in the wrestling game.

Soccer Notes

The local soccer league has produced twenty-three goals in the four games played, with Ben McMaster, C.G.E., and Archie McPhate, Caledonians, again leading the goal scorers with three each. In the two-goal column we find W. Brown, Delorp, Andy Ross, Packers, N. Downer, Packers, and D. Anderson, C.G.E., holding two each. Nine players have one goal apiece, with James Buchan taking a part in the scoring this season.

Archie McPhate, Caledonians, has scored two goals along with Roy Black, Port Hope, in the Injured Players' Trophy, which makes the local Scot the leading scorer to date.

Andy Leiper, who ran the famous Omemee team a few years ago, was an interested spectator at Port Hope on Saturday, and he renewed acquaintances with many of the Peterborough visitors. Mrs. Leiper and Mrs. Roy Black accompanied him.

There are two official referees registered with the association, viz., Alexander McKinley and Teddy Bartley. Last season there were no less than six officials. They will have to comply with the O.F.A. regulations.

Referee McKinley at Port Hope disallowed the substitution of another player when the officials had notified the referee that they had only one sub., when they should have written on the sheet that they had two. Three subs. can be used at any time, provided they are included in the list handed to the referee at beginning of the game.

A goalkeeper is now allowed to carry the ball four steps inside his own goal area. It used to be only two. The throw-in carries the instruction that a throw-in is given to the opposing side instead of the usual free kick.

Some Totalizer

A totalisator, which is claimed to both elaborateness of AA)..f to be the largest in use on any greyhound track, will be operated at Wembley Stadium. It adds up the win pools automatically deducts 10 per cent. shows the approximate odds while betting is in progress, and displays the odds against each dog immediately the start of the race is effected.

There are six dials on the indicator for that purpose, and, for example, if on one of them a pointer is on "six," the odds, allowing for the unit stake, will be 6 to 1 against.

Bears Set The Pace In Daily Attendance

NEW YORK, May 26.—The turnstiles are clicking merrily in the International Baseball League, which apparently is well on its way to surpassing last year's attendance figures.

Although 20 games were washed out in the first month, the majority of the clubs report an increase in attendance, according to William J. Manley, Secretary-Treasurer of the circuit.

The Newark Bears, leading the league, also are setting the pace in attendance. In their first home stand, ending May 2, the New York Yankee farm team had an average daily attendance of 5,700, drawing 24,850 more fans through the gates than in 1931.

The improved playing of Buffalo and Montreal has been reflected in the attendance in both cities. On Sunday May 15, the Royals drew a crowd of 30,000—the largest in the last two years. For their entire home stand the club's attendance is about 10,000 ahead of last year's figures.

The Rochester Red Wings, league champions for the last four years, are slightly behind their 1931 figures, due to the washout of the series with Baltimore. The Orioles always have been one of the best drawing clubs in Rochester.

Toronto, hardest hit by the weather, with seven games postponed, is running under last year's figures. There has been a marked increase in interest at both Reading and Jersey City, despite the fact that the two clubs are trailing. The passing of control of the Jersey City Club to the Brooklyn Nationals has stimulated interest.

The series between Newark and Jersey City, starting May 30 and running through to June 5, is expected to set new attendance marks for both cities.

Walker Is Favored To Defeat Uzcudun

NEW YORK, May 26 (C.P.)—Although he will be forced to concede some 25 pounds in weight and six inches in height, Mickey Walker, the modern giant-killer, has been established a 7-5 favorite in his 10-round bout with Paulino Uzcudun to-night at Madison Square Garden.

The Rumson bulldog has been training seriously for weeks and is said to be in equally as fine condition as when he held Jack Sharkey to a draw here last summer. That, and the fact that Walker always has shown at his best against big men, has caused the experts to favor him over the Basque.

The consensus was it would go the full route. Paulino frequently has been beaten and does not stack up with Walker as a boxer, but there is not a knockout against his long ring record. The possibility of the Spaniard knocking out the Bulldog was considered even more remote. It promises to be a rough, tough battle between a pair of rough, tough veterans.

For Walker, the bout means a possible chance against Ernie Schaaf, Boston heavyweight, with the winner to challenge next for the heavyweight title. For Paulino it means only a chance to upset another ambitious young man, one of the best things he does.

RUMOR IS DENIED

CHICAGO, May 26.—(AP)— Ray Alvis, manager of Jackie Fields, welterweight fighter, denied a report today that Fields scheduled title fight with "Young" Corbett, Pacific Coast boxer, at San Francisco June 25, had been called off as far as he knew. It has been rumored Fields would enter a hospital for an operation for appendicitis.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

A RESCUE AND A LIFT

The deed that thoughtful is and kind
The bonds of friendship tighter bind.

—Old Mr. Toad

Buried in the sand at the bottom of the posthole dug by Farmer Brown's Boy, peace came to Old Mr. Toad. True, he was at the bottom of what to him was a frightfully deep hole, but that was far, far better than going down the long gullet of Mr. Blacksnake. From that there would be no escape, while from this difficulty he was sure he could find way out. It would take him a long time to get out, and he was impatient to get to the Smiling Pool and to join the happy chorus and to let Mrs. Toad knew that he was there waiting for her, but better to keep her waiting a little while than forever. The sand was dry, which was to Old Mr. Toad's liking, so when he had recovered from his fright he really was very comfortable.

Along about dust he dug his way out to the bottom of the posthole and looked up. It was a long distance up to the edge of that hole. He sighed. He sighed again. Then sighed again. Then he set to work digging. Instead of digging down, he dug into the wall of the hole slanting upward and off to one side. It was slow work, and he took his time about it. There was no use in getting tired out at the start.

It was along toward noon of the following day that Farmer Brown's Boy came to set a new post in that hole. Before dropping it in he looked in to make sure that there was nothing in that hole. You see, he is a careful and thoughtful boy, and the thought came to him that some one might have fallen in there. No one was to be seen. He was just about to turn away to pick up the post to set it in the whole when he noticed a little hole in the smooth wall close to the bottom, and a little higher and off to one side another little hole.

"Now, who could have made those two holes, and what for?" said he to himself, and squatted down that he might see better. "Holes like that don't make themselves" he continued. "I suspect they are connected. Hello! What is making that sand fall from that place just above and to the left of that upper hole?"

He looked more closely. Sure enough, sand was trickling down from that point. He squatted on his heels and watched. The sand trickled faster. He felt sure that something or some one was digging out at that point. Pretty soon a tiny hole appeared. Then the sand appeared to be pushed out, and a moment later he laughed aloud in pleased surprise. There at this newly made hole was the face of Old Mr. Toad!

"So," said Farmer Brown's Boy, "some one did fall into this hole, after all, and you are that one. I suppose that if no one gave you a helping hand you would keep on digging your zigzag passages until at last you reached the top. It would take you a long time, Mr. Toad, and be an awful lot of hard work, so I am going to help you."

His hoe was not far away. With this he reached down and managed to slip the blade of it under Old Mr. Toad, and in a jiffy had him up on the ground. Old Mr. Toad looked up and blinked at him with those beautiful golden eyes of his, which was the only method he had of expressing his thanks. Then he shook himself and started off, hop, hop, hipperty hop and he was headed in the direction of the Smiling Pool.

Farmer Brown's Boy watched him for a few minutes. Then he went after him. "I know where you are bound, Old Mr. Toad," said he. "You want to get to the Smiling Pool. That is how you happened to be down here instead of up in my garden, where I dug you up and where I supposed you were. It is a long way for a little fellow like you, and a dangerous one. So I am ging to give you a lift. Yes, sir, I am going to give you a lift."

He stooped and picked up Old Mr. Toad. Then he started straight for the Smiling Pool. When he reached it he gently put Old Mr. Toad down on the shore. Mr. Toad's eyes looked as if they would pop out of his head. You see, he hadn't know where he was being taken to. With a funny little sound, which probably was of delight, he hopped straight into the water.

FOILED IN ELOPEMENT RUNS AWAY AGAIN

Caught First Time By Aeroplane and Now By An Automobile Chase

Bristol, Eng.—Thomas Hanbury, the 17-year-old son of Mr. Cecil Hanbury, M.P., for North Dorset, who was missing from his home at Kingston Maurward, near Dorchester, for several days, was found here by his father.

Mr. Cecil Hanbury motored from Dorset to assist the Bristol police in their search, following information that the boy had telephoned from Bristol to relatives.

When the boy was located he returned to Dorchester with his father.

Not long ago young Hanbury, who was formerly at Eton, made a dash to Gretna Green with Miss Joan Eve, the 16-year-old granddaughter of Mr. Justice Eve.

Their request to be married at the smithy was refused on the ground that they had not been in Scotland for 21 days.

Mr. and Mrs. Hanbury chased them in an aeroplane, which had to descend at Blackpool. Police found the couple and looked after them until the parents arrived.

What To-Day Means To You

"GEMINI"

If May 26th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 p.m. to 11:15 p.m., from 3:30 p.m. to 5 p.m., and from 10:45 p.m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 8:15 a.m. to 9:30 a.m., and from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m.

The planetary aspects for May 26th are such that the world will be in an irascible mood, with ears alive to the little jars, wranglings, spites and vanities, which are brewed each day of the year, but which usually die an easy and harmless death. Married couples should avoid open strifes, and steer carefully their matrimonial ship.

The child born on this May 26th will be a law-abiding little individual, seldom getting into trouble. It will be very sensitive to reproofs, and severity in its case will be not only unnecessary, but harmful. It will be ambitious and desirous of excelling. It will be sociable and of a good disposition, but shy.

Born on May 26th, you have a positive, an aggressive, a somewhat hard, and jealous nature. You often let self-assertiveness and impulse override tact and diplomacy, and have the foolish trick of quarreling with all the people who might help you most. In some respects you only see as far as the lens of your eyes permit.

If you be a woman, and married, your husband will not be allowed much rope. Your love nature is too coupled up with jealousy to make it a blessing to the recipient of your affections. You intend to play square, never shirk your duties, and are full of domestic virtues. Deportment, however, is almost a religion with you, and it goes hard with those who outrage your own code of moral values. Your goodness, lacking tolerance and charity, is more repellent than lovely.

If you be a man, you are too domineering to be popular as a leader. You are undeniably efficient, but you are so managing that you think nothing can be right, unless done by yourself. You have a good head about money matters, and know how to lay out your income to good advantage. You are a man's man, and are diffident with women. You are fond of vigorous sports, but do not enjoy parlor games. Whilst you might be thought a tyrant at your work, you are very lamb-like within the domestic circle and extremely loyal to your kinsfolk.

CHILD WELFARE WORK ADVANCES

Ninety-seven Ontario I.O.D.E. Chapters Spent $25,642 in Cause Last Year.

KEEN INTEREST.

TORONTO, May 25.— (C.P.)— Mrs. A. U. de Pencier, Vancouver, convener of the child welfare committee of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, to-day told the annual convention of that body 97 chapters in Ontario spent $25,642 on child welfare work during the past year.

Mrs. de Pencier in her annual report outlined work of child welfare committees in all parts of the country dealing with establishment and maintenance of baby clinics, maintenance of cots in preventoria, maintenance of camps and provision of direct relief to needy families of numerous children.

Reports from other provinces, although not as complete as that for Ontario, showed keen interest continued in work among children throughout the Dominion.

Thirty new chapters were added to the Order during the year, while 11 were disbanded, a gain of 19 chapters over the number in existence at the time of the last annual meeting.

THOUSAND HOMES BURN.

WAR PRISONERS' CHANCES SLIGHT FOR REPARATION

Cahan Warns Younger Lawyers From Advising Action Against Crown.

NOT ON SOUND GROUND.

Canada Already Paid to Acual Sufferers $704,912,472 —Received $26,672,246.

OTTAWA, May 26.—"Younger members of the legal fraternity who advise former prisoners-of-war, whose claims for compensation have been refused by the Reparations Commissioner and the pensions tribunals, that they have the right of action against the Crown, are not on sound ground, Hon. C. H. Cahan, Secretary of State, told the House of Commons to-day just before prorogation. In the course of a lenghty statement, the Minister called attention to the practise of those lawyers who were seeking authority from the former prisoners-of-war to institute proceedings against the Crown for compensation.

No Hopes of Returns

The ex-soldiers who paid out their money for the purpose of engaging in such legal action, did so without any hope of securing a return, Mr. Cahan declared.

Interlarded with extracts from the provisions of the Versailles Treaty and from court decisions delivered in the past, the Secretary of State's address emphasized that to date Canada had paid out a total of $704,191,472 in the way of compensation to Canadian nationals who had suffered as a result of the Great War. This huge figure included war pensions, and moneys distributed to civilians in the way of reparations.

Against this Canada had obtained from Germany only $26,672,246, or less than four per cent. of what this country had paid out.

Mr. Cahan traced the various conferences resulting in the Dawes Plan and the Young Plan whereby Germany had agreed to the terms of reparations annuities, and recalled that that country had ceased her payments last year under the Young Plan. Next month another conference would be held at Versailles to reconsider the whole matter.

Fund Does Not Exist

The report, however, had been spread throughout Canada appealing to ex-soldiers to make application to the commission of reparations for compensation covering physical injuries and disabilities sustained while they were prisoners-of-war. Statements had been made that a fund existed in the Canadian treasury, received from Germany, from which such awards may be paid. The financial statement he had just outlined showed there was no such fund, Mr. Cahan said. Reparations were now appropriated by a vote of parliament out of the consolidated revenue fund.

Ex-soldiers who suffered physical disabilities sustained in the war may apply—and in most cases have applied— to the pensions tribunals, for no discrimination was made by the pensions commissioners between service disabilities and those suffered from mal-treatment while prisoners of war. If the compensation awarded by the tribunal was thought inadequate the applicants would be heard by the reparations commissioner. From time to time awards had been made, but these were limited in number, Mr. Cahan declared.

Customs Men Rule That a Monkey Has No Feet and Has Four Hands

London.—Six monkeys which arrived at Folkestone shortly after the tariff duties were imposed, set the customs authorities a problem.

The monkeys were consigned from the continent to a London firm, and the question arose as to whether they were liable for duty.

The railway company submitted that monkeys were four-legged animals and as quadrupeds were exempt.

The customs officials held that the monkeys were liable to duty as bipeds, having two legs and two hands.

Finally the question was referred to the "Honorable Board of Customs" in London. Their ruling was: "A monkey has no feet. It has four hands. In official language it is a quadrumanous mammal. It is not a quadruped. Hence, full duty must be paid on the monkeys."

ARGENTINA PAYS HONOR TO HER LATE PRESIDENT

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, May 26 (A.P.)—The body of Jose Uriburu, revolutionary leader and former de facto President of Argentina, was brought back from Paris today by the French liner l'Atlantique. Thousands of persons thronged the pier when the vessel was moored and overhead military airplanes went through manoeuvres.

The coffin was taken from the liner to Government House, where the body will lie in state until funeral services to-morrow morning. President Uriburu died in Paris ten weeks after he had restored constitutional government to Argentina.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION. NO. 10 By Edgar Rice Burroughs

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

But suddenly the tent was snatched from above Tollog's head and hurled off into the night. Frozen with horror, the Arab turned to see the giant form of Tantor towering above him. A supple trunk encircled his body and the Sheik's brother was raised high aloft and thrown into the darkness.

For an instant Tantor looked about defiantly. Then he reached down and lifting Tarzan high above his head, wheeled and rushed across the menzil, trampling under foot two sentries who sought to stop his progress. A moment later, elephant and ape-man were swallowed by the jungle darkness.

Tollog, oddly enough, had escaped unhurt. He loudly proclaimed that Tarzan was in league with the devil himself—since he was able to summon wild beasts to his aid! Ibn Jad finally gave orders to break camp and quietly steal away.

Far into the forest Tantor bore Tarzan. At last he set him down upon the soft grass of a clearing. "To-morrow, by Kudu's light," said Tarzan, "we shall plan how to remove these bonds; but now, let us sleep!"

95 Per Cent. Of Taxes For 1931 Collected

While the City of Windsor has found it necessary to seek the advice of an expert on municipal financing due largely to the fact that only 58.5 percent of her 1931 taxes had been collected up to the end of last year, Peterborough at the present time can boast that 95 percent of her taxes have been collected for last year up to the present period, according to City Treasurer Frank Adams.

The report which the expert on municipal financing prepared after a survey of affairs in the border city, was received recently at a special meeting of the Council.

In his observations he pointed out that he fears, "continued laxity" in collecting taxes when due, and neglect to use the means at hand to secure payment, "has developed an indifference on the part of many taxpayers, and that it will require considerable education, as well as persistent effort, to rectify the condition."

He submitted a report showing that overdue taxes increases from $865,186 on December 1, 1924 to $2,347,208 on December 31 last year. Comparative per capita figures for other Ontario centres at the end of last year show $4.48 for Kitchener; $5.65 for Ottawa; $5.41 for Peterborough; $8.25 for Hamilton; $8.40 for Brantford; and $12.71 for Toronto.

Similarly at the end of last year Windsor had collected only 58.5 percent of her 1931 taxes as compared with 95 percent for Peterborough up to the present date; 91 percent for Ottawa at the end of last year; 87.8 percent for Hamilton; 86.2 percent for Brantford and $12.71 percent for Toronto.

MRS. MORRIS REPLIES

To the Editor, The Examiner:
Dear Sir:

Yesterday's issue of the Examiner contained at my request the protest sent to the Reception Committee of the Council on behalf of the Board of Education.

The heading "Mrs. Morris wants to know why Board of Education Slighted," was supplied by one of your staff writers. I did not use the word "slight" nor had the thought in mind when I wrote the protest. A slight is merely a rudeness, due usually to the ignorance of those who offer it, and would certainly not deserve official notice. A disregard of right is a different matter and cannot be overlooked.

Today, Thursday, May 26th, I received from the City Clerk a copy of the resolution of the council as already published in The Examiner. This resolution need not have been forwarded to me as it is not in any particular an answer to the protest filed with the reception committee.

To say "the council had not any intention of ignoring or slighting the Board of Education or it's chairman" means nothing, as "slighting or ignoring" were not mentioned in my protest nor was the matter seen in that light by me. I stressed the "disregard of the right" of the Board of Education to be represented on a Civic Reception Committee. The self-respect of the Board required that a disregard of right be protested. The dignity of the Board could survive a slight and as for myself, I never see any slight that may be directed at me.

The words, "in order to conserve time and restrict the numbers, etc," are words only, and are a reflection on the intelligence of the body from which they come and the body to which they are addressed. The civic bodies have rights of representation and the individuals the privilege, if circumstances permit. The restriction of numbers was exercised in the wrong place. But if we take these words at their face value then we have the spectacle of the council taking for themselves ten places on a small committee instead of appointing a generous representation from their body and leaving room for one representative from each civic body entitled to it.

To include the President of the Manufacturers' Association on the Committee, because His Excellency requested to see the industries of the city is another argument, advanced by the council itself, in favour of the Board of Education being included as His Excellency stated that he wished to see the school children, and would appreciate the Boy Scouts as a Guard of Honor. Permission for this had to be obtained from the Board.

In lighter vein; has the Council yet realized that the gentleman to whom they sent the invitation was president of the Manufacturers association last year, but is not now? Also that his invitation was addressed to him as president of the Chamber of Commerce and therefore the Chamber of Commerce had representation on the committee. With a smile is good for us in these days of depression and we all make mistakes.

I regret being obliged to again ask for your valuable space, but such a misleading statement as the resolution from the council could not go unnoticed.

KATE MORRIS
Chairman of the Board of Education.

GUARDS WATCH HEARST STORES

Jobless Ask Council $2 Weekly for Single and $4 for Married Men.

NEEDY CASES PROBED.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., May 27 (C.P.)—Stores and warehouses at Hearst are still under regular and special police guard, it was reported to-day, following a meeting of unemployed there yesterday. The jobless met the town council and asked it to submit demands to the Government for immediate relief. A resolution was passed at the meeting asking that four dollars per week be provided for married men, with one dollar a week for each dependent, and two dollars per week with free medical attention and tents for single men.

The Government has already granted $500 for direct relief. A committee of four was appointed at the meeting to investigate cases of actual need and report to the council, which in turn will issue orders to the stores for food until the $500 grant is exhausted.

STEAMER CARRIES FLOUR GREAT LAKES-MONCTON

MONCTON, N.B., May 27 (C.P.)—History was made here when the steamer Ulva, 1,100 tons, with a cargo of flour from the Great Lakes, docked at the public wharf. It was the first time for a steamer, other than very small types, to come to Moncton. Practically all shipments to Moncton previously have been by rail, and this trip from the Great Lakes was regarded as a new trail to the hub of the Maritimes.

A large crowd welcomed the Ulva as it came up the Petit-Codiac River, famous for its "bore" or regular tidal wave.

SHIPS COLLIDE IN HEAVY FOG ONE GOES DOWN

3 BODIES FOUND.

Call Out For Doctors—Coast Guards Rush to Spot, Off Block Island.

NEW YORK, May 27 (C.P.). — The small steamer Grecian, rolling down from Boston to Norfolk with a crew of 35, a cargo of general freight and no passengers, collided with the City of Chattanooga in dense fog and dangerous seas off Block Island early to-day, and went to the bottom.

Four members of her crew were missing as dawn found eight United States coastguard cutters darting about through the high seas seeking them. Some of those who were rescued were injured, as indicated by a call for a surgeon by the City of Chattanooga.

The master of the Grecian was among those saved.

At 3.33 a.m. the steamer Ontario asked the City of Chattanooga if she needed any assistance. The City of Chattanooga replied:

"We do not need any assistance. The master of the Grecian is safe aboard the City of Chattanooga. The damage to our ship is unknown but considered slight. Four members of the Grecian's crew still unaccounted for. The United States cutter Upshur has arrived and is assisting in the search for the missing men."

Watch For Survivors

Shortly afterward the City of Chattanooga wirelessed:

"To all ships in the vicinity of Block Island: Please watch for survivors."

The City of Chattanooga asked the Upshur:

"Have you a doctor aboard?"

The Upshur replied that she had. It could not be determined immediately who was injured or how seriously, as the steamer's radio was being kept open for communication with the search for survivors.

Built in 1923

The City of Chattanooga is a much newer craft, having been built in 1923. She runs on the Savannah line between Savannah, New York and Boston. She left New York last night, Boston-bound. She is a craft of 4,343 net tons.

Thunderclouds hung over the Rhode Island coast line this morning as all coast guard craft in the vicinity joined the search, and sea was running high. The City of Chattanooga remained at the scene of the collision at Anchor.

3 Bodies Found

NEW LONDON, Con., May 27.—The bodies of three of the four missing members of the steamer Grecian which sank off Block Island after a collision with the City of Chattanooga, were recovered to-day, United States destroyer force headquarters here announced.

Believed Killed; Soldier Returns

DIEGEN, Baden, Germany, May 27. (CP)—Lachar Daubmann, 36, German war veteran who for 16 years has been believed dead and whose name is engraved on a monument to the war dead here, has written aged parents here that he arrived at Palermo, Italy, alive and well.

He said after sustaining serious wounds in the Battle of the Somme in 1916 he tried to escape from a French war prison, was caught and deported to Africa from whence he now has arrived at Palermo.

The German consul at Naples confirmed the story when Daubmann's parents believed they were being made victims of a cruel hoax.

RAINFALL HALTS FOREST BLAZES

QUIET AT NORTH BAY.

SUDBURY, May 27 (C.P.) — A million-dollar rainfall which swept over Northern Ontario early to-day brought relief to harassed firefighters who had been combatting numerous forest fires in many districts.

W. B. Greenwood, District Forester at North Bay, described the fire condition as very favorable today. All fires in this area are under control, including the menacing blaze in McNian Township which had endangered millions of feet of the finest white pine timber, he said.

At 10 o'clock this morning, .6 inches of rain had fallen at North Bay and the heavy rains had been general throughout the north. At Matachewan, in the northern section of the forestry district, snow was falling. At Rouyn there was two inches of snow.

Seven forest fires in the Sudbury area are expected to be under control to-day. The rainfall here was 1.16 inches, and there seemed little chance of the fires spreading.

No report had been received, however, from the Sheard Township district, 26 miles southeast of Gogama, where the most serious of the fires has been burning for some days. One hundred men were rushed to the scene by train and plane yesterday.

ALL EVIDENCE FROM WALKER TERMED VAGUE

WAS MAYOR'S AGENT.

Checks Outstanding Factors Based By City Clean-up Probe.

NEW YORK, May 27.—Samuel Seabury, counsel to the Hofstader committee, declared at the public hearing today that Mayor Walker's testimony had been "vague on all points" and that Russell T. Sherwood's "flight in the face of accusation is some evidence of guilt."

"There is no reason," Seabury said, "why Sherwood should fear investigation if he were the agent of others. He knew he was being investigated in relation to the mayor."

He made the charges in a reply to a motion by Democratic members of the committee to strike out of the record all testimony taken since April 26.

Seabury insisted that it stands in the evidence that Sherwood had a joint safe deposit box with the mayor. "True," he said, "we have the statement of the mayor, unsupported by evidence, that, although it was in their joint names, nothing went into it."

Acted Mayor's Agent

"In addition we have proof showing that Sherwood was and had been for many years the agent of the mayor, and that in a written application for a position he said he was an accountant and confidential secretary at $7,500 a year.

"You have evidence," he added, "that from Jan. 1, 1928, (the date Mayor Walker went into office) until he fled, nearly $1,000,000 went into Sherwood's accounts."

"You have undisputed evidence that one William J. Scanlan got $10,000 commission on a city contract, and that $6,000 of it went into the account of Russell Sherwood.

"You have the mayor's testimony that he could imagine no reason why anyone should pay money to Sherwood. You have the circumstances of the letter of credit, and you have the Sisto matter, undisputed and undenied on the record, that those bonds were given the mayor, as was shown by Sisto's and McKeon's testimony.

ASPHODEL MAN GIVEN 2 MONTHS

John Bingham Pleaded Guilty to Breaking Into Norwood Store.

WANTED CIGARETTES.

Having pleaded guilty to breaking and entering Barton's store in Norwood and stealing tobacco and cigarettes, John Bingham, aged 24, of Asphodel Township, was sentenced to two months in the county gaol.

He was arrested by Provincial Police a week ago. He is said to have admitted attempting to enter Gardner's drug store at Norwood.

"I wanted some cigarettes and didn't have the money to buy them, so I just took 'em" he told police.

He had been working on a farm for a relation of his, he stated in court, but was getting nothing but his board.

In sentencing him, Magistrate Langley, stated that there had been too much petty thieving going on in the country, and although it was Bingham's first offence, he must be taught a lesson and given punishment.

Sleep Disturber Had Good Reason

NEW YORK, May 27 (C.P.).—New Yorkers, when they do sleep, insist upon sleeping in quiet without outside noises or distractions. Yesterday morning residents of a Bronx street were aroused from their sleep by loud cries from the street. They sounded like several men arguing.

Walter L. Schwall, 24, who was doing most of the arguing, had a very good reason. He was pleading for his life. He lost. A few hours after the householders were disturbed, a milkman found his body face down on the sidewalk. There was a bullet hole in the back of the head.

FOUR INJURED IN CAR CRASH

3 CRITICALLY HURT.

WOODSTOCK, May 27 (C.P.) — Three women were critically injured and a fourth less seriously hurt when the automobile in which they were riding left the road near here to-day. All four live in Detroit.

Mrs. Lucille Miller, Mrs. May Miller, and Mrs. H. Cougan, may die from their injuries, while Mrs. James Adams was slightly hurt.

The accident occurred near Tillsonburg. The car left the highway, plowed along the roadside for 400 feet, struck a rural mail box and then plunged over a 25-foot embankment.

Believe Driver Dozed

It is not known which of the four women was at the wheel, but it is thought that the driver dozed and allowed the machine to swing off the highway. There were no eyewitnesses of the accident. The car, a light coach, was badly wrecked.

Fred Benner and Robert Scott, farmers residing near the scene of the accident, were the first to reach the injured women and after rendering first aid, sent two of the women in to Tillsonburg in a passing truck. An ambulance coming out for the two most seriously injured. The three women in hospital are terribly cut about the face and head.

WOMAN IS GIVEN FIVE YEAR TERM

HAS 3 SMALL CHILDREN.

BRANTFORD, Ont., May 27. — Mrs. Louis English, widow of Paris, Ont., was to-day sentenced to five years in the penitentiary, having previously pleaded guilty to a charge of abortion, following the death of Dorothy Tree of Stratford. At the previous hearing, counsel for the defense asked for leniency as Mrs. English was affected by an ailment which, he claimed, would result in her early death, and that she was the mother of three small children, left fatherless less than six months ago.

Magistrate Blake held that it was necessary to show Canadian courts disapproved of abortion or attempted abortion.

SHIPPING ACT WITHDRAWAL IS EXPLAINED

UP NEXT SESSION.

Duranleau States Many Intercessions Have Been Made to Authorities.

OTTAWA, May 27 (C.P.). — The withdrawal of Bill 74, an Act to amend the Canada Shipping Act with reference to coastwise trade, was explained in a statement issued to-day by Hon. Alfred Duranleau, Minister of Marine, who said it had been impossible to reconcile the many and varied representations received in connection with the proposed measure, in the short time the Government had at its disposal before prorogation. The bill would have retained for Canadian shipping much of the business now handled on the Great Lakes by United States companies.

Those companies mostly affected would have been the carriers of Canadian grain from the head of the lakes to Buffalo and other American elevator ports, for subsequent shipment back to Canadian ports. In this way the Act as it exists, preventing foreign ships from handling Canadian trade between Canadian ports, is conformed with by the trans-shipment at a United States port. The new Act would have been in conformity with the United States coastwise shipping laws which prevent foreign ships from handling cargo between United States ports either directly or indirectly.

Many Views Given.

"Strong representations had come from many sources," the Minister said, "to the effect that opportunity should be afforded to submit arguments in support of or in opposition to a measure of such importance. Among those interests involved were organizations established by citizens of other countries, who claimed that they had invested considerable capital in Canadian shipping on the Great Lakes, had organized Canadian companies, and employed a personnel that was one hundred per cent. Canadian."

The bill will be re-introduced at the next session of Parliament and referred to a select committee of the House of Commons which will have opportunity to all interested parties to be heard. In that way it is intended that the measure will have been dealt with before the next season of inland navigation.

The number of idle ships in Japan is decreasing.

TOO ANXIOUS TO BE GANGSTERS MERCHANTS STUCK WITH GOODS

Strangers Order Big Supplies For Bootlegging and Borrow Money.

THEN DISAPPEAR.

(Special to The Examiner)

ST. JOHN, N.B., May 27 (SNS)—When two strangers blew into St. John, N.B., and claimed to be advance and purchasing agents for a liquor and dope smuggling gang, they were taken to the bosoms of over a dozen local merchants, much to the subsequent grief of the business men.

The two strangers announced they had been authorized to order supplies for a new service in booze and drugs which was to be started between St. John and Boston, with a fleet of auxiliary schooners. The payoff for the supplies needed for the first shipment in this new service was to come on the arrival from Boston, of the head of the gang, who was to direct the loading and departure of each of the vessels.

Two Kittens Born With Rabbit Legs

HAILEYBURY, May 27. — Two kittens, offspring of the owner's cat, and by appearance at least half rabbit, are the latest freak of nature reported in these parts. The animals are the property of Charles Belec, Haileybury resident, and they have all the appearance of an ordinary cat, so far as their front qquarters go, but the hind parts have the long feet, knuckle joints and stubby tail similar to those found on bunnies. They are expected to reach maturity. Originally, there were three, but one died shortly after birth.

RECTOR FIGHTS FOR REPUTATION

Admits His Devotion to Cause of Fallen Women at Immorality Trial.

Quotes Letter To Bishop.

LONDON, May 27 (A.P.) — The devotion of the Rev. H. F. Davidson, 62-year-old rector of Stiffkey, to the cause of fallen women was proclaimed to-day in Church House, Westminster, where the rector is defending himself against charges of immorality.

At the conclusion of nearly 28 hours of direct testimony and cross-examination, the elderly rector, accused of intimacies with young girls, cited a letter which he had written to the Bishop of Norwich in which he had told of his efforts to assist women who had erred.

"I believe," the letter said, "that if Christ had been born again in London in the present day, He would be found constantly walking in Piccadilly. His attitude to women taken in adultery has always been my inspiration."

The rector reiterated denials made yesterday that a photograph showing him with a partially undraped young girl had been taken for immoral purposes.

BARNS BURNED NEAR HAMILTON

Farmers Blame Firebug — Fear Repetition of Former Terrorism.

ENQUIRY STARTED.

HAMILTON, May 27 (C.P.)—An investigation was under way to-day into a series of barn fires in this district. Two large buildings at Grimsby were completely destroyed by fire, while a barn was destroyed at Ancaster Wednesday night.

Some months ago the district was terrorized by a series of farm fires which broke out night after night despite patrols who guarded the area.

The first outbreak last night occurred on the Cecil Bonham farm, which burned to the ground despite efforts of firemen to extinguish the blaze. A barn on the Pettit property, was burned shortly afterwards. It was owned by Jonathon Book, who died Wednesday.

It was feared both blazes were of incendiary origin, and an enquiry has been ordered by the Fire Marshal's department.

SWING TO LEFT IS RADICALISM HENRY DECLARES

Premier Henry Enters Campaign in West York.

LACK OF LEADERSHIP.

Hepburn Says All Premier Does is Ask Riddles.

TORONTO, May 27 (C.P.). — Speaking on behalf of the Conservative candidate, Harry Price, Premier George S. Henry made his first address of the West York Provincial by-election campaign at New Toronto last night before more than 7,200 persons. The Premier reiterated that if Mitchell F. Hepburn the Ontario Liberal leader, chose to stand for election to the Legislature in a constituency at present represented by one of his own supporters, the Conservative Party would offer no opposition.

The Premier denounced Radicalism, and referring to Mr. Hepburn's recent "swing to the left" statement, said it was merely another term for extreme Radicalism "as near to Communism as a man can get." He declared that as long as Section 98 (the unlawful assembly) section of the criminal code remained part of the law of the country, the Province of Ontario would enforce it without fear or favor.

Lack Of Leadership.

In a brief address supporting W. J. Gardhouse, the Liberal nominee, Mr. Hepburn, accused Premier Henry of lack of constructive leadership, in a period of economic stress. All he does is ask me riddled, the Liberal leader said. Referring to charges by Hon. Leopold Macaulay, Minister of Highways, that he was a detractor of his country, Mr. Hepburn said, "I am quite as good a Canadian as he is. The difference between us is that I have the interests of the masses at heart and he has the interests of the interests."

Hon. Harry Nixon, Progressive chieftain, also addressed a by-election meeting in the interests of the Liberal candidate. He referred to the statement of the Minister of Agriculture at Sarnia last year to the effect the Ontario farmer was the highest taxed individual in the world. Nothing has been done to lower the farmers' taxes, he declared.

CASE DISMISSED AGAINST FRITH

Nothing to Show That Gravel Was Removed From East City.

JUST TOP SOIL.

The charge again Joseph Frith that he did dig a pit on Hazlett street, contrary to the city bylaw passed in December last year, making it illegal to open a gravel or sand pit within 200 feet of a street anywhere in the city, was dismissed to-day by Police Magistrate Langley.

Maintaining that it could not be claimed that Frith had actually proceeded to take gravel or sand off the lot, but had only removed topsoil, His Worship ruled that it could not be termed a pit. Frith was on a lawful purpose when he merely removed the topsoil from the lot, Magistrate Langley held.

Following the completion of the evidence yesterday, the court adjourned to the lot and inspected it. The Magistrate said he had observed nothing to indicate that Frith had removed any subsoil.

City Solicitor Corkery, in his argument, stated that Frith had shown his intention of opening a pit by starting the work, while A. L. Elliott, counsel for Frith, argued by no stretch of the imagination could the hole on the lot be termed a pit.

128 CANDIDATES JOIN MANITOBA ELECTION FRAY

Liberals and Progressives Fighting Side by Side in Campaign.

BRACKEN MAKES SHIFTS.

WINNIPEG, May 27 (C.P.) — Their union cemented by a Cabinet coalition to receive official ratification later to-day, Liberals and Progressives are in the midst of Manitoba's election campaign battle—fighting side by side.

Premier John Bracken's Government seeks re-election on June 26, under a Liberal-Progressive standard, with a Cabinet made up of three Liberals and eight Progressives. At the finish of his keynote campaign speech here last night, the Premier announced the names of the three Liberals he is taking into his pre-election Ministry. They are: Ewan A. McPherson, former member of Parliament for Portage La Prairie; J. S. McDiarmid, who formerly represented Winnipeg South Centre in the House of Commons, and Dr. Murdock MacKay, Manitoba Liberal Leader.

Transfers

In order to make room for the newcomers, Premier Bracken transferred Hon. D. G. McKenzie from the Ministry of Mines and Natural Resources to that of Agriculture, and left Hon. Albert Prefontaine, Minister of Agriculture, without portfolio. Mr. McDiarmid takes over the Mines and Natural Resources Department, and Mr. McPherson becomes Provincial Treasurer in place of the Premier. Dr. MacKay is without portfolio.

Naming of the six Liberal-Progressives swelled to 29 the list of candidates already nominated to contest Winnipeg's ten seats in the Legislature. Seven Conservatives were nominated the previous night, the Independent Labor Party has named six candidates, the "Continuing Liberal" party three, and six Independents will run with the sanction of smaller organizations.

Continuing Liberals, who look with disfavor upon the union of their party with the Government forces, nominated three candidates to run in Winnipeg at a meeting last night. David Campbell, Mayor of St. Boniface, Man., is leader of the Liberal faction which refuses to support the Bracken Government.

Proportional System

Voting in Winnipeg is under the proportional representation system, electors marking their ballots according to preference.

With nomination day only ten days away, 128 candidates have been approved in various parts of the Province, and it is considered likely more than 190 will contest the Province's 55 seats. Conservatives have nominated 50 candidates; Liberal-Progressives, 46; Continuing Liberals, 9; Labor, 11; while 16 Independents are in the field.

LINDBERGH WILL GIVE TESTIMONY

Expresses Willingness to Play Part in Prosecution if Curtis is Indicted.

TRIAL LIKELY JUNE 13.

HOPEWELL, N. J., May 27.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is ready to take a personal hand in the prosecution of John H. Curtis for the hoax to which Curtis has confessed. He has expressed to Prosecutor Anthony Hauck, who will have charge of the prosecution of Curtis, "intermediary" in the famous kidnapping case, his willingness to take the witness stand if Curtis is indicted.

Just what action has been taken by the Hunterdon county grand jury has not been officially announced. It is generally understood that the Norfolk boatbuilder has been indicted for obstructing justice.

The specific charge was that of interfering with justice by giving false clues while the hunt for the Lindbergh baby, then believed to be alive, was on.

He confessed to giving Lindbergh false hopes of recovering the baby in the hope of receiving money later by selling his story to newspapers. Discovery of the mutilated body of the child a few miles from the nursery from which it had been stolen upset his plans, he said.

Trial June 13

Prosecutor Hauck, confident that today would bring official announcement of an indictment against the Norfolk, Va., man, has set the tentative date for trial as June 13.

If there is a trial, he will call besides Col. Lindbergh, the two intermediaries who worked with Curtis—Rev. Dean Dobson - Peacock former Canadian rector and Admiral Guy H. Burrage. Both said they accepted Curtis story in good faith.

Mrs. Lindbergh will not be asked to testify, Hauck said. She is expecting another child within a few months and will be spared the ordeal of serving as a prosecution witness.

Meanwhile, Curtis lawyers are busy with what they have announced as "important new disclosures" they hope will serve to prevent their client from being sent to prison for the trickery to which he has confessed.

NATIONS' VIEWS VARY WIDELY REGARDING OFFENSIVE WEAPONS

Britain, U. S., Japan Hold Battleships Defensive—Others Opposed.

REPORT ADOPTED.

GENEVA, Switzerland, May 27 (A.P.)—A report containing many divergent views on the question of what weapons are most offensive was adopted to-day by the Naval Commission of the Disarmament Conference.

The report showed not only that the great powers differed among themselves, but also held views on the most important points contrary to those of the small powers.

Great Britain held battleships and aircraft carriers belonged in the defensive category. She was supported by the United States and by Japan in respect to battleships. Nearly all the smaller nations, however, denounced them as offensive arms.

Japan defended submarines and denounced aircraft-carriers. Argentina regarded battleships as offensive but in general endorsed the position of Britain and United States on the question of aircraft-carriers.

The United States and French military experts have reached an agreement in principle on the United States proposals for determining military defence requirements along the general lines embodied in the treaties written at the conclusion of the war, in which limitations are set on the armed strength of the Central Powers.

RIVER STEAMER SINKS, 40 LOST

Boat Strikes Rock in Yangtze 235 Miles Above Ichang.

VICTIMS CHINESE.

SHANGHAI, May 27 (C.P.) — Forty persons were believed to be missing to-day from the river steamer Iling, of the American Yangtze Rapids Steamship Company. A report to the company said the boat struck a rock 235 miles above Ichang Wednesday and sank.

J. Anderson of Brooklyn, N.Y., captain of the boat, made the report to the company.

He was rescued and arrived today at Chungking, 115 miles above the scene of the wreck aboard a Chinese steamer. He telegraphed the office of the company here, saying the Iling sank in a dangerous spot in the river, within the Yangtze Gorges, making salvage impossible.

One hundred members of the crew and 40 passengers were aboard, he said, all believed to be Chinese. Chinese junks below the wreck rescued a number of the passengers and crew, he said, but 40 were missing and at least 10 were believed to have drowned.

RUSSIAN WOMAN ADMITS DOUMER SLAYER HER SON

MOSCOW, May 27 (C.P.). — Moscow newspapers said to-day the mother of Dr. Iaul Gorgulov positively identified a picture of the assassin of Paul Doumer of France published in French newspapers as that of her son.

The 52-year-old woman lives in the village of Labinsky, in Southwest Russia, where the family originated.

Some time ago she was classified as a kulak (rich peasant) and her property was seized by the Soviet Government.

Other residents of the village who knew Gorgulov also identified the picture, the report said, and denounced the act as "traitorous."

Crippled Boy Wins In Story Contest

MONTREAL, May 27.—(CP). — Dick Moulson, an eight-year-old boy living in Verdun, a Montreal suburb, was crippled as the result of a nervous affliction. His doctor had prescribed riding a bicycle to give his legs the necessary exercise, but there was no money in the family coffer for such a luxury. All the extra money his parents could gather up went to provide a special diet for the lad. Dick, however, took things in his own hands and solved his problem by winning a bicycle offered as a prize by a local newspaper for the best news story or news item of not more than 50 words.

MOTORIST DIES HIT BY TROLLEY

Wife Runs Up Tracks Signalling Vainly for Motorman to Stop.

TWO CHILDREN HURT.

PORT CREDIT, Ont., May 27.—(C.P.)—Leo McGinn, 29, of London, Ont., is dead while two of his children had a miraculous escape from a similar fate at midnight when the automobile in which they were driving was struck by a trolley car on the highway east of here.

His wife, Mrs. Rose McGinn, 25, and a baby, Donald, 18 months old, were also passengers in the vehicle until a few seconds before the impact when the woman jumped out of the car, and with the youngster in her arm ran up the track frantically waving for the oncoming trolley to stop.

Her efforts, however, failed to attract the attention of the motorman, Lorne Carroll, of Toronto. When passers-by came to the rescue the elder McGinn was dead but his two youngsters managed to crawl from the wreckage. The badly damaged automobile was carried 65 feet by the trolley.

WAVED TO DRIVER.

PORT CREDIT, Ont., May 27 (C.P.). — "I waved to the driver of the car—but he didn't hear me or see me." Sobbing bitterly, Mrs. Leo McGinn, London, Ont., to-day told the story of the accident which early to-day cost the life of her husband and resulted in injuries to her two children. Both the children will recover.

Running at high speed through a fog, a radial car struck the McGinn automobile, stalled on an intersection. McGinn was killed instantly, while his daughter Leona, six, and three-year-old son Kenneth crawled practically unhurt from the wreckage of the car.

Mrs. McGinn made frantic efforts to stop the fast-moving radial car, but was unsuccessful.

The car stopped directly across the tracks and my husband was trying to back it out, she said. I got out with the baby in my arms and ran up the tracks a way. I don't know how far I went, perhaps 700 yards. I waved to the driver of the car, but he didn't hear or see me. There was a heavy mist.

The street car ran right into our car in which my husband and two children were sitting. There was a terrible crash. The children were hardly hurt at all. My husband was dead.

CHILD LOST 24 HOURS FOUND ASLEEP IN WOODS

BELLEVILLE, May 27.—After being lost for 24 hours in the woods of Carlow Township, North Hastings, 3-year-old Elwood Wasmaund was discovered by a party of searchers lying asleep between two logs. The youngster was very cold and hungry, but otherwise suffered no ill-effects. As soon as the boy's absence was noted, his father notified the Provincial Police and asked that bloodhounds be put on the trial. Later it was decided to organize the district in a systematic hunt and over forty men volunteered.

FACED BY SALT SHAKER POLICE SHOOT TO KILL

DETROIT, May 27 (C.P.). — A man identified by fingerprints as Joseph Joyce, with a police record here and in Hamilton, Ont., was shot and killed by two patrolmen, who found him early to-day in a Michigan Avenue restaurant that had been closed for the night.

The officers, Frederick Aller and Charles Beckman, reported that when they entered the restaurant the man threw a table at them, and that he held an object which they believed to be a revolver, in his hand. A salt shaker later was found in his hand.

ENGLISH RIVERS FLOOD VILLAGES

Six Hundred Families Homeless Around Doncaster—Loss is Heavy.

BOATS PLAY TAXI.

LONDON, May 27 (C.P.).—The River Trent overflowed its banks to-day and flooded villages in the neighborhood of Gainsborough in Lincolnshire, and area hitherto immune to floods which have swept the Midlands. Water rose into the lower floors of houses, carrying quantities of mud with it. Sewage systems were put out of commission.

The flood of the Trent followed subsidence of waters in other inundated areas which suffered damage to the extent of about $2,000,000 last week. More than 600 families were still homeless around Doncaster, Yorkshire, but the situation was improving daily.

The local council at Doncaster organized a fleet of 40 boats to take people on necessary journeys, while police made stringent regulations against aquatic joy riders who might endanger relief workers and others abroad on the flood water. A conference of several local authorities estimated the river Don could be made permanently safe from floods for about $250,000.

Colchester Township Farmer, Killed by Lightning, Within Few Feet of Safety.

BUILDINGS TWISTED.

Sheep Killed in Perth Area — Crops Washed Out, Cellare Flooded.

TORONTO, May 27. (CP)—While citizens of the north anxiously awaited rain to quench bush fires which have raged in the district for weeks, Southern Ontario awoke to-day to find one of the season's most severe lightning, rain and wind storms had visited the district overnight.

One life was claimed by the sudden storm, while heavy property damage was reported in the districts of Windsor and Perth.

Cyril Jenner, 33-year-old South Colchester Township farmer, was within a few feet of comparative safety when lightning struck him and brought instant death.

Barns Blown Over

Trees were uprooted, barns blown over and buildings twisted on their foundations so badly they will have to be rebuilt, when the wind reached the height of its proportions in the Perth area. Three sheep were reportd killed on the farm of Daniel Brady.

Scores of basements were flooded and inches of rain covered the street in Sarnia. One house was struck by lightning but only small damage resulted. Growing crops in the area were flattened while in the vicinity of Brigden corn fields were flooded and will likely have to be re-planted.

In the Toronto district truck gardens were washed out by the deluge of rain but no serious damage has been reported.

BROWNE IS READY FOR LONG FLIGHT

Must Be in Air by Sunday Afternoon if He Wishes to Get Money.

SEATTLE, Wash., May 27. (AP) A take-off wind blowing from the south with a velocity of at least six miles an hour, was awaited here to-day by Nathan C. Browne, New York flyer, to enable him to get into the air with his plane on a non-stop flight to Tokyo.

Delayed several days by adverse weather over the Pacific and by the time taken to build an elevated ramp, Brown said he was anxious to start the long flight, but that he did not want to hazard wrecking the Lone Star by taking off under adverse conditions.

With a $30,000 prize offer expiring June 7, aviation men said Browne must be in the air by Sunday afternoon at the latest to arrive in Japan in time to be eligible for the prize. He plans a flight of upwards of 55 hours.

Six Cases In One Hour Record At Belleville

BELLEVILLE, May 27. — The shortest sitting of the non-jury Supreme Court held in this city was terminated when His Lordship Justice Logie disposed of the six cases before him in less than one hour. Justice Logie expressed his appreciation to the local solicitors for their prompt work. Three divorce applications were granted, and the other three cases were quickly disposed of when the parties either settled the cases by consent or pleaded guilty.

JUDGES' CONTROVERSY SETTLED PEACEFULLY

LONDON, May 27 (C.P.).—Legal aspects of the controversy over Tuesday's "public rebuke" of Sir Henry Alfred McCardie, JJudge of the High Court, to Sir Thomas Edward Scrutton, his senior and Lord Justice of Appeal in the King's Bench Division of the High Court, yesterday were settled peacefully.

Sir Henry said at the request of the Master of the Rolls, who is President of the Appeal Court, he would supply notes of cases he heard to the Appeal Court. He thus reversed his previously announced decision to withhold notes until he was sure Sir Thomas would not preside at appeals against his judgments.

ACID STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Sufferers From Indigestion CUT THIS OUT

"Stomach trouble, dyspepsia, indigestion, sourness, gas, heartburn, food fermentation, etc., are caused nine times in ten by chronic acid stomach," says a well-known authority.

Burning hydrochloric acid develops in the stomach at an alarming rate. The acid irritates and inflames the delicate stomach lining and often leads to gastritis or stomach ulcers. Don't dose an acid stomach with pepsin or artificial digestants that only give temporary relief from pain by driving the sour, fermenting food out of the stomach into the intestines.

Instead, neutralize or sweeten your acid stomach after meals with a little Bisurated Magnesia and not only will the pain vanish, but your meals will digest naturally. There is nothing better than Bisurated Magnesia to sweeten and settle an acid stomach. Your stomach acts and feels fine in just a few minutes. Bisurated Magnesia can be obtained from any reliable druggist. It is safe, reliable, easy, and pleasant to use, is not a laxative, and is not at all expensive.

FINAL MEETING OF AUXILIARY

Mrs. H. W. Jordan Entertains Members of St. Thomas' Church Society.

AT MILLBROOK.

MILLBROOK, May 27 (Examiner Correspondence) — The Women's Missionary Auxiliary of St. Thomas' Anglican Church was entertained for its May meeting at the home of Mrs. H. W. Jordan, Anne street, on Monday evening, the president, Mrs. C. M. Westmacott, taking the chair and conducting the devotional period.

According to custom, the May meeting of the W.A. is the closing gathering until after the holiday season, hence reports of officers were comprehensive of the activities of the fall and winter months, the superintendent of the Junior W.A., Miss Margaret Simpson, announcing a "Japanese Tea" to be held at the rectory on Thursday, June 2, from four to six o'clock.

Discussion regarding the series of afternoon teas, at members' homes, which the Auxiliary is sponsoring, led to the decision to hold the next social gathering of this character some time during August, at the home of the president, Mrs. Westmacott. Announcement was made that the annual gathering of the Women's Auxiliaries for the Victoria Deanery will be held in Millbrook next September, and tentative plans were outlined for the entertainment of delegates, and other particulars. Further attention to this important matter will be given when the date draws nearer, and is definitely known.

Two delegates, Mrs. Westmacott and Miss Rose Macnamara, had attended the annual diocesan convention at Toronto, May 9 to 13, and the latter gave a most comprehensive report of the sessions, which were largely held in St. Anne's Parish Hall. A notable feature of the big gathering was the communion service held in St. James cathedral on Thursday morning when one thousand women partook of the sacrament of the Lord's Supper, Rev. William Simpson, B.A., rector of the parish of Cavan, being one of the several officiating clergymen.

Another feature of outstanding interest was the fact that Rev. Stanley Russell, pastor of Deer Park United Church, Toronto, was one of the speakers at the convention, his fine address being on the topic, "Christian Ideals in the Social Order." The main speaker at the Diocesan gathering was Rev. W. H. Adcock, superintendent of the Social Service Department, Saskatchewan, who gave three constructive addresses, emphasizing the Saviour's command, "Feed My Sheep," and insisting that care of the bodies of men is essential to providing for their souls.

Miss Tuttle, who has been for fifteen years treasurer of the Diocesan W.A., resigned this year and was succeeded by Miss Street, formerly Dorcas secretary; all other officers were returned by acclamation. Ill health compelled Miss Tuttle's retirement from office.

The new study book, which will be begun in the fall, is on China, and is arranged in two books, one on the work in Honan province and the other on China in general. The re-opening meeting in September will be at the home of the president and following the closing prayers on Monday evening, the hostess served dainty refreshments, and a very pleasant social hour was enjoyed.

WALKER HOLDS OWN IN PROBE

CROWD CHEERS MAYOR.

NEW YORK, May 27. — Mayor James J. Walker's question and answer battle was over today but his arch inquisitor, Samuel Seabury, struggled with a $1,000,000 jigsaw puzzle from which the key piece was missing.

It was around Russel T. Sherwood who emerged from a clerk's obscurity to handle big money and then disappeared when the Ofstader legislative committee sought to question him, that Seabury's problem revolved.

Spurning with anger the idea that he had any knowledge of Sherwood's $700,325 deposits and of Sherwood's mysterious withdrawal of $363,838 from a secret account with Hornblower and Weeks, brokers, the mayor insisted Seabury's charge that Sherwood acted as his financial agent was untrue.

"If I have committed perjury," he shouted on the stand yesterday while a crowded hearing room roared with applause, "I would expected to be prosecuted for it."

Seabury Tries Anew

Seabury, unable to establish a connected link between Walker and Sherwood from the challenging mayor's own lips, prepared to try anew again today before the Hofstadter committee investigating charges of corruption in the government of the metropolis.

Today he expected to present a comparative analysis of Sherwood's 10 bank and brokerage accounts and Walker's four, trying to establish a link. When the mayor finished his two-day duel with Seabury yesterday and walked off amid hurrahs from his supporters, the legislative committee's counsel immediately took up his task.

Today he expected to question, among others, Park Commissioner Walter R. Herrick, a close friend of the mayor, and J. Allen Smith, backer of the Equitable Bus Company who purchased a $10,000 letter of credit for Walker about the time the latter signed a franchise for the Equitable.

LABOR DEMANDS HIGHER TAXES LEVIED ON RICH

Labor Party of West York Issues Its Campaign Manifesto.

GOVERNMENT STUPID

TORONTO, May 27—Demanding the proclamation of an economic emergency by the Provincial and Federal Governments and the establishment of a moratorium during which the people may elect representatives clearly mandated to deal with the economic crisis the manifesto of the West York Labor party supporting the candidature of John W. Buckley, was released recently.

Request for legislation drastically to increase the inheritance tax and to impose a super-tax on all incomes over $3,000 is made in the manifesto. The Ontario Government is scored for showing the "utmost stupidity" in the following respects: 1. Raising a loan at a higher rate of interest than is paid by the provinces of not one-sixth Ontario's size, thus showing "their subservience to the dictatorship of finance"; 2. In refusing for months to permit inquiry into the "notorious payments of money from a public service utility by a financial adventurer"; 3. The setting of an example to persons of dishonest intent by their attempt to break a will, the purpose of which was intended to give the money to bequeathed to the mother of the largest family in Ontario.

"Never, in the history of civilisation have the masses of the people experienced such dire and unnecessary suffering as at the present time.

"Never has the sterility of the old line parties and their impotency in a national crisis been so apparent.

"If the intolerable abuses are to be corrected, by constitutional means, some immediate and effective steps must be taken to alleviate the present distress, while a practical program of permanent reform is being carried out.

"The people know that this distress is unnecessary in a land of plenty.

"The Good Times," promised by the Old Political Parties year after year "are still around the corner."

"To thousands more each week, the wolf and the bailiff are drawing closer.

"Nothing but the iniquitous monetary and financial system, controlled by the few, is responsible and nothing but a catastrophe can result from their stupid efforts to prolong such a system.

"With hundreds of thousands of Canadians out of work, and farmers receiving next to nothing for their produce, the economic suffering in Canada, and the danger to the nation, are much worse than during the Great War. Both parties have shown themselves to be, not statesmen, but grave diggers, burying more deeply every day the people of this nation under an increasing load of debt, poverty and unemployment.

"Government during the war took unusual measures to hearten the people to "Save Democracy." Apparently our present politicians have no historical or economic background, to fit them either as statesmen or economists to cope with this industrial and financial crisis now shaking the world.

"To-day the need is for social engineers and not party politicians.

"The present conditions more urgently require the vigor and courage that were shown during the war, this time to save the very life of the province and nation, as well as the liberties that remain to us.

"To this end the right of all citizens to food and shelter, freedom of speech and assembly must be met as the first requisites to peace, order and the good government of Canada.

"To secure this, the primary defence of the state, the money lender must be dethroned, and the processes by which a minority of citizens have been enabled to take to themselves arbitrary powers, to put the majority under unjust tribute, to strangle industry, and thereby add to the unemployment and suffering of the people, must be reversed.

"An economic emergency must, therefore, be proclaimed, by the provincial and Dominion Governments, and a moratorium declared during the holding of a general election, at which the people may elect representatives clearly mandated to deal with the economic crisis.

"The first essential of such a policy must be that the Government, on which corporations and banks now rely to save them from the consequences of their own greed and inefficiency, must henceforth be directly responsible for all the money in circulation.

"Steps must be taken to rectify the abuses of fake capitalization which permeate and strangle Canadian industry, and of which the robbing of milk producers of West York this year of 30 per cent of their income, while assuring to the creators of fake capital, known as common or watered stock, of dividends outrageously beyond what the actual investment is entitled to, in this essential service.

"As a result of the high price of milk, the most essential food for young children, it is almost impossible for the most helpless and needy to procure it.

"The Ontario Government has not only shown barrenness of statesmanship to meet the conditions already appalling; but has shown the utmost stupidity in such matters as:

1. Raising a loan at a higher rate of interest than is paid by provinces not one-sixth our size, thus showing their subservience to the dictatorship of finance.

"2. In refusing for months to permit inquiry into the notorious payments of money from a public service utility by a financial adventurer.

"3. The setting of an example to persons of dishonest intent by their attempt to break a will; the purpose of which was intended to give the money so bequeathed to the mother of the largest family in Ontario. A decision no court would uphold.

"Colossal sums are used to-day for relief. This wealth is being consumed without leaving its equivalent return in production thereby putting a greater burden of debt on the province which must inevitably be paid by the producer.

"The Labor Party, therefore, demands that legislation be enacted to drastically increase the inheritance tax and a super tax on all incomes over $3,000; such legislation would benefit 95 per cent of the people, thus putting the burden on the shoulders of those best able to bear it."

BRITISH FILMS GROW IN FAVOR

I. O. D. E. Committee Claims They Compare Favorably With U. S. Productions.

LAUD ONTARIO BUREAU.

TORONTO, May 26. (CP)—Imported quality of British films is stressed in the report of the film committee, Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, in annual convention here to-day. The British movies, the committee says, are comparing very favorably with those emanating from Hollywood, and the English pictures, with their softer outlines, greater restraint, are increasing their popularity.

"Every effort has been made to obtain information as to the advance bookings of all British pictures throughout Canada, and to notify the members of the committee in various provinces in time for efforts to be made to secure good audiences for them" the report says. It quotes two pictures which have had long runs in Toronto theatres as excellent examples of British art in motion pictures.

A tribute is paid to the Ontario Motion Picture Bureau, which had supplied numerous films for chapters of the Order. "The programs consist of a series of moving pictures of various parts of the Empire and particular aspects of each country."

The "One Family" film, brought from England by Premier Bennett, and which depicts the manufacture of a Christmas pudding, is to be widely used, the committee said. "Permission has been obtained to have this picture made on a 26 mm. film which can be used in schools and such places."

WHITE INDIANS IN PARAGUAY

Dr. Donald Wees, Explorer, Confident of Proving His Statement.

UNIVERSITY SKEPTICAL.

BUENOS AIRES, May 27. —(AP) — Dr. Donald Wees, explorer who recently returned from a trip into the interior of Paraguay, said today he would present ample evidence to prove that white Indians exist in the Paraguayan grand desert when he returns to the United States.

His evidence, he said, would be presented to the Harvard University museum, which challenged his statement as "a revival of an old hoax."

It would be substantiated, he said, by many authorities in Paraguay.

He also quoted the newspaper El Orden as saying in reply to the Harvard statement, that is is indisputable that there are white Indians in Paraguay, "as white as any European."

Dr. Wees said he met several of them but did not pursue his researches because his mission was primarily zoological.

LINDSAY OPENS SOUP KITCHEN

Regiment Officers Offer to Back Operation After Mayor Orders it Closed.

TOURISTS ARRIVE.

(Examiner Correspondence)

LINDSAY, May 27.—Patrick O'Connell of the R.C.M.P. has returned home from Cobourg district, where he was engaged listing foreigners desirous of taking out naturalisation papers. Considerable difficulty was experienced in locating some of the men, and in getting them an answer questions.

Mr. Paul Hamilton, of the Sands Radiator Company, Cleveland, and party, arrived in town on Wednesday en route to his summer home on Pigeon Lake. He has spent his summers in this district for the past fifteen years and his party is the second from Cleveland to reach here this week. Mr. Hamilton is authority for the statement that indications point to a revival of business conditions across the line at an early date.

Provincial Constable R. Hawkshaw, who has been stationed in Minden district and who had supervision over the road camps, has been transferred to Ottawa district. Constable Hawkshaw was formerly on motor cycle patrol on No. 7 highway, working out of Greenbank.

The soup kitchen which has been operating at the armouries was closed the other day on instructions from Acting Mayor Begg. Lieut.-Col. R. I. Moore, officer commanding 45th regiment, has had the kitchen re-opened, the officers of the regiment unanimously agreeing to keep it in operation for a time.

On information laid by Provincial Constable Hornick of Peterborough, J. L. Phillips, of Warkworth, appeared before Police Magistrate Jordan yesterday on the charge of having a license plate not easily discernable. He was fined $2.00 and costs.

The vexed school question, which has been agitating the citizens of Fenelon Falls, has been settled. A. M. Fulton, solicitor of Lindsay, was present at the last session of the village council. He had prepared the by-law re the debentures for new Continuation School over which there was so much controversy, and pointed out that the question raised regarding the legality of the rescinding of motion was immaterial, as the communication from the School Board on which the council acted was an intimation rather than a requisition, as it did not bear the Board's seal. The council passed the necessary by-law to raise by debentures the sum of $36,000 for the new school.

TO STUDY MARKETING PROBLEMS.

One of the features of the closing days of the session was the announcement made on Wednesday by Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture, that the Government proposed to appoint a commission to investigate the whole field of the marketing of farm products.

Undoubtedly there is need for an exhaustive inquiry into the problems entering into the sale of agricultural products, and if given wide powers a commission might arrive at conclusions likely to be of permanent benefit to Canada's basic industry.

It is gratifying to note that particular attention is to be devoted to the question of middlemen's profits.

There has, it seems to the public, always been too wide a spread between what the farmer receives for his products and the price the consumer has to pay, and if Mr. Weir's commission succeeds in throwing some light upon that ancient problem it will have thoroughly justified its appointment.

Such matters as a national marketing board, better grading and packing of farm products, and other similar questions should afford plenty of scope for useful service.

The Government should lose no time in putting its commission at work; certainly the plight of agriculture calls for the application of first aid methods as speedily as possible.

A COMMENDABLE APPEAL.

"As we expand our armies in times of war, let us expand our army of health to face the enemy of depression," was the most timely advice offered by Dr. Louis I. Dublin, president of the American Public Health Association, in an address in Toronto the other day.

Dr. Dublin's words can be most fittingly applied to the appeal being made at the present time by the Peterborough Health Association, whose activities are being widened by the establishment of a chest clinic, made necessary by the increasing number of cases of tuberculosis.

It is unfortunately the case that with resistance lowered by lack of proper food and in some instances lack of sufficient fuel, conditions arising out of unemployment and reduced incomes, the white plague seizes upon new victims, and the fight to control tuberculosis necessarily becomes more serious.

The Health Association, alert to protect the health of those who are financially unable to provide their own protection, has established a chest clinic in the hope of checking the spread of the dread disease and thus has increased its public health services.

In this as well as in the assistance it has given by reason of its other well-known activities, the Health Association has earned the active support of every citizen who is in a position to render financial assistance.

The objective in the present drive is $1,000, and the importance of the work should be recognized by a speedy subscription of the needed amount.

THE SESSION IS OVER.

Parliament was prorogued yesterday after a session that was productive, unfortunately, of more party feeling than it was of useful legislation or of solutions for the problems confronting Canada at the present time.

The session, however, was not entirely barren, inasmuch as it sanctioned a new trade treaty with New Zealand, saw the nationalization of radio broadcasting in Canada sanctioned, a report urging the strictest economy in the management of Canada's National Railways approved, and included the bringing down of a budget that inaugurated a campaign of retrenchment, including general salary cuts, and predicted a balancing of accounts next year.

Investigation of Canadian National Railway affairs by a parliamentary committee was a feature of the session and produced a great deal of fireworks during the sittings of the committee, only to develop in the end a somewhat tame report in which it was evident there had been a considerable measure of compromise to bring about unanimity.

Due to some extention to the selection of Right Hon. Arthur Meighen as Government leader, the activities of the Senate attracted a good deal of attention, particularly in regard to the Beauharnois probe conducted by a committee of members of the Upper House.

The sittings of this committee, its majority reporting condemning Senators W. L. McDougald and Andrew Haydon, and the resignation of the first named following the adoption of the report, all served to keep the Senate unusually prominent during the session.

It is quite on the cards that there will be a fall session this year, the issue hinging on the results of the Imperial Economic Conference.

THE WEST YORK BY-ELECTION.

Reports from West York where a by-election to fill the vacancy in the Legislature caused by the death of Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey will be held tomorrow are to the effect that while there are four candidates in the field, the real battle is expected to lie between the Government and the Liberal standard-bearers, and that neither the Labor or the Socialist aspirant is likely to get much support.

West York is normally a Conservative stronghold, and under ordinary conditions a four-cornered fight would be regarded almost as an acclamation for the Government candidate, Dr. Godfrey's majority in 1929 being in the neighborhood of 4,000.

These are not, however, ordinary times, and West York happens to be one of those constituencies particularly hard hit by the current depression, the suburban sections suffering from unemployment and the farmer voters from depleted incomes as a result of the collapse in commodity prices.

There is a tendency under such circumstances to place the blame for the conditions upon the shoulders of the party in power, and if that should prove to be the case in West York, anything might happen to-morrow, particularly if all the opposition to the Government is concentrated on one candidate instead of being divided among three.

The campaign has been distinguished for the vigor rather than the statesmanship displayed, and on the whole the oratory used by all parties has been on a disappointingly low plane.

HAVING THEIR EYES OPENED.

An editorial in the current issue of an American publication which carried as its sub-title: "The National Weekly," makes curious reading. It is headed: "Good and Lonely." It is illustrated by a cartoon representing two drowning figures. The one with his chin level with the water is labelled: "U.S." But he is being dragged down by a sinking figure below which is marked: "Nearly everybody Else." Tough, isn't it?

Of course, nobody will challenge the first part of the caption which heads the article. As to the last part, there is little doubt that "U.S." is going to be even more "lonely." That is, if it is determined to persist in its present national policy.

But the one redeeming feature is the text, or some parts, of the editorial itself. It shows gleams of sanity. And it indicates that, at last, some people are having their eyes opened.

"With abrupt violence we have discovered that something happening in Vienna, or Berlin, or London, or Tokyo was interfering with our own plans for rebuilding," says one paragraph.

"Not merely once, but many times during the past two years some episode or some new policy adopted by a government apparently far remote from us has intruded upon our vision. We have had to work out our own destiny despite interruptions and perverse events which few imagined we would have to consider."

"In spirit we are a soberer people," says another passage. Well, here's hoping. It may be wondered if the people of United States, or perhaps we ought to say some of their political bosses, recall the pathetic visit of the old "Tiger" of France, whose last foreign trip was taken in a vain hope that he might induce the people, whom he thought he knew something about, to "come over and help us." Poor old Clemenceau returned empty handed. And in his final speech in New York, where attempts were made to "lionize" him, he frankly told the large audience he would rather go home to bed as he realised the uselessness of any speech he might make.

And then there was the historic visit of Lloyd George to this continent. That provided the New Yorkers with another opportunity for enthusiastic demonstrations. But what did he tell them in his final utterances before sailing for home again? "A great nation cannot say to itself: 'Am I my brother's keeper?'"

After all, who started the more recent phases of the economic slump? Have the people of United States already forgotten that immediately following their last thumping increase in their tariffs nation after nation said to the United States: "Very well, keep your own products. If you are not going to take goods from us we are not going to take goods from you." And so the great slump went on. Today the United States dare not publish the figures of their unemployed. All the world knows to the last man or woman how many are unemployed in Britain. And they know, too, that not one of them is being allowed to starve, thanks to the much-despised "dole," which is poison to American capitalists.

But is is necessary to be fair to the editorial to which attention has been called. Here is another passage towards its close:

"We shall be better off materially and otherwise if we leaven our patriotism with a generous understanding of the plight and the problems of the outside world. We shall build a more enduring prosperity by developing on sound lines our foreign commerce, both in goods and in credits, than we could hope to accomplish by a policy of selfish nationalism."

". . . in doing this we shall be most successful as we recognize the facts of this intricate world, not the least important of which is the utter dependence of the nations upon one another if the excellent possibilities of our civilization are to be realized."

Bravely spoken. But, alas, that it should have taken so long and such dire calamities to drive home to our respected neighbors that 2,000-year-old Pauline truth: "No man liveth to himself." And that what is true of individuals has been equally true of nations, even though some of them have made terrific efforts to ignore the fact.—Ottawa Journal.

Thirty Cents' Worth

The auctioneer held up a battered fiddle.

"What am I offered for this antique violin?" he pathetically inquired. "Look it over. See the blurred fingermarks of remorseless time. Note the stains of the hurrying years. To the merry notes of this fine old instrument the brocaded dames of fair France may have danced the minuet in glittering Versailles. Perhaps the vestal virgins marched to its stirring rhythms in the feasts of Lupercalia. Ha, it bears an abrasion—perhaps a touch of fire. Why, this many have been the very fiddle on which Nero played when Rome burned."

700 SEE PICTURES.

MONTREAL, May 27.—(CP). — Such keen interest was shown in a recent exhibition of Canadian wild flower studies of the late Robert Holmes, R.C.A., loaned by the Toronto Art Gallery to the Montreal Art Association, that the pictures were secured for a second week's showing. Over 700 school children availed themselves of the opportunity of seeing the beauty of Canadian wild flowers. Many of these city children had little or no idea that so many varieties were to be found in the woods of the surrounding country.

PARITY WITH THE POUND

To the Editor.

Dear sir:

The farmer of Canada is in a difficult position. He has suffered from a disastrous fall in the prices of all the commodities which he has to sell. The total field crops in 1931 were worth in dollars 700 million less than the total field crops in 1928, and livestock and dairy prices fell correspondingly. Is it any wonder that such a drop in the purchasing power of the farmer resulted in very difficult days for Canada?

The farmers' debts, interest rates, taxes and insurance premiums are fixed; it takes as many dollars to pay them as it did in 1928. When the farmer tries to convert his commodities into dollars he finds he needs two and three times the quantity of produce he needed three years ago. That is, his debts, if measured in commodities, have doubled and trebled. Nor has the cost of living for the farmer fallen much; retail prices have not dropped more than 14 per cent, but to the farmer not quite that, since he buys little food-stuff and it is the food prices that have dropped furthest. What he sells has gone down 64 per cent, making exchange for him almost impossible.

The present condition cannot continue; either there will be a general reduction in debts or prices wil be raised to the debt level. Debts must go down if prices do not rise. If, however, debts are reduced or, in some cases, cancelled, it will cause a great deal of suffering. Many people today have all their capital invested in farm mortgages, municipal or provincial, or railway bonds. A substantial reduction in debt would ruin such people. Do we want that? The raising of prices to the 1928 level would increase the purchasing power of the farmers, stimulate business generally, absorb unemployment and enable individuals to pay their debts. The sensible thing is to increase prices of farm products. But how?

Because Canada has surpluses in the main branches of agriculture, prices of grain, livestock, dairy products, etc., are set by the price these products bring in Great Britain, which is at the moment almost the only outlet for our surplus farm products. Take for example hogs: the price received by the farmer for hogs consumed in Canada is determined by the net price received by the Canadian exporter for hogs sold in England. The Canadian exporter is paid in British currency (the paper pound) which, at the moment, is worth only $4.16 in Canadian money. Prior to last September the British pound was worth $4.87 in Canadian currency. It is clear that the Canadian exporter looses the difference.

If the British paper pound was worth $4.87 in Canada it would raise the price of hogs to the Canadian farmer by 18 per cent. This increase would apply to hogs consumed in Canada as well as to those exported. On a 200-lb. bacon hog selling at $4.25 on the Toronto market, the price would be increased to the farmer by 76c per hundred if Canadian currency were brought to a parity with the pound. The increase in prices would apply not only to bacon but to all farm products of which we have an exportable surplus. That is, the whole price level would be raised; the farmer enable to meet some of his obligations and to purchase goods needed. Business in general would be stimulated, unemployment decreased and the great expenditure of governments lessened.

Our greatest competitors on the British market are Denmark, New Zealand, Argentine and Australia. Danish currency is on a par with the British pound; that is, when the Danish farmer exports bacon, butter and eggs to Great Britain he realises in Danish currency, as much as the commodity brought in British currency in Liverpool, less handling charges. This gives him an advantage of 18 per cent over us. The other countries named have an even great advantage. In Argentine and Australia the British pound brings about $6.00: "An animal selling in Liverpool for £10, would bring, when the price is converted into the currency of these countries, $60.00, as against the $41.00 it would bring in Canadian currency." Our competitors can actually undersell us in the British market and still have more in their own currency than we can have in ours. Under these circumstances the Canadian farmer hasn't a chance.

If parity with pound would bring an increase in prices of 18 per cent, why is it not done? Because governments and private interests have debts to meet in New York! If we cheapened our money to the British level, they would have to pay more to meet their debts in New York. They do not seem to realise that the increased purchasing power that would result from such a move would stimulate business, lessen unemployment, and increase government revenue more than sufficiently to square the additional cost of exchange in New York.

"Parity with the pound" should be the slogan of Canadian agriculturists. It would start an upward trend in prices.

Yours sincerely,
AGNES C. MACPHAIL.

POETIC WORKS OF DRUMMOND LAUDED

Sir Andrew MacPhail Refers to Change in Attitude Towards "Habitant" Poems.

MONTREAL, May 27.—(CP). — The homely poems of Dr. William Henry Drummond, written about the simple and picturesque "habitants" of Quebec Province, at first aroused considerable indignation among the French-speaking people in Canada, Sir Andrew MacPhail told the Arts Club here recently.

The French folk of the Province were more sensitive in those days, Sir Andrew said, and considered Drummond's verses in the broken English dialect of the habitant as holding the race up to ridicule. The censure and prejudice was lifted, Sir Andrew said, when Louis Frechette, then poet-laureate of Canada and a French - Canadian himself, wrote an introduction to Drummond's volume. In his introduction he stated that nowhere can be found a single line of caricature or grotesqueness.

There is now a renaissance among the French, Sir Andrew said, of poetry, literature, sculpture and connoisseurship, which is realised by all too few. The French spoken in Quebec is as good as that spoken in the provincial towns of France, and the best English spoken in Montreal is that by French people.

"Nobody but Bill Drummond could have written those poems," he concluded. "Nobody without his humanity and understanding could have attempted them and nobody without his innate kindness of heart could have got beneath the surface of his subjects as he did."

SON OF THE GODS

By REX BEACH

Sam had never dreamed that the chance would come to voice his yearnings; he knew them to be futile but, like the nightingale that pierced its bosom with a thorn when it sang its love song, his ecstasy at this moment was greater than his pain.

The younger of the two nurses, the one who had directed Sam to take Alanna in his arms, listened intently. She thought it all very beautiful and affecting. This handsome boy whose eyes were wild with want, this pitiful spoiler girl whose need was so acute, were lovers; unhappy lovers. Here was romance and tragedy; and he loved her!

A considerable time passed, then the doctor spoke cheerfully to Albert Wagner saying:

"Well, I think I'll pop off to bed. I'm pretty well done up. She's sleeping and there's nothing more to worry about. You'd better get some rest, too."

An hour later when Sam left the sick room he found Alanna's father waiting for him. Wagner mumbled certain awkward words of gratitude but he received a wintry smile.

"Don't thank me, sir. Waht little I did was not done for you."

"All the same, you've got to let me show my appreciation. I can't stand obligation. I'd go crazy owing you for—for a thing like this. You've got me down, with my face in the dirt. I'll give you every dollar I've got."

"He who gives you a serpent when you ask for a fish may have nothing but serpents to give." Sam uttered the quotation evenly but of a suddent his voice changed, it grew exultant. "She's asleep at last. She has come home. I brought her back. I, the man you despise. She wanted me! Do you think you can pay me for that?" He opened the door and passed out.

It was daylight when Alanna awoke; that young, romantic-minded nurse was in the room.

"Gee!! I feel as if I'd been awfully sick," the girl said faintly.

"You have been sick, dear, but you're al right now."

"I had a dream; the most—wonderful dream."

"Yes, a wonderful, a beautiful dream. But we won't talk about it yet. Go to sleep again, if you can."

Alanna wondered drowsily why there were tears in the nurse's eyes.

INSTALMENT NO. 39

Alanna Wagner's strength returned slowly and she could not manage to take interest in anything, her efforts to recuperate were spiritless and perfunctory and in consequence she was something of a disappointment to herself and a very real source of worry to her father.

He had purposely avoided all reference to the happenings on that night when her illness had reached its crisis, for he did not like to recall them and he prayed devoutly that they would never become known to her; therefore he was immensely dismayed when she languidly told him one day that she considered it a pretty mean trick on Sam Lee's part to bring her back to life after she had so agreeably passed out.

Wagner learned by judicious questioning that one of the nurses had let her tongue wag, so he discharged her and determined to have a heart-to-heart talk with his daughter as soon as it was safe to do so.

Such an opportunity occurred this evening. He began, after a few well-rehearsed preliminaries leading up to the subject, by assuring her that he realised exactly how matters stood between her and Sam Lee. He was deeply sympathetic but it was a hopeless situation and she must make up her mind to face it.

"There's absolutely nothing to be done and you're merely making yourself miserable by brooding over the fellow."

"Something could be done," she told him listlessly, "if I had the courage of a whippoorwill."

"What?"

"Precious jelly fish, I could shut my eyes and marry him. I wish I had the grit, but—jelly fish don't have grit, do they? Nothing to hold it in."

"You couldn't even do that, not after what I'm going to tell you. I hate to shock and disappoint you, and it sounds awfully hackneyed to say he isn't worthy of you, but it's true. He's a rotter. He has gone to smash. He's a dissolute, dissipated—"

"Darling! You tempt me to defy the world."

"I got the surprise of my life that night I went looking for him. I always figured he had some pride and decency; I assumed he was a Chinese gentleman, whatever that may be, but he isn't. D'you know where I found him? In a Filipino dance hall! The most terrible place I ever saw."

"Yes? Where? Tell me about it."

Wagner acceded willingly enough to this request, in considerable detail he described not only that place on Riverside Drive, as he called it, but also the other haunts he had visited in company with Sam's valet. The picture he painted was vivid enough; Alanna listened with interest. When he had finished she astounded her father by saying:

"I wonder if it's any worse than some I've been in. Have you seen those colored dance halls in Harlem?"

"Did—you go?" Wagner gasped.

"Yes, I went everywhere; tried everything, but it didn't work. Sam's doing the same; I know all about him. I hear every day—Now don't jump at conclusions. I haven't spoken to him and I don't intend to."

"Then how—?"

"He asked a friend to telephone the nurse and report to him on my condition. He couldn't do any less, could he? I got her on the wire finally—she's a girl he grew up with—and we've become good pals. She was here to see me this afternoon. I think she's in love with him, too, so we have plenty to talk about."

After a moment Wagner said more calmly and with a real sincerity of feeling:

"I'm awfully sorry, dear. You don't know how miserable it makes me to see you unhappy. But—what are we going to do about it? Nothing. I wish I could help you break the thing up, but—"

"I broke it up once, in the only way possible," Alanna smiled forlornly, "but you and Sam spoiled it. Let's not talk any more about it. Run along, now, and amuse yourself. Please!"

The father began a protest but she insisted. "Toddle off to your club or go and see the second act of some show. I'm tired and I'd rather be alone. Honestly!"

"Very well," Wagner stooped and kissed the thin, listless face of his daughter. "I'd like to help you fight it out, if I could and if you'd let me."

For a while Alanna tried to read, but the book was heavy; her eyelids were heavy, too, and her brain was weary. She was tired all over, and yet the doctor pronounced her well.

Her telephone rang and with an effort she lifted it. Eileen Cassidy was calling her but in such a flutter of excitement that Alanna did not at first recognize her voice. Even then it was hard to understand her. Speaking of insanity, this Cassidy girl was plainly cracked, mad as a hatter; there was no sense at all to what she was saying. A white man? Sam a white man? The poor child was daft, hysterical, too, for her voice was shrill, she was laughing and choking and her words fairly piled up on the wire. Sam was not Lee Ying's son! The old Chinese importer was not his father—!

No, Eileen was probably all right, it was merely her own reason that had fled.

Alanna clung dimly to the instrument; her mouth turned dry and she could utter nothing except broken and inadequate sounds; her ears began to roar until she completely lost what was being said to her.

"Wait!! Please—!" she managed to gasp. "I don't understand half of it. Say it over again, slowly."

"Sam is an adopted child, or practically that. Anyhow he isn't Lee Ying's son."

"I—can't believe it. How do you know?"

"It's the strangest thing. No wonder you think I'm raving. Well, a relative of mother's came to see us tonight, he's here now. His name is Daly, Peter Daly, and he knew your father when he was a Police Inspector in San Francisco. You see Lee Ying came from there and Cousin Peter knew him, too. He says Sam was a foundling. Lee Ying picked him up on his doorstep when he was no bigger than your thumb. There's no mistake about it. That explains everything, doesn't it? I mean about Sam's looks and—Hello!—Hello!

"Yes."

"Did you hear?"

"I think so. What does he say—Sam? Why hasn't he told me?"

"He doesn't know. I called his house a minute ago and he's out. Then I called you."

"Are you—sure?"

"About the news?" Good Heavens, yes!" That's why I'm so frantic to find him tonight. Peter's sailing first thing in the morning and it would be dreadful if—Sam's off hitting it up somewhere, I suppose. No telling when he'll be back; maybe not until late, maybe not at all. He ought to know right away."

"Yes. Yes, of course. Father must know, too—Could you come up here right away and tell him?—I—I'm shaking so I can't hold on—"

Alanna did not remember who had the last word because for once she completely lost control of her emotions; she laughed and she cried, she stuttered and she choked; she found herself gabbling wildly at the telephone even after she had replaced the receiver on its hook.

LOSSES SCATTERED ON TORONTO MART

New Lows of Thursday Not Recurrent on Toronto Stock Exchange.

TORONTO, May 27.—(CP)—Disruptions which shook the stock market Thursday resulting in many new lows for the bear market were not recurrent this morning and Toronto Stock Exchange settled back into the groove again.

Trading was still somewhat heavier than previous to Thursday and liquidation continued in small measure the first hour. Stocks did better thereafter with the result that by midday the most active issues were above their morning lows and a good many of them fractions above last night.

There still were scattered losses, but these were not important. C. P. R., which had shot up rapidly towards the close last night, eased about ½ point this morning and Brazilian drifted below 9 again. The food and chain store group also settled, with Canners "B", Loblaw "A" and "B" all off ¼ point. Imperial Tobacco lost approximately ½ point, selling down to 8 3-8.

On the other hand Bell Telephone Consumer's Gas, Ford of Canada, Shawinigan were firmer. Nickel was steady unchanged to slightly higher at 4¼.

Early Gains Turned Into Small Losses

MONTREAL, May 27.—(C.P.)—Fractional weakness crept into the Montreal Stock Exchange during this morning's session and early gains were turned into smaller losses. Trading was fairly active.

Canadian Pacific Railway lost ⅛ at 9½. International Nickel declined ¼ at 4 5-8. Montreal Power at 25 and Brazilian Traction at 9 were both unchanged.

Shawinigan Power broke to a new l... at 9 where it was off ½ from yesterday's close. Quebec Power also recorded a new low at 11½, down a point. National Breweries was unchanged at 11. Dominion Bridge lost 1-8 at 104.

GARDEN OF REST IN THE HEART OF LEEDS

To Beautify Vacant Land on Merrion St.

Leeds, Eng.—Speculation has been aroused by the appearance of tall hoardings around the plot of vacant land in Merrion St., Leeds, extending from Merrion St. to the boundary wall of St. John's church and the almshouses.

Since the removal of property on the south side of Merrion St., and the widening of the street, the vacant land has been popular as a parking place, but this facility is now to longer available.

The hoardings do not mean that extensive building developments are foreshadowed, but that those responsible for the administration of Wade's Charity have taken over the land for the purpose of laying it out as a garden of rest, for the beautification of that part of the city and for the benefit of the citizens generally.

A low wall and ornamental railing will surround the garden, which will be laid out with flower beds, shrubberies and lawns, and probably one or two shelters.

TORONTO, May 27 (C.P.) — Quiet, easy action marked forenoon trade on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange to-day, with midday changes showing a predominance of minor recessions.

Eldorado sold off on the opening but recovered in the second hour to stand unchanged at noon. Castle-Trethewey, at 12, was up a cent. Noranda, International Nickel and the base metal group as a whole were quiet. Peninsular Pete dropped a fraction to show the only change in the oil section.

Whisky Drinking Favorite Pastime, Princeton Graduating Class Admits

PRINCETON, N.J., May 27 — The composite Princeton senior assumed a swashbuckling role yesterday with drinking his favorite amusement, whisky his choice drink, Greta Garbo his heroine and a Phi Beta Kappa key his goal.

The graduating class gave the world its slant on life last night in its annual vote on weighty questions, including love, growing a moustache and running the university. As to the latter problem, the composite fellow would hire a good football team and abolish compulsory chapel for his alma mater.

But even in the devil-may-care role, the student consensus considered education the greatest benefit gained from college, and preferred the key of scholarship to a varsity "P."

The dry law was voted down, 440 to 34.

As for love, 105 would marry for money, 275 would not, and 50 would perhaps. Only 38 out of 440 were engaged and 335 never have been turned down by a girl, although one senior admitted eight such reverses.

Turning to personalities, the class singled out Charles E. Scarlet, of Baltimore, and loaded him down with honors, according him the title of most respected, most popular, best all-around man, and the handsomest.

Langdon Lea, of Philadelphia, was voted the best all-around athlete on his prowess as a football, hockey and baseball player.

Others honored were:

John H. Iams, of Pittsburgh, most original and most entertaining.

Henry M. Kennedy, of Trenton, best all-around man outside of athletics.

William H. McClave, of Grand Rapids, Mich., most scholarly.

Richard B. Roberts, of New York, most brilliant.

Laurence S. Rockfeller, New York, most likely to succeed.

Walter B. Dunn, Larchmont, N.Y., prettiest.

TOO ANXIOUS TO BE GANGSTERS

sels, and then rush back to Boston by motor, to supervise the unloading of the illicit cargo.

From one food dealer, were ordered six barrels of salt pork; 12 barrels of flour; several cases of tea; a gross of tins of coffee. In giving the order, the two strangers naively introduced their plight. They had been given expense money, but it had proved insufficient. Would the merchant oblige with $50, until the gang boss came across? He would, and did. A meat dealer received an order for 50 carcasses of beef, 10 pigs and 20 lambs. Also a touch for $50, until——. A poultry dealer was given an order for 100 chickens, turkeys and geese, and turned over $50, without the semblance of a struggle. A tinsmith was elated when he received an order for 1,500 five-gallon tins, these to be liquor containers. He handed out $50 pronto, and wired to Montreal for 1,000 of the tins. By day and night work, he could fill the balance of the order in his own shop. A fruit dealer gave up $50—it was always the same sum,—on the strength of an order for bananas, oranges, apples and other fruits.

The awakening came when the appointed date for arrival of the gang chief, came and went, and no payoff. The food merchant is now wondering what he will do with the six barrels of salt pork, for his normal sale for this commodity is light. The tinsmith shipped the 1,000 tins back to Montreal, after paying the freight both ways. He may sell his own 500 tins in about four years.

Verdun Cadets Have Remarkable Record

MONTREAL, May 27.—(CP).—Marksmanship off sufficiently high calibre to proclaim them the straightest-shooting cadets in the British Empire for the second successive year brought the St. Williford's Cadet Corps of Verdun, Que., the Junior Imperial Challenge Shield. Highest compliments were paid to the young riflemen from the Montreal suburb by Brigadier W. W. P. Gibsone, commander of Military District No. 4, who made the presentation of the trophy. The Verdun cadets turned in better targets than any cadet corps in the Empire.

"I thought it was impossible to do such a thing because of the many different conditions that prevail throughout the Empire," said Brigadier Gibsone. "To win the shield once in competition with the rest of the Empire, when targets must be turned in for at least fifty per cent of the enrolment of the corps, is in itself remarkable. To win it twice in succession means that a corps must be far above the state of being excellent," he declared.

GOLD PRODUCTION IN CANADA INCREASE DESPITE DEPRESSION

Produces Twelve Millions More in 1931 Than in Year Preceding.

ONTARIO LEADS

(Special to The Examiner)

OTTAWA, May 27.—(SNS).—If a world shortage of gold is one of the causes contributing to the general economic depression, then Canada is certainly doing her share towards correcting or improving the situation. Gold production in Canada in 1931 amounted to $55,395,000, an increase of $12,000,000 over the total output of 1930, according to recent Government returns.

Seventy-eight per cent. of Canada's gold production last year ocured out of Northern Ontario, from regions where not many years ago stood forests and uninhabited bushland, but where now chimneys are belching forth smoke from furnaces which supply the power to take hundreds of thousands of ounces of the precious metal from the solid rock. Where the Indian and trapper lived in solitude but a few years ago, there the greatest of Canada's gold mines are located.

The gold mines of Northern Ontario have placed the Dominion in second place among the gold producing countries of the world South Africa still holding the lead, with the continental United States in third place. While the rest the world suffers from a depression, these are boom days for the gold mining centres of Northern Canada. Plenty of work and steady pay envelopes are the signs in these northern mining communities.

Along the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway, the road that was pushed through to James Bay last year, lie the new gold mining towns. Their newness shines brilliantly. They have all the latest in conveniences. Chain stores and talking pictures, modern homes and apartments, with everything electrical—these are striking features of the gold mining towns of to-day. Frontier posts they may have been a few years ago, but the transition from the virgin forests to the modern town with buses and good roads has been as if by magic.

The gold camps of British Columbia and the Yukon have yielded first place of production to these newer camps in Northern Ontario, in Northern Quebec and Northern Manitoba. Approximately five million dollars a month came from these new fields last year, and the year before two northern camps in Ontario alone yielded eight per cent. of the total gold production in the Dominion. Porcupine and Kirkland Lake are the present-day gold centres on the North American Continent.

Gold is found in the bush and in the northern reaches of the wheat growing regions. In a territory which is plentifully cut up by lakes and rivers, the prospectors are tracing their veins of gold-bearing quartz and diamond drills are digging down to see how far the yield goes down. Amidst waters which are alive with untouched game fish, and woods abounding with big game, the strikes are being made trees are felled, camps are built, roads are pushed through and communities start to build. Huge mills spring up, and the bush has become the gold mining town.

Injured on Fence Cow Moose Dies

Mrs. Read vanished from in front of the Oakland home of J. W. Decker, an automobile salesman, Wednesday night.

Both in Jail

She drove into Placerville yesterday in an automobile she told authorities was used by her husban din "carrying her off." She said she escaped from Read and a man companion, Stewart Trumbauer, as they slept by the mountain roadside. Trumbauer also is in jail.

Sheriff Wood said Read was carrying a pistol and admitted forcing his wife to accompany him.

"He said he thought if he could get her up here away from everything" Sheriff oWod added, "he could talk her out of divorcing him."

Mrs. Read told officers her husband tried "his sales talk on her in an attempt to persuade her to drop a $100,000 alienation suit against Miss Windsor and her divorce suit, in which she named the actress as correspondent. She declared she would do neither.

Obituary

REV. DR. RUTHERFORD WADDELL

Word has just been received in this city by Mrs. R. M. Waddell of the death which occurred on April 16, following a brief illness of the Rev. Dr. Rutherford Waddell at a private hospital in Dunedin, New Zealand.

He was an uncle of the late R. M. Waddell, with whom he spent an extended visit here five years ago and on other occasions and was consequently well-known by many local people. The late Rev. Dr. Waddell preached on various ocasions at St. Andrew's Church.

Dr. Waddell was born at Glenarm, County of Antrim, in 1849. He was a son of the Rev. Hugh Waddell. After receiving his early education at the national school in County Down and at the Royal Academy Institute, Belfast, he served as a drapery apprentice for about four years. He later entered Queen's University where he graduated in 1874 and received his M.A. in 1875. He studied theology for three years in the Presbyterian Theological College at Belfast. Going to New Zealand in the year 1877, he was minister at Prebbleton and Linwood for eighten months before becoming minister of St. Andrew's Church, Dunedin, in 1879, a pastorate he held until his retirement in 1921.

In its editorial columns "The Evening Star" of Dunedin of April 18, 1932, makes lengthy editorial reference to the passing of the Rev. Dr. Waddell. It was to that paper that he had contributed a weekly column for a period of 27 years, "prized by thousands of readers here and throughout the world," to quote the Star.

The editorial also states: "He was a prince of essayists, pregnant, discursive, allusive, for whom everything he read assisted by his humour, helped to point a moral to adorn a tale—But his presence will be missed, and the worth of any new age, its system of education and its improvement or declension as compared with the past, will be tested to no small extent by its capacity for producing men like Rutherford Waddell."

The "Otago Daily Times" of the same date also carried lengthy editorial reference on the death of Dr. Waddell. It states in part: "By the death of Rev. Dr. Rutherford Waddell the local community, and less particularly the Dominion as a whole, have lost a man of distinguished mark — a singularly choice personality whose influence made entirely and consistently for good. It is a loss which will be felt by a very large number of people, both as individuals, and in association, for many and many a day."

HJALMAR L. ORRMAN.

DAYTON, Ohio, May 27. — The funeral of Hjalmar L. Orrman, 84, vice-president of the James Saunders Company, and father of Mrs. Peter Westbye, of Peterborough, Ont., was held on Tuesday, with interment in Memorial Park cemetery.

Mr. Orrman died on Saturday at his residence, after an illness of about a year and a half.

For more than 25 years he had been associated with the local firm. During the last ten years he had served it as vice-president.

He was born in Borga, Finland, on the Gulf of Finland, Feb. 20, 1848, and was the son of Otto Wilhelm and Fredericka Orrman. He was given an excellent education, graduating from the University of Helsingfors, and following this with two years of study in Hanover, Germany.

Beginning his life work in a pulp paper mill in Saxony, Germany, he came to this country in 1876, both to attend the Philadelphia Centennial Exposition and to ascertain what was being done in the paper industry. He found the country and the opportunities for advancement to his liking and remained over here, working for a number of New England paper and fiber companies before coming to Ohio and settling in West Carrollton, in 1882.

He was employed by the Friend Paper Co. there until 1897. Following this he sold American pulp and paper machinery in several European countries. Returning to America in 1904 he engaged in the manufacture of paper making machinery with the James Saunders Co. He was the owner of numerous patents on his own machinery, and was at one time treasurer of the Carl Schaffer Dry Cleaning Co.

He belonged to the Dayton Engineers' Club, and to the Dayton Art Institute.

Surviving him are his widow; his daughter, Mrs. Peter P. Westbye, of Peterborough, Ont., four grandchildren, Mary Amelia, Eric Orrman, Olga Louise and Margaret Westbye.

FIGHTERS GAIN ON BUSH FIRES

NO RAIN IN SIGHT.

NORTH BAY, Ont., May 27.—(CP)—Forest fires which have menaced the bushlands of northern Ontario for weeks are gradually being brought under control today as hundreds of fire fighters, wearily battle the outbreaks.

Encouraging reports from Fort Frances to Thunder Bay and Eastward to the Tweed River have been received and hopes of bringing the blazes under immediate control appear bright. Forestry Chief W. B. Greenwood reported last night his men were gaining the upper-hand in the McNish township area near here, which for the past two days had been swept by the worst blaze of the past decade. The battle was concentrated on the border of the Tamagami forest reserve and Greenwood was optimistic the rich timber would be saved.

Announcement by Hon. William Finlayson, Minister of Lands and forests for Ontario, yesterday that the provincial government had entered an agreement with private flying companies for the use of their planes in battling the blazes brought further hope to settlers of the district.

Although the weatherman predicts fresh winds for today with cloudy skies there is no immediate sign of rain.

CAPT. DUQUESNE CLEVER AGENT

British Government May Attempt to Extradite German Spy.

WANTED FOR MURDER.

LONDON, May 27 (C.P.).—The Home Office has under consideration an application to extradite from New York a man listed by the police there as Captain Frederick Joubert Duquesne, and described as the cleverest and most dangerous agent of the Central Powers during the war.

It was explained officially that, contrary to some reports, Duquesne is not regarded as having been connected in any way with the loss of H.M.S. Hampshire, in which Lord Kitchener was drowned.

If extradition proceedings are started their purpose will be to bring the man back to face a charge of murder in connection with the death of three seamen in an explosion on the British freighter Tennyson off the coast of Brazil more than 15 years ago.

PERLEY HOLDS HOPEFUL VIEWS

Sees Resuming of Disarmament Parley With New French Government.

LAUDS CANADIAN GROUP.

QUEBEC, Que., May 27 (C.P.).—"There is no cause for either despair or discouragement in respect of the work of the conference," stated Sir George Perley, leader of Canada's delegation to the Geneva Disarmament Conference, who has returned to this country to report on the conference to the Government. Sir George, who is a Minister without portfolio in the Dominion Cabinet, reached Quebec last night on the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain.

A new French Government would soon be in office; important political conversations between the great Powers would then be resumed; the Lausanne Conference, which was soon to meet, would give Europe's leaders a chance to deal with problems closely related to disarmament. Every delegation in Geneva was resolved to do what it could to see that this first world disarmament conference should not fail. They would see it through no matter how long it took, but public opinion must continue to back them up, Sir George said.

Praises Canadian Group.

The Canadian leader spoke in praise of his confreres in Canada's delegation. Hon. Maurice Dupre, Solicitor-General, who remained at Geneva as head of the Canadian delegation, was vice-president and lately acting president of the Naval Commission, and had with him a capable advisory staff. Miss Winnifred Kydd, Canada's woman delegate, had been very active and helpful in Geneva, and is anxious now to explain to the women of Canada what the conference has already accomplished, he said.

Sir George released to the Canadian Press a statement on the commission's work which he had intended to read in the House of Commons which prorogued a few hours before he reached Quebec.

HIGHWAYS OF EMPIRE TRADE ALL LEAD TOWARD OTTAWA

MANY OPPOSE BARGAINING.

LONDON, May 27. (By George Hambleton, C. P. Staff Writer.—Roads of Empire trade lead to Ottawa. In conference, committee and consultation, experts in British industries are grappling with the problem how best their products may find Empire markets without damage to the growing industries of the Dominions and India.

Precise proposals of delegations both from Great Britain and from the Dominions are unlikely to be revealed before the Conference itself meets. But the present trend is towards conclusion of trading agreements which while giving a stimulus to Empire trade will not endanger the secondary industries of the Dominions on the one hand nor prevent, on the other, the establishment of British agriculture on a firmer basis.

South Africa which has practically concluded a new trade treaty with Canada is going to the conference prepared to welcome reciprocal tariff agreements with the reservation that South African industries must continue to receive necessary protection. Revision of South Africa's trade treaty with Germany may well be a sequel to any such reciprocal agreements. Under the treaty any future tariff preferences granted by South Africa will apply automatically to Germany. But the treaty can be terminated on six months notice.

Appointment of a South African trade commissioner to Montreal is under discussion.

Will Avoid Bickering

In New Zealand, Prime Minister G. W. Forbes is presiding over a Cabinet committee engaged in drafting New Zealand proposals. The declared policy of New Zealand in the words of Premier Forbes is not to go to Ottawa with any desire for undue bargaining. New Zeland will "avoid any bickering over tariff concessions at all costs."

Australia will concentrate its efforts at Ottawa on tariff concessions in the British market for meat and dairy products. So far as Australia is concerned, meat on the British market is likely to be the key commodity. At present, meat is on the British free list.

India is prepared to discuss trade agreements. British trade with India is suffering from recurring political storms. One additional line suggested is that India should supply both pig iron and semi-finished steel to great Britain in return for finished steel.

The Irish Free State, which has lately increased its protective tariffs, is seeking wider markets for its dairy products. But controversy between the British and Irish Free State Government over abolition of the oath of allegiance leaves the situation uncertain.

Montreal Market To Become School

MONTREAL, May 27.—(CP). — The average French - Canadian farmer loves to follow in the footsteps of his forefathers even in the choice of a place to sell his products. Such is the case in Montreal where a new million-dollar market stands practically empty because merchants and farmers refuse to leave their old stalls in Bonsecours, the oldest market in the city.

Lowered rents for stands in the new structure have been offered, but to no avail. As something must be done to turn the "white elephant" into a source of revenue, officials at the City Hall may accept an offer of rental from L'Ecole Jammerais, of Beauport, Que., who will equip it as a school for subnormal children.

The parent institution is conducted by the Sisters of Charity, and a committee of doctors and professors of Laval University, Quebec City, and there backward children are taught trades.

Uncle's Will States Young M.P. Must Become Rutherford Instead of Chalmers.

$1,500,000 ESTATE.

(By Thomas T. Champion, C. P. Staff Writer.)

LONDON, May 27. — (Canadian Press Cable.)—J. Rutherford Chalmers, 27 year old bachelor Member of Parliament for the borough of Edmonton, near London, has been left the residue estate of his great uncle, Sir John Rutherford., on conditions he adopts his great uncle's surname. The inheritance is worth more than $1,500,000.

"Of course I shall change my name," Mr. Chalmers said to-day. "I fear I may probably remain a bachelor like my great uncle, but if I marry I shall marry a Scotswoman."

Sir John was a prosperous Lancashire brewer. He owned Solario, the horse which won the St. Leger stakes in 1925. He refused an offer for the horse by H. H. Aga Khan of $500,000.

Montreal To Adopt Man-a-Block System

MONTREAL, May 27.—(CP). — Contingent upon support being received from the various service clubs and associations, the Montreal Junior Board of Trade will organize a city-wide "Man-a-Block" employment campaign next autumn, it was announced recently by Paul E. Coffey, chairman of a special committee of the board, which has already investigated the advantages of such a campaign.

The council of the junior board first considered the advisability of such action last February, and after taking note of the success of such campaigns in New York, Winnipeg and Toronto, succeeded in organizing upwards of 200 householders in Montreal within a period of six weeks and obtaining from them promises of employment of a man for at least two hours each week up to the end of April 1.

According to the plan, householders in a given city block are asked to provide two hours' employment per week for one man.

NEW DISCOVERY ON PNEUMONIA

TRIED IN HOSPITALS.

TORONTO, May 27 (C.P.)—Discovery in the Connaught Laboratories here of a quick method of analyzing types of pneumonia to allow the administration of the serum particularly adapted to prevent development, was greeted by the Canadian Public Health Association yesterday as one of the greatest advances yet made in the fight against the disease.

Announcement of this discovery was made before the annual convention of the health officials by Dr. M. M. Brown of Toronto, who has been in charge of this branch of research at the local laboratory for the past three years.

Doctors stated Dr. Brown's announcement practically means the solution of the pneumonia problem. Although sera has been discussed during the past two years for the treatment of the disease, its effectiveness has been hampered by the inability to quickly ascertain the type of pneumonia from which the patient suffered.

Dr. D. T. Fraser, also of the Connaught Laboratories, reported the discovery of a serum which is expected to help materially in the prevention and treatment of whooping cough.

Although Dr. Fraser stressed the "serum may or may not prove valuable," it has been found successful in several hospitals, especially those in Manitoba. It has been in use for the past six months.

AID BRITISH POETS LAUREATE'S FANCY

John Mansfield to Hold Festival for Speaking of Poetical Stories.

By Thomas T. Champion, C. P. Staff Writer

LONDON, May 27.—John Masefield, poet laureate, and Mrs. Masefield have announced their intention of holding next October a "festival for the speaking of poetical stories" at which they hope it will be possible to perform works of young living British poets.

In connection with the westival they have inaugurated a competition for new verse, offering cash prizes for the best two entries. Their announcement, issued from Boar's Hill, Oxford, reads in part as follows:

We wish to hold a festival for the speaking of poetical stories on Wednesday, October 5.

We hope that it may be possible to perform at this festival the work of young living British poets.

We offer the following prizes for narratival poems suitable for performance: For the first prize $125: for the second prize $75.

The poems submitted must be original tales in verse, in English, not less than four thousand words in lenth, and not yet published or performed. They must be suitable for narration by from one to four speakers. They must be stories — that is, tales of deeds done— not plays, or acting of deeds.

The authors must be of British birth and not more than 40 years of age on September 1, 1932.

The offer of the post laureate and Mrs. Masefield prompted the Manchester Guardian to ask editorially if there is any hope for appearance of the war poem which the country has waited in vain. Every year, the Guardian said, the ribbons on the cenotaph get a little shabbier. Every year statesmen gather at Geneva for peace conference a little graver than they were the past, though they have grown no less valuable nor perhaps any less positive with the years. Some of their memories seem a little shorter, that is all. Yet, it concluded, British poets who knew Armageddon will not tell the story as it could be told.

Nanking and Sianfu, China, have just been connected by an air mail service.

YOUNG NUDISTS LEAVE PARENTS

RELATIVES IN JAIL.

NELSON, B.C., May 27 (C.P.).—One hundred and forty-one Doukhobor children of all ages are on their way to the coast to-day to be placed in various homes in Vancouver and Victoria while their parents are serving three-year prison terms for participating in nude demonstrations at Thrums recently. One hundred and six children were taken from the jail here, and en route 35 more were pickekd up at Boundary Falls. These latter are children of the Doukhobors who demonstrated in the nude at Grand Forink a few weeks ago.

Wards of the Government, the children appeared in a happy mood when they left here in two special coaches attached to the Westbound train. There was a demonstration at the jail an hour before they left when they were taken from their parents, but no trouble. Early in the day the fathers and mothers were informed that their children would be removed last night, and many tears were shed, farewels said, the parents feeling keenly the departure of their youngsters.

Key Proves Better Safeguard Than Dog

MONTREAL, May 27.—(CP). — Leaving a dog in your car may be good protection against theft, but locking it is better, decided Leopold Leger, of Lachine, when he saw his spaniel, Pierre, peering through the back window of his automobile which was being stolen.

Leger thought that the animal, which he used for hunting partridges, would be sufficient protection for his car. However, a gentleman with a moustache entered the automobile and drove it away without any apparent protest from Pierre.

When the car was recovered, some hours later, Pierre was sound asleep on the back seat.

New Methods For Teaching The Deaf

MONTREAL, May 27.—(CP). — The aim of modern pedagogy for the deaf is to get away from the out-moded methods of signs and finger spelling, in the opinion of Dr. Max Goldstein, aural surgeon, director of the Central Institute for the Deaf at St. Louis, Mo., and former president of the American Otological Society, who is making a survey of methods for training the deaf in use at the Mackay Institute here. The institute is now considering plans for re-organizing their teaching methods according to the lines suggested in his report.

Declaring deaf mutes to be an improper term, since very few children were born dumb, Dr. Goldstein stated that every child had a potentiality of speech, but they were mute because they had never been taught to talk. The day of sign talk was over, and over justifiably, he said, because the child taught by finger spelling and by signs was still an ostracized member of the community. A deaf child of normal mental development if efficiently taught lip reading from early childhood would understand speech well enough to go into a normal class when he reached high school age, Dr. Goldstein pointed out.

Basing his figures on surveys made over a wide area in the United States, he stated that of the 70,000 school children in Montreal there were 3,000 whose hearing was not normal. About 30 per cent. of these needed to be taught lip reading.

Limerick, Irish Free State, will clear its slums and erect new houses.

WILL SNOWDEN BECOME CINQUE PORT WARDEN?

Earl Beauchamp, Who Is Economizing, Gives Up Ancient Office

London.—Earl Beauchamp is relinquishing his office as lord warden of the Cinque Ports, to which he was appointed in 1913.

This means that he will give up his official residence of Walmer castle.

Several times the office has been threatened with extinction. King Edward proposed to make Walmer castle a national museum, but local people pressed for the lord wardenship to be continued.

Ever since the days of the Saxons, when the five ports, Sandwich, Dover, Hythe, Romney and Hastings, were a vital feature of our defence against France, there has been a lord warden.

In the reign of Edward I. these ports had to furnish 57 ships, fully equipped and manned at their own cost for 15 days, and, in return, they had special privileges and freedom from certain taxes.

Winchelsea and Rye were later added to the five towns, but the name Cinque Ports was not changed.

Earl Beauchamp's famous town residence, Halkyn House, in Belgrave Sq., is shortly to be closed and for economy Lord Beauchamp recently decided to close Madresfield Court, his Worcestershire home.

It has been suggested that Lord Snowden will be invited to take up the lord wardenship of the Cinque Ports.

If appointed, his name would be added to an illustrious roll, which includes Lord North, William Pitt, the "Iron Duke," Lord Palmerston, the late Lord Salisbury, Lord Curzon of Kedleston, and King George, when he was Prince of Wales.

EARL OF BRADFORD NEEDS A COWBOY

Shifnal, Eng.—For two years a hunt has been in progress, off and on, close to this Shropshire town. The arena is a field on a farm and the quarry is a Japanese deer, one of the most agile animals in the world, belonging to the Earl of Bradford.

The deer can jump many feet and it can run like an express train.

Farmers and keepers have tried in vain to capture it, but the deer has chosen to desert its own herd in Weston Park, the earl's ancestral estate, and to live with a herd of cows. In such a small arena it has defied all attempts at capture.

DIDN'T KNOW QUEEN MAUD

A reigning queen strolled unrecognized through North Shields and on to Tynemouth one day recently. She was Queen Maud of Norway, on one of her frequent visits to Sandringham.

Queen Maud was in a steamer which arrived from Bergen ahead of acedule. A car was engaged and the queen and her companion were driven to the general belief to Newcastle.

In Linskill Terrace, however, the car was stopped, the queen and her companion alighted and walked through the town to Tynemouth. After viewing the seascape from the cliffs they drove along the sea-front to Cullercoats and Newcastle.

HIGH-HAT MESSENGERS GIVE COLOR TO LONDON

They Don't Carry Guns and No Bandit Ever Touches Them

HAT IS PROTECTION

By CHARLES A. SMITH

London.—Meet London's one thousand bank messengers, the silk-hatted, frock-coated and brass-buttoned body of men who have been called the best mannered males in the world.

With a history stretching back hundreds of years to the time when London's banking business was conducted by private merchants, who used the messengers as their bodyguards, the thousand employed by the big banks are probably the only romantic feature left in the prosaic city, the term used to designate London's financial district.

Many were butlers and valets in famous Mayfair homes before they became bank messengers, which explains why the messengers have established a reputation for politeness and polished manners. Many of the younger men were in the British army or navy, and some came to the banks as boys. All are regarded as the acme of honesty.

The newcomer to London Town, seeing these sleekly groomed men walking about the financial quarter with anything up to a million dollars in cheques in the leather bags chained to their wrists, naturally assumes they are guarded or armed to the teeth against bandit raids.

But the truth is very few of these men carry weapons. The messengers who ride on the bullion trucks carry rubber clubs. The rest carry only a whistle. The secret of their apparent bravado lies in the elegant silk hat.

London's police have been trained by long use to keep an eye on any silk hat in a crowd in the financial district. A silk hat invariably means a bank messenger or a broker. Let a silk hat disappear from view, but for a moment in any noonday crowd and a cop will appear quickly on the scene to investigate.

Many London cashiers of stores and other businesses have been held up and robbed in daylight, while the city recently has experienced any number of smash-and-grab raids, but a check over a period of years shows no record of a bank messenger ever having been attacked in his home territory.

A Picturesque Custom

For their fifteen dollars a week, the usual salary, these messengers perform all manner of jobs in the financial district, ranging from taking cancelled cheques and important documents to other banks and clearing houses to attending at the Bank of England, down in grimy Threadneedle St., every Thursday at noon to await any change in the official re-discount rate.

Not many tourists wander into the financial quarter, but they haven't seen London life until they have stood on the sidewalk opposite the Bank of England on any Thursday and seen the messengers streak out to scatter in all directions to announce a re-discount rate change to their headquarters.

Doubtless the news of a bank rate change can be conveyed more speedily by telephone, but it's one of London's banking institutions that the information should be obtained first-hand by messengers.

Inside the bank premises, at about 11.30, a line forms in the corridor where the directors' weekly decision on the re-discount rate is posted up. Sprightly young messengers in green uniforms, elderly messengers in the soberer uniforms of the staider banks, all wearing their highly polished silk hats, jostle each other to get nearer the notice board as noon approaches.

Suddenly a door will open, a messenger in the peach and brown livery of the Bank of England holds up his hands for silence, and pins a chalked notice to the board.

If there is no change in the rate, the messengers disperse, but should the rate have been highered or lowered, there is a wild roar as the messengers throw dignity to the winds and scamper out into narrow Threadneedle St., holding up traffic as they stream across the street.

"It Isn't Done Over Here"

All the six big banking corporations have distinctive uniforms for their messengers, which may easily be recognized in even the thickest crowds. One bank has a complete uniform of olive green in a dark shade, another dresses its messengers in biscuit brown. The only identical feature of every messenger is his glossy silk hat, which in summer is changed for a straw hat, usually of antique origin.

Some of these messengers have a good bit of money tucked away; they keep their ears open for stock exchange gossip as they journey about town. Most of them live in the suburbs, owning their own villas and dreaming of the day when they will get their retirement gratuity.

But all of them, in their polite way, chuckle when an American asks them where they park their guns. "It isn't done over here, you know," is the invariable answer.

NEW MAGIC EYE FOR OLD SCOTLAND YARD

Camera Sees in Dark and Performs Many Marvels

London.—Two scientific developments will be added to Scotland Yard's equipment to-day—the infra-red-ray camera and the wireless direction finder.

It can take pictures in the dark, or in the thickest fog; photograph distant objects invisible to the naked eye, detect minute differences in inks and dyes, show up secret writing, and reveal alterations in printed or written documents.

The secret of this new magic eye is to be found in the infra-red-ray—the invisible "light" at the lower end of the spectrum, which is already widely used in the invisible ray burglar alarm.

The direction finder is one of Scotland Yard's challenges to the scientific bandit and international crook, and may prove of particular use in tracking down secret radio stations or tracing the origin of "suspicious" wireless transmissions.

Ankles Ache But Pipers March On

MONTREAL, May 27.—(CP). — Montreal maidens whose hearts thrilled at the sight of the strong, handsome contingent of pipers aboard the Scottish Trade Ship, Letitia, which visited Canada recently, little guessed the aches they hid during the voyage.

There was never a complaint as the gallant musicians marched round the decks of the liner and on to dry land at Quebec and Montreal. Yet they all suffered badly from swollen ankles which filled out to twice the normal size.

The cause of the trouble was playing aboard ship after being accustomed to marching on land. However, one of their number knew the proper remedy to apply and in a few days all was well again.

Australia has exported 77,000,000 bushels of wheat this season.

PLANES TO FLY ON GRAF'S ROUTE

German Company Plans Fast Mail Service Berlin to Pernambuco.

REFUEL IN MID-OCEAN.

BERLIN, May 27. (AP) — The aerial globe trotter, Graf Zeppelin, may have aeroplane competition on the south American air-mail line, which is being regularly flown between Germany and Brazil.

Otto Bertram, chief of the southern department of the Lufthansa (the German Airways Corporation) said his company contemplates inaugurating a direct Berlin to Pernambuco airmail service some time this year.

The stretch, he said, will be flown in stages from Berlin by way of Friedrichshafen and Spain to Bathurst, British Gambia, on the African west coast. A special tank steamer equipped with a huge catapult device is to be anchored halfway between Africa and South America.

Floating Island

This floating island will serve as intermediate landing place, he said, where the flying boats will be refueled and launched again by the catapult device.

Two-motored, technically improved Dornier flying boats will be used.

In comparison with the French combined air and steamship connection, which is run out of Praia and Dakar to Natal, Brazil, the Lufthansa's direct air service promises a gain in transmission time of nearly three days, Herr Bertram said.

DARING PROSPECTORS HEADING FOR SCENE OF 'NEXT KLONDYKE'

Burns Lake in North-west Canada. Rich Gold Ore Found Near

OTHER METALS FOUND

(Special to The Examiner)

CALGARY, Alta., May 27. — (SNS).—Forty-five men are already on the ground in the McConnell Creek district and about 30 others will be taken in within the next few weeks to work the properties which are the scene of what is described as "the next Klondyke."

M. J. Brown, who was in Calgary until a few days ago, came out on March 17. His return was delayed owing to transportation difficulties. Burns Lake, the jumping-off place for McConnell Creek, has to be clear of ice at both extremities before planes can land. It is expected to be free of ice almost daily now.

It is about 250 miles from Burns Lake to McConnell Creek which is about five and a half miles long. A firm of Vancouver assayers has submitted a statement which shows 258.76 ounces of gold worth $7,-175.20 per ton, 335.16 ounces worth $13,006.60 of platinum per ton and 19.3 ounces of iridium, worth $1,-737 per ton, or a total value of metals per ton of $21,918.60.

ABLE TO WRITE BOOK OF EXODUS

Inscriptions Found in Serabit Temple By Petrie is Cited.

JUST EXCAVATED

LONDON. — Evidence that the Old Testament description of the Exodus from Egypt must have been written by contemporaries is afforded by the existence of Semitic inscriptions in the Sinai Temple of the goddess Serabit excavated last winter by Sir William Flinders Petrie.

This conclusion was announced by Sir Charles Marston who sponsored the archaeological expedition to Palestine under the leadership of Professor John Garstang of Liverpool University.

The principal ground of those who argued that the Book of Exodus was not a contemporary narrative has hitherto been the alleged inability of the Israelites to have recorded it in writing at the time of Moses, Sir Charles said. He holds that Professor Garstang's definite fixing of the date of the Exodus in 1447 B.C., which has now received confirmation from Professor Percy Newberry, makes it clear that the Israelites could write at the time. This discovery gives substance to the theory that the earlier books of the Bible are by contemporary writers, Sir Charles concludes.

Professor Garstang was able to fix the date of the Exodus in 1447 by establishing upon the evidence of scarab seals and pottery found in the 29 tombs unearthed at Jericho, that this ancient city was sacked in 1407 B.C. Since it is known that the Pharaoh of the Exodus was Amenhotep II., who, according to the dating of Sir William, came to the throne in 1447 B.C., the assumption now appears justified that the period extending from his accession to the fall of Jericho covers the 40 years of wandering in the desert.

The temple of the Semitic goddess Serabit was near the turquoise mines in the Sinaitic Peninsula, which, it was found by Sir William, had been worked by a Semitic race on behalf of the Egyptians. The new dating of the Exodus suggests that this Semitic race may well have been the Israelites themselves during their captivity.

The association of Queen Hatshepsut with the building of this temple tallies in full significance in the light of the revised chronology supported by the Jericho discoveries which indicate that she was the princess who found Moses in the bulrushes of the Nile.

Moses, as a favorite of the Queen and a high official of her court, the archaeologists assume, is certain to have visited the turquoise mines on her behalf. The rites of the Serabit sanctuary were not Egyptian in form, but closely resembled the worship of the Israelites. Sir William, who proved this, considers that when Moses asked the Pharaoh to allow the Israelites to go three days' journey into the wilderness, their goal was the Serabit temple.

Study of the temple led the archaeologists to the conclusion that whenever the Israelites lapsed from monotheism they reverted to the more heathen worship of Serabit.

The view of some Bible authorities, however, respecting the Jericho archaeological discoveries, is that while they add greatly to appreciation of the ancient records in Joshua and Judges, they justify no final conclusion regarding the date of these writings.

It is pointed out in particular that it was not the alleged inability of the Israelites to have written records of the time of Moses which was regarded as the main discovery of the contemporary nature of the Bible narrative, but rather the literary character of the story that led scholars to think it was written after, and probably long after, the entrance into Canaan.

Century-Old Cello Played At Meeting

ANNAPOLIS ROYAL, N.S., May 27.—The Historical Association of Annapolis, Nova Scotia's oldest town is gleaning bit by bit relics of early settlers in the province. The theme of the May meeting of the association which marked its 14th anniversary was music, featuring a century-old cello played by Miss Margaret Wainwright of Halifax. The cello was made by the late Alexander Dixon Hoyt, born here in 1803, who married Sophia Jones, who died in 1897 at Weymouth at the age of 102. This cello is supose to have led the services of praise in Saint Luke's church and it is authentic that it was used in St. Peter's at Weymouth. It was donated to the museum by Mrs. Emma J. Hoyt a daughter-in-law of the maker, and put into playing condition by W. E. Smith.

Another addition to the Museum is a full-sized photo of Champlain's Astrolobe, used here in the first days of Port Royal. This instrument, now in the possession of S. V. Hoffman, New York, bears the date of 1603. It was recorded lost in Quebec in 1613, and unearthed in 1867.

ABYSSINIAN KING NEEDS HELP IN FREEING SLAVES

Some Powerful Chiefs Refuse to Act and Work is Scarce.

NOWHERE TO GO

LONDON.—Desirous as the Emperor Haile Sellassie of Abyssinia undoubtedly is to abolish slavery, this can only be brought about gradually, as Abyssinian conditions become ripe for such a change. This is the main conclusion of Lord Noel Buxton and Lord Polwarth, following their recent mission to Abyssinia.

Not only has the co-operation of a number of powerful chiefs still to be obtained, but there is at present no adequate machinery to provide a livelihood for slaves who receive their freedom, they found. There is also no police force competent to stop the large convoys of slaves which periodically traverse Abyssinia in the hands of slave-raiders.

Lord Noel-Buxton in a recent statement made to members of the Anti-Slavery and Aborigines Protection Society and that the Emperor was doing much already to curtail slavery, but that it would be quite impossible for him to abolish it, in the absence of any public opinion hostile to this institution. The problem of the future was how to strengthen the hands of the Emperor through the machinery of the League of Nations, and thereby help him to remove what is now a very grave blot upon the face of the world, he declared.

Lord Polwarth added further facts. He said freed slaves have nowhere to go. For real freedom to be possible, there must be advance all along the line. Education must be improved; roads must be built.

But progress would have to be gradual and the persistent effort of all friends of liberty throughout the world was wanted to help it forward, he concluded.

KING'S SENTRIES HIT BY SPINAL MENINGITIS

Third Outbreak of Epidemic Among Windsor Castle Guardians

Windsor, Eng.—For the first time in history, the other night single sentries guarded Windsor Castle, with the King and Queen in residence, and where the garrison was stricken with cerebro-spinal meningitis, or spotted fever. Four deaths have occurred.

Civil and military doctors are baffled by the whereabout of a carrier, a person unknowingly possessing the germs of a disease and immune from its deadly effect, who is giving the disease to those with whom he comes in contact.

The present is the third outbreak since Christmas. There have been eight cases.

The King and Queen are both in excellent health.

Military duties at Windsor are being carried out by two companies of the Scots Guards.

OLD ABBEY FOR NATION

Has Been Property of Challoner Family for Over 300 Years

The ancient abbey at Guisborough, North Yorkshire, which for over 300 years has been the property of the Challoner family, has just been placed under the guardianship of the government.

Founded in 1119 by Robert De Bruce, this abbey when in its prime was one of the finest edifices in Yorkshire, and many members of the Bruce family—including Robert Bruce, who disputed the crown of Scotland with Baliol—are buried in the church of the priory.

He Keeps in Jail for This Man Who Hadn't Paid Taxes

London.—How her husband was awaiting his turn in prison was revealed by a woman at Willesden police court, London, when about 1,000 people were summoned for non-payment of rates. She said that he was at home waiting for his turn to go to Brixton prison for non-payment of the previous half-year's rates. The authorities had been unable to take him before as the debtor's section was full.

TO SPORT OR NOT TO SPORT ON SABBATH?

HALIFAX, May 27.—Nova Scotia's anglers who had been nursing their fishing tackle and rubber boots for more than a month whipped the streams with a vengeance on Sunday, May first, the opening day of the trout and salmon season.

There were some, however, who were perturbed by reports in Halifax papers stating that it was illegal to fish on the Sabbath. There was no federal law to that effect, the anglers knew, and they doubted if any such provincial law could be enforced.

By Tuesday the argument was interesting, and the Halifax Daily Star that day dug up a quaint old pre-Confederation law that might be construed as prohibiting fishing on the Sabbath, and which has not been repealed. This law regarding the desecration of the Sabbath is to be found in Chapter 158, Revised Statutes of Nova Scotia, third series: Section 2 of the act reads:

"Of offences against religion: Any person who shall be convicted before a Justice of the Peace of shooting, gambling or sporting, or of frequenting tippling houses, or of servile labor works of necessity and mercy excepted, on the Lord's Day, shall, for every such offence, forfeit not less than $1.00 or more than $3.80 and, in default of payment, shall be committed to jail for a term not less than twelve hour nor more than four days."

The fact that this law, proclaimed in the pre-confederation days of pounds, shillings and pence, was made to read in dollars and appeared in the Revised Statutes of 1900 was the Star's basis for the presumption that there was some intention of keeping it as one of the laws of the province.

Then the Star did a little speculating: "It is quite specific about 'shooting' and it has been argued that 'sporting' includes fishing. 'Sporting' is a comprehensive term and, if it includes fishing, it also includes motoring for pleasure, golfing, canoeing and any other form of sport, as banned of a Sunday. If it means that, the law is archaic and should be made specific or repealed.

"Under the regulations of the Fisheries Act, a federal law is no prohibition of Sunday fishing, except for a local regulation regarding salmon fishing and applicable only in Restigouche County, New Brunswick. Under this Nova Scotian pre-confederation law, still on the provincial statute books, an angler might be successfully prosecuted. He is within the federal law, but may be violating the provincial law. It is an anomalous situation. The tangle should be straightened out."

TESTING SOIL UNDER ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL

Should Be Wet and Excavating May Dry It

London.—Another examination is being made of the subsoil of St. Paul's Cathedral to ascertain the effect on the foundations of building operations.

The strengthening operations carried out two years ago have removed all anxiety so far as the structure is concerned.

Canon Alexander says: "The cathedral has its own bed of wet sand, and so long as this remains wet there is nothing to be anxious about.

"Should that condition be changed by building operations in its vicinity the effect would be very serious.

"Disturbances in the neighborhood of Cornhill a while ago were attributed by experts to the excavating of foundations for new buildings to a depth of 60 or 70 feet or more, and we are anxious to protect St. Paul's from any such effects.

"The erection to the north or to the south of any big building whose foundational work would convert the cathedral's subsoil from a wet into a dry condition would be a matter of first importance.

Several firms who contemplate rebuilding are consulting with the surveyor of the cathedral with regard to proposed foundations.

WOMEN PELT A CRITIC WITH BLACK PUDDINGS

Recent Comment on Cooking and Housekeeping Methods

Sunderland, Eng. — Lively scenes took place the other day in the east end of Sunderland when Miss Agnes Jennings, property manager for the Sunderland Housing Association, arrived to collect rents.

Recent comments by Miss Jennings on the cooking and housekeeping methods of women of the district aroused much resentment, and when Miss Jennings next visited the area, she was jeered by a hostile crowd and pelted with black puddings and sausages.

"Come and see our frying pans," and "What says we cannot cook and sew?" were are taunts hurled at Miss Jennings.

In The Automotive World

LATEST THING IN 1916.

Ever hear of Dutch detachable forward doors for touring cars? They were the "last word" in automobile body designers' art just 22 years ago, to judge from an Oldsmobile advertisement in the Toronto Globe of June 25, 1910, which has just turned up on the editor's desk. The new Dutch doors were a very interesting contraption. The upper half was detachable from the lower half—"off and on in an instant without the use of tools." For warm weather touring, it was explained, the upper half of the door lower door for protection from dust and draught. And the price of the Oldsmobile, special Dutch forward doors and all, was $2,800. To-day's Oldsmobile Eight special sedan is $1,530 at Oshawa, less taxes.

CAR SALES AND THE WEATHER

There is no question about it—it takes good weather to administer the hypodermic that spring business sometimes needs. In the retail automobile business in Canada "backward spring weather" has been cited as an alibi for limping sales figures in the month of April. In parts of Eastern Canada there was six consecutive rainy week-ends broken by fine weather the second week-end in May. As a result, the sales in May are expected to have a decided edge over the sales for April, and the annual sales "peak" may come much later in the year than usual.

GARDENS FOR MOTOR WORKERS.

Industrialists here and there are encouraging the gardening urge among employees. Forty gardening lots have been placed at the disposal of employees by General Motors of Canada, Limited, at Oshawa. The allotment of these plots is handled by E. R. Complin, head of the Industrial Relations Department of General Motors of Canada, who states that the acreage is at the disposal of any employee who wants to raise a crop of garden stuff.

WHEN DO WE 'GO DOUGHNUT'."

The doughnut or super-balloon tire is hovering now in the background of the automotive picture. While the engineers are experimenting and the known benefits of the large-sized tire are being weighed, standardization of size is already under discussion by manufacturers. Seven tentative sizes are understood to have been approved by leading tire manufacturers. Smallest of the seven is 6.50—16 and the largest 9.00—16.

PLEA FOR SAFER LIGHTS.

A motorist who is forced to use the highways a great deal at night makes an urgent plea for voluntary testing of headlamps. The situation, he finds, is very serious from the time highway traffic starts to expand in the spring until a point well on in early summer. Too often, he believes, the spring check-up fails to include a headlight test, with the result that rays of light may be seen pointing upward at a sharp angle or so much out of line as to be dangerous to other drivers. "No spring check-up is complete without a careful headlight re-adjustment," he says.

HASTE MAKES WASTE.

Police tests recently conducted in cities with fairly heavy traffic prove conclusively that a driver who rushes the lights, weaves through traffic, and in every possible manner crowds his car, can save at best about half a minute a mile over the speed of cars which consistently follow the lanes and whose drivers make no effort to beat the rules. This merely demonstrates a principle known to every experienced and thoughtful driver who is connected with the trade, but not appreciated by many customers with whom he comes in contact. It is expressed by the old adage, "Haste makes waste." Not only public safety, but reasonable upkeep expense argue in favor of conservative driving, and many cars will give better satisfaction than otherwise if their owners are advised to be gentle with the machine and save its speed for the open road.

Day Shelter Did Much For Idle Men

MONTREAL, May 27.—(CP). — An interesting record of an experiment undertaken by a group of prominent social workers in Montreal to take care of the city's unemployed during the past winter is revealed in a booklet recently published by Dr. Frank D. Adams, chairman of the committee which directed the Vitre street Day Shelter.

Some 5,000 unemployed men were kept off the streets, Dr. Adams points out. At the Day Shelter they were given the opportunity of either amusing themselves or taking advantage of educational courses. Cards, games and reading matter were provided, while entertainments were staged each afternoon.

In this way the shelter not only ameliorated the hardships of the men, but lessened the work of the police, reducing vagancy and petty street crimes. It encouraged sobriety among the men and counteracted the influence of Communistic propaganda, agitators who sought to spread revolutionary doctrines among those gathered at the shelter meeting with little success.

Declaring that bus and motor-truck services are jeopardizing their positions, railway employees have appealed to farmer of County Wicklow, Irish Free State, to patronize railway instead of motor lines.

CROWE LAKE IS POPULAR RESORT

Mrs. James McGrath Predicts Prosperous Season at This Summer Camp.

GOOD FISHING GROUND

MARMORA, May 27 (Examiner Correspondence)—A visit to Crowe Lake on Wednesday afternoon revealed the fact that catering establishments are in complete readiness to handle whatever tourist trade, the summer of 1932 will occasion. A call at Tipperary House found its genial proprietress Mrs. James McGrath most optimistic about the summer prospects.

It is not a long way to this Tipperary which is situated at the junction of the old and new rows of cottages. Tipperary is entering upon its 17th season, "sweet seventeen." Mrs. McGrath hopes, for in spite of all the labor incidental to the operation of her establishment, this genial hostess finds a real charm in meeting her old guests as they return year after year. "I have been surprised to get so many applications already," said Mrs. McGrath, "for after the winter of depression, I thought there might be a falling off."

Her first American guest is just completing a two week's vacation and nine reservations are already booked. This establishment has twenty bed rooms and three fine cottages. Material for a fourth cottage is already on hand and it will be erected if present accommodations becomes taxed. Some of the guests who are returning this summer have been coming without a lapse, for the past twelve years. The grounds have been fixed up with new driveways, the cottages repainted and with the repainting of the long verandah, everything is sure to look its sweetest at this resort for the quiet-loving tourists. As in former years, there will be several boats for hire. This will be the second season for Tipperary to operate without a booth but this will prove no discomfort to its patrons for right opposite Tipperary on the bend of the lake road, the brothers Frank and Thomas McKinnon have opened a wayside booth, where a goodly sized stock of soft drinks, tobacco and candies will be on hand throughout the summer months. McKinnon Bros. are also installing a gasoline station and will run an ice delivery at the lake as well as in Marmora village.

Marble Cliff Pavilion this year is under new management, W. C. Sills of Belleville having purchased and renovated the property. Mr. Sills has made many improvements within the pavilion and dining hall and has added rustic seats and tables to the pretty grounds adjacent to this property. Asked if he had received many inquiries for reservations, Mr. Sills replied "About a dozen." He was very pleased with the splendid patronage of the opening dance held the previous evening. Three of his sons are members of the six piece orchestra, which is playing Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings as well as giving two hour concerts on Sunday afternoons. For three generations the Sills have been a family of musical traditions and their appearance at the lake this summer should draw good crowds.

The orchestra is made up of the following, Bruce Sills, conductor and violin; Maurice Bell, tenor banjo and Spanish guitar; William Sills, saxaphone C, soprano, C melody and clarionet; D. Mitchell, trombone, base viol and sousaphone; Marshall Sills, traps, piano accordion and Hawaiian guitar; Douglas Hutchinson, piano.

Two of the members have played before King George V. William Sills was chosen as a member of the Canadian Reserve Band which under the baton of the famous Dan Godfrey, played before the King. He played solo saxaphone and clarionet numbers. D. Mitchell played in an orchestra which played before the King at his Coronation, using now the same base viol as then. With private owned cottages being renovated and painted, the lakeside as a whole will be particularly attractive this summer.

FAIRS DISCUSSED AT SCHOOL MEETING

BRIDGENORTH, May 27 (Examiner Correspondence)—A public meeting of all interested in the annual school fair held at Bridgenorth convened on Wednesday evening in the schoolhouse at 8 o'clock, when representatives were present from school sections numbers 2, 3, 4, 5 and 11, numbers 1 and 9 not being represented.

J. B. Nelson, acted as chairman and secretary of the meeting and was the main speaker. In his address he said that owing to the general depression it was the Government's wish to cut down all unnecessary expense everywhere.

This is also in connection with the school fairs. He asked if the people present were in favor of the previous basis of awarding prizes which was to give five in each class: 50 cents for first prize; 40 cents for second; 30 cents for third; 20 cents for 4th and 10 cents for 5th.

He pointed out that this year the Department would not send out paid judges but that competent local men would be responsible for this important work. The question of parade and general program was discussed.

The meeting was then open to discussion on these several points. General satisfaction was expressed with the management of the fairs in the past and no real changes were asked for. The matter of prizes was voted to be satisfactory, with five in each class. The proposed plan for judging also met with approval.

No change was suggested in the parade or general program. Committees were appointed to assist in erecting tents and tables and arranging exhibits.

The first school fair was held in Waterloo County about 1907 and proved such a success that other countries took it up. Now after about twenty-five years the school fair in Ontario has become one of the most popular of all fairs and is keenly enjoyed by young and old alike.

BODY FOUND IN RIVER

SARNIA.—The body of a middle-aged man attired in blue overalls was taken from the St. Clair river, half a mile below the city, this afternoon. There were some papers in the pockets of the overalls but none provided an identification clue. The body was badly decomposed.

Increase In Income Tax Returns Shown

MONTREAL, May 27.—(CP). — The army of those making income tax returns in the district of Montreal has been swollen this year from 23,000, the 1930 figure, to more than 30,000, as shown in a report made by P. F. McCaffrey, district inspector. This change is largely due to the lowering of the exemption rates from $3,000 to $2,400 in the case of a married man or a householder and from $1,500 to $1,200 for a single person.

Receipts have been sent out for all the payments received prior to April 30, the expiry date, and the small army of clerks who have been engaged in this work are now back at their "normal vocations" in the department.

Semaphore signals, similar to those on railways, are being tested as guides for pedestrians at Brighton, England.

"I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and it helped them, and after using two boxes of the Ointment, together with the Cuticura Soap, they were completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. Wm. G. Jewers, Moser River, N. S.

MPBELL FAMILY SETTLED IN MARMORA 107 YEARS AGO

CAME FROM WALES

MARMORA, May 27.—Examiner Correspondence).—Interesting historical details concerning the Campbell family who pioneered in this section of Canada, are revealed as a result of the death recently of Mrs. Dr.) Anderson of Belleville.

The late Mrs. Anderson, whose maiden name was Campbell, was born in Marmora eighty-three years ago, and her sole surviving brother Alfred Campbell of Belleville supplied The Examiner representative here with details embodied in the following information.

In the year 1825 four employees at the old Marmora Iron Works were Campbell and Dyer, firemen; John Jones, founder; and a Mr. Seagriff, ballast moulder. Alfred Campbell was a son of the late William Henry Campbell, the firemen referred to above.

The late William Henry Campbell came direct to Marmora from Merthyr Tydvil, Wales. He was sent out by the government to be employed at the iron works.

While resident at Marmora he was twice married. His first wife being a member of the Jones family which also emigrated from Merthyr Tydvil. As far as can be gathered by implication the first Mrs. Campbell was the daughter of John Jones, the founder, whose gravestone in Marmora Portestant cemetery reads: "John Jones, died March 10, 1869, aged 90 years, native of South Wales."

Alfred Campbell was unable to recall whether there were any children by his father's first marriage.

William H. Campbell's second wife was Ann Elizabeth Horne. She was born in the province of Quebec and her father, who was a shipbuilder, later moved to Kingston. He was given a grant of land in Marmora Township by the government, which at his death became the property of his daughter.

Land Was Valuable.

Mr. Campbell told The Examiner that his mother had often mentioned to him that the Indians had told her not to part with the land, as it was very valuable. However as her husband was leaving Marmora to go into the hotel business she was finally persuaded to sell the property to Philip Brinton. The latter discovered gold upon the property and disposed of it for a favorable sum of money.

While resident at Marmora three children were born to the Campbells, one of whom was the late Mrs. (Dr.) Anderson. An older sister of Mrs. Anderson was a lady of considerable talent. As a girl she worked a beautiful sampler, on which is worked the Lord's Prayer and the addition of the following verse:

"Pour out on me Thy grace, O God
Around me danger lies;
O guard me till in Thine abode
I banquet in the skies."
Adelaide M. Campbell, aged 12 years, 1849.

Whether the verse was one of her own compositions or the line of an old hymn, her brother was not able to say. The other member of the Campbell family to be born in Marmora was the late William Henry Campbell, who was for a number of years Fire Chief of Belleville Fire Department.

The three Campbell children who were born in Marmora were baptised by the late Rev. Grier of St. Thomas' church, Belleville, and who in the early days, made occasional visits to Marmora. The Campbells took farewell of the village about eighty years ago, when the father became proprietor of an hotel at Madoc.

It was at Madoc that Alfred Campbell was born, a year after which Mr. Campbell took over the Western House at Belleville, later known as the Windsor Hotel. This hotel was demolished a few years ago to make way for a service station. Before Adelaide M. Campbell became Mrs. James Forsythe, she enjoyed a varied experience as a school teacher. She taught among the colored folk of both north and south Carolina. Her old photograph album still in the possession of her brother, contains many pictures of her old scholars taken in adult age, and when the kindnesses of their teacher had not been forgotten. She later returned to Belleville where she conducted a private school.

The sampler already referred to, and which reveals her wonderful ability with the needle, is to be presented to the village of Marmora and will adorn the walls of the public library.

GRAIN, CATTLE, PRODUCE

TORONTO PRODUCE.

TORONTO, May 27.—Prices were unchanged on the local butter market yesterday and trade continued fair. Local brokers were quoting No. 1 solids at 17½c and No. 2 solids at 16½c. Receipts were considered heavier and were clearing well, with no signs of weakness. Buyers were taking large lots of solids at current prices. Western and Ontario makes figuring in deals.

Cheese.

Cheese was weak and prices were barely steady at 9c for new large, 9½c for twins and 9¼c for large. Retailers were asking 10½c for new large, 10¾c for new twins, 11c for new triplets and 13c for new Stiltons.

Eggs.

Receipts of eggs were light, but the demand was poor and prices were about steady. Brokers quoted ordinary packed, graded eggs at 15c for extras, 13c for firsts and 11c for seconds. Storage packed eggs were quoted at 15½c for extras and 13½c for firsts. Country shippers were offered steady prices at 13c for extras, 11c for firsts and 9c for seconds, delivered, ungraded, cases returned. Retailers were quoted extras at 16½c in cartons, extras loose 16½c, firsts loose 14½c and seconds loose 12½c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, May 27.—Produce and dairy markets in Montreal yesterday were steady, with no price changes reported.

The butter market was generally at 17½c per pound for car lots of No. 1. Receipts were 509 boxes, regarded as very light.

Cheese ruled at 9c per pound for Ontarios and 8¾c for Quebecs, with receipts at 2,574 boxes.

The egg market was at 17¼c to 16c for extras, 14½c to 13c for firsts and 12½c to 12c for seconds, for graded Ontarios and Prairies in car lots or less. Receipts were 3,370 cases.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 27. — Forecasts of unseasonably cold weather last night, with possible frosts as far south as Kansas, restored backbone to the wheat market yesterday after sharp early breaks.

Prices on wheat fell temporarily to almost 3c under Monday's high point, influenced by soaking rains both in spring and winter crop territory about two inches at places in the Dakotas. Later, though, a blizzard was reported northwest, and there were estimates that domestic spring wheat acreage would show a decrease of 15 per cent. compared with last year.

Losses Are Slight

Wheat closed unsettled ¼c to ¾c under Wednesday's finish; corn, ¼c to ⅝c down; oats, ¼c to ½c off, and provisions unchanged to 7c lower.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 27. — Reflecting the weakness displayed by the stocks, wheat prices edged lower in featureless trade here yesterday. In one of the dullest sessions in weeks, wheat closed 1-3 to ⅝ cent lower for the day.

May declined ½c at 63¾c, July and October each dropped ⅝c to 64c and 66¼c respectively.

Trade worked for export was a minus quantity.

Market Opens Lower.

Open fractionally lower, the local market early took its cue from Chicago and in featureless trade receded to close at the low points. Weakness at Chicago was attributed to a weakness in the securities market. The anticipated improvement in the winter wheat crop was being discounted as a market factor.

Broomhall reports that the smallness of the crop in India and the scarcity of wheat stocks in France and other parts of Europe augure well for future exports from North America.

Cash wheat and coarse grains generally were unchanged in uninteresting trade.

PLAYERS INJURED IN SOFTBALL GAME

Annual Victoria Day Athletic Celebration is Held at Bethany.

BETHANY, May 27 (Examiner Correspondence)—Three minor accidents to players marred the annual celebration of Victoria Day at Bethany, when Lansing, of Nestleton, sustained a broken wrist, which Dr. J. J. Hamilton promptly attended to. Ken Thorndyke received a bad bruise on one hand but did not retire from the game, while Frank Hamilton was the third victim, sustaining a blow on his ribs. The game resulted in a score of 3-0 in favor of Bethany.

In the softball game between Peterborough and Bethany, the home team came out victors with a score of 19-10.

The weather was ideal for the events and the park was thronged with visitors. Supper was served in the basement of the United Church by the ladies, and proved very successful.

Play Presented

At 8.15 the hall was packed to capacity where the play, "The Gate To Happiness" was presented by the Excelsior Class of St. James' United Church, Peterborough.

The cast included: Jack Gay, Eden's younger brother, Frank Kitchen; Jenny Gay, Eden's lame sister, Marjorie Baldry; Mrs. Blair, the minister's wife, Dorothy Drysdale; Aunt Sara Gay, who has shootin' pains, Freda Pavey; Eden Gay, the dancer Carlotta, Mrs. P. Vanneet; Oscar Gay, Eden's father, Ernest Kitney; Rev. Blair, the minister, Harold Pavey; Stephen Blair, his son, Jack's Bride, Grace Olaveston.

The play was presented in three acts and each character played his or her part exceedingly well. Aunt Sara sustained throughout her wit and funny speeches, brightening the drab existence which was keenly felt to exist amidst such a woeful home life. The pathos felt was very real and a feeling of keen relief when one remembered it was only a play with a happy ending.

Between the acts, the audience was well entertained with two lovely old songs by the Excelsior Class soloist.

Following the play, music for dancing was provided by the Manvers Silver Sterling Orchestra, brought a very successful program to a conclusion.

NEW DISCOVERIES CONFIRM VIRTUES OF BRAN IN DIET

Supplies "Bulk" and Vitamin B for Constipation; Also Iron for Blood

For ten years, now, millions have found Kellogg's ALL-BRAN a safe, pleasant way to overcome common constipation—with the headaches, loss of appetite and energy that so often result from this condition.

Recent laboratory tests show that ALL-BRAN supplies "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. In addition, ALL-BRAN contains twice as much blood-building iron, by weight, as beef liver.

This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like the "bulk" in lettuce. Inside the body, it absorbs moisture and forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes.

Think how much better it is to enjoy this delicious cereal than to take endless pills and drugs, which often lead to harmful habits.

Two tablespoonfuls daily—in serious cases with every meal—are usually sufficient. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Serve ALL-BRAN as a cereal with milk or cream, or use in cooking. Appetizing recipes on the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

Cavendish Wedding Was Kept a Secret

Not Even Servants Knew Until an Hour Before Ceremony.

By Betty Twist
(Special to The Examiner)

LONDON, May 26 (ENS)—Interest in the wedding of Lord Charles Cavendish, second son of the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire, and Miss Adele Astaire, the celebrated American dancer, has been fanned by the secrecy which has surrounded it. Not even the servants knew the time, and it was not till an hour before the ceremony that the older members of the staff were called to the little family chapel to witness the ceremony. The night prior to the wedding the clergyman, the choir and the organist were notified that their services would be required, but no one let slip the information received.

King Edward, the King of Portugal, and the ex-Kaiser have worshipped in Chatsworth Chapel, which is attached to the Derbyshire mansion of the Cavendish family, but this is the first time that a wedding has been solemnized there. The floor of the chapel is marbled. The altar, too, is of marble, and, contrary to custom, it is at the west and not at the east end. It is flanked by statutes representing "Faith" and "Hope," carved by Gibber, the 17th century sculptor. The walls are panelled with exquisitely carved cedar.

Nurses Make $9 Trip New York To St. John

SAINT JOHN, N.B., May 27 (C.P.)—In books, they call it a "lark." In reality, Tony Chenard from France, Yvonne Galbraith from South Dakota, Althea Smith from Maine, and Eileen Stockford of Saint John, agree their hitch-hike from New York to Saint John was "great fun." Which is just a different way of expressing it.

They arrived in Saint John recently sans dust on their shoes, sans holes in the soles of them ,even. There was no actual hiking, they explained. They rode most of the way in nice big sedans, with a lumber wagon, a gravel truck and an open flivver—very ancient—for variety. The whole trip cost them $9 each.

Leaving New York May 7, they got into New London, Conn., that night. Sunday they stayed at Portland, and on Monday they reached Bangor, going on to Dennysville, Maine, the home of Miss Smith, where they spent a few days.

"Everybody," said Miss Stockford, "was just great to us, and we didn't have to walk a bit. Well, maybe a mile or so. Most of the time we were in big cars. We'd let the old ones pass by if things were looking good, because there's nothing like travelling in comfort."

"It's pretty easy to get lifts, is it?" the girls were asked.

"Yes," said Miss Smith, "I guess it's easier for girls, though. We found out on the way that women are afraid to give lifts to men, and I don't know, but I guess it's easier for girls to get a lift from men—"

"Are you going to do some more hitch-hiking?"

"We certainly are. We're going to hitch-hike back, and maybe after that we'll go on another trip. It's great fun."

The quartette, all nurses at a New York hospital ,are visiting at the home of Miss Stockford's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Stockford of this city. Miss Stockford will remain in Saint John all summer, and her friends will leave in a week or two—to hitch-hike back to Manhatten.

PRESENTATION TO J. POULTON

DECORATION DAY AUG. 14.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 27. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent) — As an expression of appreciation of the Campbellford Branch of the Canadian Legion for services rendered to the memory of those who gave their lives in the Great War in keeping beautiful the Campbellford war memorial grounds Joeseph Poulton was last night presented with a pipe. The presentation was made by Past President G. A. Ironsione. Replying to the gift Mr. Poulton said that he took on the work himself because he saw it to be his duty, and was going to continue with it.

Mr. Poulton has done much to beautify the town of Campbellford and last year through the Horticultural Society of which he is a member, planted approximately 7,000 bulbs at different points.

He intimated to the meeting that thep resent need of the War Memorial was a few loads of loam to build up at the base of the shaft. C. H. Davidson donated a driver and truck for this work.

The meeting was a regular session of the Campbellford Legion with the President, J. D. McEachern in the chair. Arrangements were made for the annual Decoration Sunday which this year will be held in Campbellford on August 14 and at Warkworth on August 7. The committee appointed to make all arrangements for the Campbellford function consisted of G. H. Free, R. Cooke, C. L. Kellog, G. C. Bromley and A. T. Linton.

The next meeting of the branch will be held at Warkworth on June 9.

Campbellford May Have Lacrosse Team

CAMPBELLFORD, May 27 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Efforts are being made on the part of several lacrosse fans of Campbellford to arrange for a team from this place to be entered in the O. A.L.A. grouping this year. No meeting has yet been held by the local club, but one workout was staged, and it is thought that this year Campbellford would be able to put a good team into the field with the assistance of three Indians whom the boys have lined up as prospective players. Box lacrosse will be the game, and several suggestions have been made that Reeve C. H. Davidson manage the local team, but at present he has not consented to act in this capacity.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

IT IS IMPORTANT for persons to be articulate if they wish to be understood.

• • • • • • •

This is not confined to enunciation solely, but signifies well joined thoughts, well connected ideas, which are mentally lucid as well as audibly clear.

• • • • • • •

The person who thinks straight, desires to have his thoughts conveyed in understandable sounds to his hearers. He is as selective of his words as he is distinct in his utterance.

• • • • • • •

Unless he properly enunciates, his indistinct and indistinguishable vocabulary clouds his hearer's perception of what he is trying to say.

• • • • • • •

To be articulate is of great importance. Each person has to be, unless he expects to be misunderstood.

• • • • • • •

Unless a meaning is actually grasped by the person who hears the spoken words, the speaker is liable to be misquoted as well as misunderstood.

• • • • • • •

Many are the strange and distorted ideas which are promulgated by the person talking, simply because he does not enunciate distinctly and is as careless of the way he expressed thoughts as he is of its enunciation.

• • • • • • •

Those who listen to him are prevented from grasping his meaning. He suffers from being misunderstood.

• • • • • • •

In families, much misery is caused by carelessness in making oneself articulate. A husband, hurrying off to business, leaves the house with sentences only half understood ringing in his ears.

• • • • • • •

What the person said may have been all right, nothing to rankle in the memory, but words were not spoken clearly enough to be distinguishable.

• • • • • • •

Perhaps one thing could be meant perhaps another.

• • • • • • •

Children should be helped to think clearly and enunciate distinctly so that they grow up without the handicap of being inarticulate.

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

NEEDLESS FINESSING

As Bridge players progress in their skill, they learn that additional tricks may frequently be made due to the position of adversely held honors. Thus, if one player holds Ace-Queen of a suit and leads from the other hand toward that combination and plays the Queen to the first trick, he will win 2 tricks in the suit whenever the King is held by the opponent at his right. Frequently, this play is essential to success. While it has only one chance in two of winning, unless the bidding has disclosed the probable possession of the adverse honor, to lead the Ace and then the Queen would reduce the chance of winning 2 tricks with this combination nearly to zero, as it would be rare indeed to find the King a Singleton in one of the opponents' hands. If a finesse is necessary, it should be taken, but the play of the hand should be so planned as to avoid it if at all possible. One method of avoiding the finesse is to compel a chosen opponent to lead the suit for you, as the hand today discloses.

Both sides vulnerable.
South—Dealer.

	♠ A Q J ♡ J 10 6 5 2 ◇ 7 5 2 ♣ K 4
♠ 2 7 6 5 3 ♡ — ◇ J 10 9 6 4 ♣ 9 7 3	W E S	♠ K 10 9 ♡ K Q ◇ K Q 8 3 ♣ J 10 8 5
	♠ 4 2 ♡ A 9 8 7 4 3 ◇ A ♣ A Q 6 2

South had reached a contract of six hearts which, while not justified by the possession of honor-tricks, found its excuse in the extremely favorable distribution.

West opened the diamond and South won with the Ace. If the two trumps adversely held were not both in either the East or West hand, South could see his contract laid down. He, therefore, led the Ace of hearts, only to receive the unwelcome news that East had a winning trump left. South, therefore, can lose no other tricks. He could make his contract if he found the spade King in the West hand, but this play would give him only one chance in two of winning. He had another line of play that increased the chances tremendously. His next play was to lead a small club winning with the King in Dummy. A diamond was then led from Dummy and trumped in the closed hand. Now South laid down the Ace of clubs and followed with a small club which was trumped in Dummy. Dummy's last diamond was led, trumped in the closed hand, and the Queen of clubs led, upon which East was forced to follow suit. Actually, it made no difference if he had a fourth club or not. South now led a trump and East was forced to win. To lead a diamond would permit South to discard his losing spade, while to lead the spade presented South with 2 tricks in spades. Whichever course East selected, the contract was assured.

"SNAPPY" SNAP SHOTS

TOUGH DIRT GREASE

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

FOODS THAT POISON THE BODY, IRRITATE THE SKIN.

There is no question but that there seem to be a great many cases of 'food poisoning' which are accompanied by large round swellings about the face and body, together with considerable itching.

The fact that it passes away in a short time is the reason that little attention is paid to it, but it is really a valuable sign in that it shows that the system has trouble in handling or digesting certain kinds of foods.

Sometimes there is no skin eruption but the individual doesn't feel just right a few minutes after eating; sometimes he notices that he has suddenly acquired or developed a 'cold in the head,' and begins to sneeze and blow his nose.

As you know, what are known as skin tests have been used in an effort to find out just what food or foods is causing the trouble, but this system is not used as much as formerly.

What is known as the 'nutrition experiment' gives good results. It consists in keeping out of the food intake the special food that is causing the trouble. In order to find the exact food at fault, animal proteins—veal, beef, pork, cheese, eggs and milk—only, are given. If the patient improves then these animal proteins are kept out of the diet, and the vegetable proteins—beans, peas, bread, and bananas—are used; or if any fruit or vegetable peculiarity is suspected, the fruit or vegetable in question may be added to the diet.

I have spoken before about Dr. Urback, Vienna, who suggests that as the patient must eat certain foods—eggs, bread, meat and milk—even if they do cause trouble, he can be accustomed to the offending substance, by taking a very small quantity of it an hour before he eats the larger quantity at meal time. These small amounts of food protect against the strong reaction—itchy skin, rapid heart beat, cold in the head—that is otherwise certain to develop when the larger amount is eaten.

This is much simpler than by injecting small quantities of the offending food into the skin, which method sometimes causes considerable shock to the patient.

Dr. Urback states that the small amount of egg protects only against egg, and not against milk, the meat only against meat, and the like.

So if you are subject to 'food allergy' as this is called, it would be worth your while to watch for the offending food or foods.

OUR MAIL

Dear Anne:—

Before getting down to work, I am going to rest by writing to you.

Are not holidays splendid? This afternoon was the first carefree outing my husband and I have had since the New Year. Our guests came before dinner and some of them helped me clear away things and we all went off to see some of the beauties of nature near here; forgot there was such a thing as work, or being tired. True, they did not get the supper I had planned, but seemed to thoroughly enjoy what I was able to prepare while the kettle boiled and oh, the change was so good and the little company so happy! I hope you had as happy a day.

Now for what has been on my mind since reading your article on resting. There are times when to lie down is necessary and I do think every woman should lie down ten or fifteen minutes after her regular morning work is done, just lie down and relax. She will more than make up the time. After dinner, the same is wise, but I do like to have my dishes washed as well as stacked. If there is one thing I dislike more than another, it is to go back to dishes.

If there is time, I like to read lying down and I do like that reprehensible practice of reading in bed. Utter exhaustion requires lying down; aching feet and legs require lying down, but how many ever try sitting down in an old-fashioned straight, high-backed chair, with seat just high enough to let the feet be placed firmly on the floor? Aching head, arms and back and a tired whole body are often refreshed if one just sits down, back against back of chair, also the head, with hands folded in the lap, legs resting on seat of chair and lower leg at right angles to upper leg and feet firm on the floor. The rest obtained is wonderful.

Indeed, it is far better than much of the easy chair lounging and some of the lying down. A dear old lady once told me the younger people made themselves tired lounging.

Where and how is that dear little Ad Infinitum?

Sincerely yours,
Quid Est.

I am so glad that you have at last been able to take a holiday Quid Est and I know from your letter that you must have enjoyed it more than just words could imply. Yes, I had a nice holiday, and I trust all the neighbors did too.

Sincerely,
Anne Wilcox

HORSE TURNS WHITE SCARED BY A PLANE

Remarkable Happening at Sir Alfred McAlpine's Place in Wales

Wrexham, Wales.—A horse grazing in a field at Marchwell Hall, near Wrexham, Denbighshire, the residence of Sir Alfred McAlpine, the racehorse owner, was so frightened by the landing of an aeroplane in the same field that its black mane turned white, and there are streaks of gray in its tail.

Miss McAlpine, Sir Alfred's daughter, who owns the horse, told a reporter:

"Recently a friend who was flying to Scotland landed in the field.

"As the machine approached the ground the horse suddenly leapt in fright from behind a tree and galloped in front of it until it landed.

"Four days later we noticed that the horse's mane was changing color from jet black, and it is now completely white."

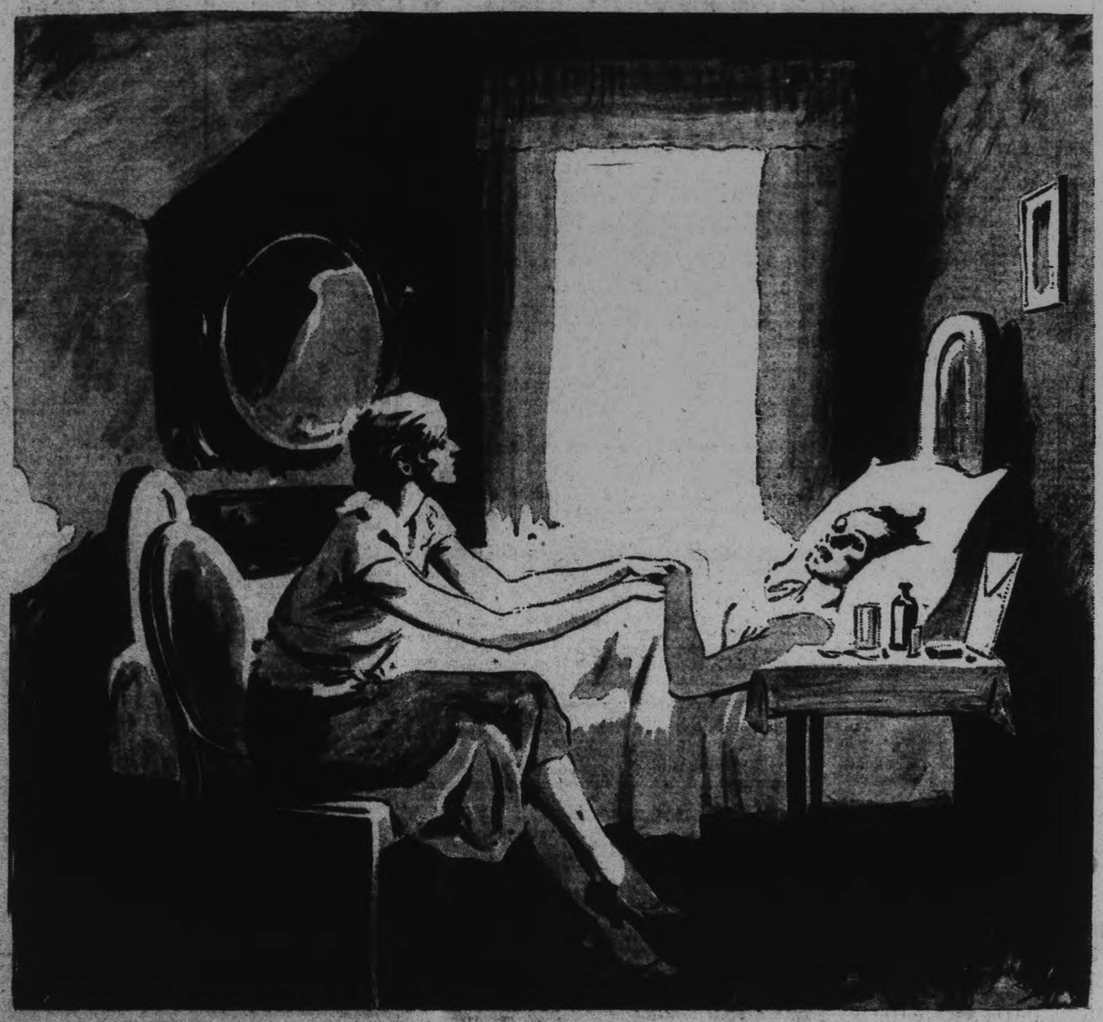
As in a Glass Darkly

What is the supreme test of a woman's love? . . . Here is a great story of one woman who passed it.

by

VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

Illustrated By PAUL KROESEN



THE woman on the bed smiled a wan welcome to her visitor and stretched out a thin hand to her.

"I am so glad to see you," she said softly—"even gladder than usual."

The visitor took the hand and held it in a warm clasp.

"How are you today?" she asked kindly.

"A little more tired, that's all," was the answer. "I slept very little last night, and did a lot of thinking. I thought especially of you, and of how good you have been to me ever since you came to Montville."

"Good to myself," Mildred Radford rejoined. "You have helped me by letting me come and see you often. I needed just what you have given me—something to think about besides myself."

"You have made my sorrow easier to bear," Anne Boynton told her. "Until you came, I could never speak of—him. You see," with a slight twist of the pale lips—"my neighbors feel that I have lived a life of sin. They have been sorry for me since my illness—but they still regard me as an unrepentant Magdalen."

The other shook her head. "They are to be pitied, for they have never loved—just like that—perhaps."

"As you and I have loved, you mean?" the invalid added. "But you married your love—whereas I—"

She did not finish her sentence, but closed her eyes and lay very still. Her caller was thankful for this silence. It was not easy for her to speak of her own sorrow. It never would be. And it was with her day and night.

Sinking into a chair near the window, she sat very still while the patient seemed to doze. For the past month Mildred had been coming to this little cottage every afternoon. There was nothing especially helpful that she could do, for Anne Boynton had an elderly domestic to attend to her physical needs. Yet Mildred found a vague comfort in being with this dying woman who, though younger than she, had, like herself, lost all that had made life worth while.

THE widow leaned back in her chair and gazed out over the nearby green fields to the blue lake and the Vermont mountains in the distance. The afternoon sunshine was golden, and the shadows of the trees in the little yard lengthened slowly as Mildred reviewed the happenings of the summer.

The house was very still, for Eliza, the maid, had taken advantage of the caller's presence to go for a short walk. No sound broke in upon the silence save an occasional bird note from the orchard at the rear of the cottage, and Mildred was too deeply absorbed in memories to heed the birds.

She shuddered as she brooded on the weeks of hideous loneliness and desolation that she had endured in her apartment in town after her husband's death. He had been more than husband to her—sweetheart, companion, her other self. He and she had often assured each other that theirs was no ordinary marriage. They had been lovers and would always be until the end.

How could she have suspected that the end would come so soon? Only seven years together—and then his illness and death. She reflected with a gripping pain at her heart that she need never have left him for more than a day at a time if it had not been for her sense of filial duty.

She was an only child, and her widowed mother, living in England, insisted that her daughter spend six weeks of every year with her. Kenneth had been very good about letting his wife go, yet he dreaded the separation as much as she did. When, occasionally, his business necessitated his absence from home for a week, he returned with the declaration that each parting was harder than the one that preceded it. His absences had been necessary; hers had been the result of her mother's selfishness.

She frowned impatiently. She ought not to think such bitter thoughts. Her mother did not know for what a short time Mildred would have Kenneth. In the course of nature a mother should die long before a child or a child's husband.

A year ago, when Mildred had been in England, Kenneth had had to take his vacation alone, traveling about by himself. She had come back at the end of her six weeks' stay, but by that time he was at the office again, looking pale and thin. He had been pathetically glad to have her back.

Three months later he had died.

At the door she paused and looked back. . . . The dead woman lay there, smiling.

SHE clenched her hands, and bit her lips until they almost bled. Would the pain never cease? Would it kill her? She wished that it might! She must think of something else!

She had not planned to leave her apartment this summer. But her aunt had written, insisting that she come up to this New England village where she herself had a cottage.

"It is bad for you to be alone in town," she wrote. "I want you to come and stay with me as long as you can be content."

Content! She would never be content anywhere! Yet now, as she mused, she appreciated that she had found something almost like peace here in this very room in which she now sat. In trying to lift some of the burden of sorrow and loneliness from the heart of the solitary woman in the tiny cottage next door to that in which Mildred's aunt lived, there had been moments when the widow's own anguish was blunted.

Anne Boynton stirred and opened her eyes. Then she smiled.

"I do not know how I could have endured all these long days of weakness and waiting if it had not been for you," she said, as if reading Mildred's thoughts. "I wish," hesitatingly, "that you would tell your aunt that I am grateful to her for sparing you to me so often."

She recalled ironically how much her aunt had disapproved of Mildred's first calls on the sick woman.

"MY dear, she is some man's mistress—or was for a good while!" Miss Drake had reminded her. "Even if she is ill, that does not change the fact that she has lived an immoral life."

"She probably loved him," Mildred suggested.

"If so, why didn't she marry him?" Miss Drake countered, with a severe look.

"Perhaps there was some obstacle in the way—a wife—or something."

"If he and she had been decent people that would have been an obstacle in the way of immorality!" the spinster declared. "No, I have no patience with all these free-love ideas! Morality is morality; immorality is sheer wickedness!"

"You are hard," her niece had reproved gently.

"I am not hard," Miss Drake had contradicted. "And of course I am sorry for the Boynton woman in her illness. The doctor tells me she's going to die before long."

"I do not think," Mildred had said with a wry smile, "that she will corrupt my morals."

"Surely," Miss Drake had demanded, "you do not excuse her sin?"

"I do not excuse nor condemn it," the widow answered. "Those of us who have not been tempted are not in a position to judge of what other women do when they are in love."

She recalled this conversation now, repeating to herself the assertion that she had made secretly to her own soul many times—that if she could not have married Kenneth she would have gone away with him without the marriage ceremony. Perhaps, she reflected, that was why she had found a measure of peace when with Anne Boynton—because both had loved much.

"TO him who loves much, much is forgiven," she murmured.

"What did you say?" The sick woman's ears were keen.

"I was just repeating to myself a Bible verse that happened to come to my mind."

Anne did not ask what the verse was. Mildred was thankful that she did not.

"Would you like me to read to you?" she queried.

"Not today, thank you," Anne replied. "There is something I want to say to you before—while I can. I was thinking of it last night. I would like to say it now while we are alone—if you don't mind. Will you bring your chair a little closer? My voice gets so tired and small!"

A wave of pity mounted in Mildred's heart. The end could not be far off. Yet—why pity Anne? Fortunate person! If there was another existence after death, she and her love would be together. If not, she would sleep forever—and never be lonely again.

Softly she lifted her chair and set it close by the bed.

"Now," taking the outstretched hand in hers, "what did you want to tell me?"

The emaciated fingers gripped her firm fingers. The dark and sunken eyes held her by their solemn gaze.

"Do you see that portfolio—right here on the table near me?" Anne asked.

"Yes."

"Now," taking the outstretched hand in hers, "what did you want to tell me?" . . .

"When I am dead—I would like to have that picture buried with me. . . . I want to know if you will come in and put it beside me."

"WELL, there were some letters in it—and a photograph. I burned the letters when I found I was getting weaker. I was afraid to wait too long. But the picture—I could not burn that."

"Of course not," Mildred soothed. "Why should you?"

She remembered Kenneth's picture, which was always with her wherever she went, in its silver, shrine-like frame, with the closed doors hiding it from casual eyes. It stood now on the table in her room in the house next door. Could she ever burn that?

She shrank from the thought. Yet there were days when she hardly dared look at it—for fear the pictured face would blur her recollection of the real face.

"Of course you could not destroy it," she repeated. "I understand perfectly!"

"Thank you! Then perhaps you can understand that, for a while after he went, it hurt me to look at his picture. It seemed as if he was going to speak—and then, all at once, I would know he was—dead!"

The feeble voice broke. Mildred held the quivering fingers more tightly. "Don't try to talk, dear," she urged. "It is too hard."

"No, it is not. I was silly to break down like that. I fancy it is because I am not strong."

"Of course it is," Mildred agreed.

"But I want to go on with what I was saying. It won't take long. The only thing in that portfolio now is his picture. It is in an envelope. When I am dead—I would like to have it buried with me. I want to know if you will come in and put it beside me—close to me—when nobody else sees what you are doing? Will you, please?"

"Of course I will," Mildred promised.

"I DON'T want anyone else to see it," Anne continued. "So I wish that you would hide it now, away in the back of my table drawer, under the writing paper there. Nobody coming in will find it before the—funeral."

In silence Mildred did her bidding. "Is that all?" she asked gently.

"Yes, thank you, Anne," with a long sigh of relief. "I think I shall be able to sleep. I feel so much calmer and happier now that I have had this talk with you. You see, the neighbors would not understand—if they were to come in—and there is nobody else except poor, patient old Eliza. If," with the ghost of a smile, "she considers me a sinner, she has never shown that she does—bless her!"

The weary eyes closed again. Mildred sat still until footsteps in the kitchen proved that Eliza had returned from her brief outing.

"Are you going?" Anne whispered.

"Yes, dear. If you want me, send Eliza for me."

"Thank you. And, there is just one thing more I want to say. I am not afraid when I remember what I did. We loved each other better than all the world put together. So—I cannot be sorry!"

"No, dear, of course you can't," Mildred soothed.

At the door she paused and looked back. The dying woman lay smiling.

The following morning when Mildred came down to breakfast, her aunt informed her that Anne Boynton was dead.

ELIZA had slipped down to the village on an errand when Mildred Radford went over to the little house after its mistress had been laid in her coffin. The widow stood looking down at the face that still wore the smile she had seen on it when she left her 24 hours ago. She laid across the thin fingers the bunch of white roses she had brought.

"You look like a bride!" she murmured.

The sound of her own voice in the silent room made her start. She must keep her promise to Anne.

Turning to the table, she drew forth the portfolio she had put in there at Anne's request. Taking out the envelope, she returned the portfolio to the drawer. Then glancing down, she saw a name written on the front of the envelope.

"Anne."

Her fingers tightened on the paper. Only four letters in the name, yet how like—!

Deep-set, loving eyes looked up at her. There was in them something she had never seen in any picture—only in real, living eyes. The full lips wore a tender half smile—

She did not know how long she stood there, holding the photograph, her gaze fixed on it. Suddenly she became aware of a sound of low moaning and found that she, herself, was making this strange noise.

"Kenneth!"

She stifled the cry as it burst from her. Stooping over the coffin, she slipped the picture, face downwards, under Anne's left arm, arranged the draperies so as to conceal it, then, slowly and wearily dragged herself from the room.

At the door she paused and looked back. The dead woman lay there, smiling.

UZCUDUN DEFEATED BY MICKEY WALKER

American's Showing in Final Two Rounds Gives Him Win Against Spaniard.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, May 27.—The title hopes of Mickey Walker, as tough a little man as ever tackled a big one, all but smashed up last night on that old rock of the Pyrennees, Squat Paulino Uzcudun.

Little Mickey barely eked through to the decision in 10 mauling bitter rounds, but he walked from the ring after the decision with a crowd of 8,000 howling for the granite headed Spaniard and booing him.

Off to a slow, even start, Walker tired after the third round, let Paulino pull up on even terms through the seventh and then went out to start a winning splurge with a punch that turned the crowd against him. After winning the eighth round with a swinging, two-fisted attack, little Mickey kept on going after the bell.

The Spaniard started it, perhaps, by hitting Walker with a left hook to the body just after the gong sounded, but he dropped his hands and stepped back. As he did, with Referee Willie Lewis started in to separate them, Mickey swung a right from his heels and split the league's left eyebrow in a semi-circle.

The first punch of the ninth round, a right chop to the head, broke the wound wide open and started another under the eye. Blinded, Paulino could only paw forward through the last two rounds, as his wounds bled freely, and he was a mark for Walker's choppy left hooks to the head.

The first seven rounds were drab and uneventful, drawing jeers instead of cheers from the scanty crowd.

Using every ounce of his 197 pounds, Paulino leaned all over the 170-pound Walker, mauled him in the clinches and was content to battle it out in a head-to-head foray that caused little excitement. Mickey fell in close with him and his short left hooks to the head and his aggressiveness took the first three rounds.

The Spaniard, gaining confidence as Mickey tired, took the offensive in the fourth and from there through the seventh boxed a winning duel as he slugged Mickey about the head with overhand rights and thumped his body with left hooks. But once Walker opened the Basque's features he had little trouble commanding the situation.

ORDE'S-BRINTON'S OPEN CITY LEAGUE

First Game of Box Lacrosse Will Take Place To-night in Brock Street Arena.

Ordes and Brintons open the City Lacrosse League to-night, at 8.30, in the Brock Street Arena, in what should be a fast, exciting game of box lacrosse. Pete King will referee the tussle, which promises some heavy checking with a number of outstanding hockey players on the opposing outfits.

The Orde team is mostly made up of ice stars, as a glance at the team's personnel shows: Meyett, Howe, Hutchinson, Calladine, Gardner, Weir, Dallin, Jarvis, Mahood, Cadd, Routley and McLeish. A mixture of hockey and lacrosse experience makes the Brintons looks like a well-balanced team, having youth, stamina and knowledge of the gutted stick game. These players will be seen in action with them to-night: LeBarr, Staunt, Firth, Hewitt, Jones, Reynolds, Creighton, Hatton, Miller, Lefevre, Ball, Kelly, McCoy, Collins, Howarth, Atkinson and A. Reynolds.

The City League games should provide fine competition and prove popular with sports lovers in general. Only a small admission charge is levied, and fans of both sexes and any age are invited. The contest this evening will get away at 8.30 sharp.

Following complaints that parrots ordeerd to be destroyed under the psittacosis order in England were not painlessly killed when drowned in their cages, the Humane Society has donated a lethal chamber to Dover.

Brtish Lady Champion Golfer Finds Canucks Merry and Bright

Miss Enid Wilson, British lady golf champion, who was a visitor last season to the United States and Canada, in a recent article writes in reference to her experiences in this country: "From Buffalo I went on to Toronto to compete in the Canadian open, which took place on the Rosedale course. Miss Orcutt retained her title, and barring a close match with Miss Virginia Van Wie in the semi-final, had things pretty much her own way. The Rosedale course is rather undulating, and exceedingly picturesque. The Canadian golfers are a very enthusiastic and cheery crowd—most anxious to hear all they can about golf in the mother country. Miss Ada Mackenzie won the close title, which was held on the Lambton course the week after the open at Rosedale. Miss Marjorie Kirkham, a young and most promising player, was runner-up in both events. When Miss Kirkham has learned to control an iron shot she will be exceedingly difficult to beat, as her woods are long and crisp and she has a sound short game."

DON DISAPPOINTED IN BOAT SHOWING

GARDONE, Italy, May 27 (A.P.)—Bitterly disappointed with the performance of his new boat, the Miss England III, Kaye Done was considering the advisability to-day of abandoning further attempts at the world's speedboat record.

Don's first attempt at the record on Lake Garda yesterday, failed by a wide margin. The Miss England, whose two 12-cylinder engines generate 4,000 horsepower, averaged only 91.37 miles per hour, compared to Gar Wood's universal standard of 111.712 m.p.h.

Friends represented him as being so disappointed with the boat's showing that he was thinking of returning to England without making any further efforts to regain the record. Don himself declined to discuss the possibility of abandoning the attempt, but neither would he offer a denial that it was being discussed.

Jack Dane, who has developed a great deal since his last appearance here, will be up against a very strong man.

Mr. Hallett says he will have a fine program to present the patrons of Brock Street Rink next Friday night.

The second 18 holes of the qualifying round will be played tomorrow, the low 64 scorers, with all ties for 64th place, surviving for the first round of match play Monday. All match play rounds will be at 18 holes except Thursday's final which is extended to the championship route of 36 holes.

Orcutt Finishes First

Maureen Orcutt, Englewood, N.J., posted the most impressive score of the first 72 to finish. She turned in a 73 for the opening 18-holes. She went out in 38 and returned in 35 to finish her round only two over par.

Close behind the new Jersey girl was Mme. Rene Lacoste, wife of the famous tennis player. The French entrant registered a neat 75. As Mlle. Simone Thion de la Chaume, Mme. Lacoste won the title in 1927.

Mrs. O. S. Ill and Virginia Holzderber played poorly. The former failed to show the form displayed in the international matches and posted a shaky 86 for the first round. Miss Holzderber did not represent the United States in the international series. Her score was 102.

Only mediocre scores were posted by another pair of foreign stars. Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, most experienced star of the United States delegation took an 80 lapsing to 42 coming home after a fine 38 going out.

In Fourth Place

Mrs. Leona Cheney, of Los Angeles, came through with a 78 to take fourth place temporarily.

Mrs. Harley Higbie, of Detroit posted an 84.

Helen Hicks, the United States champion, required 39 strokes for her first 18, necessitating much better golf tomorrow in the final 18 if she is to qualify.

Marion Hollins, captain and alternate of the United States team which defeated the British at Wentworth 5-½ to 3-½, took an 89.

Diana Fishwick, British title holder in 1930, needed 87 and Wands Morgan, another late finisher among the British top notchers required 83.

YANKS BLANK SENATORS 5-0 AT WASHINGTON

ATHLETICS WIN 7-1.

Braves Give Up National League Lead by Falling to Phillies 17-13.

(By Gayle Talbot, A.P. Sports Writer.)

"One bad pitch a game, one ball that got away from the pitcher and goes down the batter's alley, can very easily cost a good team a pennant," said Walter Johnson recently, in explaining his preference for moundsmen with tight control.

"It doesn't matter how much speed and curve he has," the Washington pilot declared. "The pitcher who can't put that ball where he wants it for nine innings is likely to be licked any game he starts. One alley ball to a good batter, and there goes the game."

The Turning Point

As if to bear out his boss's contention, General Alvin Crowder of the Senators tossed one up that exactly suited Lou Gehrig of the Yankees in the sixth inning of yesterday's tilt between the American League pace-setters. Three Yanks were on base at the time and Crowder, up to that point, had been locked in a scoreless duel with Charles "Red" Ruffing.

So Gehrig, further bearing out Johnson's theory, spanked the ball over the right field fence. The Yankees gathered another run in the ninth for a final score of 5 to 0, but it was Gehrig's blow that knocked the wind out of the Senators. Ruffings didn't give them a hit the last six innings.

The victory perched the Yankees on top by four full games and left the Senators with only a two-game lead over the third place Detroit Tigers, who were beating Chicago, 11 to 5, in the first half of a scheduled double-header. The second game was rained out in the fifth with the count tied, 1 to 1.

Jimmy Foxx hit his fifteenth home run of the year, going four ahead of Babe Ruth, as the Athletics pounded out a 7- to 1 win over Boston. Up to the sixth, when rain halted hostilities, George Earnshaw had limited the Red Sox to four hits. Cleveland and St. Louis were rained out.

The Boston Braves dropped off the National League pinnacle, yielding to the idle Chicago Cubs, when they got the worst of a slugging match with the Phillies, 17 to 13. It was a peculiar contest. The Phils led, 12 to 2, at the end of the third; the Braves were in front, 13 to 12, going into the eighth. Five runs in the last of the eighth settled the arguments.

Dodgers Beat Giants

Brooklyn got its batting order mixed up and lost a run that would have won in regulation time, but went on to beat the Giants anyway, 3 to 2, in twelve rounds. Home runs by George Kelly and Frank O'Doul were costly to Carl Hubbell, who allowed the Dodgers only nine hits and fanned 18.

Pittsburgh made it three straight from Cincinnati, 3 to 2, and went into fifth place, scoring all its runs off Red Lucas in the second inning. Bill Harris wobbled in the eighth when the Reds scored twice, but Swift pulled the Pirates through.

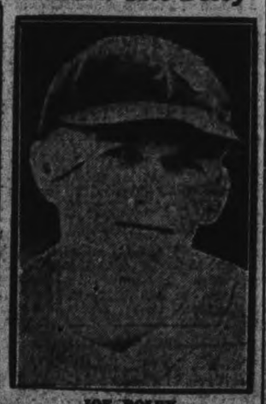
Newark Gets Boley



JOE BOLEY
former shortstop of the Philadelphia Athletics, has signed a contract to play with the Newark club of the International League. Boley was given his unconditional release by the A's last week. Joe Boley, shortstop for the Athletics since 1927 and participant in three world's series, was unconditionally released recently by Connie Mack. Boley was sold conditionally to the Cleveland Indians this spring, but Commissioner K. M. Landis ordered the deal called off and Boley remained with the Macks. He has played with only two teams during his career, starting with Baltimore in the International League in 1919. The release of Bert Hammond, Villanova College recruit catcher, was announced at the game time by Connie Mack.

BEER FOR BOXERS

Danny Dunn, manager of Johnny Risko, wants to make the trip to Australia, but he does not like the long ride over there. "Gee, think of being on the water three whole weeks," said Danny. "Yes," came back Risko, "but think of the fine time you could have hitting that good old beer keg while I would be doing road work around the deck!"

MEXICAN RETIRES

Bert Colima, considered a very fine Mexican boxer several years ago, will probably stay retired now. A few days ago Bert went to Mexico City, Mexico, to fight Louis Arizona for the Mexican title of welterweight champion. Arizona knocked Bert out in just thirty seconds. This is about the third time that Colima has retired.

MEMPHIS WRESTLER BEATEN AFTER FIFTY-THREE MINUTES OF ROUGH-HOUSE GRAPPLING

Hewitt Takes Mystery Man for First Fall But Drops Last Two.

FINAL FALL ON "PAN."

Wild Bill Lewis and Babe Caddock Are Victors in Preliminaries.

After fifty-three minutes of hectic rough-house grappling at the Brock last night, the Masked Marvel got an unpopular third and deciding fall over Whitey Hewitt by throwing him out of the ring three times hard, all within a half minute. It terminated the most wildly exciting main bout ever put on here by the pro wrestlers, and a fair-sized crowd was kept on its feet throughout.

Hewitt surprised everyone by getting the first fall on the big mystery man, but the latter came back strong to win the last two. Twice they were both out of the ring and hard at it in the midst of a milling throng of panicky fans, and once the police had to interfere to save the Marvel's manager from a beating at the hands of Hewitt. The third fall was none too clean. Whitey was knocked out of the ring once, and before he was quite through the ropes on his way back, the Marvel caught him with a deadly tackle that practically finished him. The third toss out on the ground was simple after that, and the crowd booed angrily at the decision, many calling "Foul!"

Dick Loses Opener

With Jack Forbes refereeing the Queensbury Club's show, Art Dick, the Evansville 198-pounder, lost the opening bout to Wild Bill Lewis, 207-pound Southerner. They started hard, Bill going at it rough and evidently meaning business. He was bare-foot and soon found Dick quite willing to mix with him. The latter took a lot of ginger out of him with two flying tackles and a body slam, and as Wild Bill began pulling his hair and clipping him on the jaw with his elbow, Dick up and tramped heavily on the bare toes.

Referee Forbes was thrown hard as he interfered with Lewis in a foul hold, but Art banged the other over and pulled on him in a wicked toe-hold. This was broken when Lewis worked into a full-nelson, but later he had to jump through the ropes to save himself from a bad punching attack to the body. The crowd was yelling as they roughed each other up again. Wild Bill climbed up on Dick's broad back and the latter staggered to the ropes and threw him out, falling after him. Bill kicked him twice in the face as he lay there, and the referee got them back inside.

Plenty Rough

They let go a mixed wrestling-fighting counter-attack with punches, kicks, hair-pulling and everything dirty going. Then Art grabbed the Southerner and slammed him twice to the floor, but as he tried another, Wild Bill ducked and picked the surprised Dick up and banged him down. He slapped him across the face and picked him up again to slam him hard on the mat and pin his shoulders for the fall in fifteen minutes.

The flashy Babe Caddock, the British Empire champ who scales 200 pounds, flattened Abe Kashey, 207-pound Syrian, in twenty-two minutes after Caddock looked to be nearly out. They went to it fast, the Babe being shifty and fast, with Abe early beginning questionable tactics that drew the fans' ire. Abe pulled off a couple of torturing holds, finally driving out of the ring with knee kicks and punching, with the crowd booing him lustily.

More Straight Wrestling

Babe showed great speed and mat experience, pulling off more legitimate wrestling than had been seen here before. He grabbed a flying body-scissors, and later a combined armlock and head scissors; but Abe was tough and tricky. He finally got Caddock down and kneed him repeatedly to the head with the referee being unable to catch him at it squarely, the Syrian being careful of that. Babe finally got up and angrily tore after him with sizzling elbow clips and two hard body slams.

Kashey worked into a punishing Jap jackknife hold but Babe spilled him with a flying leglock. It was gruelling and the fans yelled continuously, pulling for Caddock. Abe knocked him around the ring with elbows and the heels of his hands and Babe seemed to be fading under the punishment when he suddenly electrified the crowd and banged Abe to the floor with the heels of both his hands under the jaw hard together, pouncing immediately on the dazed Syrian to win the fall. He received a tremendous hand as he left the ring.

Beat Starts Fast

The main bout easily stole the show. It was a two-out-of-three falls, or two hours, and the Masked Marvel, 217 pounds of him, won the second and third falls over Whitey Hewitt, 214, of Memphis. The Marvel started to rough it early to the disapproval of the fans. He was warned by Forbes several times. Some wicked holds and plenty of hot action kept the place in an uproar for a while. Twice Whitey had his opponent through the ropes and tried to choke him with the top two strands of hemp, being jerked back by the referee and warned.

Head scissors, armlocks and toe-holds were broken by both in quick order and then Whitey threw the Marvel out of the ring for five seconds. He came back and got a bad double toehold. Whitey broke it and roughed him all around the ring, finally picking him up with a crotch hold and slamming him down for the first fall in twenty-seven minutes. The applause was deafening, as they left for ten minutes.

They went after each other on their return and Whitey was given a rough passage for a while. He gradually worked his way toward the Marvel's manager in the corner who was shouting advice, and suddenly kicked him off his chair and jumped out on top of him, with the referee and the police finally parting them and getting them back in the ring, while the crowd milled about in excitement.

Gains Second Fall

Whitey bit the hooded one's hand as he tortured his face after a full nelson, and the latter got in two vicious body slams. A flying tackle stopped him on a third and he was thrown out of the ring again. Hewitt jumped out after him and they grappled in the dirt till parted. The masked behemoth broke loose all at once and slammed Whitey to the floor three times in a row. Hewitt grabbed a nelson, but suddenly the Marvel turned, broke it and flattened the other for a fall in fourteen minutes with a hard back flip and leghold. He was booed as he left.

They returned to the wars in a slow start, which gradually became rougher and finally got downright dirty to the delight of the spectators. Hair-pulling, punching, and everything imaginable kept the refere busy pulling them apart. Whitey got in three body slams but a flying tackle took all the fight out of him, and he was thrown on his shoulders out of the ring. He staggered back at the count of eight but wasn't all the way through the ropes when the other hit him hard with a flying tackle, and Hewitt fell with a thud to the ground again. He barely tottered into the ring again at the count of nine.

The Marvel was on him immediately with a neckhold and overhead flip out of the ring for the third time in a row. Whitey was all through and although he climbed wearily back, he wasn't quite inside at the count of ten, giving his opponent the fall in ten minutes. The crowd booed angrily and many yelled "Foul," but it was all over.

ELECTRICS WIN SLUGGING BEE

C.G.E. Crew Cops 19-11 Decision From Canadian National Team.

HEAVY HITTING AFFAIR

Shaping up as one of the heaviest hitting outfits in the City Softball League, a new threat for the championship silverware may develop in Bill Bennett's slugging C.G.E. nine. With stinging drives the husky Electric crew last evening at Central school grounds made their debut in the circuit byp downing the C.N.R. team 19 to 11.

It was their power with the bat that gave the Electricians their clean-cut win, for in their fielding work they wobbled at times and Sir Henry Thornton hands had considerable of an edge on them. But the slugging of Grant, Jones, Osterland, Tracey and Calladine more than made up for the defensive errors. Tracey and Calladine each had home runs to their credit, and other long clouts for extra bases were shared in by nearly every one of the nine.

Ab Delahaye twirled smart ball for the losers, but time and again the Trainmen crashed through his delivery for a flock of hits. Opposing him on the mound was Martin, who was hit freely but not as soundly.

Except for the hitting ability displayed by the C.G.E. the game was barren of features. Both squads showed that it was their initial game, and that they will improve in their defensive work.

The Electrics took the lead from the outset and were never headed. The Nationals made several bids to overhaul them, assisted by C.G.E. misplays, but they never accomplished it.

Lewis, centrefielder for C.N.R. turned in several pretty catches, while a smart doubleplay, Calladine to Osterland to Newson, was a finished play that concluded the tangle.

The Teams

C.N.R.—Hartley, ss; Batten, 2b; A. Delahaye, p; Lewis, cf; Doxsee, rf; Parsons, 2b; Frick, 1b; Nicholls, lf; H. Delahaye, c.

NEWARK DROPS 4-3 DECISION TO BALTIMORE

Bisons and Skeeters Also Win in Thursday's Games.

BIRDS BUNCH HITS.

Royals in Virtual Tie With Buffalo for Second Place.

(By the Associated Press)

Their fourth successive defeat had dropped Al Mamaux's Newark Bears from first to fourth place in the International League to-day, striking proof of the closest early season race the circuit has enjoyed in many years.

The Baltimore Orioles, responsible for all four Newark defeats in the last few days, had taken over the pace-setting duties, a half game in front of the Buffalo Bisons and Montreal Royals who were in a virtual tie for second place. Newark, a half game behind these two latter clubs, was only a game out of the lead.

Home runs by Heinie Sand and Don Hoffner and a run-scoring double by Frank Packard caused Newark's defeat yesterday, 4-3. Baltimore bunched most of its nine hits off Bots Nekola in the fourth and fifth frames, while Ken Holloway was keeping Newark's 11 pretty well scattered. George Selkirk's homer in the ninth served to make the score close.

Buffalo continued its mopping up process at the expense of the Rochester Red Wings, 5-1; Ollie Carnegie's home run and double accounting for three tallies. Bill Werber and Fred Fussell accounted for the others with home run drives. Fussell pitched excellent ball again, allowing five scattered hits and one unearned run. He has given the opposition only three runs in 27 innings. Bud Teachout fanned nine Bisons, but was clouted for 11 safeties in between strikeouts.

Pests Also Win

Jersey City continued its winning streak and made it three out of four from the Reading Keys, 7 to 4. Art Jones, obtained from the Brooklyn Dodgers, went the route although hit rather freely. Ike Boone led the Skeeter attack with a home run and triple.

Montreal and Toronto were not scheduled.

ONE GIRL TEAM MAY REPRESENT U.S. AT OLYMPICS

"Babe" Dickerson, Flower of Texas, Shows Remarkable Form.

BREAK RECORDS

DALLAS, Texas, May 27 (Special to The Examiner)—The "One-Girl Olympic Team" is all set for thhe games this summer.

Miss "Babe" Didrickson, holder of several records in the field of women's sports, is getting into perfect condition for the Olympic trials to be held next month. She expects, and her supporters likewise expect, that she will make a clean-up of all the five events set apart for feminine competition.

And there is really no reason why she shouldn't. She holds the world's record for the javelin throw; she can toss a baseball farther than any other girl in the world, although that event is not on the program; she has thrown a discus farther than the Olympic record; she has leaped almost an inch higher than the Olympic high jump mark; she holds the world's record for 80-metre hurdles, and she has run 100 yards in 11 seconds, which is declared to be a shade faster than the Olympic mark of 12 1-5 seconds for the 100 metres.

This is surely an amazing record to come out of the wild west, particularly since expert coaching is not as prevalent there as it is in the larger centres. But there is no denying it. She's good, and she admits it.

It is doubtful if there is a girl in the whole of Canada who could duplicate any one of the marks even if she trained religiously for the one event. Canada won the last Women's Olympics, but it looks as if one girl is going to win the next one. Canada cannot even threaten in the two field events, but they might come closer in the sprints, hurdles and high jump.

Too bad there is no decathlon for the ladies!

TORONTO TEAM BEATS TRENTON

LOPSIDED SCORES.

WOOLER, May 27.—Following a custom of years gone by, a team from Toronto came to Trenton on Tuesday to pit their skill and strength against the boys of the Trenton league. A team representing Trenton also went to Toronto. The Toronto team, representing the Canada Permanent Trust Co., certainly beat the local boys by overwhelming scores and showed the fans how softball is played.

The first team to meet them was the Wooler Leafs. The game was called after seven innings, the score standing 10-1 in favor of the Toronto lads. The Toronto team went to bat first and scored two runs, and in their turn at bat the Leafs loaded the bases and with three of their best hitters up they failed to score. This shook the morale of the Wooler boys and they allowed their opponents to score three runs in the next frame, while three of them struck out. The five runs scored in the first two innings were mostly the result of errors, and after the Leafs had recovered from their stage fright they played better ball.

Best Game on Card.

The next game was scheduled for three o'clock with the C.P.R. team. At the appointed hour only four C.P.R. players could be found so their manager picked some players from the other teams and chose as his pitcher one of the Leaf's pitchers, namely L. Free. This proved to be the best game of the three, for until the seventh inning the score was tied, 1-1, and with two out the team refused to support the pitcher and the boys of the Permanent Trust scored four runs, making a total of five and the C.P.R. failed to add to their count, making the final score 5-1. The C. P.R. lads drew first blood in the third frame when Al Steinberg got safe on a bunt. His progress from there was very spectacular for he stole the next two bases and, on a passed ball, slid home in a cloud of dust. The Toronto boys scored the score in the fifth chukker, when Toronto clouted one into the bay over a net put there to keep the grounders from the water. No hits were allowed in the sixth, but in the seventh Patterson scored a homer with the bases loaded. That broke the Trenton boys' hearts and they scarcely tried to score in their half. It was a good game, in fact the best game of the three, and the crowd was on its feet most of the time.

Toronto battery for this game was Russell and Roderick, and although Russell looked easier than Heyburn, he certainly knew his business and held his opponents to seven hits. On the other hand 'Soup' Free and Al Steinberg were functioning properly and allowed only six hits, but those six hits sure counted. Some of the Leafs were sorry they hadn't used him themselves in the morning, as his pitching seemed to foot the heavy hitters of the invaders.

Bigger Scores.

In the third game with the Shamrocks, the scores were bigger and better than ever—for the Toronto team. This was the game when the visitors went on a hitting spree, knocked one pitcher from the box and piled up eighteen runs against the four the Shamrocks were able to clout in. They started in gradually with one run and reached a climax in the fifth inning when they shoved their score up seven notches. Then they called it a day and scored no more. The Toronto players got two homers and nine walks with three strikeouts. These walks accounted for three runs, which were forced in by the batters getting a base on balls with the bases already crowded.

The Shamrocks' runs, although few and far between, certainly took the fancy of the crowd. Two of their runs they scored in the first inning when Smith knocked a homer with Hutton on first. Scarlet followed with another homer but was out because he neglected to touch third base. In the fourth frame Hutton safe again and Anderson gave the ball a wash in the bay while he chased Hutton home, and that finished their scoring. The battery for the Toronto boys was the same as the first game, the only exception being that Heyburn was pitching better ball. Coughlin and Miller started for the Shamrocks but after being slamed all over the field, he was withdrawn at the end of the fourth frame. He is a good pitcher when he is good, but on an off night he is useless. He was replaced by Chambers who, after allowing seven men to bat in the fifth, pitched air-tight ball in the remaining two innings and even went as far as to get a three-bagger.

The following are the line-ups of the four teams who played:

Leafs—C. C. Price, ... p.; 2b; L. Whitney, 1b; Stacey, p.; Davy, r.f.; Redcliffe, s.s.; Fox, c.; T. Buttan, c.f.; A. Putnam, l.f.

C.P.R.—Begin, 1b.; Bernard, 2b; Johnson, c.f.; Tole, r.f.; Steinberg, c.; Roseylot, l.f.; Willie, 3b; Free, p.; Bohan, s.s.

Shamrocks— Bohan, s.s.; Chase, 2b; Huton, c.f.; Smith, 1b; Scarlet, 3b.; Anderson, l.f.; Alexander, r.f.; Miller, c.; Coughlin, p.; Chambers, p.

CLOSING DATE FOR ENTRIES IN MINOR LEAGUE EXTENDED

OPENS ON MAY 28TH.

The Board Room at Duffus' was filled at last night's City Baseball League meeting, and a successful session was put through. It was supposed to be the closing date for entries, but another day was granted the junior section as it seemed likely a fourth team might be entered by then. The juvenile section is open till Saturday to round out this division. The League opens Saturday afternoon at two o'clock in Stevenson Park with a juvenile and a junior game being played.

President Harry Dinsdale occupied the chair, and besides the various teams represented, delegates from the senior club, the East Peterborough League and the Baseball Commission were present. Entries were called for and the following responded: Bantams—All Saints, Rotary, Kiwanis and the Empire Club; Juveniles—Maple Leafs, All Saints, with Havelock, if that team still desires entrance after applying two weeks ago; juniors—Fosters, Pirates, C.G.E. Apprentices, and perhaps a fourth.

This latter team requested another day to decide and it was granted. The secretary was advised to notify Havelock that their juvenile entry would be accepted, and home and home games played, provided the out-of-town team abided by City League rules, such as umpires, etc., and with travelling teams paying their own expenses.

First Game on Saturday

It was decided to draw up the schedule the end of the week, after all possible entries were in. A double-header tomorrow afternoon, Saturday, starting at two o'clock in Stevenson Park will start this league. Maple Leafs and All Saints, of the juvenile section, play the first game, with the junior teams, Fosters and Pirates, taking part in the second. A silver collection at the gate will be the only charge.

It was decided that Father Moloney be communicated with in an effort to obtain the Sacred Heart Grounds for bantam games as was the case last year. Various sporting goods stores about town will be notified against issuing sporting equipment to players without properly signed league orders. Entry fees were accepted by the teams entered last night, and certificates issued.

A list of umpires was drawn up by the league and these men will be interviewed and asked to act in this capacity for different loop games. The complete list will be submitted to the Commission for approval. The umpires for Saturday's double-header will be chosen from these four, Edgar Lebarr, Harry Corrin, Jack McCarney and Bob Hotrum. Following some minor business details, the meeting adjourned.

NINTH INNING RALLY GIVES CLOCKMAKERS 16-15 VICTORY

GOOD BATTERY WORK.

A thrilling ninth inning rally gave the Westclox girls a popular win last night at the East City Bowl, when they dug in after trailing their opponents the Brintons for eight innings to tie the score and then push the winning tally across and take a 16-15 decision in a regular league fixture.

The Brintons with a new battery started the game with a winning stride that kept them in the fight until the seventh innings when the Westclox nabbed six counters to come within two runs of their opponents, who had chased at least one run across in every frame except the first and to all appearances had the game in the bag. However when the eighth frame rolled around the Carpet-Makers were leading 15-13 but in their half, Audrey Crary, clever centre fielder for the Westclox smothered a rally by spearing three hard hit flies in a row to retire the side unassisted. The Clockmakers coming to bat in the last of the eighth tied the count when Crary singled and Mildred Mortimer doubled and scored on wild throws. The Brintons went out almost in order in the ninth and the opposing players came to bat with new life. Laura Chartren, first up singled into right field and Gladys Mortimer following her burned a hot grounder over second for one base. Dot Webb was out on a slow grounder, which advanced the runners and Hilda Joyes, the fourth batter up was also out on a play to first permitting Chartren to score and the game was over.

Infield Errors

Both teams indulged in some wild throwing in the infield, while past balls at the plate were numerous, but these two defects are common to early games and could hardly be considered glaring. The pitching was a feature of the battle. Hilda Joyes who started for the winners fanned four but allowed three free passes in the fourth and retired in favor of Laura Chartren who finished the game in clever style fanning two and walking one. Margaret Snowden pitched the whole game for the Brintons and turned in a steady performance. She turned back five batters and passed three.

Madge MacFarlane caught for the losers, and besides playing a snappy fielding game was right up with the leaders at bat. She banged out two singles and a triple. Margaret Snowden on the same team hit three singles and a three bagger. Dot Webb, Mildred Mortimer and Audrey Crary all connected for two base clouts for the Westclox.

FIGHT BALLYHOO COMMENCES

The forthcoming battle which will take place in the new Madison Square "sunken" Gardens on the 21st of June between Max Schmeling, present heavyweight world's titleholder, and Jack Sharkey, the Boston gob, challenger, is bringing forth the usual pre-bout ballyhoo characteristic of championship battle. It is reported that Schmeling is paying more attention to golf than he is to boxing, while Jack Sharkey is, according to his press agents, saying a whole lot of nasty things about Schmeling, the new Gardens, and everybody in general, trying to give the impression that he is a real rough, tough and nasty boy. The big German is apparently not doing much worrying, although his recent tour of the States and Canada was an awful flop from a financial standpoint. Oh, well, let 'em have their fun, and if they put on a good battle, that might be the cause of a return to popularity of the fast fading fight game.

CASUAL COMMENT

The City Lacrosse League opens at 8.30 this evening at the Brock with Brintons playing Orde's. From watching some of their recent practices, we'd say they were pretty evenly matched. Both outfits have a mixture of experienced lacrosse players and new blood, the latter mostly made up of outstanding local hockey players. One thing sure, this box lacrosse game to-night will not be slow, and plenty of exciting action will result. It should be well worth seeing.

• • • • • • •

Talk about excitement, that main pro grappling affair up there last night had everything, and then some! Whitey Hewitt, a big hard-boiled guy, proved popular with the fans, and they were pretty sore about that third fall that gave the Masked Marvel the bout. It looked foul in a way, but the ways of wrestling are as mysterious as the bird that hides his identity behind a woollen face-covering in this hot weather. Maybe there are rules to the game, but we haven't seen any enforced yet.

• • • • • • •

Well, one thing apparent from the fan's reaction last night was their antipathy to the Masked Marvel. He left there still masked but not considered much of a marvel, and Whitey Hewitt got all the applause that was going. He certainly made a job of it when he finally got his enemy, the Marvel's manager. He reached through the ropes and kicked him off his chair and then jumped out on top of him. It was some little time before the manager was again yelling, "Break it off, Marvel!"

• • • • • • •

Babe Caddock looked good last night. He is lightning-fast, shifty and shows more real wrestling than any of them. His win over Abe Kashey sat well with the crowd. Wild Bill Lewis was too tricky for the husky Art Dick who thought he had him on the way to defeat when Bill suddenly startled him by turning on him strong and giving him the works to win out. The whole three bouts were good, with the main one a pip.

• • • • • • •

Jack Corcoran, with the Joe Humphries voice, made a good announcer. He explained why some bouts had to be held on Thursday nights, as the pros wouldn't turn down bigger purses on Fridays in larger cities, and he promised to bring such stars as Steele, Zaharias and Garibaldi down this summer. He got a big hand.

• • • • • • •

The girls' softball game last night was plenty close with the battling Westclox maidens overhauling Brintons in the ninth to capture the contest 16 to 15. Another big crowd saw the fixture, in which both hitting and pitching was pretty fair, but the fielding was sloppy enough yet. Audrey Crary made a smart job of it in the centre garden for the Alarm Girls.

• • • • • • •

Up at Central, a powerful C.G.E. men's team was leaning hard on the willow to batter out a 18-11 victory over the C.N.R. Both teams look good, and the Railwaymen should have had a close score, but the Electrics will give them all plenty of trouble in this loop. Six teams have played so far in the men's circuit, and all have shown plenty of promise. It's Deck's and the Daily Stars to-night, both newcomers.

• • • • • • •

The only baseball in town to-morrow will be the City League double-header at Stevenson Park so the young players should get a nice crowd at Stevenson Park at two. Maple Leafs and All Saints juveniles meet in the first game, with Foster Juniors and the Pirates playing the Pirates in the second. As there'll be just a silver collection at the gate, fans should turn out and see these fixtures, tomorrow, provided the weather is right.

• • • • • • •

This loop had a very successful meeting last night with representatives of the E.P.L., the senior club and the Baseball Commission all on hand. Four bantam teams are entered, three juveniles (if Havelock is still anxious to get in), and three or four juniors will round out a fine minor league this summer. C.G.E. Apprentices is one of the new junior teams in, and another one withheld its name for a day or so until assured of coming in also.

Old "Shiner" Johnston played third for Belleville when they lost to Kingston the 24th by a 13-7 count. The ex-Peterborough veteran scored two runs, had one hit and handled three out of four chances, but the team as a whole were shaky despite triples by Mills and Weir. Quinn had a homer for the Ponies, while Jamieson two or three outstanding racqueteers from the Toronto Tennis Club of weeks, and the same should be true of Cobourg.

DON ABANDONS MARK ATTEMPT

Dissatisfied With Lake Garda Tests, Speedster to Make Modifications in Boat.

ENGINES ARE "O.K."

GARDONE, Italy, May 27. (AP) Kaye Don, British speedboat driver, to-day decided to abandon his attempt to set a new world speedboat record on Lake Garda with his Miss England III.

The British driver who once held the world mark before it was raised to 111.712 by Gar Wood of Detroit, was bitterly disappointed over his slow record run yesterday. He averaged only 91.37 miles an hour in two-way trials over a measured mile.

"I wish the boat builders would think less of my life and more about speed, which is what I want in a boat" Don said. "After all, risk is my stock in trade."

Kaye Don said he was satisfied with his engines and would not change them. He said he certainly would have the boat ready to meet Wood in the Harmeworth trophy race at Detroit next Fall.

WINS SWEEPSTAKE DENIED COMMUNION

Church Member Gets Prizes, But Loses Right in Methodist Chapel.

LONDON, May 27. (CP) — Because William Owen Roberts won a prize in the Irish sweepstakes on the Grand National steeplechase he has been suspended from taking Holy Communion in the Welsh Calvinistic Methodist Chapel Blaenau Festiniog, for a period of six months. Roberts regards this action as tantamount to excommunication. "I have been a lifelong member of the chapel" he said in a newspaper interview. "My father was a deacon there, and my wife's brother is a deacon at present. I do not bet or gamble, and I went into the sweepstakes for fun."

When Roberts received news of his success he went to Rev. W. F. Evans, the pastor of the chapel, and informed him of his luck. To his astonishment he was told his case was to be considered by the deacons. "When interviewed by the pastor last week," Mr. Roberts said, "I emphatically refused to give an undertaking not to buy any more tickets. It was a great shock to me to understand my case was under discussion before I was consulted. I have yet to be officially informed of the decision."

Rev. W. F. Evans told a reporter: "Roberts is not excommunicated from membership of the chapel but will be withheld from partaking Holy communion for six months. The Church definitely opposes sweepstakes and gambling. I have acted on the principle that it is clear proof of the nation's deterioration that it must resort to the sensation of gambling to uphold its institutions."

DAVIS CUP PLAY STARTS TO-DAY

Shields Opposes Hopman While Crawford Matched Against Vines.

AT PHILADELPHIA.

PHILADELPHIA, May 27. (CP) First day's play in the Davis Cup finals in the North American zone to-day brought together members of the Australian and United States teams in two singles matches on the courts of the Philadelphia country club at Bala.

The first match, starting at 1.30 p.m. Eastern Standard Time, found Francis X. Shields, towering hard hitting New Yorker, opposed to Harry Hopman, Australia's No. 2 star.

Then came the battle of the two ranking players of the contesting nations—tall, blond Jack Crawford, hailed as a worthy successor to the great Norman Brookes, against slim, dour-faced Ellsworth Vines, of California, who last year won his first national championship.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

OLD MR. TOAD SINGS HIS THANKS

Of song no words need be a part
If it but come straight from the heart.
—Old Mr. Toad.

Old Mr. Toad had just been brought down across the Green Meadows by Farmer Brown's Boy and gently placed on the ground close to the Smiling Pool. All the way there the singers of the Smiling Pool had been pouring out their joy in a mighty chorus. Now not a voice was to be heard save that of Redwing the Blackbird perched on top of an alder not far away. He was singing, but all the singers in the water had abruptly stopped as Farmer Brown's Boy drew near.

Old Mr. Toad took one look at the Smiling Pool and with a funny little sound of happiness hopped straight for and into it. He didn't show a sign of gratitude of Farmer Brown's Boy. He seemed to be entirely forgotten. It amused Farmer Brown's Boy. He chuckled.

"So this is all the thanks I get for getting you out of that post hole and then bringing you all the way down here," said he.

By this time Old Mr. Toad was in the water. He swam a few strokes then turned and swam back to where when he put his feet down on the bottom his head was just above the water. Then he looked up at Farmer Brown's Boy with those beautiful golden eyes and his throat began to swell. It wasn't his throat itself but a pouch in his throat, the presence of which you never would have suspected until that moment. It swelled and swelled until it was like a great silvery bubble larger than his head.

Then, although his mouth was closed, there came from Old Mr. Toad the sweetest song of the Smiling Pool, one of the sweetest voices of the springtime. His song was short but in a moment it was repeated. There were no words to that song. No words were needed. Farmer Brown's Boy understood it without words. Old Mr. Toad was singing his thanks and it was coming straight from his heart. That great silvery bubble at his throat was his music bag.

Now the great chorus of the Hylas began again and with their voices was mingled the trill of Stickytoes and Tree Toad who also was in the Smiling Pool. But sweetest of all was the voice of Old Mr. Toad.

Farmer Brown's Boy smiled as he looked down at the homely old singer. "It doesn't do to judge any one just by appearances," said he softly. "If any one should ask me who is my homliest friend I would have to name you, Old Mr. Toad. Excepting for those eyes of yours you are about as homely as you could be. You really are. You are so homely that some people who have not learned to use their eyes call you ugly. They never could do that if they had once fairly looked into those golden eyes of yours. But even those who know how lovely your eyes are never would suspect you of being able to sing at all, let alone having one of the sweetest of voices, if they never had actually seen you sing. Now I must get back to work. I'll feel better for knowing that you have safely reached the Smiling Pool, and I shall often listen to your song."

He turned and went back to his job of setting that fence post. Old Mr. Toad watched him go. Then he forgot everything but the joy of singing, of having a share in that joyous chorus. For the time being he didn't even think of Mrs. Toad and wonder where she was and if she was listening to him. Just then he wasn't singing to her. He was singing just for the joy of singing, to express the joy in his heart. He really was singing to Mistress Spring although he didn't know it. Later he would sing to Mrs. Toad and then it would be a true love song and in it a note of longing would replace the note of sheer joy that it possessed now.

What To-Day Means To You

"GEMINI"

If May 27th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:15 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., from 4 p.m. to 5:15 p.m., and from 9:30 p.m. to 11 p.m. The danger periods are from 7 a.m. to 9 a.m., and from 2 p.m. to 3:30 p.m.

The Planets augur a day richer in experience than pocket for May 27th. New relationships will be formed, old ideals will be shattered, and a new outlook will be opened. Both the optimist and pessimist will see something around the corner. The former will laugh and the latter will cry, but there are no dark shadows hovering over the immediate lives of those born on a May 27th.

Children born on this May 27th will be of a keen, non-sentimental type. They will be full of vitality, and will constantly seek outlets for both their mental and physical energies. They will develop strong personalities, and sturdy characters, not easily upset by the buffetings of the world.

Born on May 27th, you are given to impulse, which generally decides the line you will take. You are extremely sensitive to "atmospheres," and are almost a mind reader. You know and feel things unaided by reason or logic. Your imagination, however, often leads you astray, and you read wrong motives in innocent actions or words. You are self-centered enough to believe the eyes of the world are always on you, and are kept in a continuous stage-struck condition. It would be well for you to endeavor not to be too much swayed by the thoughts of others, and to cultivate a more superior, independent attitude in general.

You must do your share of spade work during life, and will have to go after, and work for, most of your real attainments. You will run up against family opposition as a constant barrier to paths you would like to traverse, and until you become strong enough to think for yourself and to turn a deaf ear to their croakings, you will live below your latent and potential resources in life.

You are a business-like, mechanical worker, with quickness in enemies too. Y would succeed best in work where the hands are employed. Literary work would be a possible mental outlet, and would serve as an interesting hobby, even though your pen did not find a Klondyke for you.

CREAM RICE PUDDING
4 tablespoons rice — 2½ cups St. Charles Milk
½ cup sugar — 1½ cups water
½ teaspoon salt — Nutmeg

Wash rice thoroughly, then add with the sugar and salt to the milk diluted with water. Pour into a buttered baking dish and add a sprinkling of nutmeg. Set the dish in a pan of hot water and bake three hours in a slow oven (300°F.), stirring several times the first hour to prevent rice from settling to bottom. This is just one of the many practical recipes from our new cook book "The Good Provider." This book tells you how you can make nearly 200 delicious dishes with St. Charles Milk. COSMETICS TAX RESTORED IN U.S.

Senate Hopes to Raise $20,000,000 Added Revenue Through Move.

NO VOTE TAKEN.

WASHINGTON, May 27 (C.P.).—The U.S. Senate restored the 10 per cent. tax on cosmetics and toilet articles to the revenue bill to-day in a drive to add new funds to the budget balancing legislation.

Within a few minutes after the Finance Committee recommended restoration of a batch of excise levies carried by the House of Representatives bill but not in the compromise Senate measure, the Senate began carrying out the program.

The cosmetics and toilet preparations levy was put back in the bill without even a record vote. This added $20,000,000 in revenue to the bill.

The changes approved by the committee were estimated to produce $59,000,000 of revenue.

Jewelry Tax.

The 10 per cent. jewelry tax was restored to the revenue bill.

The committee refused to accept a committee recommendation to exempt sterling silver from the jewelry tax.

An annual tax on pleasure boats over 28 feet in length was agreed upon by the committee.

The soft drink tax, as agreed upon by the committee, would be 1.25 cts. a gallon cereal beverages; 11 cents on unfermented grape juice; mineral waters, two cents a gallon; syrups for fountain use, six cents a gallon; syrups for bottling carbonated beverages, five cents a gallon. Pure apple cider was exempted.

A sales tax of 2.25 cents a pound was placed on tires and four cents a pound on inner tubes, after rejecting a proposal to include them with automobile accessories at two per cent.

Farmers of Australia expect 1932 to be better than 1931 for them.

FINE SHOWING OF CUT FLOWERS AT HALL STORE

Horticultural Society Has Splendid Exhibit of Spring Flowers on Display.

PRIZES AWARDED.

A glimpse of that enchanted country where scented, colorful flowers dwell may be caught by the passer-by who stops to see the display of lovely flowers in the windows of the Hall Store. Here the Peterborough Horticultural Society has an exhibition of blossoms grown by its members.

All the lovely colors of the rainbow are here: crimson and mauve, purple of a deep, unbelievable hue that is seen in tall tulip cups, the lemon yellow of delicately spreading parrot tulips; cream and pink and the blue of violets.

There is a gorgeous scarlet cactus flower, blooming in generous profusion, with the soft blossoms reaching out of the horny green fronds of the plant; there is a beautiful Patagonia, or pansy geranium, also known as a "weeping geranium", with profuse rich red bloom; there are superb tall tulips in reds and whites and yellows, with many of the deep purple and an extraordinary double - blossomed black tulip, on one stem.

There are pure white narcissus and jonquils, yellow daffodils and little yellow English primroses in a low basket that has purple violets peeping from its soft green. There is a tiny china bird just coming out of another basket made up of delicate flowers; yellow pansies, purple violets and bleeding hearts, with green fronds of fern as their background.

Bleeding hearts are notable exhibits also, these interesting flowers that the children pull to pieces, to find fairy slippers and wands within their rose and white hearts.

There is a large bowl of scented purple lilac and there are some marvellously striped tulips in mauve and purple. Tulips that catch the eye are the superb ones of purplish blue with bronze-gold edges and there is a novelty in a vase of darktoned baby tulips that resemble poppies.

The exhibit is made doubly attractive by the clever arrangement of dainty cretonne and chintz fabrics that give an added note of colorful charm.

The prize winners are:

For the best 12 bloom tulips alike or different: 1st, Mrs. S. T. Harris, 2nd F. Biddle.

For the best vase of daffodils or narcissus—1st, F. Biddle; 2nd G. H. Clarke.

For the best vase or container of any other spring flowers—1st, Mrs. S. T. Harris; 2nd, Mrs. George Benton.

New Subjects For Que. High Schools

BEDFORD, Que., May 27.—(CP).—A new curriculum to include the teaching of art, music, household science, shorthand and typewriting will go into effect next term in the Protestant schools throughout the Province of Quebec, it was recently decided at an executive meeting of the Provincial Association of Protestant School Boards held here. These subjects will not be compulsory, but the student will be given credit for them in their school leaving reports. They are at present included in the course of study in the larger city schools in the Province, but will be new to rural high schools.

CENTRES OF INDIAN POPULATION ARE HOTBEDS FOR TUBERCULOSIS

Dr. D. A. Stewart Claims They Are Real Danger to Rest of Community.

DEATH RATE HIGH.

TORONTO, May 27 (C.P.).—Centres of Indian population throughout Canada are a real danger to the remainder of the population since they are "hotbeds for the cultivation and spread of tuberculosis," declared Dr. David A. Stewart, medical superintendent of the Manitoba Sanitorium, to-day. Dr. Stewart was addressing the joint convention of the Canadian Public Health and Ontario Health Officers' Associations.

The Indian tuberculosis death-rate in Canada was ten times that of the white, he said, and there could not be any line drawn "that will keep us safe from T.B. infection from our Indian wards."

Tuberculosis left to find itself usually staggers in hopeless after spreading the seeds of the disease broadcast through family and community. If people are to be made safe for themselves and the community at the right time and in the right way, they must be hunted out.

Colds Too Much Ignored.

A militant "war against colds" was urged by Dr. Helen MacMurchy, Ottawa. "Certainly we do not pay enough attention to the so-called common cold which is not easily distinguishable at first from influenza," she said. "It had better be treated as influenza until we are sure it is not. A cold is a disease much more serious than we think. And it is a much neglected disease."

"The time is coming, and in some parts of Canada has come, when the responsible head of school, office, shop or factory will say to those who show symptoms of this disease: 'I cannot take the responsibility of letting you remain here at the risk of giving this communicable disease to others. You must go home.'

"If the victim went to bed at once—within the first 12 hours—there would be fewer colds and fewer cases of other disease," she concluded.

Too Little Information.

"The public nurse has not satisfactory information regarding mental health and growth," declared Dr. W. T. B. Mitchell, Montreal. "She does not understand the problems involved in adult education, and more so in this particular field of adult education regarding principles of mental health. Probably in no other field are so positively ingrained beliefs, prejudices and intolerant attitudes as around the question of children's behavior, involving as it does the problems of discipline and obedience, moral and ethical behavior, sex interests, etc.," said Dr. Mitchell.

Success of the use of anti-toxin in the prevention of scarlet fever was reported by Dr. Beverly Hannah, Toronto, who said that of 7,000 children entering the Hospital for Sick Children here in 1930, not one developed scarlet fever after admission. Nor had any nurses become infected.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION. NO. 11

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Ibn Jad's Beduins were slowly winding northward. Zeyd rode beside the Sheik's daughter, his eyes upon her constantly. Fahd cast angry, envious glances at the pair. Tollog, the Sheik's brother, saw and grinned. "Zeyd is a bolder suitor than thou, Fahd," he whispered. "If I were sheykh, my niece would go to the man I chose."

"But you are not sheykh!" Fahd reminded him. Tollog leaned close and again whispered in Fahd's ear: "A suitor as bold as Zeyd would find means to make me sheykh!" Fahd made no reply but for a long time rode on in silence, his head bowed and his brows contracted in thought. Tollog knew that his sly words had done their work and for the present he was content.

For three days the Arabs moved slowly toward El-Habash. And for three days Tarzan lay helpless. He called to Manu, the monkey, to come and gnaw the strands apart. Manu had promised and then forgotten. Tantor still stood guard, but he was getting restless. Nearby food was nearly exhausted for himself and his friend. He wanted to move on, taking Tarzan with him.

Tarzan was convinced that if he was carried farther into the elephant country there would be no chance for aid. Here, in the ape country, there was a possibility that the great anthropoids might pass and discover him. "Go, Tantor," he said at last to the elephant, "and feed alone." Tantor trumpeted shrilly and was off.

MRS. ROY ALBERT WAINMAN

The death occurred yesterday of Mrs. Roy Albert Wainman of 500 Homewood avenue, following a brief illness.

Mrs. Wainman who was a native of Carp was before her marriage Jennie Muriel Vance. She had resided in this city for four years, having come here from Arnprior.

Prominently connected with Trinity United Church, the late Mrs. Wainman was also a member of the church choir and the Madrigal Singers. Besides her husband she is survived by her father who resides at Woodlawn, Ontario and three sons Cecil, Harold and Orville, and one daughter Lois all at home, also three sisters, Mrs. T. W. Cowan of Ottawa; Mrs. G. M. Hanna of Brantford and Mrs. M. C. Stackhouse of Woodlawn.

The funeral is to be held on Saturday with a short service at the family residence at 2.15 followed by a service at Trinity Church at 2.30. The Rev. David Wren will officiate. Interment at Little Lake cemetery.

MRS. GEORGE MURPHY.

LINDSAY, May 27 (Special to Examiner).—The death occurred last night of a well-known resident of Ops Township, in the person of Mary McGeough, wife of George Murphy, and sister of Mrs. J. T. O'Connell, of Peterborough. The deceased was the daughter of the late Bernard McGeough, a pioneer resident of Ops. She was for a number of years a member of the Mothers' Allowance Board of the County of Victoria, and was a prominent member of the Catholic Women's League. She is survived by her husband, six daughters, one son, four sisters: Mrs. J. T. O'Connell of Peterborough, Mrs. Edward Costello of Emily, Mrs. Frank Kirley of Ops, Miss Lucy McGeough of Buffalo, and one brother, Bernard McGeough of Ops.

JOHN CARLEY

The death occurred at Toronto on Tuesday of John Carley at the age of 74 years. The funeral was held by motor from the home of his sister, Mrs. James Burnie of Toronto to Mount St. Louis near Midland. Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father Tully, and interment was made in the family plot at Mount St. Louis cemetery.

The late Mr. Carley was predeceased by his sister, Mrs. (Dr.) Shaughnessy three months ago, and is survived by two sisters, Mrs. J. Burnie of Toronto, and Miss A. Carley of Victoria Harbor and several nephews and nieces. Also attending the funeral were D. Shaughnessy a brother-in-law, and J. J. Shaughnessy a nephew; also two nieces, Mrs. H. Duffus and Mrs. E. Lynch of Peterborough.

Police Court

Admissions made to "Cap." R. W. Carson, former fish and game inspector, and to Dr. M. P. Kennedy, his successor in office, to-day convicted a local man of illegally purchasing a maskinonge. He pleaded not guilty to the charge in court, but hi admissions were sworn to by both Carson and Dr. Kennedy and was found guilty by the Magistrate, being fined $7.50 and $3.75 costs.

Carson reported the man as stating to him, after first denying it, that he purchased a 'lunge from an Indian. He paid a dollar for it, he had told Carson.

Dr. Kennedy said that he made a similar statement to him, adding that he had purchased the 'lunge for his sick uncle. He had maintained under questioning that he did not know the identity of the Indian.

"It seems that every time a man comes into my court on a charge of illegal purchase of a fish, he obtained it for a sick uncle or wife," said Megistrate Langley, drily. "It appears that they never want a fish until someone gets sick and then they just go out and get it. My records here are cluttered up with such excuses."

Influx Of Tourists To Quebec Expected

QUEBEC, May 27.—(CP). — Applications from would-be tourists to the Province of Quebec so far this year have shown a forty per cent. increase over those of other years, according to Mr. G. O'Neil, director of the Quebec Provincial Tourist Bureau. The requests for information are of a much better type, he states, some of them coming from institutions such as the Universities of New York and Boston, Chicago Board of Trade, Ontario Depatrment of Education and many from prominent business firms in the United States.

"There are not so many of the letters we used to receive in pen and ink and on old scraps of papers. A large percentage of them are on letter heads, and indicate that tourists to the Province this year intend to put up here for two and three weeks instead of a few days."

Mr. O'Neil said. Gaspe and the Lake St. John districts seem to be the most popular sections, and if the tourist traffic this year is in proportion to the number of queries a banner season is predicted.

BRANTFORD, Ont., May 28. — (C.P.)—A second arrest and charge in connection with the death of Miss Dorothy Tree, Stratford girl, who died May 3 was made yesterday when Provincial Officer Milligan took in charge Mrs. Edward Fetter, of Stratford.

This morning the woman appeared before Acting Magistrate Buskard here on a charge of attempted abortion. The case was not proceeded with, Crown Attorney Charlton asking for the obtaining of a remand until Thursday next, and it is likely that another adjournment will take place at that date. Mrs. Fetter will be released until the time of the trial on bail of $10,000 set by the court this morning.

TWO RAILROADS PLAN TO POOL ALL RECEIPTS

Two Largest English Railroads Will Likely Amalgamate.

BLAME TRUCKS.

Several Thousand Persons Will Probably Be Unemployed.

NEW YORK, May 28.—(C.P.)—The New York Times to-day publishes the following special cable from London:

"The two biggest railroad companies in Great Britain have announced they had agreed to pool receipts "wherever there is competition or contact between them."

"The systems involved are the London, Midland and Scottish, with 6,777 miles of trackage and a capitalization of £413,778,867, and the London and North Eastern, with 6,294 miles of trackage and a capitalization of £375,764,704. Ever since the earliest days of railroading the two companies have fought for the London-to-Scotland traffic.

Suffered Heavy Losses.

"Last year, because of declining traffic and the competition from buses and trucks, both companies suffered heavy net losses—the Midland £7,918,248 and the North Eastern £4,790,813. Now to economize and eliminate waste, both have decided to make their passenger tickets interchangeable on all their competing services and to abolish certain local services where there is outright duplication.

"The latest move is regarded as the most important since the amalgamation of British railways into four great systems in 1923. It probably will result in a loss of jobs by several thousand persons. One official said:

"It is better to pay off an ascertained number of men than to continue competition so wasteful that

England Is Buying Gold From India

LONDON, May 28 (C.P. Cable).—Financial observers to-day said they thought the Bank of England had negotiated for the shipment of £5,000,000 in gold from India. Confirmation, however, was lacking from the bank.

Experts pointed out the Bank of England during the past two weeks had purchased £6,500,000 in gold, some of which they believed had come from India. Local advices said the Peninsular and Oriental liner Malwa sailed to-day from Bombay with £450,000 in gold for Great Britain.

BARNS BURNED NEAR VALENTIA

Two Farmers Lose Their Barns During Friday's Storm.

IN MARIPOSA TOWNSHIP.

LINDSAY, May 28. (Examiner Correspondence). — A severe electrical storm passed over the Township of Mariposa at five o'clock on Friday evening destroying two barns in the vicinity of Valentia. The large U shaped barn (three barns) on the farm of John A. Swain, about two miles south of the village was struck by a bolt around five oclock and the fire smouldered until about nine oclock, when it burst forth and completely enveloped the structure..

Besides the barn Mr. Swain lost five horses, two cattle, a number of pigs and chickens, 500 bushels of Fall wheat, a quantity of mixed grain, hay and implements. The loss is estimated at $9,000.

At the same time another barn on the ranch of Boyd Sharpe, situated a short distance from the village, was also struck by lightning and destroyed together with the contents. There was a small insurance carried on the barn.

Safe Is Blown Up; Burglars Get $100

ELDERTON, Ont., May 28.—(CP)—Police today are searching for burglars who last night removed $100 in cash and cheques valued at several hundred dollars from the safe of the Elderton Farmer's Elevator Company last night. The safe was forced by explosives and the men escaped without attracting attention.

Employees of the elevator company were unable to say definitely what other documents, if any, were missing, and a check is now being made. Payment on the cheques was stopped.

The office of the elevator company is located on the west side of Elderton and is comparatively isolated.

Excellent mats are being made from used automobile tires in Canadian workshops for the blind.

DEPRESSION SENDS UNEMPLOYED INTO THE NORTH LANDS FOR GOLD

More People Heading to Cariboo Country Than Even in Boom Days.

FORTUNES MADE

(Special to The Examiner)

CALGARY, Alta, May 28 (SNS)—Depression is an aid to development, says a well-kown geologist and prospector here, who is also authority for the statement that more people have gone into the Caribou country this year than in any single year before.

People out of work, he said, were "wrangling a grub stake" and going into the country to try and make wages.

Gold values of Cariboo district in British Columbia were first discovered in 1849 by two men named Ward and Hobson. They were followed by the Guggenheims who built a $6,000,000 dam at Canal Forks now known as Likely. The Guggenheims worked this property from 1853 until 1907-8, during which time about $10,000,000 in gold was taken out. Guggenheims then left the country.

Individuals then entered the field. R. T. Ward bought a stretch of 12 miles downstream from the Forks which was later purchased by a Calgary man for $600, sold later to two men named Arsenault and Landry of Edmonton for $1,200. The Edmonton men then sold the property to the Watertight Dipper Dredge and Mining Company which was owned and controlled by Stinbrecker, Munroe, Shaw and others.

BRITISH FINANCE BILL PRECLUDES RETURN TO GOLD

Move Strengthens Plan Anglo-American Price Conference.

PROTEST IS FRIENDLY.

Government Has No Intention of Returning to Gold Standard.

LONDON, May 28.—So strong is public opinion here against return to the gold standard that the Government has been compelled to agree to redraft a clause in the Finance Bill now before Parliament which, as originally worded, could be taken to suggest that such reversion was contemplated.

This clause provided that accounts of £150,000,000 exchange stabilization fund recently established should be wound up within six months of the lapsing of the law under which Britain went off the gold standard.

When this clause came up in the Finance Bill debate in the House of Commons, influential members of all parties rose to protest. The malcontents include not only Opposition leaders, but such staunch Government supporters as Sir Robert Horne, Mr. Leopold Amery, Sir George Gillett, Mr. Robert Bothby and Mr. William Mabane.

The protest was friendly but so obviously reflected the general view of the House of Commons that Major Walter Elliot, Financial Secretary of the Treasury, who is in charge of the Finance Bill, at once gave assurance, which was accepted as satisfactory, for reconsidering the point in question. Major Elliot also said he was authorized to indicate that the Government has no intention of returning to gold so long as prices remain unstable.

The incident is regarded as significant as showing the importance attached here to retaining a managed currency. It also strengthens the hands of those who are pressing for an Anglo-American monetary conference to fix a common standard of commodity values for the pound.

PARTY MACHINES SHORT OF MONEY

Huge Sums Spent in Presidential Elections of Other Years.

NOT AVAILABLE NOW.

Electing a President every four years runs into big money. President Hoover cost the Republicans over $4,000,000, and the unsuccessful attempt of the Democrats to elect "Al" Smith sunk that party for more than $3,000,000.

J. R. Nutt, the treasurer of the grand old party, thinks he will have to get along this year with not much more than a cool $1,000,000, and the Democrats who already owe John J. Rosbob, financial angel of New York, $250,000 won't have much if any more than Mr. Nutt.

Presidents have been coming very, very high for years. In 1896 it cost Mark Hanna $16,500,000 to elect McKinley. Harding cost more than $3,000,000, whereas Lincoln was elected for $250,000 in the good or bad o'd days.

DE FOREST WINS BRITISH TITLE BY 7 STROKES

25 Year Old London Player Defeats Eric Fiddian by Three and One.

RAIN SWEPT COURSE.

MUIRFIELD, Scotland, May 28—John de Foest, 25 yea old London player, to-day won the British amateur golf championship, defeating Eric Fiddian, his 22-year-old opponent, three and one.

De Forest took a flying lead on the first four holes. He made a sensational second shot at the third where he was in the rough off his drive, and his iron shot which carried the hill finished two feet from the hole. Fiddian failed on a two-yard putt.

Fiddian had a temporary respite at the fifth, where De Forest missed an eight-yard putt. At the sixth, however, Fiddian's terrible mashie shot lost him the hole. He lost the next also, putting De Forest six up. De Forest reached the turn six up. At the 10th, Fiddian went down one more when he got in the rough. They halved the 11th and Fiddian won his first hole of the match at the 12th, which De Forest bunkered twice.

The cards:—

De Forest—
Out	4	4	3	3	5	4	3	5	5	—36
In	5	5	5	3	4	5	5	5	6	—43
										—79
Fiddian—
Out	5	5	4	4	5	5	4	3	5	—42
In	6	5	4	3	4	4	6	4	4	—40
										—82

Unfavorable Weather

Thick mist added to the discomfort of the players. Fiddian wrapped a towel around his neck to keep out the rain. He was playing better.

They halved the 13th and 14th, and De Forest missed a short putt at the 15th, giving Fiddian his second hole of the game. Fiddian followed up by taking the 16th, where De Forest pulled his drive and fluffed his second shot, Fiddian bunkered from his second shot to the long 17th, and was five down. At the 18th De Forest hooked his drive and second shot and put the third in the bunker. Fiddian was on the green in two and took the hole. De Forest, four up.

TWO MISSING IN LAKE ERIE

Small Craft Was Destroyed By Fire Late Friday Night.

ONE MAN IS SAVED.

WINDSOR, Ont., May 28 (C.P.)—One man was rescued and two men are missing from a launch which was destroyed by fire in Lake Erie last night.

After floating all night supported by a lifebelt and a hatch off the boat, Norman Dufour of Lasalle was found to-day by a fishermen from Colchester and is now in Metropolitan General Hospital here. His condition is not considered serious as he suffers mostly from shock.

On Way to Kingsville

According to information secured by Provincial Constable Farrow at Amherstburg the lugger was on the way to Kingsville, from some point on the Detroit River, but it is not yet definitely known whether the boat carried a load.

The fire was reported last night, but during the dark hours it was impossible to do rescue work as the little craft was three miles or more off shore and there was considerable sea. Rescuers came from points at considerable distance and the search for the missing men is being continued.

The boat is reported to have sunk after the fire.

FRED ADKINSON LOST HIS LIFE AT WATERWORKS

Canadian General Employee Instantly Killed While Repairing Generator.

WORK MATE CLOSE CALL.

Both Men Working Inside Generator When it Suddenly Made Revolution.

When a generator which he was repairing at the City Waterworks plant started in motion from some cause at present unknown, Frederick Adkinson, aged about fifty years, of 244 Lansdowne street received terrible injuries yesterday afternoon, to which he succumbed almost immediately.

Hector Mackenzie a workmate of the victim escaped sharing a similar fate by a hairsbreadth. Both men had been working inside the generator and Mackenzie was in the act of climbing out of it when the fatality occurred.

Generator Started

Adkinson a machinist-fitter was working in the company of other men, all employes of the Canadian General Electric Company, under foreman W. S. Rose, making repairs to the rings of the generators. The work commenced yesterday morning and had proceeded until just previous to the heavy rainstorm yesterday afternoon, when without warning the generator in which Adkinson was working, made one or two revolutions and then stopped.

Adkinson's terribly mangled body was recovered from the machinery. The accident was later investigated by Deputy Coroner Dr. Herbert Young, and Provincial Constable David Silvester. An inquest is to be held.

Officials of the Canadian General Electric Company, including C. A. Salmonsen, works manager and Robert S. Cotton, as well as members of the City Police were also at the scene.

Leakage of Water

No theory could be advanced as to the cause of the accident, although it was stated in one quarter that there had been a leakage of water into one of he turbines.

Adkinson came to Peterborough from England some years ago, and after working at the C. G. E. plant here for eight years he returned home for a brief period. Since coming back to Canada about five years ago he continued in his employment with the C. G. E. Up to yesterday morning he had not worked since Monday, May 16.

Surviving him is his widow, and two daughters Winifred and Annie and one son, Edward of this city, also one brother and four sisters in Oldham, Lancashire, England.

The funeral was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from Comstock's Funeral Home, with the Rev. A. E. Moorhouse, pastor of St. James' United Church, of which the deceased was a member, officiating. Interment was made at Little Lake Cemetery.

Vacant House Fire Subject Of Inquiry

WELLAND, Ont., May 28 (C.P.).—A representative of the Fire Marshal's office is to-day investigating a blaze which early this morning damaged to the extent of $100 a vacant house in Melrose Park, Crowland.

According to Fire Chief Daniel T. Boyd, there was evidence that the walls and ceiling had been saturated with coal oil.

The blaze was extinguished by the Crowland Fire Department before much damage was done.

TWO COMMON WEEDS YIELD ALKALOIDS

OTTAWA, May 28 (C.P.)—Two common roadside weeds have yielded alkaloids when processed in the National Research Laboratories, it was announced here to-day before the Royal Society of Canada. Dr. E. H. Manske gave an account of the isolation from "Dutchman's Breeches" of protofine, previously found only in opium poppies and related plants. From another poisonous weed, "Squirrel Corn," an alkaloid known as Isocorydine was secreted in much larger amounts than from any other plant.

Missionary Still Chinese Prisoner

TORONTO, May 28 (C.P.).—Further advices received to-day by the China Inland Mission, intimate that Rev. H. S. Ferguson, reported captured a few days ago by Chinese Communists, is still a prisoner. It was reported Mr. Ferguson, who is well-known here, had been released, but this lacks confirmation.

KITCHENER ASKS DEPORTATION OF 37 FOREIGNERS

Court of Inquiry Was Conducted by Department of Immigration.

100 NAMES WERE LISTED.

But Before Applications Were Filled Out 50 Had Left City.

KITCHENER, Ont., May 28. — The deportation of 37 Kitchener foreigners is ordered by the Immigration Department following a court of enquiry here. The city council had listed 55 for deportation but 15 failed to show up, having left for parts unknown. Three proved their right to remain in the country. Six of the 37 will appeal the courts decision.

The Court of Inquiry was appointed by the Department of Immigration to investigate the circumstances of foreigners recommended for deportation by Kitchener City Council after they had become burdens on the municipality. More than one hundred were listed for deportation, but when the applications to the Immigration Department had been filled out, close to fifty had departed "for parts unknown." When the court concluded its work, an additional fifteen of those listed for a hearing had similarly vanished.

PILOT ATTEMPTS RECORD FLIGHT

Breakfast in Toronto, Expects to Dine in Edmonton Next Day.

DELIVERING PLANE.

TORONTO, May 28 (C.P.)—Roaring into a grey dawn, a tiny Canadian aeroplane headed to-day for Edmonton, Alta., in an attempt to break all records for the trip. The plane, piloted by Geoffrey O'Brien, noted pilot, is to be delivered to George B. Robb, Western rancher and sheep farmer, shortly after the flyer's arrival.

The route to be followed by O'Brien is via Detroit, Mich.; Chicago, Ill.; St. Paul, Minn.; Fargo, N.D.; Minot, N.D.; Regina and Saskatoon. After a brief halt in Edmonton, O'Brien will fly the ship to Milk River and make delivery. He is unable to attempt a non-stop flight owing to the necessity of landing for Customs inspection at border points.

Holds Two Records.

O'Brien at present holds both-way records between Toronto and Winnipeg having made dawn-to-dusk flights between the two points recently.

The ship is a Puss Moth, sister craft to that flown by Bert Hinkler, famous Australian flier, from Toronto to London last year. It has a cruising speed of 110 miles an hour.

Mr. Robb will use the plane for supervising operations on his large sheep ranch, according to the De-Havilland aircraft officials, makers of the plane.

If the long flight is successful, O'Brien will be the first man to eat breakfast in Toronto and dine in Edmonton the day following.

LEAGUE'S TASK IN EASTERN WEB IS PROGRESSING

Enquiry Commission is Probing Sino-Japanese Situation.

DIFFICULTIES INCREASE.

Expect to Make Report at Geneva in August.

DAIREN, Manchuria, May 28.—(C.P.).—Nearly a ton of statistics and documents confronted the League of Nation's Enquiry Commission which is probing into the Sino-Japenese situation in Manchuria as it arriwed here to-day.

The Commission, which came here after spending the week in Changchun and Harbin, planned to spend most of its time here and at Port Arthur interviewing Governor Yamaoka and Count Uchda, president of the South Manchuria Railway, regarding Japanese economic problems in Manchuria.

Covers Trade Question.

The questioning will cover the history and extent of the increase of trade, the investments of Japan and other nations in Manchuria and the economic status prior to the beginning of the Japanese campaign at Mukden last September.

The commissioners also plan to interview a number of Japanese bankers and merchants here.

The mass of material which the Commission already has accumulated leaves a stupendous task ahead and there is at the present time no indication what form this final report to the League will take. At the beginning of their tour the Earl of Lytton, chairman, and the other commissioners hoped they would be able to find some solution of the difficult problem, but since their arrival in the Orient the situation has become considerably more complicated by the further advance of the Japanese troops in North Manchuria.

Adds To Difficulties.

The establishment of the new independent Manchurian Government under Henry Pu-Yi also added to the complications.

Although the League's desire to interview General Ma Chanshan at Tsitsihar was blocked by the objections of Pu-Yi's officials, the commissioners did confer with various Chinese delegations from various parts of the province and they feel they have heard both sides of the case thoroughly.

Task Of Classifying.

They plan to return to Mukden next week to confer with Japanese military officials. About June 4 they will return to Peiping for another interview with Marshal Chang Hsiao-Liang and other Chinese officials. They will then start the gigantic task of classifying the great mass of documents, reports and statistics presented by both Japan and China.

After a fortnight at Peiping they will go to Tokyo for further conferences with Japanese Government officials and then retire to some quiet spot either in Japan or China to begin the task of preparing their report.

The Earl of Lytton hopes to have the report finished and submitted to the League at Geneva by late August.

CRIPPLED SHIP ARRIVES IN PORT

City of Chattanooga Arrived in Boston Harbor With Bow Staved In.

GRECIAN WENT DOWN.

BOSTON, May 28. —(CP)— The steamship City of Chattanooga arrived at Boston today with scraped and twisted plates extending 20 feet back from its bow, and a broken forward flag staff, telling a tale of a collision at sea which sank the freighter Grecian and killed four of its crew.

Of the 32 members of the Grecian's crew, three who were seriously injured had been removed to Vineyard Haven hospital yesterday, and 29 disembarked at Boston this morning.

Passengers and others board the Chattanooga, arriving in Boston a day late as a result of the collision, told of the crash in the early morning darkness and fog yesterday, off Block Island, and said the impact was not great.

Edward W. Garcia of New York, radio operator of the City of Chattanooga, said the bow of the Chattanooga struck the Grecian amidships.

ALLEGED REDS TO BE DEPORTED REFUSED WRITS

"Undesirables" at Halifax Lose Out in First Effort to Remain.

OTTAWA TO DECIDE.

Outcasts Will Be Welcomed in Russia, Report Indicates.

HALIFAX, May 28.—Eight alleged Communists, convicted as "undesirables" by an Immigration tribunal and ordered to be deported, yesterday were refused writs of habeas corpus in the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia.

Arrested in various Canadian cities early in May and brought to Halifax by Royal C...an Mounted Police, they will remain in the detention quarters here until appeals against the deportation orders have been considered by the Minister of Immigration. Three other prisoners, for whom habeas corpus action was not taken, also have appeals before the Minister and are held here.

Evidence Held Sufficient.

In dismissing the applications for writs of habeas corpus, Mr. Justice Carroll said, in part:

"I think, then, there was in each case evidence, and sufficient evidence, to warrant the board in reaching the conclusion that each individual applicant advocated in Canada the overthrow by force or violence of the government of Canada. The Minister to whom the appeal is outstanding may have the right to otherwise find, but I am precluded from doing so on a habeas corpus application. The applications for discharge are therefore dismissed."

The other three are: J. Stahlberg, Montreal manager of the Finnish Daily Vapaus; Nick Maychuk, Montreal and Frederick Zurcher.

Appeals at Ottawa.

Appeals, allowed under the Immigration Act, are before the responsible Minister at Ottawa, and decisions are expected to be handed down soon.

In the meantime the men are preparing for the worst. Fearing the treatment received by Communists in their native lands, they have claimed the right to be deported to countries of their choice. Most of them like Russia, and word from Soviet authorities is to the effect that they will be welcomed there.

JURY ACQUITS A. A. BRODERICK

FACES 3 MORE CHARGES.

NEW YORK, May 28.—(CP)— A crowd that sat up late to hear the verdict broke into cheers when Joseph A. Broderick, state banking superintendent, was acquitted early today of wilful neglect of duty in failing to close the Bank of United States sooner that he did.

The jury had been out 15 hours. Flushed with excitement, Broderick accepted congratulations silently, apparently unwilling to trust his voice.

The verdict was a climax to an eight weeks trial during which Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, who appointed Broderick, testified in his defence.

Three other indictments are pending against Broderick but it was not known whether they will be tried. These charged neglect of duty in not making examinations of the institution often enough, neglect of duty in failing to inform the bank directors of an adverse report on its condition, and conspiracy.

In a referendum yesterday the miners returned a majority of 3,600 in favor of accepting wage reductions of 10 per cent for dial workers and 12.5 per cent for contract men.

The result was the climax to a long-drawn-out series of negotiations between the Dominion Steel and Coal corporation and the United Mine workers.

PRINCE GIVES FARMERS TIP

Urges Them to Modernize Agriculture—Many Things 30 Years Behind.

OWN FARM FLOODED.

BATH, England, May 28 (C.P. Cable).—The Prince of Wales yesterday told farmers assembled at the famous Bath and West Agricultural Show: "We farmers must study our market." He said the only way British farmers could reduce transportation costs was by co-operation.

The Prince urged modernization of agriculture in the United Kingdom. "We are still producing goods which were suitable in England 30 years ago, like big cheeses and meat joints," he said.

His Royal Highness made no reference to the plight of his Nottinghamshire farm which to-day was still isolated by floods. Yesterday he sent a special representative to report on the situation. He travelled across the countryside in a motor boat.

Halt Communism Government Urged

Newspaper Warns That Mexican States Infringing on Interests.

MEXICO CITY, May 28. (CP)— The newspaper La Prensa called upon the Mexican Federal Government to-day to take a hand in what it described as a drift toward Communism in the States.

The newspaper referred to the recent passage of Confiscatory Laws in the States of Vera Cruz and Hidalgo, empowering the state governments to confiscate for public use, any private property, including farm lands, industries, stores, factories or transportation lines.

"If we are drifting toward Communism" the newspaper said, "let us do it directly and outspokenly. Let is modify the constitution and go the whole route. But if that is not the aim, what is the wisdom of permitting States to flirt with Communism? Our program is the more disconcerting because we do not seem to know whither we are drifting."

The government of the State of Hidalgo this week made use of the new Confiscatory Law to take over

Suggestion Reducing Debts By One-Third

PARIS, May 28. —(CP)— Victor Henry Berenger, negotiator of the recent Franco-United States debt arrangement, suggested in an article published here today that the Young plan annuities be reduced one-third to meet a 30 per cent fall in business.

If the payments then should still prove too heavy for Germany, M. Berenger recommended a moratorium on all payments except 440,000,000 Reichsmarks (about $110,000,000).

He said the debt agreements linked the amount the United States will receive to the amount Germany pays France and that the success of the coming Lausanne Conference is subordinate to a settlement between the United States and Europe.

QUESTION RIGHT ONTARIO BOARD TO HEAR APPEAL

Jurisdiction of Railway Board in Higher Court is Doubted.

CHIEF JUSTICE QUESTIONS.

Case Adjourned to Hear Attorney General on Matter.

OTTAWA, May 28.—Jurisdiction of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board and the higher courts to hear the appeal was questioned by Chief Justice F. A. Anglin today, during hearing in Supreme Court of the appeal by Hiram Walker and Sons, Limited, against the assessment of its "ageing racks," in the City of Walkerville. Mr. Justice Anglin finally adjourned the case until notice could be given to the Attorneys-General for Canada and Ontario to be heard on the question of the right of the Provinces to appoint Commissions with judicial functions.

The case came to the Supreme Court after having first been decided by Mr. Justice J. J. Coghlin in Essex County Court. He held that the "racks" were assessable. Appeal was then taken to the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board, which varied his judgment by finding that so much of the "racks" which are capable of being removed were not assessable. Appellate Division of the Ontario Supreme Court, and the judgment of Mr. Justice Coghlin restored.

Province to Argue

Today Chief Justice Anglin questioned the authority of the Railway Board to hear an appeal from a County Court Judge's decision, and the right of the Appellate Division to decide on a further appeal. He thought it best the Attorneys-General of the Dominion and the Province should be heard on the matter, and adjourned the case until the matter could be brought to their attention.

The question raised by the Chief Justice narrows down to whether the Ontario Railway Board, appointed by the Provincial Government can function as a judicial body. A similar situation developed this week in Montreal where the Workmen's Compensation Act which named a Commission to decide industrial damage actions was declared ultra vires on the ground that such Commission was functioning as a Court.

Claim Measure Fails to Restore 7-Hour Working Day or Adjust Wages.

NATIONAL MEET CALLED.

LONDON, May 28 (C.P. Cable) —The Labor Opposition in the House of Commons to-day decided to oppose the Government's new Coal Bill when it comes before the House on Monday and to move its rejection.

Labor members said grounds for opposition would be that the Bill fails to ratify the international convention limiting hours of work underground, does not restore the seven-hour working day or provide continuation of existing legal enactments on wages.

They said further the Bill introduces no improvement in national regulation of wages and ignores urgent necessity for reorganization of the industry under national control to restore it in the economic life of the country.

Last night the executive of the Miners' Union expressed itself as greatly dissatisfied with the Bill, and called a national meeting for next Tuesday.

Nation-wide trouble between the owners and miners in 1926 paralyzed the industry in which 850,000 persons are employed.

ELECTORS VOTE IN WEST YORK; HOT MEETING

RALLY IS BIG UPROAR.

Many at Conservative Rally Resent Statement Made by Russell Nesbitt.

TORONTO, May 28 (C.P.)—Electors of West York are going to the polls to-day to choose from four candidates, a successor in the Ontario Legislature to the late Dr. Forbes Godfrey, former Minister of Health.

Although four parties are represented in the field, it is generally believed the contest will narrow down to a straight fight between Liberal and Conservative forces which have waged a strenuous campaign in the past month.

Premier George S. Henry, on behalf of the Conservative nominee, Harry I. Price, has addressed by-election meetings during the past two months while other members of the Cabinet have also played important roles in support of Mr. Price.

W. J. Gardhouse, official Liberal candidate, has been supported in his campaign by Mitchell F. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal Leader, and Hon. Harry Nixon, Progressive chieftain. Both have addressed meetings in his interests in the past weeks.

In the last general election, Dr. Godfrey almost doubled the vote of his lone opponent, W. E. Edwards, Liberal. The Minister polled 8,296 votes and Edwards 4,411.

Campaign a Hot One

The campaign has been a fiery one, with both Government and Opposition supporters being subjected to a barrage of heckling and interruption. The Premier himself had a stormy time last night at Runnymede, where he finally told the electors the meeting was the first he had encountered in 30 years of public life where "the be-

Minister Must Approve

"The Minister of Transport must approve the new plan before it goes into operation July 1."

The steadily increasing inroads made by motor trucks and buses on the revenues of the British railways led the latter to address to the Government last March an urgent appeal for help. The railroads asserted better balancing of the burdens between themselves and the truck owners was essential.

Their primary demands were for relief from some of the legislation which restricted their own activities, and immunity from the local taxes by which the highways are kept up for the benefit of their competitors. They said they did not seek to have any addition restrictions placed on trucks.

"I'LL TELL YOU WHY" said Mr. Picobac

Mr. Picobac paused to press home a big fresh-lit bowlful of tobacco with the ball of his thumb.

"I'll tell you why," said he; "I'll tell you why Picobac has the quality and flavour it has. It's because it is made from tobacco grown in the county of Essex—and its sister, the county of Kent—down here on the Lake Erie front, 'the tropic belt of Ontario.' No county in the Dominion grows such a variety of products as the counties of Essex and Kent—nor ripens things to such perfection. They grow most everything that the rest of Canada can grow. They grow some things that no other county in Canada can grow.

"Kentucky Burley, grown in Essex and Kent," continued Mr. Picobac with firm conviction, "is the coolest . . . sweetest . . . most satisfying smoke in the world. In my opinion, mind you, in my opinion."

STONELEIGH ABBEY.

DOWN in the heart of England where the River Avon winds its peaceful way, one finds a centre of things historical. There is the town of Warwick, in the shire of the same name, with its famous paintings, historical relics, and Caesar's Tower, dating from the conquest.

There is Kenilworth Castle, where the ill-fated Amy Robsart met her death, and not so far away, the town of Coventry, where Tennyson "waited for the train." Three miles from Kenilworth, on the delightful road that winds to this place, you come upon the Abbey of Stoneleigh.

The spot is owned by Lord Leigh now, and has been for some time. As you approach it, you find that it is an estate, with a fine baronial residence and a parish church. The green lawns stretch away beneath their majestic oaks in a fashion that carries you back to the days when England lived under Good Queen Bess.

The architecture is of Italianate origin with a strong Jacobean influence expressly marked in its details. In 1154, this was a Cistercian monastery. Still you will find the stories of the old place encompassed in the writings of Scott and Blackwood, for the monastery was one of the most famous in all England when it was at the height of its power.

Within the residence, you will find many good pictures and fine oak wainscoating dating back to the early days. The Norman doorways of the monastery remain and are incorporated in the new structure.

The parish church still displays the Norman font, too, and is filled with many monuments to the Leigh family. Most of all, this place is famous as the natal spot of Sir Henry Parkes (1815-1896) known as the "father of the Australian Commonwealth."

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

QUESTIONS.

1. What did Joseph's brethren do when they saw him approaching?
2. What action did Reuben take to frustrate the plot?
3. What was the result?
4. What bargain was struck with the caravan?
5. How was Jacob misled as to what had occurred?
6. Why was Joseph unable to escape from the well in which he was confined?
7. What was the condition of Egypt at this time?
8. Who ruled over the country?
9. What happened when Joseph was brought to this country?
10. When and where did these incidents occur?

ANSWERS.

1. When Joseph's brethren saw him approaching, they plotted among themselves to kill him and hide his body in one of the many wells which spotted the country.
2. Reuben, the eldest brother, being responsible to his father, urged that they simply put Joseph in a well. He hoped to return and help him escape when the others had gone.
3. The brothers agreed. Joseph was placed in the well and the brothers sat down to eat. But the cries of the prisoner so disturbed Reuben that he withdrew.
4. A caravan of Ishmaelites and Midianites approached. Judah suggested that Joseph be sold as a slave, so the lad was dragged forth and sold to the traders for twenty shekels, which is about $13 or, in modern valuation, ten times that amount.
5. When Reuben returned and found Joseph gone, he was greatly perturbed. The others took the coat of Joseph and dipped it in the blood of a kid. Bringing the garment to Jacob, they led him to believe that Joseph had been killed by wild beasts.
6. These wells were pits which slanted toward a narrow mouth. They were slimy and muddy, offering no foothold, and a stone on the opening made them a perfect prison.
7. Egypt at this time was a land of ancient culture. It numbered a population of seven millions. The people worshipped idols and natural forces, and their ruler was known as Pharaoh.
8. The country had been conquered by the Hyksos, or Shepherd kings. They were either Semitic or Hittites. Royal officers had taken the place of the landed gentry and the land was owned by the king and the temples. Joseph, when he came into favor, thus wielded power second only to Pharaoh himself.
9. Joseph was bought as a slave by Potiphar, captain of Pharaoh's guard. Later, because of his ability, he was made steward by Potiphar.
10. Joseph came into Potiphar's home 1835 B.C. He was sold at Dothan and bought as a slave at Joan, capital of Egypt, on the eastern part of the Nile delta.

A Chat with Young Peterboro

ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR MAY 29.

THE world owes a great deal to the dreamers like Joseph. I mean the kind that get hold of big ideas, and then let the big ideas get hold of them. The roomiest place there is, is a person's mind. Like Columbus. There was room in his mind for a dream of a whole New World, and he held on till he found it. Some folks despise the dreamers, and try to make up for the lack of dreams by lots of pep. Pep's all right in its way, but it's got to have direction to accomplish anything. Reminds me of a professor and a cabman I heard about. The professor was slated to give a lecture in a distant city, and as the train was late getting into the place, he was in quite a stew about getting to the hall on time. So he jumped into a cab and told the driver to drive as fast as he could. After a while it struck him that he hadn't told the man where to drive to, so he stuck his head out of the window, and shoulted, "Did I tell you where to drive to, cabby?" "No," says the cabby, "but you told me to drive fast and I'm doing it."

Nor, as I've said, you've got to have some ideas, some dreams about the future to direct you, and that's what Joseph had. He dreamed about being great. That's right, too, to be ambitious. Our heads have got to be full of something, and what they are full of depends on us. You can't dream about little things and become big. "As a man thinks in his heart, so is he." Joseph believed in his dreams, too, and that's important. You can't believe in half-successes and accomplish whole ones. "Hitch your wagon to a star." If you aim at nothing you're sure to hit nothing. Joseph was so sure about his dreams, he talked about them. I guess he was a bit trying to his older brothers talking about himself and his dreams. But the test came all right. Dreams are always tested by discipline, and that night in the pit was the testing time for Joseph. That showed that the dreams had got hold of Joseph. Instead of being discouraged by what his dreams had brought him so far, he determined by the help of God to realize them. That's why I call Joseph a wideawake dreamer. Dreams of a useful future, added to endurance and trust in God, that's the kind of ambition every boy and girl ought to have, like Joseph.

FORESIGHT

By HARLOWE R. HOYT

IN this time of depression, when we are reaping the results of an extravagance sowed during the years of tremendous prosperity, it pays us well to stop and consider the example set by Joseph back in the ancient days when Egypt suffered from its famine.

It was a strange land, the Egypt of Joseph's day. There was a high degree of civilization, mingled with a strange religious atrophy that found expression in the worship of nature and animals. The Nile was the sacred river. Each year it overflowed its banks, depositing a rich soil, in which was cultivated the crops that maintained the populace.

But Egypt, like other countries, suffered from its years of depression. It was when Pharaoh dreamed his dream of the fat and lean kine, and the fat and lean ears, that Joseph foretold the seven years of prosperity and the seven years of famine. And it was at this time that he planned the scheme to offset the depression.

During the seven years of plenty, Joseph saw to it that many storehouses were built. These were crammed with grain. And when the seven years of depression followed, there was a plentitude, not only for Egypt but for all lands who suffered and needed food.

Wise, indeed, is the man who prepares against the day of adversity. In time of plenty, we are all too apt to underestimate the value of things material. We become spendthrifts. So, too, when we attain worldly wealth, we are fain to forget those less fortunate than ourselves.

We should guard against adversity, first of all; and, once this is done, we should, from our storehouses, help to offset the lean years of others. This, truly, is Christian living.

Spartan Discipline

HERODOTUS tells us of a Spartan who, at the time when Leonidas was fighting so bravely at Thermopylae, and his doom was clearly sealed, stayed at a nearby village, and so was the one Spartan who survived that deadly charge. He returned home, but was looked upon as a dishonored man. Then, when there came another chance to fight, at Platea, he rushed into the midst of the strife and died with bravery. But when Sparta honored her dead with a public funeral and a monument, the name of Aristodemus was not mentioned. "He died," they said, "because he wished to die. The other Spartans wished to live, but they did their duty, and so they died." And Aristodemus was not honored with the brave ones who had died. Thus Sparta, with her stern discipline, taught her sons that there was no way out of plain duty.

There is some use for this iron in the blood. The men who are so trained will prove worthy of their training. Loss of property, loss of health, loss of even life itself, are not the things to be feared, but rather that we fail our fellows and our God. It may be Sparta was too hard, but there can be no true nobility unless there is something which can be depended upon in the men and women who are our citizens.—Great Thoughts.

Joseph and His Brethren

Sunday School Lesson
Genesis 39-47.

By Harlowe R, Hoyt
Walter Scott

As Joseph drew near to Dothan, where he came to bring his brothers their father's message, the other sons of Jacob saw him from afar because of his brilliant coat of many colors. "Behold, the dreamer cometh," they cried, and they planned to kill him and throw his body into a well. But Reuben, Jacob's oldest son, feeling his responsibility, argued against this measure "Let us not take his life," Reuben urged. "Let us put him into the well and leave him there." To this the others agreed, not knowing that Reuben planned to return secretly and rescue Joseph. The youth was lowered into the pit, and the brothers sat down to eat. But Reuben, not being able to withstand Joseph's cries for help, withdrew by himself from the rest of the company.

When Reuben had departed, a caravan of traders came near the spot where the brothers sat. Judah, Jacob's fourth son, proposed that instead of leaving Joseph to perish, they sell him to the traders and be well rid of him. A bargain was struck and for twenty shekels, Joseph was sold into slavery by his brethren. The youth was hauled from the well and taken away into captivity.

Reuben returned later and looked for his brother, but Joseph was gone. Torn with grief and dismay, he confronted his brothers. "The child is not there," he cried, "And I, whither shall I go?" To extricate themselves from their difficulty, the brothers killed a kid and dipped the coat of Joseph in the blood. This they brought to Jacob, which led him to believe his son had been killed by wild beasts.

A GREAT FAIR.

The Examiner is in receipt of a comprehensive catalogue of the British Industries Fair held this last winter, containing the names of some 1,400 exhibitors and illustrating the magnitude of this great enterprise, which was this year, in spite of conditions, even more successful than ever.

The first British Industries Fair was held in 1918, and it is recorded that it consisted of only 800 exhibitors, occupying some 58,000 square feet of space and attracting 34,000 buyers.

As an evidence of the growth of the fair from year to year, it may be mentioned that at the recent fair (London and Birmingham sections) some 2,350 exhibitors occupied 630,000 square feet of space and nearly half a million buyers from 70 different countries attended.

This great exhibition undoubtedly has justified itself as a stimulus to British trade, and the progress it has made should be gratifying throughout the Empire, particularly this year when the question of greater Empire trade is being kept ever to the fore.

A GOOD SHOWING.

The good showing made by Peterborough schools in the matter of regular deposits in the Penny Bank during March and April reflects to a considerable degree the essential soundness of local conditions generally.

The average for all the Peterborough schools in the two months covered by the latest report was 57 per cent., putting the local schools well up in the list, while King Edward School showed that it can shine in other departments than smart cadet corps by having 93 per cent. of all its pupils make regular deposits, a record only beaten by some six schools in the Province.

It is a matter for satisfaction that despite general conditions such a large number of Peterborough children are regularly putting money to their credit in the Penny Bank, and while it is true, of course, that withdrawals since a year ago have almost equalled the amount of deposits, there is evidence in the consistency with which many pupils have added to their accounts, albeit in many cases the amounts were small, that the habit of thrift has taken steady hold, and that, of course, is the main objective of the Penny Bank system.

UNEMPLOYMENT CONDITIONS.

Most people in this country, The Examiner fancies, will agree with Tom Moore, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, in his condemnation of the policy of non-contributory unemployment insurance.

There is, of course, considerable opposition to any form of unemployment insurance, but the general opinion is that if such a plan should eventually be adopted it must be a contributory scheme, the worker as well as the employer and the state all giving their share.

Such a condition, however, automatically prevents any possibility of such legislation at the present time.

Obviously a contributory scheme would be impossible for the man who is without employment—that is, the man for whom the assistance is planned could not be expected to contribute when his income has been completely cut off.

As a matter of cold fact, there has been no preparation whatever for unemployment insurance in this country, and as the Stratford Beacon-Herald pertinently points out, it would be necessary to start from zero, for employers have paid nothing, neither have employees and the state set aside anything for the purpose.

That bald statement of the situation shows the futility of looking to unemployment insurance as a speedy relief for present conditions.

OLD HOME WEEK IN RUSSIA.

Word has been received from Russia that the Soviet Government is ready to receive with open arms the ten Communists already slated for deportation from Canada.

The message makes it pleasant all around, and should be repeated in every section of the Dominion where Red adherents are known to live.

The knowledge that Russia is prepared to make every week an old home week for Communists who are sent back from countries in which their activities are not appreciated deserves wide circulation.

There are a good many Reds scattered throughout the Dominion, and apparently they do not like this country, its people, its science of government or its standards of living; the logical thing to do, therefore, is to make it easy for such gentry to get out of a country for which they have no use.

Canada doesn't want these agitators; they themselves have no use for Canada, and Russia has the door mat all nicely inscribed with a brand new welcome sign.

Under the circumstances the sympathy being shown in some quarters for the Red leaders who are threatened with deportation is completely wasted.

Why worry over people who are assured of a hearty reception in a country that has the form of government they profess to love?

If they are sincere Canada is doing them a favor by facilitating their journey to Russia.

Surgeons in Philadelphia took part of a dentist's drill out of a man's lung. Those who have felt a dentist's drill will deduce that the nerve which was being worked on when the part was lost was comparatively near the surface.—Detroit News.

ENGLAND SPEEDS UP JUSTICE.

This week the English Law Courts put into practice new rules which are expected to shorten and facilitate legal procedure. At a time when there is much complaint about court procedure on this continent being too cumbersome and too technical, a summary of these English changes should be of interest.

"Trial before a jury requires longer time than before a judge alone. If trials are to be less costly they must be shorter," is one principle laid down. Litigants may find an advantage in the following new rules: Drastic reduction in the number of documents required. Limitation in the number of expert witnesses. Reference of questions involving expert knowledge to a special referee. Reduction in the number of jury cases. Surrender of the right of appeal by mutual agreement between the parties. Shortening of procedure will be effected by the setting of time limits. With his writ or within seven days of the defendant's entry of appearance the plaintiff must deliver a statement of claim. Within seven days of this the defendant in his turn must deliver a statement of his defence. Within another seven days the plaintiff must take out a summons for directions.

In effect this gives the judge an opportunity of deciding whether proper particulars have been filed, and of arranging the future course of the case. If he thinks that further particulars are required he can issue the necessary directions, but must have distinct regard to the cost involved.

The judge is also invested with powers to set down a case for trial at assizes or transfer it to a county court; to provide for proof by affidavit instead of by witnesses; to order any issue to be tried with or without a jury at his discretion; to record the consent of the parties either wholly excluding their right of appeal, or limiting it to the Court of Appeal, or limiting it to questions of law only.

The judge may also fix a definite day for the trial. This change will remove one of the greatest hardships on litigants—that of the uncertainty of the date of hearing, involving long attendances at courts with all the costly adjuncts of counsel and witnesses waiting for the trial to begin.

These reforms, like many other reforms, may not always function advantageously. On their face, however, thy seem practical and sensible, an advance upon much of the legalistic red tape which, not infrequently, serves only to delay justice.

Premier Bennett has been stating that the salaries of Canadian judges are inadequate, and that there are too many judges. If and when the time comes to remedy that situation, may it not be possible to take a look at the reformed procedure of English courts?—Ottawa Journal.

QUEBEC IS THOROUGH.

Tourists have constituted themselves one of Canada's big and most profitable industries and their treatment and encouragement a matter for governments. So the day is going—in Quebec at least is quite over—when a farmer might put up a cabin of sorts, or two or three, and set up overnight as a keeper of lodgings. The tourist must be satisfied or he will not return, and to put him in good humor so that he will boost Quebec to his friends the Legislature at its recent session put bungalow camps under the License Law, made exact provision for their maintenance and construction, and provided penalties for infringement of the regulations. They are subject to inspection by the Provincial Hostelry Service, they must provide drinking water meeting the requirements of the Provincial Service of Hygiene, and it is provided even that each camp must have a name and each bungalow a number.

But it is when the paternal Legislature gets down to the business of the equipment of bungalows that its fine care for the paying guest is demonstrated in earnest. Each bungalow must be provided with metal beds and springs, best quality woollen mattresses, one or two bedside rugs for each bed, at least one chair for each bed place. For each bed there are to be two linen or cotton sheets 90 inches long and 72 inches wide, two blankets, a counterpane, and two pillows for each person.

And also there are required two hooks for each bed place, mirror with shelf, tumbler in fixture, a cuspidor, a shoe wiper and razor wiper, and a waste basket. Unaccountably the Legislature has overlooked such other necessities as a cork-screw and bottle opener, a receptacle for used razor blades, and a fly swatter.

There is further provision that a fresh cake of soap must be supplied each guest, along with fresh bedding; bungalows are to be "fumigated and renovated as required," the rugs swept daily, and so on in great detail. If the tourist isn't happy and comfortable, if Quebec doesn't get a fair share of this cash traffic, it's not to be charged against the Government of that Province.—Ottawa Journal.

News of Our Own Village

Victoria Day was spent very sleepily in the berg Tues., the only noise of any consequence being a few fire crackers and such.

Jack Corcoran of Toronto, west of here, put on a rassling show in the village rink Thurs. nite and customers seen more fireworks than they was here on the holiday.

Earl Bessborough, our busy governor-general from Ottawa, east of us, was here long enough Wed. for a horseless carriage ride around this progressive burg. It was a gala affair for all and sundry, silk toppers being decidedly in the vogue, so to speak.

The village school bd. threatens to take the council for a ride because the council didn't take them for 1 Wed., when the Gov. General was in our midst.

The summer season is officially here, it is surmised, the benches having been placed near the village parks for use during the warm weather.

Ed. Peck, our Federal member, is renewing old acquaintances in the berg, Ed. having got through his labors at Ottawa, east of here, Thurs., when parliament called it off for this session.

Rolly Denne, our worth mayor, and Bob Cotton, Dan Holland, Walt Stocker and Jack Fitzpatrick all took part in the opening ceremonies of the Girls' Softball League Wed. nite, but none of the lads showed much signs of ever being good ball tossers in their youths.

The village cadets was inspected last Mon. p.m. by Cap Isbester from Kingston, east of us. The boys all done well according to the Cap and we hope Agnes MacPhail hears about the same.

Straw hats is one sale in the village stores, but up to the present flaming youth is continuing to go Doukhobor so far as head covering is concerned.

One Thing at Geneva, Another at Home

By H. W. L. MAHOOD

United States sentiment relative to disarmament is not adequately represented at Geneva. Nor is the sentiment of any other nation. A group of Americans favorable to disarmament are there in conference with delegates from other nations. These delegates are working hard to reach an agreement that will be received with approval by the peace-minded people of the world.

In the meanwhile, what is going on in the home lands? The militarists are not idle. In nearly every nation a most subtle piece of propaganda is in progress to nullify the Geneva effort.

While this letter is being written a four-day battle is in progress at or near Lansing, Michigan, to demonstrate the efficiency of the American army. A whole month has been given to the preparations for this display.

A great dinner at the expense of the government was given the citizens of public note at Lansing and of many other cities of Michigan and other middle-west states. A great crowd sat down to eat and listen to militaristic speeches. Michigan and the other middle states are the center of pacifist sentiment in the United States. These states are demanding a radical cut in the government appropriations for military purposes. Fear lest this sentiment be further strengthened in this peace-minded part of the nation the militarists are staging this thrilling and impressive display of the fitness of the United States army.

One army is the "American Troops." The other is the "Red" army. The American people have had little regard for the Russians. Some sentiment must be aroused to make an appeal to the masses, and to put into the battle the hate and the blood lust. Major Rosecrans is making the battle as near real as possible. A mere sham battle would arouse but little interest. The manouevres will give the people an idea of the best in military strategy; and the worst in human nature.

The field of military influence in the United States has been greatly limited in the last few years. Military training has now no place in the high school program, nor in that of the denominational colleges or universities. It has also been excluded from many of the state universities. The Federal Council of Churches in America which includes nearly all the protestant denominations has denounced war and have strongly advocated radical reductions in military and naval appropriations. The Methodist Federation for Social Service is as outspoken. The League for Industrial Democracy is in the open as an advocate of an army and navy as a police force alone.

These organizations are peacefully militant in spreading the evangel of the new day when the nations shall "learn war no more." As the militarists grow boisterous the friends of peace become the more committed to the proposition that the United States shall lead the world in making for international peace. At the present she has a major struggle within her own borders to conquer the war spirit.

Canada is not backward in this forward looking movement, to banish the possibility of war from our twentieth century civilisation. A movement has been initiated to stimulate radical political thought and activity. The new movement has a name, "The League for Social Reconstruction." It is committed to public ownership of public utilities; transportation; communications; and other utilities and industries approaching monopolistic control; nationalization of banks; social insurance; steeply graduated taxation; a national planning commission; disarmament and world peace. Notable men have in hand the formation of the organisation and its futherance. F. R. Scott of McGill university; Prof. King Gordon of United Theo. College, Montreal; Prof. A. E. Havelock of Victoria College, Toronto; J. F. Parkinson and E. H. Underhill of Toronto University are the executive committee. That this group of men will not go to sleep on the job is certain. Canada is in a fair way of finding her soul. These men will be heard from. All of them are men of brains and convictions. They are thoroughly aroused to conditions in Canada. Doubtless we are coming to days when convictions of right will stir in the hearts of men, bringing a modern reformation, such as the world has not seen since the days of Luther and Wesley and Gladstone and Lincoln.

NORTH MONAGHAN COURT OF REVISION DECISIONS

Peterborough, May 26th, 1932.

Dear Sir,—The voters of North Monaghan at the last election elected a Reeve and Council to carry on the municipal business of the township, and one of their duties was to appoint an assessor who they considered qualified to act in this capacity. They appointed a man who they considered had these qualifications, and whom they personally know.

This man started out to perform the duties of assessor to the best of his ability and judgment, but without any moral or other support from the Council who appointed him, and to my mind the Reeve encouraged the ratepayers to appeal their assessments. I understand there were 169 who took advantage of this appeal.

We all very well know that during these times of depression that it may not have been the proper thing to have made these increases at this time, but the instructions the assessor received at the time of his appointment should have been clearly outlined to him, and if they could see at that time their wishes were not carried out, another appointment should have been made to this office.

I understand where one case an assessment of $1600 was made by the assessor which was raised from $1200, that the Council changed the decision of the assessor and reduced this back to $1200.

Any fair minded man would readily see that this assessment should have been at least $1600, and to my mind the assessor should appeal to the council's decision in this matter, or take it to the Judge if necessary.

Surely after all that has been said about the unequalised assessment of property in North Monaghan, something should be started to more efficiently assess these properties, and it is certainly time that voters of North Monaghan put the best possible man in office to see that the business of the Township is more efficiently carried out. Instead of one assessor as at present, this job should be assigned to at least three men.

Signed,
Ratepayer.

The young lad told the coroner's jury Kane struck the woman to the ground early last Saturday morning and then tied a piece of cord about her neck.

SON OF THE GODS

By REX BEACH

That mental upheaval did not last long, but it served to galvanize her into something like her old self and she began to dress for the street almost before she realized why. Tears were still flowing and she was talking aloud when she faced her mirror and pulled her hat down. Sam what white! This nightmare has ended. She'd find him. He was probably at that place on Riverside Drive and, thanks to her father, she knew exactly where it was. She must hurry! Why did those tears keep streaming? Nothing to cry about now. Why, she was a poor wet sponge. Out all night making whoopee with those dance-hall girls, eh? Indeed! She'd snatch him away if she had to wreck the place. It wouldn't be the first time she—Yes, and if he ever dared to touch another girl, she'd—she'd fix him. The dissolute wretch! The darling! Who were those female warriors who rode out and seized their men and brought them in across their saddles? Amazons!

Her father's circumstantial description of that Asiatic club enabled her to find it without difficulty and she was admitted readily enough when she arrived there. The smiling Oriental on the door told her that Sam Lee was inside.

From the floor above came a babel of voices and the sounds of a restless, moving crowd. There was a reception room at the right of the entrance hall, which was now used as a smoking lounge, and there several Filipinos were grouped around a white girl; they were talking animatedly. Alanna paused in the doorway and looked in; they turned eager faces towards her and when she moved on towards the stairway a couple followed her.

An orchestra started playing, the dancing floor was filled with couples when the visitor mounted to its level; she pressed forward until a Japanese in dinner clothes halted her. There was an air of authority about him and she rightly assumed him to be the manager.

"Hello!" he said. "You desire seeing me?"

"Yes. I'm looking for Sam Lee."

The fellow eyed her inquiringly. "Ah! You friend of Mister Sam Lee? You acquainted of Mister Sam Lee?"

Alanna nodded impatiently, eagerly she scanned the moving throng. Her pursuers from the smoking room were at her side now and both men were asking her to dance; she ignored them and spoke again to the manager:

"I must see him at once. Tell me where he is."

"What you come here for? Maybe you representing Police Department? Everything here is conducted excellently."

"No, no! I'm a friend of Mr. Lee's and I must speak to him."

"So? Well, I don't see him tonight."

"But I'm sure he's here. The man at the door just told me—"

"Mister Sam Lee is not here."

This conversation had been carried on not without difficulty, for Alanna's Filipino admirers were insistent and they continually interrupted her; other patrons, too, were attracted by her appearance for she was pretty, she was young, she was new. Several men, not all of whom were Filipinos, spoke to her, there sprang up an eager rivalry for her favor. Alanna was accustomed to servility from Asiatic men, but these fellows were anything but servile, they were not even polite; they almost fought over her, and she was crowded this way and that. They were intemperate in look, in speech and in action and a strange drunkenness possessed them. She began to feel utterly helpless and more than a little bit frightened. The proprietor was plainly suspicious of her and her appeals only evoke a shrug; he gave her to understand that she could either behave herself in a becoming and agreeable manner or get out. Then he made off.

Her heart was pounding horribly and it hurt her. She wanted to strike out at these grinning faces. She was growing faint, too, and there was no breath in her lungs. But she couldn't faint here. The very thought terrified her. What a fool she had been to come here; she should have sent her father or waited—A wave of blackness rose and threatened to overwhelm her but she fought it down. If she lost consciousness here, what would happen?

In desperation she stretched herself higher and looked over the crowd. She saw Sam almost at once; he was coming down the stairs from the floor above, but her thin cry was lost in the hubbub. He paused to light a cigarette and at that moment the music stopped; Alanna screamed his name again and pushed towards him. But her knees bent, her bones were like rope and her strength was feeble.

Never mind, he had heard her; he was charging in her direction, casting couples aside, spinning them out of his way. She could see the top of his head—She was growing numb and that black wave was rolling over her again—No need to fight it down. Sam was coming—The room, the world was revolving; it was falling away and she floated over it. Higher and higher she was borne. Nice and comfortable up here riding on a cloud with Sam. Nothing to worry about with his arms around her—Alanna sighed in exquisite contentment.

INSTALMENT NO. 30

That downy cloud upon which Alanna rode ran aground, it began to bump and jolt her roughly. A flat tire probably. What luck. A voice was calling her over and over; it was Sam's, and he was shaking her. How rude of him!—Why was he rushing her through a blinding flicker of lights and shadows? The film had run off its sprockets perhaps, anyhow the whole theatre was rocking and swaying—Pshaw! This wasn't a theatre, she wasn't riding on a cloud; this was a taxicab. Yonder was the glow of the meter and the back of the driver's head—That air felt good and those incandescent flashes that came and went were—street lights. Certainly. Whizzing street lights and this was Sam at her side. Probably she had fainted.

"Yes, you fainted." It was Sam's voice speaking. "Thank Heaven you're better! Did you hear me, Alanna? I'm taking you home and everything is all right."

The motion of the cab was stimulating; Sam was rubbing her hands and slapping them, he was fanning her with his hat, too. Her senses returned with a rush.

"I remember now—How did I get away from that place and—those men?"

Alanna was fully conscious at last. Life had skipped a beat or two, she had faltered and missed a step, but it was running again and she was swinging along with it as usual. Feeling fine, too. How silly of her to faint.

"Sam!" she broke out. "You're white! White! That's why I went there."

"Yes, yes! We'll be home in a minute."

"I'm all right, honestly; I couldn't wait to tell you and—the man is sailing in the morning, so I had to hurry. There's nothing in the way, no barrier at all. Oh, Sam! Sam!! You're not Lee Ying's son. It's a mistake. You're white, white, white! Don't youn understand?"

The listener was aghast. This was dreadful. Poor sick child! And they had declared she was well. The liars! "I understand," he said sothoingly. "But please don't excite yourself. Close your eyes, we'll be there in a jiffy."

"No, no! Listen to me." Alanna struggled out of his arms, agitated words poured from her lips, there was a wildness in her voice and in her bearing that told its own pitiful story. She clutched at him and shook him feebly, babbling meanwhile something about Eileen Cassidy, a Police Inspector, San Francisco, Lee Ying, a white baby.

How could he face Albert Wagner? How could be explain where he had encountered Alanna? Questions like these raced through Sam's mind. It was bad enough to find her in that dance hall, but this was ten times worse. In a way he was relieved to realize that she was out of her mind, otherwise his shame at being discovered there would have overwhelmed him. Her escape from the hotel would take some explaining, he fancied. Wagner was probably frantic. The whole thing was too unfortunate, too dreadful to think about. For instance, that crazy idea that obsessed her. Well, he had saved her reason once, perhaps—

He pricked up his ears and turned a startled face towards her for she had ceased her gibberish and was speaking to him in a normal, conversational tone.

"Sam! Quit shushing me. If you don't stop treating me like a lunatic I—I'll let out a yell. I'm not delirious; I'm a sensible as you are—Think that over for a minute. Look at me!—Do I look demented?—All right. I'm trying to tell you something of the greatest importance to both of us and it won't register. It sounds wild, I know, and too dramatic for any use but it's true."

"Alanna!" he cried in a choking voice. "If you're not out of your head, then I am."

Grain Reviews

AT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, May 28. (By John P. Boughan, A. P. Market Editor).—In unusual degree, high or low prices for wheat appear to be now squarely up to the Spring crop in the Canadian and United States northwest.

Suggestions are frequent that dollar a bushel wheat would become a reality in case of heavy damage to the Spring crop, which has still to pass through its greatest troubles. From any standpoint, most traders figure at present that the United States' 1932 Winter wheat crop is to be a small one, and there are not a few operators who assert that the total domestic Winter and Spring wheat harvest this season will be only about as large as this country's actual home needs—decidedly less should Spring wheat suffer deterioration.

Advances Shown

Compared with a week ago, wheat this morning showed advances ranging from ⅛ to 1 cent a bushel; with corn ¼ and 1 cent down, oats ⅛ off to ¼-¼ up, and provisions at 15 cents decline to an equal gain.

An interesting point made by trade authorities is that although immediate prospects imply a larger domestic spring wheat crop by far than the short one last year, the northwest will go into the new crop with small farm reserves. This circumstance, apparently means a fair amount at least of spring wheat will go at once into reserves. It is also asserted that the small farm supplies of wheat in the Spring crop belt should bring about a good early-season demand for hard Winter wheat southwest, if the hard Winter stock available is offered at all freely.

Corn and oats prices reflect belief that fairly liberal receipts of corn will be witnessed at terminal markets early in June and that corn acreage this season, especially in Kansas and Nebraska will total larger than expected.

Provisions are irregular; lard lower, means higher controlling factors have been increased, arrivals of hogs and better southern call for meats.

AT WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG, May 28. — (CP) — Wheat stands 1-8 to 5-8 cents a bushel higher today on the Winnipeg market than it did last Saturday, after a week of steady trading and a strong close. In view of general world conditions, advances in prices were distinctly disappointing.

May closed 5-8 up at 63 5-8 cents; July 1-8 higher at 64 and October 1-4 at 66 1-8 to 1-4.

With the market on holiday for May 24, some export business was done in cash of the four and a half sessions, but it probably did not exceed 1,000,000 bushels a day.

A greater appreciation in values might have been expected in view of the fact that generally news of the week was of a bullish nature. With no wheat out of Russia for the past six weeks, and with Spain and Portugal still short of grain, France again this week increased the proportion of foreign grain which French millers may use in milling.

Unofficial reports of damage to winter wheat crops in the United States indicate that country's crop may not reach 50 per cent. Australias exportable surplus is only half that of last year and India's crop will probably leave little or no wheat for export. Advances on the Winnipeg market seem to be checked by Chicago's inability to show increases.

In the early part of the week cash interest in wheat was indifferent and no business of any account was transacted, but a good demand for the top grades of wheat developed during the last days of the period. Apart from a fairly good export worked in barley in the early part of the week, actual sales of coarse grains were small, and pit trade in all coarse grain commodities was mostly local in character, consisting chiefly of routine spreading and investment operations.

MOSCOW, May 28. — Lord and Lady Passfield, who prefer to be known as Sidney and Beatrice Webb, arrived in Moscow from Leningrad yesterday for a six weeks' holiday in Soviet Russia during which they will study at first hand the application of Socialism, of which they are prominent supporters in Great Britain.

AUSTRIAN PLIGHT ALARMS IL DUCE

Calls Upon Nations to Join in Financial Conference.

MATTER OF CONCERN.

ROME, May 28 (C.P.). — Premier Mussolini considers the economic situation in Austria so grave that to-day he took steps to bring about an immediate meeting of the British, French, and German financial experts with the Financial Commission of the League of Nations in order that something may be done

The Premier instructed Foreign Minister Dino Grandi to have the Italian Ambassadors at London, Paris, and Berlin urge the three governments to hold the meeting without further delay.

The Austrian Government is expected within a few days to declare a transfer moratorium under which the exportation of Austrian schillings would not be permitted.

For several months the economic condition of Austria as well as the other Danubian countries has been a matter of grave concern. Several attempts have been made to assist these nations, notably at the recent four-Power parley in London, but thus far the Powers have reached no program of action.

SELECTIVE SELLING ON NEW YORK MART

Food, Utility and Tobacco Shares Bear Brunt of Pressure During Week.

(By John L. Cooley—A.P. Financial Writer).

NEW YORK, May 28.—One feeble technical rally was the stock market's best gesture this week.

Thursday afternoon's advance emphasized the close relationship now existing between market movements and U.S. Congressional disputes over means of balancing the budget.

On the other hand, Friday's relapse following reduction of the General Electric dividend suggested that the market was still interested in industrial prospects or lack of them.

Selling of stocks, taking the week as a whole, was rather selective, concentrating chiefly on food, utility and tobacco shares, which had been popularly regarded as "depression proof."

Business news of the week was not particularly cheerful. Steel operations receded a point as effects of buying by many automobile manufacturers began to wear off.

Earnings of railroads showed a large shrinkage in gross from a year ago, even if operating economies were reflected in net.

NO TRANS-OCEAN HOP PLANNED BY AIRMAN

CAMDEN, N.J., May 28. (CP) — Denying that he plans either a trans-Pacific or trans-Atlantic hop Lt. A. Harold Bromley took off from Central Airport on his interrupted flight to New York from Dallah, Texas.

Previous reports had indicated the Texas airman planned a flight from Seattle to Tokyo for a $30,000 prize but these were emphatically denied by Bromley as he streaked away in his Diesel-motored plane, leaving a twisting trail of black smoke.

Bromley spent the night in Camden after circling near New York and abandoning attempts to land there in a heavy storm yesterday. He said he planned a New York-Los Angeles non-stop flight as soon as the weather permits.

Manitoba is inaugurating its own aerial forestry patrol, replacing that formerly carried on over the province's forest areas by the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

MINING EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, May 28.— (C.P.)— Taking its cues from New York section Standard Stock and Mining Exchange market opened easy, recovered for a time and closed the short session with an irregular appearance. Sales totalled 51,000 shares.

International Nickel established a new low of $4.40, but rallied to finish with a 14 cent gain. Noranda was off 40, however, and Eldorado lost another 4.

In the gold group Lake Shore and Teck-Hughes recorded small recessions while Dome and Wright-Hargreaves made minor gains. Moss slumped towards the close under pressure and Bobjo and Moffatt-Hall were fractionally lower. Premier and Sylvanite were in slightly better demand throughout.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, May 28 (C.P.). — Losses of from fractions to more than a point occurred in a rather slow market on Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. A few new lows were uncovered on fractional recessions.

Page-Hersey Tubes at 40½ was off 1½ points, and Power Corporation at 7, off 1, to a new low. Steel dropped nearly a point to a new low at 13 5-8, and Brazilian was the lowest of the year at 8¼, off ¼ point. Bell Telephone, Nickel, Ford of Canada and the oils lost small fractions.

C.P.R. held at 9¼ at the close, up slightly from last night. Consumers' Gas and Montreal Power were unchanged. Walkers Common and Preferred, Brantford Cordage Preferred, P. N. Burt were the same as last night.

Banks stocks declined irregularly.

MONTREAL EXCHANGE.

MONTREAL, May 28 (C.P.).— Stocks were traded in unusual volume for the short Saturday session to-day in anticipation of a dull Monday with United States markets closed for the Memorial Day holiday. Leaders held firm locally to-day, but losses of a point appeared among one or two other issues.

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, May 28. (CP) — The stock market succeeded in throwing off early weakness today and closed with a steady tone. Net changes were irregular but narrow.

A rather substantial volume of overnight liquidation, reflecting Friday's decline, brought losses of 1 to 2 points for many leaders during the first half hour. However, covering in anticipation of the Monday holiday and a feeling that the tax bill would have made considerable progress by the time traders reconvened next week checked the sag and built up support for the recovery.

Tobacco, Utility and Merchandising issues bore the brunt of early liquidation but eventully joined other groups in retracing lost ground. Trading was fairly active in view of the fact that many traders were away for an extended week-end, transactions approximating 700,000 shares.

U. S. Steel, about steady all morning, closed with a fractional gain and there were small net advances for National Dairy, North American, American Can, New York Central, Westinghouse, National Biscuit and Coca Cola.

American Telephone, after dropping 1¾ to a new low, got back most of its loss. General Electric which dipped a point at the opening, made virtually complete recovery. American Tobacco "B" Liggett & Myers "B" and other Tobacco shares showed narrow net losses, although they had been 1 to 2 lower. Penney was heavy, off more than a point, but Woolworth steadied.

The complete score was 6-2, 6-4, 2-6, 6-4.

PROMISES DIE SO UNDERTAKER LANDS IN COURT

WAITED 15 YEARS.

NEW YORK, May 28.—Well, Les had the hearse on the boat, along with his new line of plain and fancy coffins for the Fall and Winter trade. He was going into the mortuary business in a big way. All he had to do was to get Alma McKay to come with him. That was a grave undertaking.

For Alma was a live one. Sure, she'd make the trip with Leslie Tavares, but only as the undertaker's bride and not his sweetie. She had been sharing that funeral trail from him long enough. It was time she heard the wedding march.

For fifteen years Les, she says, had been making promises and then burying them. Now he had better resurrect one of them and lead his more than willing girl friend to the altar.

Little Helper

She could help him a lot down there in Kingston, Jamaica, to get himself established as a mortician. Not that Alma would go out and do violence on the natives to drum up trade for Les, perish the thought! But a wife can do other things to make life cheerful for an undertaker.

For instance, Alma's good taste would help Les immeasurably in dressing up a snappy basket. And her thriftiness would teach him that chestnut wood is all that's necessary for coffins. It's cheapest, because it's full of knot-holes, but when it's covered with purple satin no one can tell the difference.

Hearse All Set

But where were we anyhow Oh yes, Les had the hearse and the coffins on the boat and he was going back after Alma. Well, he had to sail without her, for Alma wasn't delivering herself into the hands of an undertaker to be embalmed in a place like Kingston without stopping at the preacher's first.

So when Les got into town the other day to place an order for the latest models in snappy granite tombstones, Alma was ready for him. Her attorney, William Lambert, of 80 E. Forty-second street, had the breach of promise papers waiting, and Alma served them herself.

They call for $25,000 in your Uncle Sam's jack, even though your Uncle Sam's jack ain't what it used to be. Alma asserts Leslie's lawyer has something to learn if he thinks he can get away with just a general denial.

KITCHENER ASKS

OTTAWA, May 28. —(CP)— No particular significance is attached to the deportation of 37 foreigners from Kitchener, ordered by immigration board of inquiry, it was learned at the Department of Immigration here today. The same thing was taking place in many municipalities throughout Canada, it was stated, and such cases became more frequent and noticeable at times of unemployment.

The Kitchener deportees were not necessarily criminals or objectionable persons in the literal sense of the word, an official said, but were immigrants who had fallen upon evil times and because they become charges on the public were styled as "undesirable persons" under the law. When municipalities make complaints to the department, listing those they believe liable to deportation, the department must indeportation, the department must investigate. If those named are found to be in Canada in contravention of the law governing aliens, there was no recourse but to send them back to the country of their origin, he said.

Of the fifteen who failed to show up in Kitchener, after their names had been handed to the immigration officials, it was assumed that they had gone to the country to seek work on farms or in some other capacities, to avoid being sent home. In other instances it was often the case, the official said, that the subject was quite willing to leave Canada.

SHORT WAVE RADIO IS PROVING BIG SUCCESS IN FIGHTING CRIME

But Crime Gets Wise to Methods and Picks Off Police Despatches.

USED IN CANADA

(By James Montagnes)

TORONTO, May 28 (Special to The Examiner)—"Squad car 43. Two men are holding up the drug stor at the corner of ....."

The message is repeated. There is a click as if someone hung up the telephone receiver, and a new voice is heard with a list of stolen automobiles. Day and night these messages can be heard. They are the police radio stations of more than fifty United States and Canadian cities, counties and states, waging their war on the criminal with short wave radio.

The past four years has seen the adaption of short wave radio by the police of this continent. The latest city to have provided for the most up-to-date system is New York, which has spent $100,000 on a system which is fool-proof. From all parts of the continent, the listener on the short waves can hear these cryptic messages telling now of a purse snatching, now of an assault, of a hold-up, a fire, a burglary, the whole category of police business.

Winnipeg has had this system in use for a year or more, and now it is understood that Toronto police are studying the system with possible installation of it in that city.

The speed with which criminals can be apprehended under this system is the reason for its success. In Michigan, where the radio system has been worked out to cover the entire state, records show that more than half the would-be bank robbers have been caught within three hours of their committing the crime during the past year.

Speeds up Service

The short wave radio system consists of a number of central radio broadcasting stations, usually one in each city, but more than one in the larger centers. These go on the air at all hours, day and night, whenever they have a message for their officers in the city. The messages are picked up by small compact fool-proof receivers in fast motor cars. Loudspeakers or earphones are used. The messages tell the cruising car where to go and what has happened, this information coming into police headquarters through civilians who have suffered or have witnessed a hold-up, or through police officers communicating with headquarters by telephone. With the radio message despatched at once, the cruising cars can immediately leave for the district. In most cities certain cars are designated certain areas of the city, which helps speed up the service still more.

Michigan, which has state wide service, maintains a central broadcasting station at East Lansing. When this station goes on the air, its messages are received by all its radio scout and cruising cars, by the forty posts of the state police, and by every police station and sheriff's office within the state boundaries.

Detroit was about the first city to put in the system, and a recent survey made for a month period showed that radio directed within fifty-one seconds from the time the messages went on the air. Chicago during last year claimed ten thousand arrests, including forty murderers, to the system. Cleveland last autumn decided to triple the number of radio police cruisers in use. Indianapolis has forty-three cars equipped.

The police cruisers used in these cities carry a complete arsenal in addition to the radio equipment. This includes usually sawed-off shot guns, tear gas bombs, machine guns, and other light arms. The cars are large, fast heavily built machines with bullet proof glass and radiators. Cruisers are usually plainly marked, but scout cars act as the plain clothes vehicles of this latest police weapon, prowling in and out of traffic lanes, watching and listening.

Criminals Get Wise

The radio system has found opposition since the advent of commercial short wave receivers. Before these small receivers were placed on the market, the police practically had the ether eavesproof, except for the experiments. But since short wave receivers have been placed on the market, criminals have been using them to check up on the police and stay a few jumps ahead of the law-enforcing officers.

In order to overcome this difficulty no car may legally carry a short wave radio receiver in Michigan, except a police car. This law was passed when it was found that many gangsters and other criminals were equipping their automobiles with similar equipment to that used by the police.

The other methods put in force and which will likely go into any new city system to be placed in operation, is a receiver which will pick up only "scrambled" messages, and unscramble them for the police in the car. This system is being used to a considerable extent in trans-Atlantic telephone messages. By means of transmitting on several frequencies and with special apparatus it is possible to send words so mixed up that the listener not equipped with an apparatus to unscramble them, cannot make out the contents. Code transmissions have also been tried to overcome the eavesdropping criminal.

The air waves in the neighborhood of the police radio stations not only are busy with the calls of each city, but inter-state communication is also maintained, so as to apprehend fast moving automobiles and trains with fugitives from justice. To listen to all these calls and messages, to hear one city sign off and another come on without once moving the dial, is to hear the underworld of a nation in action. And while many of the calls are of interest to the listener, none is so fascinating as the message which tells of a crime being committed while the message is being sent. The imagination sees the police cruiser speeding to the scene of the crime, and as has on numerous occasions been the case, arresting the criminals while still at their job.

While the police radio system is aiding greatly in blocking much of the crime in the larger cities where the system is in use, police officials reporting assaults and hold-ups at once, not some time after the attack, when the criminal will have had a chance to make his get-away.

GROUP OF BRITISH SCIENTISTS HEAD OF S LAVE LAKE AREA

Will Send Balloons Up 10 Miles to Record Atmospheric Conditions.

Study Weather Forecast.

MONTREAL, May 25.—The advance guard of the group of British scientists who will study meteorological and geophysical problems of high latitudes in the Great Slave Lake area of the Northwest Territories, J. M. Stagg, of the Meteorological Office of the Air Defence, leader of the party, and A. Stephenson, are here awaiting the four other members of the party who are at present on their way across the Atlantic. They will all travel to Edmonton and then move by rail and steamer to their observation post on Great Slave Lake.

Fifty years ago Polar expeditions started from Montreal for points north for the making of observations on weather data. "Now," said Mr. Stagg, in an interview, "our party will co-operate in an international scheme. We have come to repeat in more modern form the work done fifty years ago at the same site. We hope to carry on our observations from August 31 of this year to Augst 31, 1933."

World Wide Scope

Mr. Staff pointed out that the scheme is of world wide scope and the representatives of each country will maintain a temporary observation post at some selected site in high latitudes.

During the Polar year, 50 years ago, Britain collaborated with Canada in setting up a station at Fort Rae on the north arm of the Great Slave Lake, but this year Canada is acting independently at Chesterfield Inlet on the Hudson Bay and at the mouth of the Coppermine River. The party from England will occupy the 1882-83 site.

Mr. Stagg said that a spectacular feature of the work of the British group will be the sending up of balloons to a height of 10 miles equipped with recording instruments. The instruments will be released automatically when the balloons reach a predetermined height, he added, and as they may fall anywhere in a 40-mile radius, the problem for the scientists will be to locate them when they have reached the ground.

Weather Forecasting.

The chief object of the mission, Mr. Stagg emphasized, is to advance the theory and practice of weather forecasting. Another purpose of the stay in the north will be to secure information with regard to the deflection of wireless waves over long distances. Well-known variations in intensity of wireless reception, he pointed out, is intimately bound up with magnetic disturbances.

Before leaving for the north, the party hopes to make arrangements with the Department of Indian Affairs to secure the co-operation of Indians and also of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

DEPRESSION SENDS UNEMPLOYED

This company built a dredge costing $150,000 which was placed in operation and was used for three or four days. During spring freshets, however, the boatmen broke and the dredge swung around high and dry on the shore. What is left of it still remains there.

Values obtained from this property averaged $1.27 per cubic yard taken from a series of 52 test pits. Considerable platinum was found on bars in the vicinity of the dredge, in some instances running as high as one ounce to the cubic yard. Platinum was worth $360 an ounce in those days.

Make Fair Pay

Other than the workings of roving prospectors no gold has been taken off that property since 1913. Transients, however, have worked the area constantly since then and have made as high as $11 a day. The Canal river, where the dredge was built, drains the Quesnel and Cariboo lakes.

The Hydraulic Placer Mining Company did considerable work on the banks below this property and there was also considerable activity in what is known as the Horsefly district.

Placer miner, 15 years ago, could be found on every bar downstream on the Fraser river from Quesnel to Hell's Gate, which is one mile below Lytton. Up from Lytton three or four dredges have been utilized. At one time Senator Pat Burns owned a large numberof placer claims on what is known as Bridge river.

There is a party of 12 men from Calgary at Spanish Mountain, further up the Cariboo trail, north of Likely, at the present time. Considerable development has also gone on in the vicinity of Adam Creek which was first discovered in 1915. Millions of dollars in gold have been taken outof the Big Ben district. This has come from the West side of the Columbia river North of Revelstoke. This country has been operated in open season, about three or four months, for the past 10 years. The east side of the Columbia has been overlooked although equal gold possibilities are there. Since 1849 there has not been a gold rush into the Cariboo country but a steady influx year by year of small parties has been reported.

"Copper, lead and galena are found throughout the district but low prices render development impossible. Gold is the only metal of value left in the district.

"Possibilities in this district have not even been dreamed of", the prospector said. "The ground has only been scratched. All work has been done on the waterways, the interior has not even been looked at yet.

He referred to horses being caught in this district. They are the descendants of horses which were taken into the country in 1849. They have multiplied and are now entirely wild.

In the Bid Bend country, he said, at the apex of the arch formed by the West and East branches of the Columbia is what is known as Mica Mountain which was taken up by Frank Moodie in 1907. Mica is in abundance in this area to the extent that water throughout the region has become saturated with it.

ELECTORS VOTE

havior of the men drove women away."

In a last-minute appeal, W. J. Gardhouse, the Liberal candidate, predicted a severe setback for the Government, and attacked the rate of interest paid on the reecnt Provincial loan.

Skies were grey and chill winds were blowing when electors went to the polls to-day. Owing to intensive campaigning, however, a heavy vote is expected.

A scene of indescribable confusion—generated by the lung-power of some 500 people who crowded the auditorium of South Runnymede School to hear last night's last-minute political guns, including Premier Henry, in the West York by-election— broke out, and remained in that broken-out condition in response to the following assertion by Russell Nesbitt, K.C., in the course of his speech supporting Harry I. Price's candidacy: "I repeat the statement, that the Conservative Party in Canada and in Ontario has been a friend to Labor. We were passing legislation for Labor when two-thirds of you people in the back areas of the hall were in England or in Russia."

Lid Is Off

Whamii! The lid was off. Chairman Lang's gavel pounded on the mahogany, but even at the press table it sounded like dropping pebbles in a very deep well.

"Take back that statement!" "Who do you think you are?" Men stood to their feet in all sections of the auduence, each clamoring to be heard, but, to a man, pointing a threatening finger or hurling a protesting word toward the author of the alleged affront—who, truth to speak, stood quietly on the platform, shaking visibly. More than a dozen women got up and left the hall, and Chairman Lang simply yelled at the top of his voice, "For God's sake, is this a British meeting, or is it not? Where's your idea of fairplay?"

Then from sheer exhaustion, a semblance of quiet was gained, and the Chairman motioned to one of the protestors to come to the platform. In the hush that followed, the expectant throng heard their unknown champion declare: "Any man born under the British flag has the courage of his convictions. Men who have given their services to the Empire as well as to Canada at least should be protected from such a slur" (Cheers).

"Take it Back" Is Cry

A dozen voices in chorus: "Take it back, take it back." The Chairman yelled at this group: "How can he take it back, if he can't be heard?"

Mr. Nesbitt again momentarily got the floor to say, "This is the first time I ever understood it was no compliment to have been born in England. I repeat what I said ...." Again the crowd intervened. Pandemonium took complete control. Mr. Nesbitt concluded hurriedly: "I haven't anything to apologise for. I wouldn't say a word against England, Ireland or Scotland, Anyone knows I'm too good an Imperialist for that (Jeers and cheers). A lady in the audience stood and fairly screeched: "The gentleman meant no harm. Give him a chance to speak."

"I've been too long speaking before public audiences...." continued Mr. Nesbitt, when a voice from the rear of the hall yelled: "And too long tonight" which led the crowd into waves of laughter, as Mr. Nesbitt decided that his time was up, and retired to a chorus of "Boos."

SHIP RABBITS FOR SLAUGHTER

Sam Touchburn Shipped 30 Rabbits to Elmwood Company.

NEW CANADIAN INDUSTRY.

Samuel Touchburn, 22 Aberdeen avenue who has been raising rabbits for the past four months made his first shipment from this city to-day to the Elmwood Company, Limited, Highland Creek. The shipment consisted of 30 rabbits about three months old ready for slaughter and to grace the tables of citizens in Ontario. Mr. Touchburn some few months ago purchased one unit which consists of one male and nine females and to-day he had over 90 rabbits and he expects shipments to go forward to the packing company at regular intervals all summer. The Elmwood Company which is situated near Toronto has already placed about 180 rabbits in Peterborough and district and this new industry is expected to bring a livelihood to many residents. The company has a complete packing plant and is able to handle 1,000 rabbits a day. Mr. Touchburn in talking to The Examiner declared that while this was a new industry in Canada it had proved a big success in the United States and he had every hope that it would be most profitable to the rabbit raisers in Ontario.

A special breed of rabbits is being raised and Mr. Touchburn declared that the female rabbit lived on less than it would take to feed a hen.

CHURCH BOARDS WILL NOT MEET

Most Rev. C. L. Worrell Makes Move to Conserve Church's Resources.

SYNODS TAKE ACTION.

TORONTO, May 28 (C.P.)—With a view to the conservation of the church's resources and in response to a resolution of a conference of a General Synod committee with a joint committee named by the Missionary Society, the General Board of Religious Education and the Council for Social Service, Most Rev. C. L. Worrell, Primate of the Church of England in Canada, has decided not to call a meeting of the executive council of General Synod for this autumn. The executive committees of the Missionary Society, the General Board of Religious Education and the Council for Social Service, have also decided not to hold the usual annual meetings of these three boards this year. Such action had already been taken with reference to meetings of the Provincial Synods of Canada (the Maritimes and Quebec), Ontario and Rupert's Land.

While these gatherings, bringing together large numbers of clerical and lay representatives from all parts, are exceedingly valuable, it was felt that the General Synod last year had dealt fully with matters of outstanding importance, and that the membership of the church would appreciate the great saving effected at this time in expenditures. The original plan was to hold the meetings of the executive council and the three boards in Halifax in the week of Sept. 5. This year the executives of the boards will meet in Toronto during the week of Sept. 12.

CO-OPERATIVE EFFORT NEEDED SAYS SPEAKER

James Irwin, Cheese Grader, Addresses Campbellford Cheesemakers' Association.

AT CAMPBELLFORD.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 28 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent).—"The cheese business has certainly got to be looked after or we will not be holding these meetings next year," declared James Irwin, Dominion cheese grader, addressing the first of the summer meetings of the Campbellford Cheesemakers' Association held last evening in the Campbellford grading station. Mr. Irwin stressed the necessity of co-operative effort on the part of the producers and makers through the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association and the Central Ontario Patrons' Association to further the work of the industry during the coming season.

The meeting, which was well attended, was presided over by President W. V. Drewery of Warkworth. The summer schedule of meetings, many of which will be held at the cheese factories and at which will be featured special speakers, is as follows:—June 9, Morganston factory; June 23, Trent Valley factory; July 15, grading station; July 28, Burnley factory; August 11, IXL factory; August 26, grading station; September 8, Trent Bridge factory; September 23, grading station.

Makers Have No Control

Mr. Irwin, speaking on the present price condition, pointed out that the producer was not getting what his products were worth, but this was something over which the makers had no control, yet which demanded all the help and assistance that could be given by them to the farmers. Of the troubles regarding the cheese this year, he thought that they were very few. Very few of the pick-outs to date were from the Central Ontario section. Wherever he had been this season he declared that he had never seen finer Spring cheese. Cheese trouble was still prevalent, but he felt that the steaming of cans which was becoming quite a regular practice now was eliminating a great deal of this.

Mr. Irwin felt that much of the cause of cheese trouble had been going on for years without being properly checked up, saying that he was in one factory where it took a tinsmith three full days to repair and solder cans against germ-containing seams. He would not say that all cheese trouble came from this source, but thought that it was responsible for a great deal of it.

The speaker also stressed the necessity of membership in the Central Ontario Association, pointing out that it really amounted to something. Membership tickets will be given this year which will act as an introduction to the trade and a letter of clearance to the trade, dairy supply houses, banks and other commercial institutions. "It will make you feel, he said, that you belong to an organization that amounts to something." The association, Mr. Irwin stated, had already worked hard for the interests of its members. One of its accomplishments being the elimination of the six per cent. sales tax that was imposed on making equipment.

Speaking of the difference the creameries were charging for butter over the price of fat the speaker stated that this could be overcome through a proper organization.

Must Back Product.

Mr. Irwin spoke strongly on the matter of the dairy conference held in Ottawa on April 11 and 12, and at which he declared the cheese industry had no proper backer. The butter industry had demanded a bonus on butter at this session, and if this had been granted it would have been a serious blow to the cheese interests. The cheesemakers had to get behind their organization and back it up.

Of the herd competition this season Mr. Irwin stated that some alteration had been made which included a division of the acreages and the addition of one prize in each class. This meant real money to the farmers for it helped them to increase the quality of their milk and obtain better tests. "The makers had a big job on their hands this year," he concluded, "and hoped they would measure up to the demand."

J. A. Murray, group instructor, welcomed to the section five new makers, two of whom were beginners in the cheesemaking game, the other three having made for some years. The outlook was good, he stated, and seemed to be responding to the steaming systems which were being installed in the majority of the plants this year. Better milk was coming in from the farmers, but despite this fact there was still trouble with the cheese. The Ontario report showed, he said, that pick-outs run all the way from 8 to 27s cheese, but no doubt much of this was caused in the West by the converting of many powder plants and condensers into cheese factories. Pick-outs this season for the first twelve days were 1,240, as compared with last year at 1,064, which showed an increase for this reason. He believed, however, that the steaming of cans was going to do much to eliminate a great deal of this trouble. Donald Shutt had done a lot of good in attracting the attention of patrons and makers to milk containers and the need for their cleanliness. A few cheese had been lost this season through bad flavor, he stated.

Mr. Third, president of the Trent Valley Factory, also gave it as his opinion that much of the cheese trouble came from dirty cans. In his factory a steaming outfit was being installed now.

Alfred Merrille, president of the Warkworth Factory, also spoke along the same line, giving it as his opinion that new patrons might cause some of the trouble, not knowing the stable conditions necessary for factory requirements. These people would have to be approached in the right way, he declared.

A resolution was passed by the meeting authorizing the secretary, Douglas Turney, to write the Department asking that any Government official be allowed to attend meetings when called upon to do so.

Other speakers included the honorary members of the association, S. A. Maguire and E. H. Lewis.

Maureen Orcutt Leads Qualifiers in British Women's Golf

U. S. GOLFER HAS 36 HOLE SCORE OF 151

MISS VAN WIE IS THIRD.

Helen Hicks, U. S. Champion, Piles Up Score of 174 With 44-42-86 Counts.

STAUNTON, England, May 28 (A.P.)—Maureen Orcutt, international star from Englewood, N.J., to-day led the field of qualifiers in the British women's gold championship, posting a 78 for her second round, for a 36-hole total of 151.

Enid Wilson, British star and defending champion, was in second place, only three strokes behind the invader.

The weather gods smiled on Miss Orcutt again to-day, the skies clearing as she started her final round. Miss Wilson and other early finishers were forced to play through a drenching rainstorm as they did yesterday afternoon.

Virginia Van Wie, another member of the United States delegation, was third, four strokes behind Miss Wilson. Miss Van Wie had an 81 to-day.

Has 174 Score

Helen Hicks, United States champion, came in through the rain with a 44, 42—86 for a 36-hole score of 174, rather close to the probable qualifying border line.

Ruth Batchelder, of Boston, took another 98 for a total of 196 and did not turn in her card.

Other leading scores:—

Mrs. Leona Cheney posted an 81 for her second round, and a 36-hole total of 159.

Miss Orcutt was out in 41; she was putting badly and on the sixth put a brassie shot into the rushes for an unplayable lie. She picked out and then missed a four-foot putt, taking seven for the hole.

Virginia Van Wie of Chicago, who had scored a 77 yesterday, added a steady 81 to-day for a 36-hole aggregate of 158.

Wanda Morgan, one of the chief British hopes, also scored an 81 for a total of 164.

Mrs. Opal Hill took two 43's for an 86 a 36-hole total of 174.

Mrs. Harley Elgin, Detroit player, was just on the border-line with a 89, 44—93 to-day for a two-day total of 180.

Diana Fishwick, British champion in 1930, added an 81 to her 87 of yesterday for a safe qualifying score of 168.

British Women's Open Golf At Staunton On Monday Next

LONDON, May 28.—(Special to The Examiner).—The British Women's open golf championship gets under way next week, and it looks as though it will be an American victory—providing the weather is good.

Fresh from their international matches played at Sandwich on Saturday last, the strong American team headed by Mrs. Glenna Collet Vare, Miss Helen Hicks, United States champion, and Miss Maureen Orcutt, Canadian titleholder, are slight favorites to take the British title from Miss Enid Wilson, present English champion.

But Miss Diana Fishwick, and Miss Wilson can be depended upon to give a good account of themselves at the Saunton course. Both are strong players, particularly long and accurate hitters, and know the course well. Add to this the fact that they are used to playing in soggy weather characteristic of English golf, there is really nothing much to choose.

If Miss Joyce Wethered were entered, there would be an outstanding favorite, for she is undoubtedly the greatest feminine golf star in the world today. Without her, the honor rests with Mrs. Vare, who is making her sixth attempt to take this elusive title back home. Five times has Mrs. Vare tried for the title, and five times has she been nosed out. This year she is determined to take it back.

The matches will start early Monday morning and continue until June the second.

In the above layout is shown (1) Miss Joyce Wethered; (2) Mrs. Glenna Collet Vare; (3) Miss Helen Hicks, and (4) Miss Enid Wilson.

LEAFS SWAMP INVINCIBLES

Winners Bunch Hits to Take 17-3 Victory in Trenton Softball League.

ERRORS EXPENSIVE.

WOOLER, May 28. (Examiner Correspondence). The Leafs broke their losing streak on Thursday evening in a league game with Whites Invincibles when they defeated them by a score of 17-3 in six innings.

To the Invincibles it was just one more lost game for they have lost all their league games this year but to the Leafs it looked like a turning point and a turn for the better.

The Leafs cannot claim to have won the game entirely through their own skill. Undoubtedly they would have won it, but it was the costly errors of the opposition which gave them such a large score.

There were no circuit clouts for either team, although Agis of the Invincibles dropped one in the bay, but the Leafs' hits generally came with one or two on bases and due to expensive errors a run or two was usually scored. Excitement ran high in the fifth innings when the bases were load with Invincibles and Ketcheson came to bat. He drove a hot one to shortstop but it was caught, making the three out.

Free was the Leafs pitcher and pitched good ball until after the ball was drowned in the lake and the water made the ball harder to control. Redcliffe, the regular shortstop was on the receiving end and played an excellent game. D. Lewis and R. Burtt made up the opposing battery. Lewis, although he walked some, pitched a ball that was hard to hit. It was rather slow at times and accustomed to fast pitching, Whitney was swinging too fast. The result was foul balls, resulting in one lost ball and one broken window. Culverson umpired behind the bat and Jordon on the bases.

Score by innings:

Leafs	1	3	2	3	7	1	—	17
Invincibles	0	0	2	0	1	0	—	3

Lineups:

Leafs: Steinberg, lf.; Reid, 2b; Whitney, 1b; Stacey, b; Davy, rf; Redcliffe, C.; Ruttan, cf; Putnam ss.; Free, p.

Invincibles: Louis, p; Benham and Johnson ,ss; R. Burtt, c.; Nelson, 2b; Ketcheson, cf; G. Purdy, 1b.; C. Purdy, 3b.; Whyte, rf.; Agis, lf.

Barrow's Blunder Lucky Break for New York Mauler

Gehrig's string is now past the 1,000 mark, but it was nearly halted at 1,059 because of the law. Sickness hadn't been able to make him miss a game. The injury jinx had been repelled. But there was an automobile accident court case that Lou had to attend. He hoped to have his testimony completed in time to allow him to get into the game scheduled at the Yankee stadium.

Outside the sun was shining brightly after a dismal and cold morning. It was one o'clock when Gehrig had entered the court room. The clock sprinted to 1.30. Then two o'clock. Columbia Lou fidgeted with a piece of paper. He squirmed in his seat. His mother whispered reassuringly. Now it was after two 'oclock and the game was scheduled up town at 3.15. Someone tiptoed over to Lou, whispered something in his ear. Lou grinned. The game had been caled off. He was content to remain in the court room all day if need be.

The mistake was that of Ed. Barrow, Yankee business manager, who has made precious few of them. When the sun had failed to come out in the early afternoon he called off the game. Within a short time clouds rolled away, the temperature arose. It was a summer-like afternoon.

But Gehrig didn't mind. The good old record was intact.

U. S. PLAYERS REGAIN TITLE FROM ENGLAND

Mrs. Woody and Elizabeth Ryan Defeat Mrs. Whittingstall and Betty Nuthall in Finals.

AT AUTEUIL, FRANCE.

Americans Play Almost Invincible Game Against English in Tennis Championships.

AUTEUIL, France, May 28 (A.P.) Mrs. Helen Wills Moody and Elizabeth Ryan regained for the United States the women's doubles title of the French tennis championships, defeating Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingstall and Betty Nuthall, of England, defending titlists 6—1, 6—3, in the final match.

The Americans were almost invincible against the English team, the only break in the first set coming when Miss Ryan dropped her service. After that lapse Mrs. Moody and her partner teamed up perfectly in the first set, the last four games going with the loss of only one point in each.

The British went ahead for the first time when they won the first game of the second set on Miss Nuthall's service, but Mrs. Moody evened the count, then broke Mrs. Whittingstall's service and were never headed.

SENIOR TENNIS SECTION FORMED

Peterborough, Campbellford, Tweed and Belleville Are Grouped Together.

EASTERN ONTARIO LEAGUE.

Peterborough, Tweed, Campbellford and Belleville are grouped together in the senior section of the Eastern Ontario Tennis League this year. This was decided at the league meeting held in Port Hope last night. Representatives were present from Belleville, Point Anne, Tweed, Campbellford, Oshawa, Bowmanville and Peterborough. Considerable business was transacted.

Chairman Armstrong, Oshawa, conducted the meeting along with Secretary Ross Strike, Bowmanville. The work done by the Central Ontario League last year was outlined. Mr. Moffat of Tweed was elected president for 1932, and the new secretary is H. A. Wilson, of the tennis section of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club. Gonvennors were also appointed.

Affiliation with the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association came in for much discussion, and the question was let stand for the time being. A schedule committee composed of Messrs. Wilson, Cranfield and MacTavish was appointed to draw up the senior schedule, which will be done in the near future, with Saturday, June 11th, set as the opening date.

The matter of declaring champions in the singles, doubles and mixed doubles through tournaments as held last year was discussed and agreed upon. Places for play will be decided upon later, with Peterborough likely to get either the singles or the doubles.

Kingston will enter the tournament, it was thought, but would not be active in the league this summer, and Oshawa, last years winner, will remain inactive also, because of considerdable play with Toronto. The senior grouping was then drawn up with Belleville, Tweed, Campbellford and Peterborough put in together. Following some further discussion upon various association plans, the meeting adjourned. The minutes will be sent to each place represented.

Mysterious Glamorgan

Glamorgan will be the mystery of this season's county cricket championship.

Bates and Bell, on whom Glamorgan for several seasons have had to rely largely for runs, as well as Hills, a younger professional, have been dropped, and Ryan, the slow bowler, who shared with Mercer the chief burden of Glamorgan's attack, is not now on the staff.

Drastic changes in the composition of the team leave cricketers wondering what sort of side they will be able to put in the field. Whoever the players are, however, they will have an enthusiastic captain in M. J. Turnbull, who is an avowed optimist.

It is the turn of youth to lift Glamorgan to the front of the cricket championship, and much depends on how they fare in their opening matches. Victories, or even narrow defeats, will beget confidence which may easily lay the foundation of a successful side. Turnbull, however, is unlikely to allow his vision to be darkened if the team does not strike off as well as he hopes.

Glamorgan do not play Yorkshire. They have Kent among their antagonists instead of Derbyshire, and competition matches with Notts, who in 1931 they encountered in "friendly" games.

RAJAH STILL IN MOOD TO PLAY OLD GAME

THOROUGHLY SATISFIED.

Practises Simple Methods in Bringing Cubs to Top of the Ladder.

CHICAGO, May 28. — Rogers Hornsby is manager of the Cubs, and as such has absolute control in fashioning his lineup, yet it's strictly up to the ball club he now has on the field whether he will become an active player.

That's a queer situation, isn't it? You see, it's this way: Just so long as the team as now constituted continues to click at its present pace, the Rajah will be content to sit on the bench and do the directing. Perhaps not content to do so, but he figures it is the best course to pursue.

You can tell by talking to Hornsby that he is itching to get into the thick of the battle. Knowing this, you can see that he is sacrificing his own desire to play for the best general interest of his club.

Must Try Youngsters.

There have been times this season when he might easily have worked himself into the lineup, or at least appeared as a pinch hitter, but he has stifled this desire. He was talking about it today and said:

"We have a few untried players on the team. I have used them in preference to myself simply because we must find out just how good they are—and before June 15. Putting a player into the game in a pinch is the best way to learn his qualities.

"The minute the club begins to slacken its pace, which I hope doesn't happ r, I will work myself into the lineup. It may be in the infield or in the outfield. The way the boys are going now, I see no immediate prospect of getting into the game."

Hornsby takes exception to the general impression that Father Time has caught up with him. He says, and not in a boastful vein, that he can move as fast as most of the players. And hit—well, no one has questioned his ability to paste that agate despite his 37 years.

No Master-Minding.

Of course, he admits that the years have robbed him of some speed, but you get the impression that he believes he can still play a strong game.

Hornsby does not have the so-called "master-mind" complex. He is using simple and straight-forward methods. Along this line he says:

"If nine men are good enough to start a game, they're good enough to finish it. Now take your pitchers. The fact that they have one bad inning should not be a signal to take them out. Study all the great pitchers and you'll find they usually have at least one tough inning.

"I don't like to use relief pitchers. I think this practice is far overdone. Of course, if your hurler clearly shows that he is through by getting hit hard and losing his control there is nothing to do but take him out."

Explains Grimes Case.

He explained why Grimes was taken out in the Boston game after pitching eight innings. The veteran had to do quite a bit of base running that day and told the Rajah he was "all in" after the eighth. Charley Root went in and Urbanski's drive was helped by a friendly wind to escape over the left-field wall. That lost the game, but the Rajah wasn't the victim of master-minding.

Hornsby would like to have a slugger to drop in the No. 4 spot—a batter who would put fear in the heart of opposing pitchers—but as the season wears on he sees little chance of landing one.

He's not worrying about it, however, because he's satisfied with the progress of the team. Here's his size-up of the Cubs:

"We have a fast, scrappy ball club and, what's just as important, complete harmony. Pitching's 80 per cent and we have a great staff."

CLASS TO TELL BRITISH OPEN

Long-shot Triumph Will Prove Surprise Over Exacting 72-hole Course.

A SEVERE TEST.

LONDON, May 28 (C.P. Cable) — As the "giants" of the golfing world converged here for the British open championship, commencing June 6, experts were busily engaged in analyzing the hazardous princes layout and predicting that a long-shot triumph would prove a distinct surprise.

They rest their conclusions upon past experiences and on the claim that class will tell over an exacting 72-hole route, where consistency pays the biggest dividends. And princes demands this quality to the finest degree, for its 7,060 yards bristling with dog-leg holes, sandy wastes, dunes and the ubiquitous trap, does not allow much scope for the unwary or overbold player.

The course has often been dubbed the sugger's paradise, for any layout that stretches beyond 7,000 yards places a premium on length from the tees with ample opportunity for work with the brassie.

An idea of the severe test that will confront the title aspirants is given by scanning the official card. It reveals 13 holes each of 400 yards or upwards. And there is only one really short hole, the third, a 154-yarder, but it is diabolically trapped, and demands the keenest judgment of distance. The other two par three holes measure 200 and 216 yards respectively—a robust tee shot which, if even slightly off in line, is likely to bring disaster.

Inasmuch as medallists rely on a fair sprinkling of three's to keep their scores from mounting, it is generally believed that princes will exact a winning total of 300 or more, a figure which has not won the open title since 1924. That year Walter Hagen toured Holylake in 301 to beat Ernest Whitcombe.

"Tight buttoned"

Have You, The "Can't Afford It" Habit?

THE use of that phrase does not suggest the inability to buy so much as the desire to practice rigid economy . . . to save . . . to deny yourself needed and necessary commodities.

But Man, oh Man, and you, too, Madam, how better and more effectively can you practice economy and thrift than to buy when prices are at their lowest ebb in years? How more certainly can you insure economy than to replace worn or out-of-date furniture than when new is selling for one-third of what it sold for 15 years ago? Or to stock up on food products when they are 40% less than at any time since the war? Or clothing when $53 to-day will buy you what you paid $100 for in 1912?

What you really cannot afford to do is not buy because you cannot afford to miss to-day's low levels . . . prices that are an actual boon to reduced incomes . . . to the practice of sensible, far-sighted economy.

GRAIN, CATTLE, PRODUCE

GRAIN, CATTLE, PRODUCE.

TORONTO, May 28. — Butter prices on the local market held fairly steady this week, and brokers found a good demand for both Western and Ontario makes. Large lots of choice creamery solids were moved at 17¼c to 17½c for No. 1, and 16½c for No. 2. Receipts were not too heavy, and buyers were content to pay the above levels in order to secure supplies. There was not much change in conditions from those of last week, and quite a few carlots were handled.

Cream Firm.

Prices for churning cream were unchanged at the week-end, local buyers quoting the same levels as in eff ect last week-end. Special was worth 18c; No. 1, 17c; and No. 2, 14c, f.o.b. country points.

Cheese Steadier.

The cheese market showed a stronger undertone at the week-end, but prices locally were steady. Brokers quoted new makes at 9c for large, 9¼c for twins, and 9¾c for triplets. Retailers were quoting new makes at 10½c for large, 10¾c for twins, 11c for triplets, and 13c for stiltons.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, May 28.— Egg receipts here yesterday were 2,538 cases, as compared to 3,765 cases for the corresponding day last year. The egg market is steady and quiet. Receipts of Ontario graded shipments are selling on spot at, extras, 17½c; firsts, 14½c; seconds, 12½c, with a car of storage packed eggs reported sold at extras, 16c; firsts, 15c; seconds, 13c. Western shippers are asking, extras, 17c; firsts, 15c; seconds, 13c.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 28.—Bumped by trade forecasts of a 400,000,000-bushel United States carryover of wheat on July 1, grain values underwent late tumbles yesterday.

The huge carryover suggested would be 65,000,000 bushels in excess of the total a year previous. Another disturbing element was uncertainty as to what would be shown in monthly private crop reports, expected next week.

Wheat closed shaky, 3-8c to ¾c under Thursday's finish; corn, unchanged to ¼c to 3-8c lower; oats, unchanged to ¼c up, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 5c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 28. — Newfound strength in the securities gave a fractional hoist to grain prices here yesterday. Favorable export news from the Continent was an added factor. Values at the close were ¼c higher to unchanged.

May closed ¼c higher at 63¾c, July unchanged at 64c, and October unchanged to ¼c higher at 66¼c to 66⅛c.

At the top levels the market was ¼c to ⅜c higher, but a burst of selling near the close shaded the high figures. During the first hour there was a fair amount of buying for export. It was an aggravating market, with practically all conditions pointing to a good bull rally, but no advantage was taken of the situation.

A fair export trade was worked in cash wheat. Spreads were fractionally better than the previous close. Coarse grains were inactive, with values fractionally higher for the day.

With Faith in the Future Entire Store Will Be Remodelled.

PLANS BIG SALE.

Coming to Peterborough twenty years ago and starting in business in a very small way in the store still occupied by them, Mr. and Mrs. P. Black are celebrating their 20th anniversary in business this year. In establishing a business in the location in which they did at that time, it took a good deal of courage, at the corner of George and King streets, in fact the whole block was not the business block it is to-day, and with the future it now has. After many discouragements, but with faith in the future of the city and good business principles, the store has gradually expanded until it is an important one in the block, although the past two years have brought its worries to this store, as to other merchants.

Mr. and Mrs. Black have energetically and courteously looked after their business and have made many friends of the citizens of the city and district. Rather than leave the old established store, it has been purchased by Mr. Black this week, showing his faith in the soundness of real estate in Peterborough, and before remodelling and putting it into a more modern store, Mr. and Mrs. Black are going to ask the public to celebrate their 20th anniversary with them in an opportunity to share in the largest sale event the store has ever put on in Peterborough. The store will be remodelled now, when every bit of work of this kind is appreciated, and in order to do this, at least 75 per cent of the stock of Ladies' and Misses' Clothing and Millinery must be sold through an anniversary and remodelling sale, particulars of which will be announced in a day or two.

Guarantee Is Signed For 1932 Chautauqua

HAVELOCK, May 26 (Examiner Correspondence)—Contrary to expectations, the required number of committeemen have been signed up, to bring the Canadian Chautauqua to Havelock again next spring. Fifty in the community have pledged themselves to make up any deficiency in the five hundred dollar guarantee required. Of these about twenty-five are new guarantors. Opinion in the community has been divided as to the advisibility of having Chautauqua come again next year, a great many being of the opinion that this year it was not up to the high standard of the two previous seasons. In fact some of the guarantors were quite disappointed in some of the programs. It was also felt that the sum required in the guarantee was far too much money to be given to an interest outside the village. However Miss Murphy the efficient director worked very hard, and managed to get fifty signatures, and closed the contract on Monday evening.

The fifty guarantors for this year were each required to put up $3.30 outside the tickets sold or purchased.

GREENBACKS FOR GOLD.

WARSAW, Poland. — As a result of alarmist newspaper stories concerning the currency of the United States more than $150,000 in greenbacks are being changed daily into United States gold coin at a premium of two cents on the dollar. A group of exchange operators is travelling between Warsaw and Paris, where the gold is obtained at par.

No "just as good" oil says lubrication expert

In every line of endeavor there is always a leader—and countless followers. The field of household lubrication is no exception. Unfortunately the general public doesn't always appreciate the difference between the real thing and the "just as good"—but household experts do.

They know an oil intended for general household lubrication shou'd clean and protect as well as lubricate. 3-in-One Oil does these three things, because it is a scientific compound of three high grade products — animal, mineral and vegetable oils. It is distinctly in a class by itself.

3-in-One costs more to make than ordinary oil, but less to use. If you want the best possible service from your sewing machine, vacuum cleaner, lawn mower, washer, electric fan and other household devices, insist on the old reliable 3-in-One Oil. At good stores everywhere. For your protection, look for the trade mark "3-in-One" printed in Red on every package.

Make Presentation

MARMORA, May 26. (Examiner Correspondence).—A pleasing function marked the close of the business session at the regular meeting of Harmony L.O.B.A. 600 on Thursday evening. The presentation of a handsome china tea set was made to Sister Mrs. W. Kerr, Junior, a bride of the month. The presentation was made by Sister Mrs. Ada Potts, P.M., Guardian of the Lodge while the address was read by Sister Miss Florence Sopha, Recording Secretary. The recipient made brief but fitting reply. Choice refreshments were served at the close.

Creeks Around Cavan Stocked With Trout

MILLBROOK, May 26.—(Examiner Correspondence). — Thirty-seven thousand trout fry were placed in the creeks of Millbrook and Cavan on Thursday, Mr. Dunn, of the Department of Fisheries, Toronto, and A. Weddell, of Peterborough, having the task in charge. Twenty-seven thousand was the number allotted to local creeks, and ten thousand at Cavan.

Councilor J. R. Eakins and R. H. Edmunds were local representatives who went with the government officials while the supplying of the creeks with the fry was in progress. Evidently followers of Isaac Walton have a good time to look forward to in future days while pursuing their favorite sport in this vicinity.

MILLBROOK AND BAILIEBORO INSTITUTE WORKERS HOLD RALLY

Many Splendid Tips Given by Mrs. J. M. Percival, Departmental Speaker.

READINGS, SOLOS ENJOYED

MILLBROOK, May 28.—(Examiner Correspondence).—A central table, piled high with vari-colored articles, al useful as well as ornamental, stimulated interest and pointed many lessons of practical value for the large gathering of Women's Institute workers, including the Millbrook and Bailieboro branches, held in the Sunday school hall of Christ Church, Bailieboro, on Thursday afternoon, the speaker sent out by the Department from Toronto being Mrs. J. M. Percival of Addison, who is spending this week in East Durham in connection with the summer series of public meetings.

The district president, Mrs. T. A. Skitch, of Bailieboro, who was in the chair, welcomed the visiting speaker and as an informal introduction of the visiting branch to the members of the hostess society and to the guest of honor, asked the large delegation from Millbrook to stand when they were warmly received, the presiding officer urging a spirit of unity, and the use of note-books in order that the highest good might result from the joint gathering.

Beautifying Farm Home

"Inexpensive Beautification of the Farm Home" was the theme of Mrs. Percival's initial address, the many articles on the table being the work of her clever fingers, and as she described their material and making, they were passed round for a 'close-up' by the listeners as an aid to better understanding, and possibly the awakening of a desire for copying these helps toward making the home more lovely at small expense.

Rugs, hooked, crocheted, knitted, and braided; comforters, made with Canadian wool filling, and a "Quebec" quilt that also used this wool in the small puffed squares, the speaker bringing the cheering message that the government will soon have handicraft teachers available for the Institutes; quilts, and other things made from feed bags of which Mrs. Percival said she had a surplus on her home farm; "socks by the yard" to which feet alone must be added; samples of lovely work made from crepe paper rope, the method of twisting being demonstrated; basketry; and pottery with plaster of paris, combined with lime and flour paste making the raised flowers, etc., were among the many samples which were closely viewed, questions as to their construction asked, and much helpful information acquired.

Having dealt with the inside of the farm home, Mrs. Percival turned to the improvement of the outside, urging the planting of shrubs, plants, and hedges, "nice surroundings, especially if your home is on the highway, being a real aid in the big task of beautifying our community, and our country. Do not forget that he have a life to live, as well as a living to make, and beauty is a decided help in enlarging our horizon, resting frayed nerves, tired bodies, and feeding souls. The expense need not be heavy for shrubs, are down in price now, and neighbors are always glad to make an exchange, and in the end you will be well repaid for the time and labor expended."

Contributing to the program at the opening, and between the addresses, were Miss Audrey Wood, who played a piano solo, as did also Miss Mabel Thorne, and Mrs. Harold Dawson; Miss Corona Hanbidge, whose recitation, "How a stingy man's second wife refused to be imposed upon," was enjoyed as was the reading from Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew," by Mrs. W. McKee Bingham, the latter's vocal solos, "Bendimere's Stream," drawing forth warm applause.

Side Lines.

Responding to the request for a second address Mrs. Percival chose "Profitable Side Lines in Farming", listing from experience on the large home farm of which she is the homemaker, such things as poultry raising, with many details of feeding, and other care, fully explained; dairy farming is outstanding in Leeds county from which the speaker came, but her personal belief that more money is made from poultry was substantiated by the statement that eleven hundred dollars was cleared from this source on the homestead last year. "Of course it means hard and careful work; we only got thirty cents a dozen for hatching eggs this season, but have sold over nine hundred dozen; we ship direct to the hatcheries, mostly at Trenton and Napanee. Careful packing is also essential, to avoid loss from breakage, and good brooders and good lighting are likewise necessary. We make money out of our broilers, and plan to have our fowl laying in October, November, and December when peak prices prevail."

Fruit raising, with special attention to the smaller fruits like berries of all kinds, and also recommended as profitable, and the audience was urged to do up homegrown fruits, vegetables, and meats for winter consumption by the family as an aid to health, and to avoid the expense of buying these articles canned, the speaker declaring that she does five hundred jars each season for her household. Marketing came in for attention as another way of raising money, and a sugar bush was urged as "a natural asset on a farm," the speaker showing a pound print of maple sugar as a 'good seller' from the bush of twelve hundred trees at the Percival home. Syrup and maple butter are substantial revenue producers likewise, at the same farm.

Essentials.

In closing the visiting official mentioned some essentials of Institute work as kindness, a practical instance of this having come under her notice while addressing a meeting at Charlecote the previous day, when a big basket containing a shower of many useful household necessities had been brought in an presented to a member who had lost her home recently by fire. Unity and progressiveness were stressed finally, and the suggestions from the Department asking co-operation with the Lord's Day Alliance, the teaching of music in the schools, the preperation of fruits and vegetables, with other items of interest were given attention in the concluding sentences of a most inspiring series of messages by a capable speaker who said: "I come to you off the farm, and have been all my life a rural resident."

The Bailieboro branch served a delicious tea at the close of the meeting, Miss Incas and Mrs. J. L. McCamus sponsoring the vote of thanks to the speaker and all who had contributed to the program. The district annual will be held in Millbrook probably on June 10, the president announced.

School Board Meets

The regular meeting of the School Board was held in the school room on Thursday evening, May 19th with all members present.

The action of the board at its previous meeting in authorizing the signature of the treasurer as being sufficient on cheques was criticized by Trustee Post.

Principal Yuill was given permission to have two new maps framed. Principal Coates was authorized to purchase supplies from A. C. Denike for the June examinations.

Miss Inkster waited on the board, asking that approval be given an interchange with Miss J. C. Hendershott of the Public School staff of Saskatoon, Sask. On motion of Post and Smith, her request as granted, providing that the religious persuasion of the Miss Hendershott was Protestant.

Inspector Copp who was present at the meeting, also consented to the interchange.

A communication was received from the Deputy Minister of Education regarding the results of examinations for the Continuation School, and on motion of Post and Ketchen he will be advised to send them to Principal Coates at Brussels.

Inspector Copp addressed the board relative to the Departmental grants for the present year, and pointed out the advisibility of the board, through its chairman and secretary, keeping in touch with him regarding the amount of salaries paid somewhat prior to the end of 1932.

Trustee Post advised the board that he was moving to Kingston, but in order to save the expense of an election he would be willing to attend the board meetings for the remainder of the year, when the position can be filled in the ordinary way. The board expressed satisfaction in the course proposed by Mr. Post.

On motion of Leeson and Ketchen the board expressed appreciation of the visit of Inspector Copp, and the information given regarding the grants.

The following accounts were ordered paid: W. Mathison, insurance premium, $39.20; Canadian Fire Insurance Co., $14; Guardian Assurance Co., $19.60; F. McAdam, removing ashes, etc., $4; A. C. Denike, minute book, 90 cents; F. J. Squires and Sons, acct., $2.06; J. Jacobs, timing pump, $4.50.

The board then adjourned until the next regular meeting or the call of the chairman.

TWENTY ENROLLED IN SEWING CLASS

Miss McLaughlin of Toronto is Instructress at Havelock Course.

HAVELOCK, May 28 (Examiner Correspondence)—The sewing and dressmaking course sponsored by the Women's Institute is now well under way in the council chamber. Miss McLaughlin of Toronto is the efficient instructress and there are twenty young women taking the course.

The first day was devoted to teaching a few simple stitches, and the proper way to put in a set-in-pocket. The second day the members learned how to make pin cushion forms, using empty baking powder cans, which were partly filled with sand or sawdust, covered first with wadding then with factory cotton. After the form was made the individual members covered them with leftover pieces of silk placed a dolls china three quarter figure on top and made a long full skirt, which when all put together made a very attractive and useful dresser cushion. The beauty of this particular form is that needles or pins do not penetrate right into the centre and out of sight.

On Wednesday the lesson was on making a welt pocket, and a number of the members expressed their delight at the ease with which this was accomplished when one knew the correct way to do it.

On Monday the members will each start a dress or slip, whichever she prefers to make, and under the direction of Miss McLaugh-

Commission Seeks Rate Cut For Tweed

TWEED, May 26 (Examiner Correspondence) — At a meeting of Tweed Hydro Commission held on Thursday evening, several communications were read regarding a rate reduction for Tweed. The local commission have been in constant touch with the Ontario body in this regard and it begins to look as though some results will be obtained.

A letter from F. A. Gaby revealed that "Tweed is in a fair position to receive a cut." Messrs. chairman Sayers and Rollins and Hindle as well as manager Rose are confident of the outcome.

It was also decided to extend the wiring at cost plan which has resulted in several new consumers and a number of homes being wired. The other matters discussed were chiefly of routine nature and several accounts were passed.

McGee—Cotton Win

On Tuesday afternoon a local tennis tournament was held on W. S. Gordon's tennis courts. Most of the enthusiasts were out in mid-season form. Casey Rashotte and Ross Maguire showed exceptional ability and should be coming champions.

Mr. and Mrs. Broddribb of Belleville; Reg Leworthy, of Hamilton; Maxwell Cotton, of Peterborough and Dawson Boyd of Kaladar were among the guests.

The winners of the first round were: Mr. and Mrs. McTague, Mr. and Mrs. Moffat, G. Gordon and McGee, Calvert and Maguire, Moffat and Rashotte.

The finals between Mr. and Mrs. McTague and McGee and Cotton created much excitement with McGee and Cotton finally capturing the trophy.

CORDS CONTRIBUTE TO TIRE STRENGTH

Prize Contest Emphasizes Important Feature.

What is a tire made of? "Rubber," says everybody. But that's wrong. There's rubber in a tire, of course, but there are cotton cords and wire cables, too. Across Canada people are getting curious about tires. The main reason is that the Goodyear people are offering money prizes to those who can guess how many cords are inside an average tire.

At first those who were interested in making a guess were somewhat puzzled. "What is a cord?" they asked. They were told that the best place to find out about cords in a tire is a tire store. So they visited tire stores.

They were shown a cross-section of a modern tire. They were told that the cords, so plainly visible, were the skeleton of the tire; the framework that supplied the strength. This was interesting, so they kept on asking questions until they knew quite a lot about tires.

Across Canada the new sport of "cord guessing" has become popular overnight. In Halifax the Goodyear dealers say that old and young are showing a surprising interest in the inside of tires; in Winnipeg the same story is true, and the guesses from Vancouver are piling up. Rural car owners are entering the contest in large numbers. In every centre in Canada there is a Goodyear dealer, where entry forms can be secured.

Any one can enter the contest by securing an entry form from a Goodyear dealer, making the estimate and sending it in on this form. There is no entry fee and no other conditions. Nothing has to be purchased.

Six types and sizes of tires have been selected upon which to base the estimate. These are on view at all Goodyear dealers. It is the average number of cords in these six tires that is to be estimated. It is stated that only one or two people in the Goodyear organization actually know the correct number, which is now deposited under seal with a trust company. But in order that no one may have any special advantage, all employees of Goodyear and other rubber companies and their families are debarred from competing.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE WEEKLY COLUMN

A goodly thing it is to meet

Or dims the radiant light
No unkind word our lips shall pass.
No envy sour the mind;
But each shall seek the common weal—
The good of all mankind

LIFFORD LINE.

The subject of an interesting Institute talk recently, was "Cooking for Two."

Is there a young girl whose day-dreams have never held a picture of a breakfast table flooded with sunlight, and set for two? Or who has not in fancy presided at a quiet candle-lit table and lingered over a leisurely dinner with just the right companion? Undoubtedly the charming intimacy suggested by a table set for two has an appeal that cannot be denied.

But modern brides realize that even such romantic settings as those pictured have a practical foundation. They know that a breakfast table must bear much more than a flood of sunshine to make the picture complete. They know also that the romantic aura enveloping the candle-lit table may be quickly dispelled if the practical side has been sacrificed to the artistic.

The young bride is not the only one, however, who is faced with the problem of cooking for two. There is the bride of twenty-five or thirty years ago, who, after busy years of raising a family, suddenly finds herself just where she started. True she has a multitude of experiences to guide her, but it is often more difficult to break the habit of cooking for several than to learn the rules of cooking for two.

Then, again, the companionship dinners of two business girls sharing an apartment, present different but equaly attractive pictures, and no one appreciates food hints more than these same independent young householders.

The individual problems of successful catering for two are many and varied, but for the most part easily overcome. The whole question resolves itself into three phases—planning, purchasing and preparing.

For beginners there is nothing that brings a greater sense of preparedness than a well-thought-out menu for a week or so ahead. And you seasoned house-keeper, who may never plan further than the next meal, will find work and worry lessened, and bills lowered, if you get the habit of planning ahead.

To sum up—"Each person, each day, should have one quart of milk, two salads, two liberal helpings of leafy green vegetables, one small helping of meat, two eggs, and anything else within reach that the appetite demands, including a liberal supply of bread and butter, fruits and various vegetables.

The greatest problem is to purchase wisely and economically the materials necessary. Of course there are certain staples which should always be at hand. To these with a selection of canned fruits, vegetables, meats, fish and soups, additions or subtractions will be made to suit individual tastes, circumstances and storage space.

Proper preparation of the food is an essential both for attractive and economical meals. Carefully following every detail of a good recipe will ensure satisfactory results, and practice will make perfect. But, you say, the recipes all serve five or six people. In most cases excellent results will be obtained when half the recipe is used, and as you perfect each recipe write the amounts used on the margin of your cook-book, so that you won't need to do a little arithmetic problem every time that you bake. There is another point of interest, when using a fraction of a recipe. If only a part of an egg is required, beat it slightly, measure by spoonfuls and the amount needed. Or in many cases you will find it quite satisfactory to add the whole egg and reduce the liquid somewhat.

WARSAW

Mrs J. A. Crowe, who succeeds with nearly any flower she attempts to grow, was unable to be present at the last Institute meeting until near the close, and write some notes on rose culture for Mrs. Arthur Edwards to read.

She did not think out door culture of roses very difficult, if one loved the plants and took proper care. There are many lovely roses to choose from and many are not so expressive if we consider their beauty and length of life. Soil must be well worked and well fertilized, and should be prepared in the fall, even if you plant in the spring. Some people procure their bushes in the fall, cover them lightly with earth, and as soon as they can be planted in the spring, place them in a tub of water for twelve or more hours and plant. Long awkward roots should be cut off, also one third of the upper part. The hole should be dug deep and large enough to accommodate the root without cramping, soil filled in around, root shaken, to get earth all around it, and pressed well with the foot to firm it, and keep air from the roots.

The rambler roses are very easily grown, and are lovely trained on trellis, verandah, porch, pergola or summer house. The most common are the crimson rambler.

In August of each year, remove all ripe, dead wood, so the young shoots may have more room to grow. For the first year or two they do need some protection and should be laid down and covered with old sacks, evergreen boughs or any thing to protect against the weather.

Mrs. Crowe read a few verses from "My Neighbor's Rose."

"The roses red upon my neighbor's vine
Are owned by him, but they are also mine.
His was the task and his the labor too,
But mine their joy as well as his,
Their loveliness to view."

CAVAN

One of the most common difficulties met with by farmers and poultrymen in raising baby chicks in large numbers with brooders is cannibalism. Especially is this a characteristic of the Leghorns. Chicks pick each other drawing blood either on body or toes. Locally three flocks, at least, have been experiencing trouble from this tendency.

In one flock of Leghorns, at four weeks of age they began feather-pulling, followed by eating the flesh exposed; practically all the tail feathers would be pulled out, and the chicken would invariably die from cannibalism which followed, unless immediately removed.

Another flock at a much earlier age, gave trouble by picking each other's heads, and still another by toe picking. Causes given by poultry experts are over-crowded conditions in the brooder house, lack of sufficient hopper feeding space and water fountain space, a lack of something in the ration, too much heat or too much light in the brooder house.

Allow the chicks more range in the house or yard. Remove chicks that are bloody from the remainder of the flock at once, and apply a coal tar preparation to injured parts.

Provide more feed hoppers and water fountains. Do not allow the brooder house to get too hot. In extreme cases darken the brooder house.

If weather permits arrange a place to have the flock run outside each day. Keep the chicks active. Have a good litter on the floor.

Hang up bunches of greens for the chicks to jump and pick at.

Cannibalism is not a disease but a vicious habit, quickly learned by the entire flock of chicks from one or two that have just discovered the habit.

If there is too much light, the windows can be shadowed by painting the glass with blue paint.

Helpful hints for Institute workers, given in answer to the roll call at an Institute meeting.

To clean carpets or rugs—Beat carpets first on the wrong side, then on the right side, then have someone take hold of the opposite corner and draw the face of the carpet across the lawn.

To give senna to children, steep an ounce in a pint of boiling water, cool and strain, add one pound of prunes or raisins and stew gently until the fruit has taken up all the liquid. Give the child a teaspoonful according to age.

Instead of filling the bread-mixer with water and having it standing around, pour a little boiling water into it, put on lid and lay a cloth over it to keep in steam. In a short time the tin may be washed and put away.

Small, washable rugs may be washed in a machine, but should not be put through a wringer. Hang them dripping wet on the line to dry. They will then keep their shape.

Grease may be removed from the sink by a strong solution of washing soda and boiling water. The sink should first be scrubbed with soap suds and the hot solution then dashed down the drain.

Another suggestion was regarding rest for the homemaker. When sitting sewing, change your chair occasionally from a high one to a low one. This brings the strain on other muscles and relieves the tension. If you have to stand for a long time, as in ironing, stand on a flat cushion or thick rug. You will not be nearly so tired at the end of the day.

MILLBROOK

An executive meeting of a district Institute brought together a group of interested workers who somehow drifted into a discussion that might well have been labelled "How do you frost your cakes?" a number of useful suggestions being advanced and jotted down for future reference.

The district president, being a wise woman, and seeing the trend of the discussion, once the details of the coming district gathering had been suitably arranged quietly directed the conversation so practical results might follow to the benefit of all concerned.

"Most of us," she said, "find the plain, unfrosted cakes are best for our families on the regular bill of fare, but there are occasions when we like to 'dress up' a cake as a surprise for the household, and for our expected or unexpected guests. The old standbys are all right, and yet it makes our cooking a pleasure to try new and original ideas once in a while, and have you noticed how it makes even a cake made from a simple recipe seem new and quite elaborate when it has an attractive icing?"

One of those present declared that when she used a simple recipe for a soft filling for her cakes, she found just sprinkling the top with powdered sugar made a nice finish, and one her family preferred to a sweet or elaborate icing as well.

Another told of her discovery that better results are obtained if the rule is followed of always pouring the icing on the centre of the cake and then spreading with a flat knife blade; "then the sides are readily done by just letting the icing roll slowly over from the top and directing it with the knife rapidly, if necessary, and taking care that no drops fall down to the plate alongside."

Agreeing that a careless-looking cake is certainly not as appetising in appearance as one that is neat and nicely finished, however rich may be the ingredients, the little group of interested workers went on to give recipes each had tried and found good, a peach icing being one that several jotted down for future use: One-half cup thick peach syrup, one cup powdered sugar, one tablespoon crushed candied citron. Mix all together, using a wire egg-beater, and when quite smooth, spread.

A cream frosting was also liked: One-half cup cream, one and one-half cups confectioner's sugar, one-half teaspoon melted butter, one teaspoon vanilla. Suitable for devil's food cake, fruit, or marble cakes.

Gold icing had its own appeal: Two egg yolks, well beaten, pinch salt, one cup powdered sugar, one-half cup granulated sugar, one teaspoon lemon flavoring, "Gives color to a white or sponge cake."

An orange icing, recommended for gold or white cake, was also a favorite: One-half glass juice, strained, one and one-half cups powdered sugar, mix well, and spread thinly.

A successful plan with a white layer, spice, or yellow cake, was somewhat novel: Sprinkle the top of each layer with brown sugar before baking, and this will melt and form its own filling and icing. A little cinnamon added, or a few currants, make an improvement.

Strawberry whip is seasonable for the present time: One cup crushed strawberries, one-half cup water, one cup granulated sugar. Boil until it spins a thread, then pour upon the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs, and beat until smooth. "Delicious on angel cake, or a plain white or gold cake."

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

by Ely Culbertson

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

This is the third of a series of articles in response to requests from numerous readers, designed to explain the elementary principles of Contract Bridge. One of these will appear each week. In them, Mr. Culbertson will write especially for the benefit of those who have never played Contract and who may even be unfamiliar with the method of playing it. The articles will cover the game from its basic elements to the higher phases of Contract Bridge. The series in its entirety will comprise a complete course of instruction in "How to Play Contract."

THE DEFENSIVE VALUE OF HONORS

Lesson 3.

In the article published last week I gave the Culbertson Standard Table of honor-tricks. This table is very important to the beginner at the game of Bridge, as it is a determining factor in whether to pass, to bid, or to double. So important do I regard the honor-trick table that I am repeating it here:—

2 Honor-tricks	1½ Honor-tricks
A K	A Q
	A J 10
	K Q 10
	K Q J
1 Honor-trick	½ Honor-trick
A	K x
K Q	Q J x
K x and Q x in different suits	Q x and J x in different suits.
K J x

This table of honor-tricks is the foundation upon which Opening bids are based. The values given to the honors are on the defensive basis; that is, they are valued as though played against an opponent's bid. As you will note, the Ace is given the constant value of 1 honor-trick. This is because the Ace is the highest card of the suit and can always take the first round of the suit. You will also note that the King is given the value of 1 honor-trick when held in combination with the Ace of the same suit. This is because no other player holds a card in that suit which can capture the King.

There are four combinations of honors to which are assigned the value of 1½ honor-tricks. It is, of course, obvious that in no hand do you take ½ trick. The 1½ trick value means that in one deal you will take 2 tricks with that combination of cards, whereas in another deal you will take but 1 trick with the same combination. Thus, for clearness in expression, we give to these combinations a 1½ trick value, averaging their value when they take 2 tricks against their value when they take only 1. This value is, of course, on the defensive basis and acting on the assumption that the opponents hold the other honor-cards in the suit. The K Q of a suit is given the value of 1 honor-trick. The student can readily see that holding these two cards in a suit, the player must win the second round of it, the Ace taking the first round in that suit. Thus, as the other player is likely to have two cards of a suit, we have a right to assume that holding the K Q in a suit, we will be able to take a trick in it.

The honr-trick table also accords the value of 1 trick to the King of one suit and the Queen of another. This value is not as easy to grasp as that accorded to K Q in the same suite, but actually this combination of honor cards has just as great a value as the other and the value of one defensive honor-trick accorded to it is entirely correct. Holding K J x, you also count 1 honor-trick, as tests and study have conclusively demonstrated that this combination of cards will average to produce a trick, even when all the other honors in the suit are held by the opponents.

We now come to the ½ trick values. The value given to the King is based upon the fact that when the Ace is held to the right of the King, the King should make a trick. If the Ace is adversely held to the left, the King is quite probably worthless. Thus, whenever the Ace is to the right, the King will make a trick when to the left, it will not. In other words, a make a trick with a guarded King one-half of the time when one of our opponents holds the Ace of that suit. The combination Q J x is also given the value of ½ trick. This is because tests have revealed that even although opponents hold both Ace and King of that suit, we will win the third round of the suit with this combination one-half of the time that we hold it. Obviously, a small card must accompany Q J in order to have a small card for the third round. In other words, these cards will make a trick whenever each of the opponents has three cards of the suit or at any time when the declaration is no-trump. Holding Q x in one suit and J x in another (x means a card lower than a Ten), we count these combinations as worth ½ trick. Even though opponents hold the higher honors in these suits, careful tests have shown that one-half the time we hold this combination of honrs, we will make 1 trick with it.

The honr-trick table is the yardstick by which the trick-taking power of a hand is measured. It is the basis upon which we decide whether we should open the bidding or pass. The minimum requirement in honor-trick strength for an Opening bid of one in a suit is 2½ honor-tricks. Holding that number of honor-tricks, the question of the Opening bid is determined by the distribution of the suits in the hand. Both of the hands below are sounding Opening bids:

Hearts	A 4 2
Diamonds	9 6 5 4
Clubs	2
Spades	K J 3
Hearts	A J 5
Diamonds	Q 6 4
Clubs	J 8 7 6

I suggest that you study these hands and decide on the basis of last week's article what the bidding should be in each case.

TO-DAY'S POINTER

Question: What is the chief characteristic of honors in sequence?

Answer: Each card in the sequences takes the value of the highest card in the sequence.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

S.O.S. and Penalty Doubles

Question: When is a Redouble made by the Opening bidder over an adverse Takeout Double intended to penalize the opponents or to scare game and when is it meant as an S. O. S.?

Answer:

South	West	North	East
1NT or	Pass	Pass	Dbl.
1 heart
Redbl.

In this situation the Redouble by South is not a cry for help, but rather an attempt to score game at a low contract or penalize the opponents if they bid. The reason is obvious. Partner (North) still has an opportunity to bid if the Double is left in by West and his hand should be totally unsuited for South's bid, but offers a comparatively safe rescue.

South	West	North	East
1NT or	Dbl.	Pass	Pass
1 heart
Redbl.

This time the Redouble is an S.O.S., showing an evenly balanced hand and requesting partner (North) to takeout in his best suit. Both opponents have shown strength and if South passes North will have no opportunity to bid a weak five- or six-card suit. His first pass was made without knowledge that the Double would be left in and merely denied Takeout values, which, however, does not necessarily mean that some other bid is not safer if South has a weak no-trump or only four cards in hearts with the trumps bunched against him.

Revaluation for Raises and Rebids in Responding Hand

Question 1: Declarer bids one no-trump. Partner bids two hearts. How does Declarer revalue his hand for hearts? Does he deduct 4 to allow for his Opening bid as he would if he had bid a suit?

How would he rebid the following hands if his partner had bid two hearts over his one no-trump?

(A)

Spades	A K x
Hearts	x x x x x
Diamonds	A Q x
Clubs	K x

(B)

Spades	x x x
Hearts	A J 10
Diamonds	A x x x
Clubs	K x x

Answer: If a Raise rather than a bid of two no-trump is under consideration, the Opening bidder should deduct the expected 4 playing tricks before raising. With hand (A) (6 tricks in support of hearts), he should bid four hearts. With hand (B), having no Raise for hearts and no sound Rebid to two no-trump, he should pass.

Question 2: If Declarer bids one of a suit and partner takes out with one or two of another suit (not a Forcing Takeout) and Declarer raises the Takeout suit, how does partner revalue his hand to know if he can go on now that Declarer has supported his suit? What does he deduct to allow for his Takeout?

Declarer bids on spade, partner says two hearts with the following hand; Declarer says three hearts; what is the value of partner's hand?

(C)

Spades	A x
Hearts	Q x x x x x
Diamonds	Q x x
Clubs	x x

Answer: Your hand (C) has slightly more than 4½ playing-tricks with hearts as trump. Since partner has at least 5 supporting-tricks, a four heart bid by you is in order. Over a Raise by partner who has opened the bidding, the Responding Hand may rebid for each playing-trick held in excess of 3 (which is the normal minimum Takeout); holding 3½ playing-tricks do not, as a rule, rebid, except if the Takeout is in a major and partner gives a double Raise. If the Takeout is in a minor, which partner raires, a bid of three no-trump might be considered, if a high honor or a combination of lower honors is held in a suit not mentioned.

Response to Opening Two No-Trump Bid

Question: North dealt and bid two two no-trump. (Not vulnerable and no part-score). South holds:

Spades	J
Hearts	J 10 9 8 7
Diamonds	J x x x
Clubs	x x x x

What should be bid, and why?

Answer: Although ordinarily a two no-trump bid should not be raised or taken out with less than 1 honor-trick, the unbalanced distribution of his hand makes a bid of three hearts advisable. This bid should still be safe especially holding touching cards from the Knave down and four hearts might even be made if partner's hand is very strong.

ONTARIO PRODUCTS WILL BE FEATURED

A. and P. Tea Company Plans to Launch Big Campaign.

Recognizing that constructive measures should be taken to assist the farmers and manufacturers in this Province, the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, Ltd., of Canada, has taken the initiative in retail leadership by instituting a plan whereby hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of Ontario foodstuffs will be offered to the people of Ontario at very substantial savings, in an effort to increase the sale of Ontario-made merchandise, to boost factory employment in every city and town throughout the Province and materially assist the farmers to market their products.

The week is to be known as "Produced-in-Ontario Week at the A. & P." and will begin Monday, May 30th, and continue to Saturday, June 4th.

Provincial and civic authorities throughout the Province have commented very favorably on the plan, recognizing that it is one, if not the most constructive plan, ever undertaken to increase employment through speeding up the wheels of industry and offering relief to the farmers.

The manufacturers, co-operating with the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co., Limited, of Canada, have been preparing for this great merchandising event for the past four weeks, and manufacturing production has been considerably speeded up to take care of the A. & P. Tea Company's increased demand for merchandise.

In an interview with Mr. Berkstresser, general manager of the A. & P. Tea Company, it was pointed out that the A. & P. Tea Company is one of the largest retail organizations in Canada, operating over 174 stores in this Province alone, and employing over 1,800 people.

To give some indication as to the tremendous factor the A. & P. Tea Company is to this Province, the following facts are of extreme interest. In 1931, the A. & P. payroll exceeded $2,000,000, and the company purchased from Ontario farmers and manufacturers over $9,750,000 worth of food products. They paid over two-thirds of a million dollars for transportation of this merchandise to the warehouse and stores, to steamship companies, railroads, trucking, etc., paid out $450,000 in rentals to 175 property owners, and have an investment of over $2,000,000 in the Province of Ontario.

The comfort of steamer chairs, lawn chairs, and beach chairs by whichever name you call them, is greatly increased by head and back pillows, correctly adjusted.

* * * * * * *

The chairs referred to are not the old-time cane seated steamer chairs, but the type which has a wooden frame with a leugth of awning or fancy canvas forming back and seat, and which has an adjustable wooden foot rest.

* * * * * * *

This is the style which is most popular just now. It may or may not have its little top awning to protect one from the sun.

* * * * * * *

* * * * * * *

The head pillow is tubular shaped with a round piece fitted and bound in each end. It should be small enough to fit comfortably into the hollow of the neck of the occupant of the chair.

* * * * * * *

Lengths of tape sewed to seams at ends of pillow fasten this head pillow to top frame of chair. These are long enough to allow the pillow to be raised or lowered to suit the comfort of the one sitting in the chair.

* * * * * * *

A piece of canvas, matching that on the chair and tape to bind end portions in position and to make tie strings are needed. The textile may be any material preferred, but it must match or harmonize with color or colors of the chair textile.

* * * * * * *

Cut a strip for main portion of pillow and two circular pieces to fit ends. Seam all together, leaving a short open place in main portion. Fill pillow through this opening, using feathers, floss, or any preferred filling, and complete seam.

* * * * * * *

For the cushion for the back, use the same textile as that of head pillow. Cut a strip 15 to 16 inches long and three inches wider than the textile chair back.

* * * * * * *

Sew long ends together leaving a short unstitched place and sew up each end. All seams, of course, are on the wrong side. Turn, and on right side stitch end seams close to edges.

* * * * * * *

Make a second stitching at each end one inch in from the first stitching. In each of these places sew four large snaps. Sew a fold of the textile fitted with corresponding snaps, to each side of chair back at place to suit hollow of back of sitter.

* * * * * * *

Finish cushion by filling through opening and completing the seam. Attach both head pillo wand back cushion to chair.

MUSIC FESTIVAL BEING PLANNED

Rural School Children Will Compete at Normal Schol on Tuesday.

PUBLIC INVITED.

A Rural School Musical Festival will be held Tuesday evening next at the Normal School, when a demonstration of the methods of teaching choral work in the rural schools of the district will be given, in charge of W. R. Potter of this city, who holds a Supervisor's certificate for tuition of this sort, under auspices of the Ontario Board of Education.

This is the second year in which such teaching has been carried on, and the demonstration promises to be interesting and instructive. Children from the rural schools will take part, not as contestants but merely as an exhibit of the method and its results. The program will consist chiefly of selections by massed choirs of children, with one or two vocal numbers, readings and dialogues.

A cordial invitation is extended to everyone interested. The demonstration will take place at 8.15 p.m. on Tuesday at the Normal School.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

CHILDREN AND WEIGHT.

Some months ago I watched a procession of school children—boys and girls—and as I noted their banners I knew just what section of the city each group represented.

Where the group represented a district where the people were foreign born, they were not as tall as those representing districts in which the parents were natives of this country. They were, however, a little more rugged in appearance; that is, they had wider shoulders and hips and were a little heavier even for their age.

In other words, it would appear that our children, while taller than the children of previous generations, are not really as strong. That they are taller has been proven by the record of one of our older preparatory schools where the grandchildren of former pupils have been found to be too tall, too long for the beds in which their grandfathers slept comfortably.

It has been found that while a few generations back the number of these long slender individuals numbered about one in five persons, it has now increased so that it constitutes about 50 per cent. among the present generation of children and young people.

Now what about this type of young person from the health standpoint?

If the youngster is fond of play and the outdoors, which develops a good appetite and good digestion, he usually gets along all right, though a little below the weight of other boys his age.

However, a great many of these youngsters feel tired all the time during this growing period, have no appetite, and are actually weak from lack of nourishment.

Now weight isn't everything to growing children. You know many strong 'wiry' youngsters who are really a little underweight; but in a general way weight gives a good idea of the health of the child. The underweight youngster is more likely to be nervous, feel the cold more, have more colds, stands poorly, and is more likely to develop tuberculosis than the youngster of normal weight.

And having a little extra weight right up to the age of 25 to 27 is important as our insurance companies have shown that "in the early twenties, the death rate increases about one per cent. for each pound below average weight for age."

So watch the rapidly growing youngster. See that he sits and stands erect. See also that he gets nourishing food and plenty of sleep. Sleep and food should increase weight, and weight is most important at this age.

SHIP REPORTED AFIRE IN LAKE ERIE GALE

WINDSOR, Ont., May 28. — Search was in progress to-day for a ship reported afire last night in Lake Erie, about two miles off Colchester Point.

A telephone message to provincial police at Amherstburg said the caller saw flames high in the air as if there had been an explosion.

When officers went to investigate the flames were not visible. High seas and a heavy inshore gale made it impossible to launch a boat at that time.

C.G.E. TEST ALUMNI ASSOCIATION HOLDS FOURTH ANNUAL BANQUET

M. P. White, Manager of Davenport Works, Delivers Address.

CONFIDENCE IN FUTURE.

Attended by over one hundred members and guests, the fourth annual reunion of the Canadian General Electric Test Alumni Association which opened with a banquet at the Empress Hotel last evening and concluded late this afternoon with the annual field day sports at Nassau grounds, proved to be a decided success.

Presided over by A. B. Gates, retiring president, the program which succeeded dinner last evening was outstanding both by reason of the brevity and brilliance of the addresses, and by the entertainment given by the Toronto ex-Testers.

M. P. White, manager of the Davenport Works of the C.G.E. Company responded to the toast to "The Company," very ably proposed by F. C. Ferrier. Mr. White in the course of his brief speech, while optimistic as to the future of the organization which he has served for twenty-six years, touched upon the need of certain retrenchments. "Readjustment is inevitable and we must face it with stout hearts," he declared.

Confident of Future of C.G.E.

He was confident of the future of the C.G.E. Company because it occupied a unique position in Canada's industrial life, and had built up substantial reserves to fortify itself against reactions of business and commerce such as the country was experiencing. It was only in the last few months, he said, that "we have come to realize what the depression means to other concerns. We are in a such a sound condition that when the turn comes, as it must sooner or later, the C.G.E. will be equipped to go right ahead."

It is interesting to note that Mr. White has just returned from the International Labor Conference at Geneva, which he attended as delegate of Canadian manufacturers. Incidentally, he was also a delegate to the Conference eight years ago.

Complying with the toastmaster's request, Mr. White provided his listeners with some of the impressions he gained at the Conference, and on his subsequent tour into Germany and Great Britain. The close attention he was given left no doubt as to the interest which his remarks held for the gathering.

There were forty-nine different countries of the world represented at the Conference this year, of which 26 were European; thirteen South and Central America, and five of the British Empire. Australia was not represented this year for some reason or other, probably due, the speaker explained, to the fact that the cost of sending a delegate from such a distance was considered too expensive an undertaking in view of that country's financial condition.

Canadian Representative

Mr. White was the only employer representative from Canada. There was no delegate from the United States, because the States is not a member of the League.

One of the most interesting discussions, Mr. White thought, was that which centered around the director's report on Employment Service and Social Relations. The report dealt with the various causes of the present world depression and with a series of suggestions for recovery.

Discussion on the questions lasted for three days and the general opinion of those taking part was that nothing is being done of a constructive nature to overcome the condition. At the close of the sessions a resolution was passed which was virtually an appeal to the League of Nations practically saying, "For God's sake hurry up and do something in regard to reparations, debts and tariffs."

"That, to me, was the most important thing the conference did," said Mr. White. He also remarked that there was an urgent need of nations getting together in a spirit of sacrifice and co-operation.

Lack of Goodwill

While in Geneva Mr. White also attended some sessions of the Disarmament Conference. He believed there was still a serious lack of goodwill existent among the nations of the world, which made it difficult for him to see how a marked change could be expected under such conditions.

Following the Conference, Mr. White went to Berlin, where he enjoyed a tour through a large transformer works of the A.E.C. Company. The situation in Germany so far as business was concerned was low, he said, and about 75 per cent of the automobiles in Berlin had been taken off the road because their owners could not afford to run them. The agricultural areas of Germany, he said, were intensively cultivated and it gave one the impression that there was really nothing wrong with that country in a basic sense.

Britain Very Alive

In Britain Mr. White also visited many large electrical plants. His impression of Britain was that "the people of Britain are very much alive." He said he could see no element of restricted production in any of the plants he visited and in the majority of the plants the men were on piece work. "I think we could learn something from those people over there. They are very alive," he remarked. "Competition is keen and that is the breeder of improvement in output."

The speaker was also very much impressed with the general spirit which prevailed in Britain. There had been a remarkable improvement in the general situation during the past year. "The people are cheerful and determined although suffering under a load of taxation about which we know nothing in comparison."

Mr. White also touched upon the recent amendments to the Unemployment Insurance Act, which had effected a saving to the country of about one hundred and fifty million dollars.

Installation of Officers

Following Mr. White's address, and after Mr. Gates had outlined the program for Saturday which included a visit to the C.G.E. plant in the morning, under the guidance of J. R. Auld, and a field day and sports in the afternoon, the officers who had been elected by letter ballot were duly installed for the ensuing year, as follows:

President—G. S. Stewart, manager apparatus sales, Toronto district.
Vice-President, Peterborough—P. B. Munro, supervisor test department, Peterborough.
Vice-President, Toronto—J. B. Minns, assistant manager A.S.D. Motor Section, head office.
Vice-President, District Offices—C. H. Wright, manager Halifax district.
Vice-President, other companies—D. B. Fleming, engineer, Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario, Toronto.
Sec.-Treas.—G. E. McWilliams, apparatus sales, Toronto district office.

During the progress of dinner, a delightful program of music was supplied by the Northrop String Trio, while after the toast list was completed and the Toronto ex-Testers had staged their entertainment, the entire assembly participated in a game of auction progressive bridge, the prizes being won by W. M. Cruthers and B. I. Burgess.

Saturday Morning

This morning the members of the Test Alumni Association carried out a technical program which included a tour of a portion of the local plant, with J. R. Auld as official guide. At various points of the departments visited there were competent technicians to give information concerning their respective departments to the visitors, as follows: B. L. Barns, A.C. machines; D. V. Canning, Industrial Control; G. R. Langley, switch gear; P. S. Foster, Induction motors; B. Ottewel, D.C. machines; A. B. Gates, refrigerators.

Last year Nova Scotia exported about 85 per cent of her total commercial yield of 1,426,147 barrels of apples.

I.O.D.E. CHAPTERS IN DOMINION DONATED 111 SCHOOL LIBRARIES

National Treasurer's Statement Shows Deficit of Over $4,000.

AGE LIMIT SET.

TORONTO, May 28 (C.P.)—A deficit of slightly more than $4,000 is shown in the national treasurer's statement, presented to the convention of Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire here to-day. Receipts up to April 15 were $59,121.94, while disbursements during the same period were $63,358.42.

The organization is in a strong financial position, however, and has a balance of $481,630.

Questions submitted to the committee on the constitution were outlined to the delegates to-day, along with the committee's conclusion. The committee felt children older than nine or ten be asked to take office in the Order, with the younger children as assistant officers until such time as the younger members attain the necessary age.

The report of the National Educational Secretary was also presented, and described the work being carried on among young Canadians. Libraries had been given to schools by 111 chapters, with the John Stewart Chapter, Halifax, leading all others with a gift of 14 libraries. The Border Chapter, Windsor, had donated six, as had the Provincial Chapter of British Columbia and the Good Hope Chapter, of Halifax.

Books to Peace River

A Montreal chapter had sent four large cases of books to the Peace River district, to be used as a lending library, the report pointed out, and there is no reason why chapters in the east should not help Manitoba schools which are wanting our libraries.

Postcards of Their Majesties the King and Queen had also been distributed, as had portraits of famous men and women. Flag charts were being widely distributed, as were calendars and magazines.

Numerous gifts had been made to school children in order to assist in their education. Some chapters had given money, while others had provided needy children with school supplies.

Scholarships and prize books had also been donated, and lectures and readings arranged.

In a report on the I.O.D.E. hospital at Haileybury, the committee declares 1,715 patients had been admitted. Some time ago the building was turned over to the Miscricordia Hospital there and was at present in use. However, the hospital provided ample accommodation now, and efforts were being made to dispose of the building.

Bisons Defeat Wings 5-4 for 5th Straight Win

BIRDS TAKE FALL FROM SKEETERS

Pete Donohue Makes Auspicious Debut in Holding Baltimore to Five Hits.

HERD GAINS LEAGUE LEAD.

The wild race for the top of the International League standing which came from the fall of the Newark Bears had produced another new leader, the Buffalo Bisons, to-day and the prospect that almost any one of three rival clubs might step into the place after another afternoon's games.

Buffalo, the leader before Newark went to the top, regained the position yesterday by downing the Rochester Red Wings, 5 to 4, in an exciting finish of an otherwise slow game while the Baltimore Orioles fell before the somewhat lowly Jersey City Skeeters, 9 to 5.

After accomplishing Newark's downfall with four straight triumphs, the Orioles couldn't get their bats working right against old Pete Donohue, who was making his first appearance in a Jersey City uniform. They got just five hits, including homers by McGowan and Heffner, but tossed away their chances of victory by making five errors while Chaplin, Hopkins and Melton gave the Skeets 10 blows. Ike Boone and Joe Moore hit for the circuit, Moore driving in three Jersey runs.

Buffalo piled up a neat lead in a duel between Brewer and Winford but the former weakened and allowed Rochester to tie the score, on Paul Florence's homer in the 8th. But Joe Gould, relief pitcher, put the Bisons back on top. He pollahed off the last six Red Wings, then came to bat with two out and a man on second, took a three and two count and smacked out a single that drove in the winning run.

The Newark-Reading and Toronto-Montreal games were rained out, leaving Montreal in a virtual tie with Baltimore for second place and Newark a half game down into fourth but only one full game back of the leaders.

Bonarlaw Tigers Beat Marmora 14-10

BONARLAW, May 28.—(Examiner Correspondence)—At Marmora Tuesday afternoon, May 24, the Bonarlaw Tigers defeated the Marmora Bruins in a nine innings game of softball, the score being fourteen to ten. The only home run of the game was made by Thomas Neal of the Bruins.

Gerald Bristol pitched the entire game for the Tigers and was in good form. Irie Cronkright was on the mound for the Bruins and also did good work.

The Bruins started out strong, making six of their ten runs in the first two innings. Owing to some changes in their players, however, they were unable to stand against the Tigers, getting no runs whatever in the last four innings.

The line up was as follows:

Bonarlaw Tigers—G. Bristol, ; C. O. Reid, c; C. A. Baker, lf; Roy Neal, 3b; Charles Wellman, 3b; C. Barrons, ss; W. J. Barlow, rf; William Prest, cf; Ralph McKeown, lf; Charles Nobes, sub for lf; David Wellman, sub for rf.

Cubs Lengthen National League Lead

CHICAGO BEATS CINCINNATI 6-4

Dodgers and Pirates Advance in Race—Phillies Win From Braves.

DETROIT COPS 7-5 WIN.

(By Herbert W. Barker, Associated Press Sports Writer.)

One of the minor mysteries of the major league season has been the ease with which the Pittsburgh Pirates, floundering around in the National League's second dvision most of the time, have been tabled to take the St. Louis Cardinals over the traces.

The world champions won their first two clashes from the Corsairs at the start of the season but since then victories have been few and far between. As a matter of cold fact, the Pirates have walked away with eight of the last ten games the clubs have played.

8th Win Over Cards.

Their eighth victory over the champions, achieved yesterday by an 8-4 count, boosted the Pirates into fourth place, only one game behind the third place Cincinnati Reds. Larry French, hard-working left-hander, whose name has appeared in 14 Pirate box scores already this season, went the route, although walloped for 14 hits. It was French's fourth victory of the season and the Pirates' fourth in succession. They now have won seven of their last eight games.

Meanwhile the Chicago Cubs increased their league lead to a game and a half by beating Cincinnati, 6-4, while the Boston Braves succumbed again to the Phillies, 8-5. The Cubs rushed all their runs across the plate in the third inning, Charles Grimms' homer with one on being the high spot.

Starts Dodger Rally.

George Kelly's second home run in as many days started a five run Brooklyn rally that sank the New York Giants, 5 to 2, and dropped McGraw's henchmen into the cellar. Van Mungo gave the Giants only seven hits and fanned seven.

The American League schedule was restricted to two games, the Detroit Tigers bunched 10 hits to good advantage to halt the Chicago White Sox, 7-5, and tighten their grip on third place.

The Cleveland Indians battered George Blaeholder for nine hits and six runs in seven innings and coasted to a fairly easy victory over the St. Louis Browns, 6-3. Clint Brown gave five hits, one Goose Goslin's first homer of the season.

"Hap" Ward Leads Cobourg Ball Team

COBOURG, May 28.—An executive meeting of the Cobourg Baseball Club was held in the Town Hall Thursday night for the purpose of arranging transportation for out-of-town games and other business. Private car-owners volunteered to transport the players when called upon.

The club officials reported a very successful day on May 24, from a financial standpoint.

All members were present except A. R. Dundas and E. Woods. The locals' next home game will be on Wednesday, June 8, when Kingston will play here. On June 3 the Cobourg team plays at Peterborough.

"Hap" Ward has taken over the duties of manager of the Cobourg team, Cliff Boundy finding it impossible to travel around with the team, but Boundy will assist Ward with the training.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, our Petes has got away to a good start in the Central Ont. loop, they celebrating Victoria Day by travelling down to Cobourg and licking Mister Hoot Gibson and his Lakeshore play-boys by the handsome margin of 12 markers to 1. That's a very nice getaway to the season, Mac, and the most pleasing thing about it was that the boys looked decidedly smooth, fielding without a skip behind some very effective pitching and smacking the old onion with commendable gusto. The lid comes off locally next Sat., Mac, and the directors is planning for a opening with all the trimmings, including, I among others hopes, another neat trimming for the Cobourg gang, who will be our guests on that occasion.

In the other Central fixture on the holiday, old-timer, that well-known and well-seasoned campaigner, Mister Shiner Johnston, who has battled against Belleville for a decade, wore a National unie in the game against Kingston, which the Ponies win. It musta been a hard job for the Belleville fans to give Mister Johnston the odd round of applause instead of the Bronx cheer they always kept in pickle down there for the old-timer. With Mister Johnston at Belleville, it just needs Mister Peenie Mills to catch for the Petes to make the transformation complete.

Well, Mac, the mush-ballers, both the males and the girls, is at it again, and from now on the early part of each evening will be took care of for them that can't take their runt baseball or leave it. Much the same brand is played by both sexes, but the gals is more picturesque, which mebbe accounts for the big crowd that flocks over to the Bowl every nite. Some foxy manager is going to send his team out in bathing suits 1 of these nites and then the traffic at the east end of the ½ million dollar bridge is going to be locked completely.

In the big leagues, Mac, they ain't been a great deal of change since last week. In the National loop this amazing Boston Brave combination was still at the top of the heap as this was wrote, and they're playing like a bunch that feel they got a perfect right to be there, and more than that, they intend to stay there. It's a nice race, and in spite of hard times some of the clubs is cashing in like nobody's business. The Yanks are riding the top of the wave in the American League, Mac, and with the pitching they been getting—something new for the New York lads—it's going to be a tough job knocking them off. This here string bean, Mister Gomes, has only got to stride out there to curl the A's up into knots, and the rest of the Yanks' heavers are doing quite nicely, thank you. It used to be a saying that the team in front on July 4 usually cleans up, and unless they run into a slump it looks like the Yanks will still be in the lead on the gauge date.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

BRINTONS COP 5-1 VICTORY

Carpet Makers Open City Box Lacrosse League With Win Over Orde's.

GOOD GOAL-TENDING.

Brintons opened the City Lacrosse League at the Brock last night by grabbing off a 5-1 win over Orde's. While both teams were somewhat green concerning the finer points of box lacrosse, they more than made up for that by sustained action. The fans had plenty to get excited over, particularly as the boys roughed it up the last half.

Both goalies looked brilliant on hard shots, Lebarr being particularly hard to beat. Meyette stopped a flock and those that beat him were ticketed. The defensive work of the two outfits was effective, if a trifle crude, and they got in some real old bodychecks. The forwards showed plenty of speed and spirit, but their combination wasn't the best yet, many neat passes being muffed. The shooting on the whole was fair.

Brintons notched one after five minutes of up-and-down playing in the first, Staunt giving Miller a good pass close in and the latter making sure of it. Orde's looked to have an edge on play and both goalies had to jump to save several close ones. The session was fast throughout and a bit rough at times, and Orde's were buzzing around in threatening manner but unable to counter at the whistle.

The tore into each other in the second period, play being rough and even for a while. After about seven minutes, Collins stickhandled his way through on a classy solo effort to go in close and flip the ball past Meyette for the second Brinton counter. Some heavy checking and a flock of missed passes kept the players going the rest of the way, and again Orde's were looking dangerous but unable to get in for a good shot at the finish.

Early in the third frame, Hatton winged the rubber in from a little way out, the hop fooling the goalie and putting the Carpet-makers three up. Play was rushed rapidly from end to end with the two goalies kept busy, and then the boys began mixing it up. Brintons drew two penalties and Orde's one, all in quick order, later on a player from each side getting the gate. They cooled off and played cleaner after that.

Hewitt Scores 4th

Three minutes of the last quarter had gone by when Hewitt made it four for the Southenders with a fast shot from short range. Half a minute later, Weir put Orde's on the score-sheet when he took the ball from a face-off near the other goal and bounced it in. Play was fairly fast and none too gentle from then on, with little difference being seen on either side. With four minutes left of the stanza, Jones scored from an angle on a free shot, making the count read 5-1 for Brintons, and that's how it ended. With all the players trying hard, it would be difficult to name outstanding ones in this game.

The Teams

Orde's—goal, Meyette; defence, Howe and Hutchinson; rover, Calladine; centre, Gardner; forwards, Ellis and Weir; alternates, Ellis, Mahood, Cadd, McLeish and Routley.

Brintons—goal, Lebarr; defence, B. Reynolds and Staunt; rover, Firth; centre, Creighton; forwards, Hewitt and Hatton; alternates, Miller, McCoy, Collins, Jones, Howarth and Ball.

Referee—Pete King.

GAINS AND CARNERA TO MEET IN IMPORTANT BOUT MONDAY

Colored Canadian Heavyweight Can be Leading Contender by Knockout Win.

FIGHT IN LONDON

LONDON, May 28.—(Special to The Examiner).—London is all agog over the meeting between Larry Gains, the Canadian colored sensation, and Primo Carnera, the Italian giant, in a fifteen-round bout at the new White City Stadium here Monday night.

Gains, whose fighting ability has made him champion of the British Empire, is favored to win from the "man-mountain," although it is not expected that the colored boy can put over a knock-out. On the other hand, if Carnera ever lands with one of his terrific hay-makers, he'll probably knock Gains into the middle of next week. But Larry is not worried much about that.

Gains' rise to fame has been one of the features of the English boxing world, and the great little Canuck has been a credit to his profession. He is said to have issued a challenge to every outstanding boxer in the world, and his bout with Carnera on Monday will let the fans know if he is ready to meet all comers. If he is not now, he never will be.

The colored champion hails from Toronto, Canada, where, for some reason or other, he is disliked. This fact is difficult to understand, because in almost every bout here Gains has given a splendid display of boxing ability and, while not a smashing hitter, can inflict plenty of punishment.

Carnera, on the other hand, will depend on his tremendous height and reach to smash Gains. The big

PRIMO CARNERA

Italian is at best a curiosity more than a fighter.

A large crowd is expected to view the battle at the new stadium.

Manager Montreal Royals Knows Baseball

The Montreal Ball Club under the management of Ed Holly has been going great guns and is a real threat for the pennant of the International League this season. Recently this team tore into a winning streak and it looked as if nothing would or could stop them. Then came their thirteenth game on Friday the thirteenth after twelve straight wins and it was too much even for this stellar aggregation of ball players and they dropped it. The Montreal fans have taken him and his team to their hearts and turn out in their thousands for the home games. The record so far is some 30,000 paid admittances for one day. While yet in his teens, Holly, as a lightweight, had fought 23 battles but the lure of baseball was too strong and for 26 years he has eaten, thought, talked and slept baseball. Eddy learned some of his baseball on the lots in Chicago as a youngster. The entire gamut of baseball has been Holly's lot. He has been player, playing-manager and scout affiliated with teams in nearly every class of organized ball.

AMERICANS LEAD TENNIS SERIES

Shields Defeats Hopman While Vines Has Crawford Down 2 Sets to One.

PHILADELPHIA, May 28. — The United States tennis forces captured one singles match from Australia and were leading in the second when a sudden rainstorm terminated play in the Davis Cup contests at the Philadelphia Country Club yesterday.

Frank Shields of New York had begun the tie with a one-sided triumph over little Harry Hopman, 6—4, 6—1, 6—3, and Ellsworth Vines Jr., had his opponent, Jack Crawford, two sets to one when the storm descended.

Vines captured the first two sets with little difficulty, 6—2, 6—4, but the Australian champion came back to take the third, 6—2, and was holding his own in the fourth. The count was 3—3 when the rain came, Vines having run off the first three games and Crawford the next three.

After an hour's wait, in which there was no sign of a let-up in the storm, officials announced Vines and Crawford would finish their battle to-day, taking up at the point where they left off yesterday. The doubles match will follow, with Crawford permitted a suitable rest before taking the court with Hopman against Wilmer Allison and Johnny Van Ryn.

Vines clearly was the master in all but the third set, when he let down appreciably.

Shields' fine showing against Hopman was gratifying to officials of the United States team, who decided only Thursday to give him a place in yesterday's singles. Hopman, a head shorter than Shields, and lacking the American's strokes, was an easy victim after the opening set.

The Australian No. 2 player started well, breaking Shield's service twice, and assuming a 4-to-2 lead as the American played cautiously. But Shields suddenly changed his tactics, began banging the ball with vigor, and ran off nine straight games before Hopman finally broke through late in the second set. The three sets required only about 45 minutes to play.

Vines gave brief flashes of fine tennis when Crawford got his strokes working in the first two sets. The second set was a dog fight, with six of the ten games going to deuce, and Vines twice coming from behing to win after Crawford led at 40-love.

Vines apparently made little effort to pull out the third set after Crawford had jumped into a 3-to-0 lead, but coasted along with an idea of conserving his strength until after the intermission. He returned to the court to find the Australian fighting vigorously, however, and they were treating the 2,500 spectators to a great duel when the storm broke.

MAX SCHMELING HAS TO PROVE HIS CLASS

Present Titleholder Occupies Place Apart from Any Other Champion.

WON TITLE ON FOUL.

Will Likely Enter Bout With Sharkey Next Month on Short End of Betting.

NEW YORK, May 28.—Heavyweight champion of the world these past two years, Max Schmeling, the Black Uhlan, is still on trial.

Perhaps the verdict will be reached when he engages Jack Sharkey, June 21, at Madison Square Garden's new outdoor arena at Long Island City. Perhaps it will not.

Off his record—title holder though he is—Schmeling occupies a place apart among the succession of world's heavyweight champions, from John L. Sullivan, down.

He is, of course, the first European to gain the title, in that stretch of years.

And not even Jess Willard, whose ability was questioned by many, has had to face the same critical survey that has been Schemling's. He may be placed, easily enough, as the first heavyweight champion in all history who was still being asked to prove himself, two years after he had won the title.

Won On Foul.

It was Schmeling's fortune (or misfortune) to win from Sharkey, June 12, 1930, on a foul in the fourth round. The referee did not see the low blow, nor did one of the judges. The second judge did, and on his testimony Sharkey was disqualified and the unique situation arose of a champion being crowned—as sport writers were quick to phrase it—"while he was groveling on the floor."

Schmeling was fouled by Sharkey. The punch was clearly low, and there was nothing between this writer and a clear view of the entire proceeding. Schmeling, I have always argued, was within his rights when he claimed foul and accepted the verdict.

The wider acceptance of the strange ending of the championship—since no heavyweight title holder, from Sullivan down had won on a foul until Schmeling came along—was that Schmeling was merely taking advantage of the only possible way in which he could have won the fight.

Sharkey Had Edge.

(Sharkey, it should be remembered, had all the better of the milling as long as the bout lasted.)

So, from the start of his championship reign, Schmeling has been viewed with doubt.

That was the case when, last year, he defended his title against Willie ("Young") Stribling.

In that fight, such was the careful, painstaking manner in which this methodical German went about his work of slowly but surely battering Stribling into helplessness, it semed certain that he would at last be credited with some ability to fight. But such is not the case.

He is going into this return engagement with Sharkey next month and I am sure that he will be a short ender in the betting.

Schmeling has just not been accepted, and there doesn't seem to be anything he can do about it.

Not Spectacular

Perhaps a decisive victory over Sharkey will accomplish it. Perhaps it will not.

The German, unfortunately for himself, is not cast in a mold that makes for the spectacular.

He is a plodder. He is colorless. And he fights that way.

When he first reached these shores he gained more attention because he bore some facial resemblance to Jack Dempsey than because of any suspected fighting ability.

Schmeling won a few fights with nondescripts, and then went through successfully against Johnny Risko, who had been something of a stumbling block for many of the seekers after the crown that had been cast aside by Gene Tunney.

HEAVY MISTS AT SAUNTON

Golfers Start Second 18 Holes in Qualifying Round Under Miserable Conditions.

LIKELY RAISE LIMIT.

SAUNTON, Devonshire, England, May 28 (C.P.).—The second 18 holes of the 36-hole qualifying round of the British women's golf championship began to-day in a steady downpour and under miserable playing conditions.

Mists blowing in from the sea and low-hanging clouds hid the surrounding hills and almost touched the range of mountainous sand dunes between the Saunton links and the beach.

The competitors in the big field prepared for the ordeal with oil-skins, changes of clothes and shoes, and towels for wiping club-shafts.

Under the prevailing conditions the qualifying limit was likely to be raised a half-dozen strokes. Some experts thought even a 36-hole total of 190 would qualify for the first round of match play Monday.

Two Players Scratched.

Two of the United States contingent of 12 scratched to-day, Virginia Holsderber, of Baltimore, and Mrs. William Ferris, of Newton, Mass. Both used up far too many strokes in the opening round yesterday to have much chance of qualifying, Mrs. Ferris posting a 96 and Miss Holsderber 102.

Mme. Rene Lacoste, the former Simone Thion de la Chaume, who had finished second with a 75 in the first round yesterday, found the weather a terrific handicap and needed 88 strokes for her second round. Her 36-hole total of 163 easily qualified her for match play.

As Mme. Lacoste completed her round, the rain stopped and there were prospects of better weather the rest of the day.

Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, of Philadelphia, posted an 88. Her total of 168 assured her a place in the first match play round Monday.

CASUAL COMMENT

A men's softball game is billed for this evening at Central at 6.15 o'clock between The Examiner and Red & White Stores. This ought to be quite a game, as both outfits are strong and bitter rivals. Percy Harrison and Fred Scates, opposing managers, will trot out their best teams for this tussle and the winner will deserve the credit.

• • • • • • •

Rain washed up the two softball games last night at the Bowl and at Central. Both were postponed for the present. Monday night, the championship Keene gals' team invades the Bowl to take on Choates, and it will be the first appearance this year of the damsels that copped the silverware last September. The game itself sounds promising.

• • • • • • •

We understand that in the near future a large bleacher grandstand, capable of holding well over a thousand fans, will be built around the north side of the Ashburnham Bowl for the girls' games. If this is true, it will sure be a break for the gentle sex who play over there and for the big following of fans they get. The sooner it is done, the better.

The City Box Lacrosse League got away to a start at the Brock last night with Brintons walloping Orde's, 5 to 1, in a lively game. It was exciting most of the way and rough enough at times. The Orde crew was mostly made up of hockey players who know how to check but could stand a little more practice in passing and shooting. The Brintons who had more players with some lacrosse experience under their belts had an edge on the pucksters there. But both teams are fairly well matched.

• • • • • • •

Just before the game, Referee Pete King had the players of both teams stand silently in a circle in the centre of the arena for one minute in tribute to an absentee Brinton player, Eddie Atkinson, whose father was killed in an accident yesterday.

• • • • • • •

The two goalies, Meyette and Wilf Lebarr, looked good on mean shots, and some of the other boys who were in the thick of it all the time were: Staunt, Creighton, Collins, Jones, Hatton, Calladine, Weir, Gardner, McLeish and Cadd. But one thing about this game, no player can do much stalling. It's a fast sport with no off-sides and should prove popular here.

The next box lacrosse fixture is the City League one on Tuesday between C.G.E. and Orde's while Brintons meet the Electrics on Thursday evening. The new Spalding rule book for this game is out now, and players not familiar with the inside dope on the gutted stick game should study it a bit.

The Petes are enjoying a good rest in the C O B L with nothing to do until next Saturday when they open up here against Cobourg. Belleville goes to Kingston that day, too, but the only senior ball game this afternoon was the Cobourg in Kingston affair. Your local ball chasers are getting in plenty of practice in the meantime, and will continue to do so all next week.

Cogs, C.G.E., and Crescents, of the East Peterborough League, are getting squared away rapidly, and all three should be strong. Cogs have got in the most work so far, and are just about set to start, while Crescents are nearly all signed up. Haven't heard much about C.G.E. so far, but they'll be ready when the loop opens on June 7. • • • • • • •

Baseball seems to be coming into its own in Peterborough again. Despite all the softball played here, this summer will see a great deal of interest being taken in the slugging senior outfit, in the strong and evenly-matched East Peterborough League, and in the biggest City League we've had in many years. These three baseball bodies are working now in perfect harmony—and that's not the bunk, either—and said harmony is due both to the different executives and to the Baseball Commission recently organized here. Those who have followed the game closely in other years will realize how big an accomplishment this is.

The new soccer ruling permitting three substitutes to a team is speeding up the game in this district, and should cut down on the injury list during the season. This is one iron-man game that's left, and even with the substitution concession this year, players relieved from a game cannot return. And no changes are permitted in the last twenty minutes of play. The rule allowing professional players to participate in games with amateurs without professionalizing these simon pures, as allowed by the C.A.A.U., is not not-iced here, as there are no pros around.

A professional boxing show is being arranged for the Brock next Friday night, Charlie Hallat bringing in several outstanding pugs. Hallat has been putting on some good shows through Western Ontario, and he figures on building a good one for here around Jack Dane, the husky boy who trained in Keene last summer and boxed here several times, making a good showing. Incidentally, Hallat is building the rough-tough Alex Kasaboski into a real ma villain who is drawing big houses down in that part of the Province.

SOLACE TAKES MAIN EVENT WOODBINE

TORONTO, May 28 — A track which made the going of the worst kind and overhead conditions all the way from sunny to downpours kept the attendance down at Woodbine yesterday. In spite of the nature of the footing though what there was in the way of talent was functioning pretty smoothly, no winner being allowed to pay more than $705 in the first four races and two being under the five dollar mark.

The fourth race, styled the Prince of Wales Handicap was the feature at six furlongs, but again much of the interest was removed when there were only four starters, S. W. Labrot withdrawing Mexico, leaving only Solace and Westy's Junior to splash it out with the C. V. Whitney entry, Magnifico and Hey There.

In spite of the combination of force against him, the folks could not forget the Seagram horse's great race behind Springsteel on Saturday and made him a 4 to 5 favorite with the entry 9 to 10 and Westy Jr., the outsider at 15 to 1. And again the public were right. At the break Hey There was a jump behind but went to the top down the back stretch. Coming around the turn Solace and Magnifico moved up and the winner battled his way through gamely between the Whitney pair, in deep and sticky footing, to beat Magnifico half a length with Hey There another five back and the long shot bringing up the rear by two more.

The game horse made the six furlongs in 1.15 1-5 and only straight tickets were sold.

HEADLINERS ON FRIDAY'S SHOW

Promoter Hallat Promises to Bring in Several Top-notchers for Boxing Program.

DANE ALSO ON CARD.

There will be a professional all-star boxing show next Friday night, at the Brock street rink, was the interesting announcement made Friday by Matchmaker Charlie Hallat, who has learned that sporting enthusiasts in Peterborough are working for a good boxing card. It will be an outstanding affair and boxers of international repute will do their stuff here.

Naturally no boxing card in Peterborough would be complete without the inclusion of Jack Dane, native scrapper, and it is assured that he will occupy a prominent place on the program, providing, however, that a suitable opponent can be secured for him. For now that Dane has had big league experience, as it were, it will take a mighty good boy to extend him, much less beat him. An American borer will be imported to make him display his wares, as light heavies are few and far between in Canada these days.

The number of bouts has not definitely been decided upon but there will be enough to satisfy the most ardent lovers of the sport. Right now, Matchmaker Hallat is keeping busy arranging his card and he is anxious to make this an extra good one, inasmuch as this is the first all-boxing professional program to be staged in Peterborough.

Staging a boxing show is a far more expensive affair than a wrestling card as boxers all have to be given pretty good guarantees and have to be brought from different points. But providing this initial show draws well, Mr. Hallat promises to follow up with a series of shows that will equal if not surpass any staged in Toronto or other leading fight cities.

Incidentally prices will remain the same despite the added cost of such a show and this will indeed be good news to fight fans, male and female, alike. Further announcements are being awaited with interest.

A NEW ONE ON STEVE

Steve Donoghue had an unenviable experience on Macvinny f., one of the competitors for the last race at Chester. She gave a rodeo exhibition in front of the stands after leaving the paddock, and when Steve had succeeded in getting within a furlong of the starting gate she stopped again. After Tommy Weston on Border Raider had given her a lead she was induced to go to the post. As the barrier was released Macvinny f. got well away, but was not concerned with the finish.

Yesterday's Stars

Van Mungo, Dodgers.—Limited Giants to seven hits, fanned seven, and won 5—2.

Charlie Grimm, Cubs.—Hit home run with one on climaxed six-run rally that beat Reds.

Earl Grace and Dave Barbee, Pirates.—Clouted homers to aid in defeat of Cardinals.

OPENING SCHEDULES.

Lawn bowlers will find themselves into the depths of another season before they know it! There will be no tournament tonight; but look on the bright side. The rain will do more good to the greens than the bowling would.

The ladies' schedule starts on Tuesday next. According to the line-up of teams there will be a few games won on the last bowl.

JAPANESE COMPETE IN OLMYPIC TESTS

TOKYO, May 28 (A.P.) — Five hundred and thirty men and 140 women to-day began two days of trials to select Japan's track and field representatives to the 1932 Olympic Games at Los Angeles.

Chuhei Nambu, holder of the unofficial world's record of 26 feet 2½ inches for the broad jump, did 24 feet 4¾ inches in his specialty, and Shuhei Nishida pole vaulted 13 feet 1½ inches for the best performances in the field.

Masamichi Kitamoto ran the 10,000 metres in 31 minutes, 33 3-5 seconds, almost a minute and a half slower than Paavo Nurmi's world mark of 30 minutes 6 1-5 seconds.

A crowd of only 15,000, less than half the number expected, watched the tryouts.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

OLD MR. TOAD WATCHES AND WONDERS

It is distressing that we must Regard so many with distrust.
—Old Mr. Toad.

Old Mr. Toad is such an inoffensive old fellow himself, so humble and so unobstrusive that somehow it is a bit difficult to think of him as having need of being distrustful of anybody. But Old Mr. Toad has lived a long time, and out of the wisdom which has made it possible for him to have lived so long he has learned that more is lost by being too trustful than by being needlessly distrustful.

Once a year, no matter where he is, Old Mr. Toad journeys to the Smiling Pool and there spends several weeks. It is always in the spring, and there he spends most of his time singing. Night and day he sings, not even taking time to eat. He has a most important part in the annual spring chorus of the Smiling Pool, and he takes it seriously. He knows that without his voice there would be something sadly lacking in the joyous tribute to sweet Mistress Spring. So he takes his singing very seriously.

It was good to be back there in the Smiling Pool. At first his happiness was complete. He asked nothing more than to swell out that silvery music bag in his throat and add perhaps the sweetest note of all. But after a while he began to sing for another purpose, and in his song was a new note that made it sweeter than ever. He was singing to Mrs. Toad, not knowing where she was, but singing to her just the same with the tender yearning of love. Yes, sir, Old Mr. Toad's song became a love song.

It was many months since Old Mr. Toad had seen Mrs. Toad. Where she was he had no idea. It was useless to go looking for her. No, there was but one thing to do, and that was to call her to the Smiling Pool. That sooner or later she would come, providing she was alive, he had no shadow of doubt. This always had been their trysting place in the spring, and always would be as long as they lived. But was she alive? Any one of many things might have happened to her in the long time of their separation. So now, as he sang, he sat himself to watching.

He did not always sing in the same place. Sometimes he sang from one side of the Smiling Pool, sometimes from the other, and sometimes from the marshy part where the Laughing Brook, coming down from the Green Forest, entered. But wherever he was those beautiful golden eyes of his were ever on watch, and nothing went on about him that he did not see. Late one afternoon as he sat singing he saw Longlegs the Heron come in from the Big River and drop those long legs of his to alight not far from him. Old Mr. Toad stopped singing. There are times to sing and times not to, and he knew that this was a time not to. Longlegs has a special liking for Frogs, and a Toad is so much like a Frog, they being cousins, that Old Mr. Longlegs might not notice the difference, or if he did might not care. So he stopped singing that he might not not thus attract attention to himself.

He was half hidden by overhanging grass, but could see all that went on. For some time Longlegs stood motionless, his long neck folded back on his shoulders, ready to shoot that great bill of his out and down to seize the careless frog or minnow that might happen to come within reach. Old Mr. Toad wished he would move on. The chorus was in full swing, but not from immediately around Longlegs. Old Mr. Toad wanted to join in, but didn't dare. So he wished that Longlegs would move on. He was distrustful of his presence there.

At last Longlegs did move. Very slowly, very carefully he lifted one foot and took a step forward. Very slowly and very, very carefully he limted the other foot and took another step forward. It came to Old Mr. Toad that Longlegs saw some one he hoped to catch. He wondered who it could be, if it were a silly Minnow, or if one of his small cousins, a Hyla, had been careless enough to expose himself. So he watched, waited and wondered, and thought of who it really was never entered his head.

What To-Day Means To You

"GEMINI"

If May 28th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:15 a.m. to 10:45 a.m., from 2:30 p.m. to 4 p.m., and from 10 p.m. to 11:20 p.m. The danger periods are from noon to 1:30 p.m., and from 7 p.m. to 8:15 p.m.

Curiously upsetting astrological influences will affect both your mental and material life on May 28th. It will be a day of half results, incomplete joys and threatened misfortunes. Musicians and writers are amongst the favored, and they may expect to have their creative powers enhanced.

The little girl born on this May 28th will have a frank, delightful fun-loving nature; the boy an original, puckish personality. Both sexes will seem to resent babyhood, and will be unusually old and wise for their years. They will always be ready to meet peace and harmony half way.

Born on May 28th there are few destructive forces in your nature, and you are full of creative ideas and energy. An aura of tranquil benevolence and common sense radiates from your individuality. You are useful, sympathetic, and optimistic; equipped as it were to give manual, spiritual and mental assistance where it is needed. You are not a man or woman of straw. You are not afraid to roll up your sleeves, or to dirty your skirts, if need be, for the sake of some cause. As long as your motives are free from dishonesty or filth, you care little for appearances.

Your disposition is not all milk and honey, and your pockets are full of stones, ready to be thrown at hypocrites, snobs and bullies. Your tongue can be either tart or tender, and you do not hesitate to speak up for your self or another. You do not always follow a safety-first policy, and enjoy risking a gamble now and then. Your luck will about break even.

You make endless friends, but like all positive people, have your enemies too. You take an active stand for what you believe, regardless of popular feeling or opinions. If you be a man, your real talents will probably not be recognized until you are nearing the "thirties," but you will eventually land where you belong. The Stars say "lucky in love."

Sunday, May 29th.

If May 29th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:30 a.m. to noon, from 4:30 to 5:45 p.m. and from 8 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. The danger periods are from 7:40 a.m. to 9 a.m. and from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Sunday, May 29th, will be a good time for deep mental breathing. Many perplexed business men will have the solution of important problems come to them this week-end in the smoky atmosphere of their home den or the tranquility of their garden. Illuminating experience for psychic or spiritually-minded. Regrets for young lovers.

The child born on this May 29th will come under benefic planetary aspects. They give to the native a love of recognition, an observant, alert mind, and a fitness for work where arbitration and judgment are required. They place those under their influence in prominent positions, or bring them fame or recognition.

You are a sociable, companionable, and an amorous being, disliking to live or work alone. In most phases of life, you do better co-operating with others. You are quite capable of being the strength and brains in double harness, whereas you are not a spectacular worker in single harness. Competition is always good for people of your type. You may have the air of being on the surface, but you are not superficial in most respects.

You often pose as being indifferent, when you are really deeply moved. You always dislike exhibiting a sour face to the public, and generally keep up the appearance that all is well in your house. There is much kindliness in your nature, and you are happy to do things for others and help many a lame dog over the stile. You are very hospitable and receptive to the wants and requirements of others. You are ambitious, particularly for physical objects and lovely personal surroundings. You are sufficiently vain to like to "show off" to advantage, and do not like your friends to get ahead of you. You are critical about your food, and like well served and cooked meals. You have a love of the beautiful and harmonious in sights, colors and sounds. There is not much jazz in your make-up.

RUMORS IN LONDON OF CRISIS IN CANADA PROVE UNFOUNDED

Bills Passed at Ottawa to Govern Future Are Misinterpreted.

CURRENCY DISCUSSED

By A. D. O'Halloran.
Special to The Examiner (Copyright, 1932)

TORONTO, May 28 (S.N.S.). — Dame rumor got busy again this week when Canada was subjected to attacks such as other countries had experienced and which caused concern in financial centres until the gossip was proven to be without foundation. Bills passed in the Dominion House to prepare for emergencies that do not exist at present, and cable despatches of the discussion of Empire currency and currency stabilization that will most likely come up for consideration at the Empire Conference at Ottawa this summer started stories in London of a financial situation in the Dominion.

During the week economists the world over made addresses re currency and the gold standard and Toronto was the scene of the annual gathering of the Canadian Political Science Association when outstanding economists discussed currency and gold as related to Canada. Several suggestions were made for an Empire currency and currency stabilization which apparently were misinterpreted by London.

London was also quite concerned over the bill passed at Ottawa to limit investments in common stocks by Canadian insurance companies to 15 per cent. Most of our institutions are holding less than this percentage to-day and the act was more to govern the future than the present. London, however, held the view that insurance companies might be compelled to unload a portion of their holdings of common stocks and thus depress prices further by adding to the liquidation that has been taking place for weeks, whereas the bill itself covered this point and does not compel institutions to lighten their holdings of common stocks in this reactionary market. The companies themselves can take their time in selling and this can be undertaken gradually and as prices improve. In speaking to the bill in the House, Finance Minister Rhodes said that compulsion would be extremely unfair, and would compel a company to jettison much of its holdings on a disadvantageous market. "It was hoped to effect gradual reduction and with return to better times, higher prices were to be anticipated," he said.

Other rumors had to do with a scheme to stabilize the Canadian dollar with the pound sterling, the suggestion being that the dollar was to be depreciated. It is known that Government officials and economists have been considering a plan for an Empire currency to facilitate trade within the Empire, but no definite plan has yet been announced. It is possible, however, that Canada consulted with British economists and that London got wind of it.

Canadians paid little attention to the rumors, but the local exchanges had to withstand selling from abroad, in addition to the liquidation influenced by Wall Street. Several prominent issues dropped to new lows for the Bear market before recovery set in and volume mounted. The list was hard pressed at times to absorb increased offerings. This week International Nickel sold below $5 a share as compared with the 1929 peak of $72.50, C.P.R. dipped through $9, a long way from the equivalent high of $86.25 established by the old stock in 1929. Other issues continued to sell at small fractions of the valuations commanded in 1929 and the public has yet to display any buying activity. What little buying there is comes from individuals who are purchasing shares of sound Canadian companies at less than their break-up values with the intention of hanging on until recovery takes place and market quotations reflect the real value of the security.

In any market, whether it be for stocks or commodities, it has always been said there is a price at which the public will buy. During the decline of the past three years there were periods when it looked as if this point had been reached, but the market subsided and the public became discouraged again. The trouble is that speculators and investors are looking at the market action and not to the equity behind the security. They will not make purchases at bargain prices, realizing the possibility of a temporary lowering in price. Once the trend turns and security quotations advance, the people who are holding off to-day will be found active in paying the higher price for securities they neglected to buy at current low levels.

Military bands are to give Sunday concerts in Hyde Park, London.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION. NO. 12 By Edgar Rice Burroughs
(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

The noonday silence lay upon the jungle. Only the insects buzzed about. Suddenly there came a great scampering through the trees. Manu and his brothers trooped chattering through the middle terrace, shrieking: "The Mangani—the Mangani come!" "Go and call to them," urged Tarzan. "Tell them that one of their people lies here, helpless. Tell them to hasten and release me."

"We are afraid," chattered all the younger monkeys. "I will go," announced an old greybeard, "the Mangani cannot catch me." Presently Tarzan heard the deep gutturals of his own people, the great apes. "Perhaps," he thought, "there will be those among them who know me. It is my only hope." He lay there listening, knowing that even now fierce eyes were watching him.

There was great danger, too, that the huge anthropoids might quietly withdraw without showing themselves, suspecting a trick or a trap. So Tarzan called aloud, saying he was defenseless, a friend, needing food and water. After a moment's pause, a shaggy ape lumbered into the clearing. Swinging along with knuckles to the ground, the brute came close to Tarzan.

"M'Walat!" exclaimed the ape-man, "whose band is this?" "Toyat is king," replied M'Walat. "Then do not tell them it is I," whispered Tarzan, "until you have freed me. Toyat hates me. He would kill me if he could. Here, bite these bonds in two." Tarzan raised his bound wrists. "You are my friend," replied the ape. "M'Walat will do as you ask!"

They were given into the care of the Librarian by Major A. G. Carruthers. The following letter, which accompanied the shipment from Toronto, was addressed to F. M. Dela Fosse:

"I am forwarding herewith per express a box containing historical records of the 39th Battalion in which a great number of Peterborough men enlisted. Contents: 4 vols. Along wtih other writing the photograph is inscribed, "A gallant gentleman. Presented to Peterborough Public Library by A. G. Carruthers, Major."

OMEMEE WINS DRAMATIC CUP

Omemee A. Y. P. A. Captures Cup Offered for Best Play.

TWO ENTERED CONTEST.

The annual dramatic contest of the Peterborough District A.Y.P.A. took place in All Saints Parish Hall last evening. The contestants were members of St. Luke's Peterborough with the play "Rats" and from Omemee A.Y.P.A. with "Sarah's Young Man."

"Rats" wasp ut on first by St. Lukes. George Whiffle had invented a rat poison but was having great difficulty in selling the formula because of its very disagreeable odour. He was in financial difficulties having given up his position and spending all his money on experiments and buying rats. His wife helped him but did not like the odor of the poison. The Landlady, Mrs. Penny came in to collect the rent which was two weeks behind. When she found out from Mrs. Whiffle the nature of the terrible smell that the neighbours were complaining about and the Whiffles kept rats in her house she ordered them out by the end of the week. George's Uncle, Peter Spooner, was due to make his nephew a visit that afternoon. George wanted to sell him the formula but Uncle Peter was (knocked out) by the smell when he refused to put on a nose poke that George has also invented. Uncle Peter refused to have anything to do with the formula and when Mrs. Penny came in again on an errand he discovered that they knew each other years ago. Uncle Peter consented to help George out of his difficulties.

The cast was as follows: George Whiffle (Cecil Hope); Myrtle Whiffle (Clemena Long); Mrs. Penny (Queenie Hope); Peter Spooner (Roland Krant).

"Sarah's Young Man" was presented by Omemee A.Y.P.A. Sarah Tibbs was a domestic in the Noggndge home. Mr. M. Will allowed no loiterers around the house. Everyone knew this and all were looking for a different person. When each one got Sarah alone they asked her if she had seen a strange man sneaking around the place. She had seen her young man. Samuel Sloeleaf, but would not tell them so she said she has seen a man who wore a white hat. Of course this was the person they are looking for. Sarah felt quite safe in telling them about a white one because she knew Sam never wore anything but a black hat. Mr. M was in a rush to go to the city, taking his wife and niece with him. They did not want to go and contrived to keep him from getting the train. After they left for the station Samuel came into the house and after much talking with Sarah showed her a new hat he had purchased. Sarah went into hysterics over this and then told him the story of the white hat. They went to go down the street but found the family coming back. They had missed the train. Sam hides in the bedroom but was found by Mr. M. Everyone of the family found him in turn andn accused him of being a different person. Sarah finally came in and they tell who he was and everything ends well.

The cast was as follows: Sarah Tibbs (Mrs. S. Nurse); Sam Sloeleaf, (H. W. Hill); Mr. Noggndge, (J. A. Bent; Mrs. Noggndge (Miss M. Rowan); Marry Fielding, (H. W. McNeven); Araminta Noggndge (Miss M. Thorne).

The judges in their decision said the plays were well presented and it was very hard to decide upon the winner. All Saints and St. Lukes had always had the cup between them but this year they decided Omemee was a little better than St. Lukes and therefore the cup would go out of the city for the first time. Rev. G. J. Bousfield, rector of St. Lukes, presented the cup to the Omemee president, saying he was glad to do so and hoped Omemee would win it next year.

FRANCE FAVORS CANCELLATION OF WAR DEBTS

New Suggestion on War Debt Payments Outlined By Painleve.

READY TO RELINQUISH.

Would Submit Scheme of Liquidation to United States.

MAROMME, France, May 30 (A.P.)—A suggestion that a general cancellation of war debts and reparations, both European and American, might be wise was before France to-day, upon the suggestion of former Premier Paul Painleve, who may be a member of the next Cabinet.

The former Premier made the suggestion in a speech here yesterday.

Nevertheless, he added, to prevent Germany, already relieved of its internal debt obligations, from becoming an overwhelming competitor of its rival, and creditor countries, he suggested the possibility of a kind of compensation fund.

Under such a plan, he suggested, all European nations might be assured of equal treatment and economic fair play in the future. It would be difficult to realize, however, he said, because of the isolation of the United States.

He added that, in his opinion, a scheme of liquidation should be submitted to the United States with a request for her agreement, in her own interest as well as that of every other nation.

France's part in such a scheme, he predicted, would be the relinquishment of the uncondition portion of the reparations payments, as outlined under the Young Plan.

PRESIDENT HINDENBURG ACCEPTS RESIGNATION OF GERMAN CABINET

Chancellor Bruening Fought His Way Through a Series of Crises.

ALMOST DICTATORSHIP.

BERLIN, May 30 (C.P.).—Chancellor Heinrich Bruening and the members of his Cabinet resigned today and the resignations were accepted by President Paul Von Hindenburg.

The stern, hard-fisted Chancellor, combination of soldier and student, who in the little more than years he has been in office, has guided the German Republic through unprecedented storms and a financial near collapse, finally lost an uphill fight against growing nationalism and dissatisfaction with Government by emergency decrees.

Conservative Majority.

He was forced at last to make way for a Cabinet in which Conservatives are likely to predominate and which, in turn, probably soon will have to give way to one dominated by the phenominally rising National Socialists of the young Fascist leader, Adolf Hitler, who romped away with the recent State Diet elections.

As far as the mind of President Von Hindenburg was known to-day, he leans toward the appointment of a new Chancellor from the Nationalists, but not the National Socialist ranks, a Cabinet whose first duty it will be to weather the coming Lausanne Conference on war debts and reparations.

After the return of the delegation from Lausanne, the new Cabinet will have to face the Reichstag, which will probably be dissolved. New elections would then have to be held which might well sweep Hitler into power.

Summon Speaker First

President Von Hindenburg announced that he intended to follow regular parliamentary procedure in forming a new cabinet. This means that he will first summon Paul Loebe, speaker of the Reichstag, and then in turn the leaders of the various parties in the order of their present Reich-

PEACE PLEDGES CAN NOT STAND HATRED'S FIRE

Former Senator Tells United States' National Memorial Service.

NEED MEN OF IRON.

Advises No Faith in Paper Barricades or Pacifists.

WASHINGTON, May 30 (C.P.).—The memory of soldiers who died on the field of battle to found and maintain the United States, was invoked this Memorial Day for the cause of national defence.

In the marble ampitheatre that looks upon the Unknown Soldier's grave at Arlington, former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, mingled with a tribute to soldier heroes a plea for reliance on the stout hearts and the unyielding swords of our gallant sons. He was the chief speaker at a National Memorial Service.

In a national message, Henry L. Stevens, Jr., commander of the American Legion, recalled the high cost of unpreparedness in the last war, and bespoke a hot determination that the sacrifices of the war dead be not made vain.

Men Of Iron.

"Pale and anaemic pacifists," said Reed, "denounce the soldier who stands guard upon our shores and gives protection to our homes. But it was men with iron in their souls who gave us all the liberty we have. Dreamers may dream their dreams and universal congresses write their thousand pledges of eternal amity. These are but paper pacts quickly consumed in hatred's smouldering fires.

"So long as flames of human passion burn and barbarous races arm for carnage, slaughter and for spoils, wise men will put no faith in paper barricades."

Stevens said the world conflict gave the men who participated in it a new and finer appreciation of life, of unselfish service, of our citizenship and of our responsibilities as men.

BOY MAY LOSE SIGHT OF EYE

Bottle Thrown Through Window of His Father's Car.

IN NORTH MONAGHAN.

A bottle thrown through the side window of his father's automobile Saturday night, with a burst of broken glass, will probably cost James H. Smith, five years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, 198 Murray Street, the sight of his right eye.

Information from local authorities related that Mr. Smith was motoring on the road running west from Crawford's Grove about ten o'clock. He was accompanied by his wife and son. Without any warning to the occupants of the car, a bottle was hurled through the window showering the interior with splintered glass. The right eyeball of the boy was cut through, and according to a statement by Dr. N. D. Buchanan, who attended him at St. Joseph's hospital, there is practically no hope of the sight being saved.

Provincial police are investigating the circumstances reported to them. It is understood that John Smith lives on Murray Street.

A sturgeon, five feet long and weighing 64 pounds, was recently caught in the Grand river, at Caledonia, Ontario.

1930 Race Winner Crashes Into Wall At Indianapolis

Billy Arnold And Mechanic Out Of Race After Setting Pace For 150 Miles Of The 500-Mile Automobile Derby—Was Favorite.

HAD BROKEN ALL SPEEDWAY RECORDS FOR DISTANCE AT TIME OF ACCIDENT.

SPEEDWAY, Indianapolis, May 30 (C.P.). — Billy Arnold, 27-year-old Chicagoan, winner of the 1930 classic, smashed into a retaining wall while leading the 500-miles automobile race to-day, and was rushed to an emergency hospital.

Arnold, favorite to-day, was on his 150th mile at the time of the crash. His wrecked car hung over the edge of the track. He had broken all Speedway records for the distance when the accident occurred. Bob Carey, Anderson, Indiana, immediately shot into the lead after Arnold hit the wall, with Lou Moore, Hollywood, Cal., second, and Ernie Triplett, of Los Angeles ,third.

Carey assumed Arnold's role as a record-breaker, by reeling off 175 miles in 1:35:58.34, to average 109.407 miles an hour. This broke the track record of 103 057 mile an hour made by Jimmy Gleason in 1928. Mocre was second and Triplett third.

Neither Arnold nor his mechanic Spider Matlock of Chicago, was seriously hurt. Arnold's bride of a few weeks rushed to the emergency hospital to comfort him. He asked for a cigarette just as quickly as surgeons advised him that he was all in one piece. He and his mechanic received only a slight shaking up, and were unable to explain how the accident occurred.

Hit Same Spot Last Year.

Arnold hit the wall in almost exactly the same spot that wrecked him a year ago after he had led the race for 400 miles, and seemed certain of victory. That crash placed him in the hospital for six months. Before to-day's crack-up, Arnold had won $2 800 in lap prizes.

Louie Meyer, Huntington Park, California, winner of the 1928 classic, was also forced to quit when his car was damaged while tearing off the 46th lap. The car skidded while rounding the treacherous southeast turn, but remained upright.

Carey clipped off 200 miles with a lead of two and a half miles at a

PLAN REMODEL KAYE DON'S BOAT

Miss England III to be Rebuilt and Have Second Trial.

COMPLETED SOON.

LONDON, May 30 (A.P.)—Lord Wakefield, owner of the speedboat Miss England III, announced to-day that the boat, which is being shipped here from Lake Garda, Italy, would be altered and then Kaye Don would make another attempt on the world record on Loch Lomond. Originally, it had been planned to ship the boat back to Italy for the trial.

Lord Wakefield said that in addition to altering the hulls, new engines would be installed. He said the changes could be made in three weeks.

Don failed by almost 20 miles an hour in an attempt on Lake Garda last week to break Gar Wood's world mark of 111.712 miles an hour.

NINE DROWNED OVER WEEK-END

Five Lost Lives in Two Boating Accidents in Western Canada.

ONE AT MIDLAND.

TORONTO, May 30 (C.P.)—Nine persons are dead in four Canadian provinces to-day, victims of week-end drowning fatalities. Western Canada reports the heaviest loss, five persons losing their lives in two boating accidents at Edmonton and Victoria. Another pair of deaths were reported from Nova Scotia while a single fatality occured at Midland and another in Windsor in Ontario.

Sydney Fowler, 23, student of the University of Alberta; George Latham, school board engineer, Edmonton, and Oscar Meurin, storekeeper of Alberta Beach, were drowned when their boat overturned during a squall on Lac St. Anne. A fourth member of the party, Ursel Tyrell, of Alberta Ranch, was rescued.

Overturning of a canoe from which they were fishing north of Victoria resulted in the death of Alfred Hayes, and John A. Fearkins, Victoria, in the water's of Week's Lake.

Nova Scotia's casualties occurred at Lower Saulniewville where the bodies of Dereme Comeau, 35, and Arcade Cameau, 32, were taken from the waters of Beaver Lake. The two men were on a fishing expedition when their dory overturned.

Harold Carrigan of Windsor was drowned and three other persons had a narrow escape from a similar death when their motor-launch crashed into a pole in the Detroit River.

Capsizing of a boat resulted in the drowning of James R. Redpath, 24, a bank clerk of Midland in the waters of Georgian Bay. Redpath, along with James Playfair and Fred Tremeer, were on a fishing trip at the time of the accident.

ROTARY HEARS OF KINGSTON'S NEW HOSPITAL

Superintendent Tells of Success of Building Plan in Limestone City.

A GREAT INSTITUTION.

Many Patients From Outside City Are Now Receiving Treatment.

Most interesting details of Kingston's modern 400-bed general hospital, one of the finest institutions on the continent, and of the fifteen-year building plan now successfuly completed, were told the Peterborough Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon to-day by R. Fraser Armstrong, superintendent of the hospital whose efficient administration is recognized as one of the principal factors in the recognition of the Kingston hospital as a great public health centre.

Introduced by Rotarian John Crane, Mr. Armstrong set the background for his address by referring to the early history of the Kingston General Hospital, the work of which began in 1811 with an organization known as the Compassionate Society. In 1834 a board of commissioners was appointed to arrange for the erection of an hospital which was built in 1837. The building incidentally was used as the meeting place of the United Legislature of Canada from 1841 to 1844.

In 1916 began the agitation the speaker said, in passing over the intervening years, for an hospital that would be of greater service not only to the general public but to the medical department of Queen's University. An organization was effected and $600,000 was set as the objective to be aimed at. However, owing to the war it was impossible to get the movement under way and it was not until 1920 that the active work of giving Kingston a modern hospital was begun. It was then found that the original scheme would have to be amplified and that the $600,000 proposition had increased to a $1,500.000 affair.

BROKER FOUND DEAD IN GARAGE

Peculiar Circumstances Surround Death of Ex-President of Stock Exchange.

CAR RUNNING.

MONTREAL, May 30.—Walter E. J. Luther, partner of the brokerage firm of Craig and Luther, and former president of the Montreal Stock Exchange, was found dead early to-day in the garage attached to his summer home at Hudson Heights, Que. Cause of death was not at once determined, but Dr. E. O. Millay, first physician to examine the body, gave his opinion it was heart trouble. As the engine of an automobile was running in the closed garage, it was at first assumed carbon monoxide poisoning was the cause, but Dr. Millay said there was no evidence of that.

Mr. Luther drove two of his sons to Montreal yesterday and returned after seeing them aboard a train to Lennoxville. It is believed he died shortly after his return to Hudson Heights last night.

Born in New York

He was born in New York City in 1881. He commenced his business career with the American Express Company in New York in 1899. In 1907 he came to Montreal as financial agent for that company. Later he became a partner in the firm of Craig, Luther and Irvine. Dr. A. D. Irvine resigned from the partner a month ago. Mr. Luther became a member of the Montreal Stock Exchange in 1908. He joined the Board of Governors in 1924, and last year was chairman of the Exchange.

Mr. Luther leaves his wife, formerly Cora Caroline Lenz; one daughter, Mrs. Colin Rankin; and three sons, Douglas, Gordon and Austin.

General Naosuke Matsuki, commander of the Fourteenth Japanese Division, planned to direct a determined offensive against the insurgents at Hailun.

REGRET SALARIES COMMISSION IS TO CONDUCT BROADCASTING

Canadian Radio League to Remain in Action to Aid Commission.

VOLUNTARY SERVICE.

OTTAWA, May 30 (C.P.).—Regret that a salaried commission was to be appointed to conduct Canada's proposed new radio broadcasting system, was expressed to-day by officials of the Canadian Radio League, which organization was largely instrumental in the presentation to the Parliamentary committee of the basis for the radio policy adopted at the session just concluded. It had been felt by the League that the commission should be composed of voluntary workers, thus ensuring greater freedom from political interference and constituting a buffer between the Government and the operating organization.

A statement was issued by Allan Plaunt, honorary secretary, following a meeting at which it was shown that the organization had been financed, since its inception eighteen months ago, at a total cost of $5,000, more than half of which Mr. Plaunt said, was contributed by members of the executive.

The League will remain in existence as a watch-dog and friendly critic of the proposed Canadian Radio Broadcasting Commission, it was stated, and will branch out with a view to securing more members and a wider organization.

Forlorn Husband Has Single Desire

ROCKPORT, Mass., May 30. —John T. Selig told police today his wife had driven him out of his home a month ago and that since, then he had been forced to live in a shack in the woods. He returned to the house to-day to find the only occupants of the premises were a few chickens in the yard. His wife, seven children and a 1915 truck were missing. "I don't mind losing the old truck, he told officers, "but I insist on getting back the license plates."

Ethel Gamble Appeal Dismissed In Toronto

TORONTO, May 30.—(CP)—Ethel Gamble, Peterborough, today appealed to the Court of Appeal at Osgoode Hall against a judgment of Judge O'Connor, Peterborough, who awarded her $521 damages against Allan Lewis.

The plaintiff had sued the latter and his father, James Lewis for damages received when an automobile driven by Allan Lewis overturned in a ditch in December 1929.

Hon. G. N. oGrdon, K. C., today failed to establish that the father, who had the car on trial and who had given permission to his son to use it was in fact the real owner of the machine. Chief Justice Mulock said it was "a very close case" and warranted an appeal.

Conservative Candidate Is Elected In West York

Riding Remains In Tory Column Large Vote Cast

Harry I. Price Has Plurality 972 Votes—Liberal Candidate Is Second And Labor Man Third—Socialists Poll Only 106 Votes.

PREMIER GEORGE S. HENRY HAILS OUTCOME AS CONFIDENCE TO CANADIANS GENERALLY.

Liberal Candidate Polls 1,400 More Votes Than In 1929, While Labor Vote Turned Out in Force On Saturday.

TORONTO, May 30 (C.P.).— Harry I. Price, Liberal-Conservative, succeeded in retaining the West York seat for the Government in Saturday's by-election, rendered necessary by the death of the former member, Dr. Forbes Godfrey. Mr. Price's majority over the next highest candidate was 972, a considerable reduction from the majority of 3,885 rolled up by Dr. Godfrey in the last general election.

The figures of Saturday's voting were as follows:

H. I. Price (Cons.)	6869
W. J. Gardhouse (Lib)	5897
J. W. Buckley, Labor	3869
J. M. Reid (Socialist)	106

A feature of the by-election was the increase in the number of votes cast which was 4,094 over the total poll in the 1929 election when the battle was a straight one between Liberal and Conservative. The Labor vote turned out in force on Saturday and gave their own candidate, J. W. Buckley, strong support. The Liberals also added to their vote, giving W. J. Gardhouse about 1,400 more counters than the Liberal candidate received in the 1929 election. The Socialist, James N. Reid, was practically out of the running.

Hails Outcome.

Premier George S. Henry hailed the outcome as giving a feeling of confidence to Canadians generally—not only in Ontario. He said the Government was particularly gratified with the result coming as it did in the midst of hard times and in a partially industrial area where many persons are out of employment.

Harry C. Nixon, Ontario Progressive Leader, saw in the returns a moral defeat of the Government, since Mr. Price failed to poll an absolute majority over the combined vote accorded his rivals.

Mitchell F. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal Leader, said the result showed an amazing recession in the number of Conservative votes since the 1929 election. He congratulated Mr. Price on his victory, but added the three-party opposition had confused voters in the riding. Had the Conservatives been opposed by only one candidate, he said, he believed they would have lost the seat by about 3,000 votes.

Conservatives 88; Liberals 15; Progressive 5; Independent Conservative 2; United Farmers of Ontario 1; Labor 1—Total 112.

VOICES BIG NEED FOR CONFERENCE ON WORLD TRADE

Premier MacDonald Favors Converting Lausanne Conference to Purpose.

Restarting of Commerce.

British Representatives Will Strive for This Larger Issue.

LONDON, May 30 (C.P.).—Conversion of the coming Lausanne Conference on war debts and reparations into a conference on world trade was sponsored to-day by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald in an interview published in the London Daily Mail.

The interview was given by the Prime Minister, who is at Lossiemouth, Scotland, recuperating from a recent second operation on his eyes, to the Mail's political specialist, who visited him there.

"The problem to be faced," he was quoted as saying, "is not merely the recovery of one nation, but the re-starting of world commerce. I should like to see the Lausanne Conference boldly tackle this much bigger problem in all its important aspects, as well as dealing with the war debts and reparations. It is an international problem and no nation can settle it for itself."

"The British representatives," Mr. MacDonald was quoted as saying, "will strive with might and main to get the conference to face this large issue. The experience of all countries, in the last six months particularly, ought to induce every nation to take broader views than some of them have taken hitherto."

The Lausanne Conference is scheduled to meet June 16. The suggestion for broadening its scope, the Mail said, was one of the main topics discussed by Mr. MacDonald recently in a trans-Atlantic telephone conference with Secretary of State Stimson at Washington.

DEADLY FUMES KILLS BROKER

Young Toronto Broker Died From Carbon Monoxide Gas.

SEEPS THROUGH FLOOR.

TORONTO, May 30. — Carbon monoxide fumes seeping through the floor from the garage beneath killed Kenneth A. MacPhadyen, aged 35, of 439 Oriole Parkway, broker and mining engineer, as he sat in his den reading, smoking and drinking a glass of beef just before retiring early Sunday morning.

Mr. McPhadyen had inadvertently left the engine of his car running when he came home, and it was still running at 9.30 Sunday morning, when his body was found slumped in a chair by Jean Gillies, a maid.

Adjacent to the den, built over the garage, is the bedroom where slept the two children, Shirley, four, and Craig, two and a half. Apparently nothing but blind chance confined the exhaust fumes to one room and saved the lives of the children. Mrs. MacPhadyen was at Timagami visiting friends.

A book stand and an ash tray, which appeared to have been knocked to the floor, indicated that MacPhadyen had made a futile struggle to resist the paralyzing effects of the deadly gas and get out of the room.

Magazine On Floor.

At the dead man's feet when he was found was a magazine spread on the floor. At his elbow on a table was a glass of beer.

The shrill morning cries of the two children for their father roused the two maids, Marion Morrison and Jean Gillies. Miss Gillies went to their room to dress them and then when they asked for their father again, she went to the den and found Mr. MacPhadyen dead in his chair.

Dr. Charles Sheard was called, and discovering his friend was dead, he summoned Chief Coroner M. M. Crawford. Dr. Sheard told Dr. Crawford of a conversation he had had with Mr. MacPhadyen Saturday night in front of the latter's house.

According to Dr. Sheard, Mr. MacPhadyen had put his car in the garage and had then walked around to the front of the house where they had talked for some time before they both retired to their respective homes for the night.

At that time Mr. MacPhadyen was in the best of spirits and was talking of plans for the summer months. Going into the house, the broker, in the absence of Mrs. MacPhadyen, who was spending a few days at Lake Timagami with friends, gave instructions about breakfast for Sunday morning.

Sitting In Chair.

He then went up to his den and after filling a glass with beer and smoking several cigarettes, sat down to read in a large armchair. He was reading in the chair when death silently stole in from the garage below.

"The death is the result of his accidentally leaving the engine of his car running in the garage, which caused the carbon monoxide fumes to seep into the den," said Dr. Crawford.

DIVORCE MILL IS TOO SPEEDY

Judges Order No Decrees Granted in Less Than Two Days.

CLERKS OVERWORKED.

RENO, Nevada, May 30.— Reno's judges have put the brakes on divorce seekers who attempt to slip through court in one day.

The slow-down order was issued in a joint statement by Judges B. F. Curler and Thomas F. Moran which announced the sun must set at least once between filing of suit and granting of decree. The Judges declared the rule would not be waived under any consideration.

Court attaches, especially those employed in the clerk's office, welcomed the rule. They pointed out the granting of decrees immediately after suits were fyled often ran things ahead of clerical ability to keep up with the procedure.

Charming Sharpshooter

TO SHOOT FOR CANADA AT BISLEY

Pretty Miss Gwen Spencer, of Victoria, B.C., who will accompany the Canadian Bisley team to England this year for the annual Empire shoot of the National Rifle Association. Miss Spencer, a protege of Major Fred Richardson, well known to Canadian marksmen, has shown remarkable form in both small-arms and service rifle competition, and will compete in both classes at Bisley. Last year Miss Marjorie Foster of England won the famous King's Prize competition from the best shots of the empire. Perhaps Miss Spencer can duplicate this year for Canada. At any rate she certainly scores a bull's-eye when it comes to beauty.

CANADA'S GOLD OUTPUT IN 1932 WILL BE WORTH $60,000,000

Metal Output During Years of Depression Shows Increase.

GREAT FUTURE AHEAD.

SUDBURY, Ont., May 30. (CP)—Canada's gold output for 1932 will have a value of more than $60,000,000 E. J. Carlyle, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy predicted in an address to the Sudbury branch of the organization Saturday.

Mr. Carlyle pointed out the Dominion has increased the value of her mineral products from $17,000,000 in 1892 to $311,000,000 in 1929, a eigheen fold expansnion; and even in 1931, notwithstanding the depressed condition of markets output of Canadian metals had a value of $238,000,000. Gold production alone last year was $55,00,000, he said, and in 1932 will reach a total of $60,000,000.

Reviewing the remarkable growth and development of Canadian mining, Mr. Carlyle declared that despite the effects of the depression, which has caused the shutdown of many Canadian metal mines and the curtailment of operations of others, the institute would continue to function on its present scale.

Thanks to its great mining companies Canada is now producing its own refined metals, Mr. Carlyle said. We are now in a position to undertake the productions of combinations of metals. No one can venture to predict the developments of the next ten years in the making of new metals, and in the finding of new uses and new markets for metals and alloys.

CARS DAMAGED IN COLLISION

OCCUPANTS UNINJURED.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 30 (Examiner Staff Correspondent). — A head-on collision occurred near Meyersburg on Saturday night when a car driven by Victor Greenly, of Oshawa, crashed into one driven by Wesley Clare, son of the Rev. D. R. Clare, of Norham. Both cars were badly damaged in the collision, but the occupants escaped with only a severe shaking up. Provincial Constable McBrien of Brighton is investigating the accident.

The crash occurred about 11 p.m. opposite the service station operated by Ben Ibey. Wesley Clare, with a brother and two sisters, was returning from Campbellford, where the evening had been spent with friends, when they collided with the car driven by Victor Greenly of Oshawa, who was going to Campbellford to spend the week-end. He had as passenger a Mr. Hopkins of Warkworth.

Both cars were very severely damaged in the crash, the front portions of them being total wrecks. It is not known just how the accident occurred, but there is a slight bend in the road at this point and it is thought that this fact may have added to the mishap.

Children's Matches Cause $125,000 Fire

BIG FALLS, Minn., May 30.—Children played with matches here and as a result 18 buildings, more than two thirds of the business section of this northern Minnesota village, lay in ruins today representing a loss of about $125,000.

A half hour after the fire began Sunday in the shed where the children played, the flames had beaten a path to the municipal pumping station, disabled it, and left villagers without water pressure to fight the blaze.

BROWNE FAILS TO GET STARTED ON LONG FLIGHT

Will Try Again To-day on Flight to Tokyo, Aviator Announces.

REFUEL IN AIR.

Big Plane Grazed Tree on Sunday—Pilot Has Close Call.

SEATTLE, Wash., May 30. (CP) Hazards of refueling high over Seattle to get a three-ton load of gasoline into his tanks, to-day offered Not C. Browne, who battled in a 7½ hour flight yesterday, his last chance to start his huge monoplane on a flight to Tokyo in quest of a $30,000 prize.

I a daring tak-off at dawn yesterday, he twice sacrificed gasoline to clear wires, brush and trees. The big plane skimmed over the brush and wires but grazed a tree. Undaunted, the New York aviator kept on until an oil line broke over Vancouver Island and sprayed hot oil in his face and eyes, temporarily blinding him.

On his way back he again narrowly escaped death as he valved most of his load of gasoline and fought to gain altitude.

Narrow Escape

I had a pretty narrow escape, he said on his return. I was flying at a low altitude. I just managed to wipe the oil out of my eyes and off my goggles in time.

After an examination of his plane as it sat again on Boeing Field, he said that the return had probably been a blessing in disguise. In grazing the tree a stabilizer wire was broken. The tail of the plane shook badly, he explained, and it might have come off if he had continued his flight.

In his last attempt to win the prize—he must be in Tokyo Tuesto qualify—Browne planned to get into the air to-day, with a reasonable load. He place this at about 500 gallons of gasoline.

Frank Brooks, a parachute jumper was to accompany him to aid in the refueling, leaping in a parachute after completing the task.

Charges Are Ready Against Walker

NEW YORK, May 30.—Newspapers said to-day that Samuel Seabury, counsel for the Hofstadter Legislative Committee, investigating New York City's Government, is ready to draft charges against Mayor James J. Walker.

The charges, to be filed with Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, will be based on Seabury's long enquiry and his interrogation of Mayor Walker on the witness stand last week, the papers said.

Seabury will resume his investigation of Walker to-morrow, completing it on Wednesday.

He also reiterated that the government was determined to cease the annuities payments, the next instalment of which is due at the end of June.

WAR VETERANS IN WASHINGTON

Will Remain Until Congress Pays Bonus in Full Leader Declares.

FED AND HOUSED.

WASHINGTON, May 30. (CP)—A weaponless army camped on Washington to-day, determined to stay here until Congress surrenders to its uncompromising demands.

The army was made up of men who fought in the World War, 1,300 or more of them, beseeching that their service bonus be paid in full immediately.

Sixteen truckloads of them, gathered from across the broad sweep of the country, entered the capital from Maryland, weary and stained with the grime of haphazard travel. Others already had filtered in, a few at a time, and more were expected.

They were fed and housed under arrangements made personally by a former brigadier general of war days, Police Superintendent Glassford. He told them they would have to leave in 48 hours to save the local relief funds from such depletion that Washington's destitute would be forced to go hungry. But the leader of the most organized contingent—330 men from the Pacific coast—replied they would stay till the bonus is paid.

Every family can afford An ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR

INVEST in an ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR

REALLY you will be surprised at the ease with which you can buy an electric refrigerator. And once you have it in your home it will pay you daily dividends in economy, health protection and comfort.

First, she will tell you that it has enabled her to cut her food bills because waste is reduced—and because she can buy perishables in quantities at lower prices.

Next, she will say it helps safeguard her family's health. Digestive upsets, particularly those of children, are caused time and again by foods that have been improperly kept. An electric refrigerator, you know, must keep foods properly because it maintains at all times an inside temperature of 50 degrees or less.

And third, she will add, it is such a convenience. Ice cubes at a moment's notice—frozen salads and desserts made so easily. Complete certainty that milk, cream, butter, etc., will stay fresh.

Everywhere people say an electric refrigerator is a splendid investment. See any dealer. Ask for a demonstration and particulars of easy terms.

Edward Lapp, Oldest Resident Lake Township, Celebrates Birthday.

HALE AND HEARTY AT 95.

MARMORA, May 30 (Examiner Correspondence). — Edward Tapp, oldest resident of Lake Township celebrates his 95th birthday to-day in the restful quietude of North Hastings. Since the decease of his wife, 5½ years ago, this wiry veteran has resided with his brother-in-law, William Dalton, at his farm two miles north of St. Margaret's Church, Glanmire. Edward Tapp was born in the heart of England's metropolis on May 30, 1837, the year of Queen Victoria's accession to the throne. When he was a boy, his father moved from London to the city of Gloucester, to be employed at Lord's tannery there. After being foreman for a number of years, he entered the hotel business. Then he decided to emigrate to Canada, so in November, 1860, when Edward was 23 years of age, he and his father and a brother crossed the Atlantic to be followed by the mother and other members of the family a few months later.

Landed at Quebec

Mr. Tapp recalls that the ship the father and two sons took passage on was the old S.S. Jura, and that she was wrecked on an eastward voyage some months later. After landing at Quebec, the three men journeyed to Belleville, where they stayed one night, and the following night they sojourned at Moon's Hotel, Madoc. A man named Donovan brought their effects from Belleville to Madoc on a horse wagon. The next day the trio walked from Madoc to Millbridge. The family lived close to Millbridge for two years, and then spent three years at Beaver Creek bridge at Glanmire.

Cleared Land

When Edward Tapp Sr. moved to the States, his son Edward, who a year before had married Mary Ann, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dalton, remained behind and cleaned up land to erect a home for himself.

For years "Ned" Tapp, as he is the oftener called, has been widely known over the country, partly because for 35 years he was the assessor of Lake Township and partly because with the advance of time, he has a remarkable preservation of faculties. He has a wonderful memory of the cities, towns and villages in the county of Gloucester, England, and other adjacent counties. As a youth, he was a great walker and thought nothing of taking a 30-mile walk to visit some interesting spot.

He recalls games of cricket, field hockey and rounders in which he took part over seventy years ago with amazing clearness. He is a great reader and has rejoiced in the possession of second sight for a few years now. Apparently his only disability is an affection of his right arm which for the past three years has prevented his milking.

Though unable to milk, he is interested in seeing the cows home each night from their long stretch of summer pasturage. He is fond of smoking and told The Examiner representative who took supper with him on the eve of his birthday that he learned to smoke a clay pipe when quite young. He was asked how it was that Millbridge has so often been referred to as "The Jordan" or as oftener pronounced "The Jurdan." He told his questioner that it was thus named because of a stream called the Big Jordan flowing nearby, and the Little Jordan, he said, was at the entrance to the famous Hole in the Wall hill, 2½ miles north.

Still Can Plant

A proof of his present good vitality is furnished in the fact that recently he planted thirty rows of corn and covered twenty-five rows fo potatoes. Before his interviewer took farewell, Mr. Tapp was minded to quote some prices which were prevalent when he moved to Millbridge: Butter was 10 cents a pound; pork, 4 cents a pound; beef, 3 cents a pound; oats, 25 cents a bushel, and hay $7 or $8 a ton delivered to the shanty.

Trent River

The June meeting of the Ladies' Aid will be held Wednesday afternoon at the United church. Afternoon tea will be served at the close of the business meeting. The members from the south district will be hostesses.

ATTACK SISTERS IN ACT OF MERCY

Facing Poverty and Blindness Decides on Murder and Suicide.

CRITICALLY WOUNDED.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 30.—Two elderly, spinster sisters were in a critical condition in a Los Angeles hospital to-day, victims of an axe wielded by their brother, who impoverished and facing blindness, did not want to leave them to the care of charity.

The brother, George Ross Mohr, 59, once a well-to-do bond broker, ended his life with a pistol after the attack on his sisters, Essie, 72, and Phoebe, 76.

Recently a physician told Mohr he would lose his sight within six months. He had previously suffered a paralytic stroke, which impaired his vision.

Mohr wrote eight letters to friends. In them he told of his poverty and the fear of approaching blindness, and of his desire to save his sisters from the support of charity, describing the crime he planned as an act of mercy.

IN MEMORIAM.

DARLING. — In loving memory of my dear wife, Mrs. Roland Darling, who died one year ago to-day (May 29).

I have lost a dear companion,
A life linked with my own;
And day by day I miss her more
As I walk through life alone.

The blow was great, the shock severe,
I little thought the end was near;
It's only those who have lost can tell
The sorrow of parting without farewell.

In the lonely hours of thinking,
Thoughts of you are always near;
I who loved you, sadly miss you
As it dawns another year.

Some may think that I've forgotten,
When at times they see me smile;
But they little know the heartache
That smile hides all the while.

—Sadly missed by her Husband.

IN MEMORIAM.

DARLING. — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Roland Darling, who passed away one year ago to-day (May 29).

She used to watch and wait for us,
Anxious if we were late—
In winter by the window,
In summer by the gate.

Her thoughts were always full of us,
She never could forget,
And so we think that where she is
She must be watching for us yet.

Sunshine passes, shadows fall,
Love and memory outlast all;
Friends are friends if they are true,
Dear mother, to-day they are but few—
We lost our best friend when we lost you.

Farewell, and God bless you,
Mother, dear, till we meet again.

—Sadly missed by her Daughters, Marian, Phyllis and Rolleen.

GERMAN CABINET HAS RESIGNED

stag strength.

It was semi-officially announced that no personal differences existed between the president and Dr. Bruening.

During his stay in East Prussia, from which he just returned, the president was so beset by friends who supported him in 1925 and who objected to the cabinet's plans for dividing Junkers' estates to make room for small farms, that he felt he could not sign emergency decrees making those plans effective.

It also was reported he objected to provisions in proposed emergency decrees which would have provided for further sacrifices in the form of a tax on persons employed on the part of Germany's vast army of government jobholders.

What is to happen regarding the Lausanne Conference and how Germany's treasury is to be filled while the new cabinet is being constituted and the projected emergency decrees changed to suit the president, are questions that no one can answer.

Possible Chancellor

Whether Von Hindenburg has a new chancellor up his sleeve probably will become evident soon. The most prominent man mentioned is Baron Wilhelm Von Gay, 53, who organized forces for the protection of East Prussia from Bolshevik inroads in 1919 and also conducted the Allenstein plebiscite in 1920 as a federal commissioner since 1921 he has served as East Prussias representative in Reichstrat.

Other possibilities are Count Von Westarp, 67, leader of the Peoples' Conservative party and a veteran parliamentarian, and Oscar Von Der Osten, 68, former representative for East Prussia in the federal economic advisory council.

Dr. Bruening, it was reported, will take a long rest. His friends said he was unwilling to accept the foreign ministry.

For more than two years, two of the most critical years in Germany's history, Chancellor Bruening, only a short time before a little known figure in German politics, fought his way through a series of crises that would have unseated many another stouthearted premier.

Through the period of the rise of Adolf Hitler's National Socialists and through months of the most strenuous internal financial distress, amounting several times almost to complete collapse, the iron-handed scholar-soldier and the old war veteran Von Hindenburg have formed an unbeatable team ruling the country most of the time under the powers of complete dictatorship.

They met crisis after crisis and drove sternly through them.

Rigid Economy.

In the little more than two years that he has headed the government, Dr. Bruening has engaged in a constant battle for rigid economy, financial reform and economic rehabilitation of the fatherland.

His first cabinet was formed on March 29, 1930. Work or quit was the first stern order of the steely-voiced chancellor to the Reichstag, and despite the complexity of German partisan politics, the legislative body generally obeyed when the whip cracked.

Several times, however, the Chancellor adopted semi-dictatorial measures, under authority of Article 48 of the German constitution, to impose fiscal reforms on the country. In July, 1930, despairing of Reichstag approval, he sought the aid of President Von Hindenburg, who dissolved the Reichstag. For more than three months the Cabinet governed Germany be decree, enforcing a drastic program reducing expenses.

In December he again resorted to the emergency article for another program of reform and economy. In June, 1931, the President published a new series of economy decrees calling for further reductions on expense and some new emergency taxes.

Steadily growing unemployment, financial depression and the rapidly increasing strength of Adolf Hitler's National Socialists, complicated the work of the Bruening Ministry and in the September elections Hitler's party gained 95 seats in the Reichstag, while the representation of the Chancellor's Centrist Party shrunk to 65.

In spite of this he decided to remain at the helm, calling upon all parties to help him work out a coalition plan to save Germany.

General Wilhelm Groener, who has been a storm center for the Opposition parties since he took control of both the Army and Police under Bruening's new Cabinet in October of last year, was the last Quartermaster-General of the former Kaiser.

When it was learned he had been given the double post of Minister of Defense and Interior it was generally accepted as a clear indication Dr. Bruening intended to fight all subversive elements to the end.

TWO ARE KILLED BY HYDROPLANE

Two Men Victims When Home-made Machine Lurched Forward.

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., May 30 (C.P.).—A home-made hydroplane killed two men Sunday as crowds lined the shores of Bright Lake, 12 miles south of Shellbrook, to watch the queer flat-bottomed contraption perform. Walter Middleton, 50, Shellbrook elevator man, and Arthur Prosser, 45, Shellbrook builder, were hurled through the propellor blades of the plane when the machine lurched forward during a spin over the lake. They received head injuries which brought instant death.

Oswald Tweed, also of Shellbrook, builder of the water craft, was the other passenger. He was thrown clear of the whirling blades and fell into the lake. He swam ashore uninjured. It is not believed an inquest will be held.

The machine had only been completed Saturday and had made one successful trip Sunday morning. Prosser had taken his wife and 10-year-old boy to the lake for an outing and was in his bathing suit when Tweed shouted for volunteers from the crowd of merrymakers. Prosser strode forward to his death, exclaiming, "I'll take a chance."

SCOUTS, GUIDES ATTEND CHURCH

OFFICERS PRESENT.

On the occasion of the annual church parade of 1st Peterborough (St. John's) Troop of Boy Scouts and the 1st Peterborough Company Girl Guides, one hundred all ranks and including the two junior organizations, the Wolf Cubs and Brownies. The 8th Peterborough (St. Andrew's) Cub Pack turned out almost in its entirety.

At the beginning of the service a very impressive and symbolic act was the placing of the colors in the sanctuary during the period of devotion. Appropriate hymns were sung and during the collection the choir sang an anthem.

The Rector and Troop Chaplain, Venerable Archdeacon R. C. Blagrave, D.D., gave a very fine and helpful address. Prepared especially for the scouts and guides the theme of the sermon also held appeal for other members of the congregation.

The Archdeacon based his remarks upon the theme "Some fell upon good ground and brought forth fruit." He pointed out that the good ground was in part, the organizations in the congregation and the seed was the will of God.

Further the troop padre said that the founders of the organizations had wisely provided certain rules and principles to guide the members. These principles helped the members to better citizenship, personal conduct and acts of service and finally if properly observed to the greatest thing of all, loyal citizenship in the Kingdom of Heaven, of which we are already members, he said.

Dr. Blagrave closed by quoting a brief poem: "What can a little chap do?" This very effectively brought out the moral of the entire sermon.

The color party for the parade was made up of three Girl Guides with the King's color and one Scout and one Cub, from the 8th Peterborough, with the Troop and Pack colors respectively.

Four Scout leaders received the collection. Senior officers of the local Scout Association were present at the service and greatly encouraged the other officers and members in their work, by their attendance.

Guides And Scouts Parade To Church

MARMORA, May 30 (Examiner Correspondence). — The First Marmora Company of Girl Guides augmented by members of the First Deloro Company and Boy Scouts of Marmora, paraded to St. Paul's Church for divine service on Sunday morning. The parade was in charge of Scoutmaster Percy Gray, Captain and Mrs. Pearce and the other officers were also in the parade. The service was of a hearty character and the hymns lent themselves to the occasion. The rector, who officiated, chose as his theme: "The Temple That God Built." Speaking from I. Cor. 3, 16: "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you?" he referred first of all to the tabernacle built by the Jews, then Solomon's temple, and finally the body which God designed as the temple for the soul. The value of the soul was the closing thought.

Calls Upon Congress To Deal With Movies

DENVER, Colo., May 30 (C.P.).—Qualified opposition to a referendum on repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and criticism of motion pictures was voiced in a committee report to-day to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States.

The Committee on Christian Education, which made the report, asserted the vast majority of motion picture films were unsatisfactory and suggested Congress create a Federal Commission that shall deal with the evil at its source.

Concerning a proposed prohibition referendum, the committee declared: We are opposed to a vote on repeal which provides no constructive substitute, in the conviction that mere repeal will bring back the saloon. We are opposed to the Government's going into the liquor business, refusing to endure the sight of the American flag floating over the legalized liquor traffic.

THE WEST YORK BY-ELECTION.

West York, the seat held formerly by the late Dr. Forbes Godfrey, remains in the Government column following Saturday's by-election, the Conservative candidate, Harry Price, being returned by a plurality of less than 800 over W. J. Gardhouse, the Liberal nominee, who ran second in a field of four.

The election figures should give everybody concerned some basis for a little quiet thought.

Premier Henry and his administration, for example, will find it difficult to secure much comfort out of the returns, for although the Government was successful in retaining the seat, a very strong current of opposition was in evidence, and as a result the Government candidate was only a minority winner in a riding that three years ago was captured in a straight fight by a majority of 3,885 votes, and this in spite of the fact that the by-election was fought in the Premier's home county and that Mr. Henry took a personal part in the campaign.

Mr. Hepburn, the Liberal leader, should also study the figures and ask himself the question why in a campaign in which the majority of the electors were against the Government his candidate was unable to do better than attract 60 per cent. of the votes cast in opposition to the return of the Government standard-bearer.

The Labor candidate, John W. Buckley, may perhaps consider that his feat of winning over 3,000 votes to his cause was a satisfactory performance.

A significant feature, however, was the fact that in spite of four candidates in the field and a series of exciting meetings that produced big newspaper headlines, the number of electors who bothered to mark their ballots was only about 40 per cent. of those entitled to vote.

The logical conclusion is that a large proportion of the electorate could find nothing hopeful or constructive in the speeches or the promises of any of the parties in the field.

The Government's lack of decision on many important issues, the refusal to investigate Hydro until public opinion forced that action, and the feeling that sufficient leadership has not been shown in connection with outstanding problems was matched by Mr. Hepburn's too obvious attempt to cash in on the economic situation, his vague promises to "make the rich pay," his "I swing well to the left" tactics, and his failure to offer any clear-cut policy. Labor, it is true, had a more definite program, but against its chance of success was the realization that one lone Labor member could do nothing to implement such a policy should he happen to be elected.

At all events only four out of every ten possible voters in West York decided that it was worth while taking the trouble to go to the polls—and it should be worth while for all the political parties to endeavor to get at the reason why the other 60 per cent. defaulted.

GETTING RID OF THEM.

Kitchener is asking for the deportation of 37 foreign-born residents who because of unemployment conditions have become public charges.

These people are not criminals and in no sense of the word undesirable, except that by reason of circumstances for which they are not accountable and over which they have no control—they are without the funds to maintain themselves.

There is in the deportation of such citizens something that is repugnant to a good many Canadians; in normal times this country sought to bring these men and other foreigners into the Dominion, for there was work for them to do and every wage-earner helped to swell the general prosperity.

Now, when through no fault of their own but because of a situation brought about by world conditions, many of these immigrants are unemployed and destitute it seems heartless to take them by the neck and dump them back into the countries from which they came.

Some perhaps welcome deportation, and in their case the proceedings are justified, but when new Canadians would prefer to stay here and have no assurance of better conditions should they be sent back to their native land, the forcible ejectment of such people who came here on Canada's invitation hardly appears to be playing the game.

Expulsion of those whose only crime is poverty is not good advertising for this or any other country.

THOSE RAILWAY EXCURSIONS.

The bargain excursion to Toronto on Saturday promoted by the Canadian Pacific Railway was in point of patronage an evident success, and no doubt will be followed by other similar excursions.

This method of going after passenger business is being followed by both Canada's great railway systems, and is a policy virtually enforced on railway managements by reason of the sharp decline in revenues that has hit all branches of railway business.

With freight and express earnings considerably affected by motor truck competition and with a large proportion of the passenger revenue eliminated by the use of motor buses and private automobiles, railway executives have a major problem on their hands of trying to make their operations profitable in the face of new and difficult conditions.

Under such circumstances, therefore, the railways are entirely justified in seeking to stimulate passenger traffic by means of such excursions as that which left Peterborough on Saturday; they cannot simply sit down, fold their arms and watch their business go to pieces so long as there is a chance by this or any other legitimate effort to increase revenues.

Excursions in various parts of the country will no doubt continue during the summer, and it is quite likely that there will be special trips to Peterborough as well as out of this city, giving people living at a distance an opportunity to see the gateway to the Kawartha Lakes; thus our citizens will not only be given a chance for cheap transportation to other points of interest, but of playing host to good folks from outside districts.

THE ACCIDENT RECORD.

For the first time since the accident reporting law came into effect a monthly total of motor vehicle accidents in Ontario has shown a decrease as compared with the same month in the previous year.

The returns for April show that there were 555 automobile accidents in this Province, a decrease of 76, or 11.3 per cent., from the total for April last year, and while, as the report itself says, this decrease for a single month means little in itself, it is nevertheless encouraging.

April accidents were responsible for 28 deaths, injury to 463 other persons and property damage to the extent of $53,242.

The details are interesting.

They show that "collision with pedestrian" was the most frequent type of accident reported during the month, 37.7 per cent. of the accidents being of this type.

Over 97 per cent. of the drivers involved in April accidents were reported as in normal condition, and 90 per cent. of the automobiles were in "apparent good condition."

Of the persons killed almost one-half (13 out of a total of 28) were pedestrians, six of them children, while among the injured the pedestrians again suffered heavily, 201 being hurt, among whom were 110 children under 16 years of age.

It is worthy of note that the majority of the drivers concerned in these accidents were experienced, for 56 per cent. of them had been driving for more than five years.

"Children playing in the street" was the most frequent cause of accidents among pedestrians, while "speed too fast for road and traffic conditions" was given as the driving violation responsible for the greatest number of accidents.

Two bicyclists were killed and 21 injured during the month.

THE KREUGER BUBBLE.

Before his death in Paris, two months ago, Ivar Kreuger, the Swedish match king, was a "Napoleon of finance," a "genius of industry," a "superman of business." To-day he stands revealed as one of the most colossal impostors that ever won the confidence of bankers, statesmen and public.

When he snuffed out his life in Paris, the press of Europe vied in extolling his virtues. The London Times said he was a victim of a "worldwide condition simultaneously afflicting every financier," and that "least of all does personal suspicion light upon him in his last day." L'Illustration called him a "great Swede, and a great European, who has paid with his life for the profound faith he held in the possibility of reviving the economic harmony of the world." The London Economist called him "a great force for good in the world."

On Saturday the investigating committee looking into his affairs in Stockholm wrote the climax to the amazing story that has been disclosed since his death. Kreuger "owed" $168,300,000 in personal debts. His books were "deliberately falsified." "Fictitious assets for large sums" were created by him. "Gigantic frauds" were laid to his manipulations. And "there will be little or nothing left over for distribution to unsecured creditors."

So collapses this man's boasted billion-dollar domain. It is the worst financial debacle in recent history. Kreuger, the "financial genius," was really a swindler of fantastic magnitude. But it was not the widows and orphans of the world that he deceived. It was the shrewd financiers and the hard-headed bankers. It is a sad and shady mess—and one more striking addition to the records on the madness of this mad world.—St. Catharines Standard.

THE BUSINESS MAN'S PLIGHT.

Attempting to operate a business establishment at the present time is far from being a bed of roses. Purchasing power, already greatly reduced by a restriction of the amount of money in circulation, is being further reduced by wage and salary cuts which are being more and more brought into force. This means a smaller amount of money available for the purchase of those commodities which are offered for sale.

While this is going on, the tax bill of the business man has an ever-increasing tendency to soar. He may enjoy some reduction in the amount of municipal taxation consequent upon careful management of civic affairs, but his provincial taxes and his federal taxes rise constantly and will probably rise still higher as governmental incomes are reduced and governmental expenditures remain at virtually the normal level.

The business man is thus caught between two fires. His opportunity to do business and to earn money is restricted by the impaired purchasing-power of the individual, while the taxes that he is obliged to pay grow all of the time. And whatever relief may be afforded other classes in the community, there is none for him except to cease business and thus to place more people on the street.

Sympathy has been expressed for various people affected by the depression, but there has been little for the hard-pressed business man who is, nevertheless, deserving of a great deal more encouragement and support than he has been so far given. His courage in tenaciously clinging to his business and investments in the face of all of the difficulties which beset him is something that may well evoke admiration all too often denied him.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Apparently West York, too, swung well to the left on Saturday.

Canadian railways are not the only systems to feel the competition of motor trucks and buses. Two of the biggest British lines are planning to pool their receipts.

At all events, the West York campaign succeeded in providing some unusually warm political meetings.

Hon. Robert Weir's farm marketing commission is to be named in the course of a few weeks. It cannot start upon its important work too soon.

It seems that in Canada we work three months for the Government and nine months for ourselves. After this we are going to take our holidays in the Government's time.—Meaford Mirror.

WEDNESDAY HALF HOLIDAY

To the Editor of The Examiner,
Dear Sir:

There has been much discussion of late as to how many merchants are going to close Wednesday afternoons during June, July and August; well I think it would be advisable for every merchant in the city to take Mayor Denne's advice and remain open. Your good paper and all those interested in the welfare of the city are doing their utmost to make Peterborough a shopping centre for this district and I am sure it is not consistent to encourage villagers and farmers in this district and also tourists to come here to shop and disappoint them by having our stores closed.

If the truth were known not one merchant in the city can afford to lock up his place of business even for half a day during these times and I am very certain every bank manager would appreciate a substantial deposit Thursday mornings and help reduce the overdrafts. I for one will remain open from Monday morning until Saturday night. Thanking you Mr. Editor for your valuable space. I remain,

Yours Truly,

To Editor of The Examiner,
Dear Sir:

Some of the citizens in this vicinity fought for over four years against a common enemy for the very homes that are now being depreciated and ruined by the acts of certain individuals. It is very doubtful, if the Germans had conquered this country, that they would have allowed such destruction to take place.

According to a decision handed out by Magistrate Langley it is quite within the law for a pit to be dug any depth where supposed top soil exists. In this instance the actual depth encountered is 3' 4" (City Engineer's measurement). How much farther down this supposed top soil still runs, Heaven only knows. How any man with common sense could make a personal visit to this excavation and not class it as a pit is beyond the understanding of the residents of this section of the city.

There have been other contractors visit this excavation besides Mr. Sheehy (including Alderman Fred Tuggey). Their opinion definitely classed it as a pit. The top soil line is clearly defined about nine inches below the sod. The very name "top soil" should render any further discussion on this point unnecessary. Where in any section of this part of the country does top soil exist down below a depth of three feet?

This particular excavation would have extended down as far as it is possible to go had it not been for the action of the ratepayers of this section. Proof of this may be seen in the other pits that we are surrounded by. Each of these had their beginning in the removal of top soil. Now they are nothing but a dump, with brush running wild, last year's weeds still standing and their seed now germinating.

From a financial point of view probably a few individuals profit by the sale of this earth, but consider the damage that is being done to all the residences in this locality.

The balance is overwhelming. The construction of further houses is made impossible.

There are some of the oldest residents of Peterborough living in this section, who have paid taxes regularly all their lives. Surely they are entitled to some consideration. Some of us were born and raised here and have the interest of the community at heart. We don't want to have to move out. This matter is not going to close until this question is settled differently.

Another bad feature is the fact that each Spring this floods with water and freezes over, the children skate on it and if some of them go through the ice into one of these pits, with the bitter feeling that now exists, the results might not be any too pleasant to the parties responsible.

In conclusion we wish to thank the city for ceasing operation in their own pit and only hope that the sale of any earth for profit in the city limits will be stopped.

Yours truly,
EAST CITY DEPUTATION

District Secretary Salary Is Raised

Plan Arrangements for Women's Institute Annual Meeting At Young's Point.

HAVELOCK, May 30. (Examiner Correspondence).—A meeting of the district directors of the Women's Institute was held at Norwood on Wednesday afternoon, last, when eleven out of the thirteen members were present, to make arrangements for the district annual at Young's Point.

It was decidede to have the salary of the district secretary raised from the old rate of ten dollars to twenty-five per year, owing to enormous duties entailed by that position. Mrs. Weller of Warsaw is the efficient secretary. The standing committees remain the same as last year, as it we felt that it is not wise to change, these officers each year, some of them only beginning to really grasp the work in one yeart of office.

Following are the standing committees: Health and Education, Mrs. Miller of Warsaw; Agriculture, Mrs. Weller, Warsaw; Home Economics, Mrs. John Armstrong, Havelock; Community Activities, Mrs. W. Lean, Apsley; Relief, Mrs. Elmer Johnston, Young's Point; Historical Research, Mrs. Rothwell, Norwood; Publicity, Miss B. Graham, Lakefield; Immigration, Mrs. H. Batten; Canadian Industries, Mrs. George Brooks, Trent River; Legislation, Miss A. Davies, Lakefield.

The District Annual meeting will be held this year at South Beach near Young's Point on Wednesday, June 8th. Some of the directors suggested that this was rather early in the month, but it was said later in the month the hotel at which the delegates would be served with dinner would be in use by Summer tourists. A fee of 25 cents will be charged for each meal served. The delegates will be served at 12.30 the chauffeurs or drivers of vehicles will have dinner at 12 o'clock. Business session will start punctually at 10 a.m. The address of welcome will be made by Mrs. Adrian Brookes of Young's Point and will be responded to by Mrs. Shearer of Hall's Bridge.

The two special speakers of the day will be Miss Powell of Whitby, and Mrs. Cooper of Orono. Each branch will contribute one number to the program which may be either instrumental, vocal or a reading. The Junior Institutes are also asked to contribute one number each.

Apsley branch will be represented by Miss B. A. Scott in charge of the outpost hospital there, who will give a talk on her work as a Red Cross nurse. Trent River will contribute a reading, Havelock a vocal number, Westwood vocal number, Keene, instrumental music and other branches will decide later what their contribution will be. The date for the meeting is June 8th.

SON OF THE GODS

By REX BEACH

"That's better! I was getting mad by the minute. I thought you'd go up in the air, but—the whole thing is a failure. Now then, I'll give it to you in a medicine dropper; take it slowly. A relative of Eileen Cassidy's, by the name of Daly, is in New York and he declares you're no more Chinese than he is."

"Absurd! I can't belief it! What proof is there?"

"Proof enough, I fancy; we'll find out when we get to the hotel. All I can do is repeat what she told me over the telephone."

This the speaker proceeded to do and by the time she had finished they had arrived at their destination. In a daze Sam paid the driver and assisted Alanna into the hotel; he felt sure that this hallucination would be broken at any moment.

It was a half hour later. In the parlor of the Wagner suite, Mr. Peter Daly, spurred on by Eileen, had told his story in minutest detail and none of his listeners had followed it more closely than Albert Wagner. The speaker concluded by saying:

"There's no possible doubt about it. Dunne gave me his report on it at the time, and we talked it over later; how he saw Lee Ying pick the little fellow up on his doorstep and how the old man and his wife insisted that he had been sent in answer to their prayers. Dunne is still alive, he'll be glad to verify everything I've said. Mr. Wagner, you know something about the Chinese; they put great faith in their gods—the good ones do, and Lee Ying was devout. He and his wife were uncommonly religious. But the looks of Sam there is enough to prove what I'm telling you. He's no Chinese."

Eileen offered substantiation by declaring: "I knew Sam's father—I mean Lee Ying—better than anybody. He was my dearest friend. He always called Sam a 'Son of the Gods.' He declared he was more than a son; the Princess of the Colored Clouds had sent him. I used to wonder what he meant but now I understand."

"As a matter of fact, Dunne nearly got himself into a jam over the thing by talking too much," Daly continued. "I was on the desk at the time and knowing Lee Ying was high caste and rich and a fine gentleman, we figured the lad would have a good home and amount to something. But some of the mission workers heard a rumor and began asking questions. They'd have taken him away and put him into a public institution so as to make a Christian out of him. Two to one he'd have turned out a yegg. Lee Ying got wind and soon after he moved to New York. That ended the matter. Why, I remember the kid wel, dressed up like a little mandarin, with a red button in his cap and his hand in the old gentleman's. He was one of the sights of Chinatown and the politest kid you ever saw."

Curiously Sam inquired: "Who am I?"

Daly shrugged. "My guess is no better than yours. Nobody ever claimed you. We picked up a good many waifs but mighty few of them amounted to anything. Whoever you are, I guess you must have good stuff in you."

"My father disbelieved in heredity. He used to say that the virtue of a vase lay not in the clay but in the potter's skill."

Eileen's eyes were shining and she spoke with conviction: "They have fairies in Ireland, why not in China? Lee Ying was the wisest man in the world and he knew things we'll never understand. He called you a superior being, a Prince. I think he was right."

"And so do I," Alanna said softly. She drew closer and laid her cheek against Sam's sleeve.

Daly smiled and then looked at his watch. "Well, it's getting late and that's all I can tell you. I'm mighty glad that I happened along in time to help two heart-broken lovers, although the truth was bound to come out sooner or later. Mr. Wagner, it look's to me as if it's about time to say, 'Bless you, my children!"

The father rose, laid a kindly hand upon Sam's shoulder and said in a tone of utmost sincerity, "I can't see that it makes any great difference who you are or what you are, my boy. The only thing that concerns me is Alanna's happiness. I've been terribly sorry for both of you kids."

Chinatown, always late on closing its eyes, was asleep when Sam Lee ceased pacing the walks of his garden and stared down into the empty canyons beneath him. Dawn was not far away. So, he was a white man! Lee Ying's virtuous acts had lived after him, his dead hand had reached forth from the grave and unveiled the truth. This night had marked an epoch in Sam's life and yet the significance of it failed to stir him as it should; there was something anticlimatic about it and the disclosure which should have stirred him to the bottom of his being left him almost unmoved. That was, no doubt, because he had spent his whole life anticipating something of this very sort. What did provoke a genuine tumult in his soul, of course, was the result of that disclosure. There indeed was something stunning, something overpowering, and he wondered if it, too, might not be the work of that beneficent spirit which looked after him. Lee Ying, the man of many mercies, the doer of thirteen hundred kindly deeds. Was this his final sacrifice?—Much luck, great riches and high honor were what Sam's auguries had foretold and they had come true, but in reality, all those blessings had flowed directly from Lee Ying's hand; he, Sam, had done nothing to warrant them, he had not even proved himself worthy to receive them.

He was glad to know that he was white, nevertheless an odd resentment smoldered in the back of his mind; it offended him to gain stature through that fact alone. In what way was he better now than he had been at sundown? Yesterday he was the son of a gentle, a noble, a charitable and a godly man, today he was a guttersnipe, and yet he had attained caste. His honors had multiplied. His Princess had opened her arms. Lee Ying's blood was not his, in him ran the blood of some drunken roustabout, perhaps, or some furtive jackal of the slums. The mother who had borne him was not Pan Yi, of blessed memory, but for all he knew, an unwed woman of the streets. In that he must take pride. Great credit now attached to him. Chinese gods appreciate humor; doubtless they were smiling broadly.

During these several hours he had been saying farewell to Chinatown, to his high-perched home and all it deities, for with the coming of sunrise a new life for him would dawn and he realized that henceforth he would be as much out of place here as he had been elsewhere. It had been a sad, a wistful parting; it had meant the tearing up of tender roots—how tender he had never suspected until now. As he walked here under the stars he had been aware of a tall, familiar figure at his side; it had moved step by step with him. Their souls had met.

How high Lee Ying towered over other men. What other son had known a father such as he?—Father? No. His father was a shadow, a nameless, formless, fanciful creation in the mind of a man named Dunne—Who was the wiser, the more to be trusted, Lee Ying or that policeman? Which of those two understood the power of the gods?—Truth! Where shall one search for it, in the mind or in the heart? In which of those two men should he rest his faith?

Sam entered his house and went on into his own chamber. Slowly, meditatively, he disrobed and purified himself; then he put on his ceremonial Chinese robe, his cap with the ruby button, his white hose and silken slippers. On silent feet he moved to the door of that shrine where Lee Ying had bent in worship to his gods. He slid the mantel back, stepped inside and closed it behind him. The enigmatic image stared at him from fixed, inscrutable eyes.

He lit the joss sticks and watched the thin blue lines of fragrant smoke arise, then he knelt before the golden tablet on the wall and bowed his head.

When he spoke it was in the sing-song language he had learned at the knees of Pan Yi:

"Oh, Benevolent One to whom I owe all joy and happiness, and whose virtues I revere, my prayers float Heavenward to you. In this still hour of the dawn your unworthy son is beset by loneliness and yearning, his love and his longing beat him to the ground. He gropes in darkness, the path is blind, the forest is black and demons of doubt infest it. Make him to know the permanence and the reality of truth. Cleave to him as he clings to you.

"You have resigned your earthly dignities and you walk clear-eyed the bright waters of Celestial streams, all wisdom and understanding is yours. Pause, I beseech you, and plant deep in my heart the roots of faith in the reality and the eternity of our oneness. Out of nothing you created me, you clad me from your bounty; I paid you back in grief and disappointment but my soul is sick and it calls to you. A pearl is but a temple built by pain around a grain of sand; around the jewel of your love for me I pledge myself to build a stately monument to my enduring trust in you."

Less precipitation in Western Canada with consequent poor crops succeeded the maximum sun-spot appearances of 1906, 1917, and 1928, indicating a direct relationship between the two.

SENATE FIGHTS OVER SALES TAX

President Hoover Prepared to Go Before Senate With Message.

DIVISION SOON.

WASHINGTON, May 30 (C.P.).—The U.S. Senate upheld its Finance Committee to-day in eliminating the controversal House of Representatives' provision for a minimum tax rate of one-fourth of one per cent. on stock transfers, as it cleared the way for the sales tax test.

Senator Dill (Democrat, Washington), sought to restore to the bill a minimum rate of one-eighth of one per cent. on the sales value of stocks but he lost 4 to 37.

The minimum levy was then completely eliminated, leaving a flat tax of four cents a share on stocks.

The voting came after another spirited row over the impending sales tax. With President Hoover ready to go personally before the Senate with a message, opponents of the sales levy sought unsuccessfully to fix a time for a vote late to-day. They claimed enough votes to defeat the sales tax.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

TORONTO MINING.

TORFONTO, May 30.—While action was quiet due to the holiday in New York, trend showed a definitely easier tendency on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange market to-day, with losses predominating on end in both interlisted and local issues.

Noranda was a soft spot and off 50 at the close and International Nickel fell 30 to a new low for the bear market. Eldorado met some liquidation and sold down 6 to a low for the year and Falconbridge lost 5. Mining Corporation, in a few transactions, was slightly above Saturday's finals.

Lake Shore was under pressure and down 60 on end and Dome, Teck-Hughes and Wright-Hargreaves showed minor recessions. Among cheaper golds Howey firmed a little but Siscoe and Moss lost some grounds. Oils remained at a standstill throughout.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, May 30 (C P.). — Toronto Stock Exchange Market closed weak to-day with losses ranging to more than 2 points. Bell Telephone and Montreal Power both found new record lows, the former off 1¾ points at 80 and the latter down 2½ ponnts at 22½. B. C. Power A, C.P.R., Brazilian, Ford of Canada, Page-Hersey Tubes, Steel of Canada, Cockshutt Plow lost fractions. Power Corporation was off 1 point and Smelters a like amount. Common at 37 bid at the close was 3 to 4 points above its previous sales, while the Preferred, out the last time at 94, jumped to 120 bid. It is proposed that a new company shall acquire the assets of Atlantic Sugar, paying $30 a share in cash for the Common and exchanging a new Preferred for the old on a share-for-share basis, with a debenture issue covering the arrears in dividends on the Preferred.

1930 WINNER STRIKES WALL

rate of 109.532 miles an hour. His time was 1.49.44.34. Moore was second with Triplett third and Howard Wilcox fourth.

Lou Moore, Indianapolis, was forced out of the race after completing 200 miles because of a broken timing gear; he was in second place at the time.

Bob Carey, Anderson, Indiana, leading the race at the time, smashed into the wall at the southleast turn, while on his 235th mile. The car spun around three times, but Carey was able to drive it back into the pits.

Gaudino, Buenos Aires driver, and only foreigner in the race, was forced to reliquish the wheel of his car to a relief driver because of bruises received while bouncing over the two and a half mile brick course. He left the wheel at 160 miles, turning it over to Joe Bonadeo, of Chicago.

Gaudino was about 35 miles behind the leaders.

Triplett Takes Lead

With 250 miles completed, Ernie Triplett, Los Angeles, had snatched the lead in the international 500-mile automobile race to-day with Howdy Wilcox, of Indianapolis, second, and Louis Schneider, also of Indianapolis, third.

Carey resumed the race after his car was inspected in the pits after he lost probably ten minutes.

Frank Brisko, Milwaukee, surrendered in his 392nd mile because of burned-out connecting rods. His withdrawal made the 13th car to quit, leaving 27 in the race.

With the race half finished, 13 of the original forty starters had surrendered because of accidents or motor trouble. The favorite, Billy Arnold, 27-year-old Chicagoan, was knocked out of the race after leading for 150 miles when his car crashed into the wall when making a turn.

The car driven by Juan Gaudi, of Buenos Aires, only foreign dare-devil in the race, was officially declared out at 12.40 p.m., after he had covered only 176 miles. He experienced motor trouble.

Wilbur Shaw, Indianapolis, snatched the lead at 300 miles, with Fred Frame, Los Angeles, second, and Cliff Bergere, Los Angeles, third. Triplett was forced out of the lead by a stop at the pits.

Examination disclosed that Spider Matlock, of Chicago, mechanic for Billy Arnold, sustained a broken pelvis bone. Arnold apparently was not seriously injured.

Ernie Triplett, Los Angeles, a real threat in the race, was forced to quit after travelling 312 miles, due to a broken clutch. His was the 15th withdrawl in an original field of 40. He had led the race for 11 laps.

Louie Schneider, Indianapolis, winner of the 1931 race, gave up at the end of 125 laps because of motor trouble.

Schneider made the thirfi former winner of the race to be forced out. The others were Billy Arnold and Louis Meyer.

Fred Frame, Los Angeles, was the leader at 326 miles, which he reeled off in 3:06.445, averaging 104.627 miles an hour. Shaw was second, Wilcox third, Bergere fourth and Hall fifth.

Ray Campbell, Detroit, was officially declared out of the race after mechanics had worked two hours in an attempt to repair his damaged motor.

As the big parade of iron and steel angled in rows of three, started down the track, it was estimated that the attendance was between 140,000 and 150,000 eclipsing the crowd of a year ago.

Ford Leads Parade

Led by a big racing car cafrying Edsel T. Ford of Detroit and Theodore E. Myers, general manager of the speedway, the drivers were off to a flying start, while the crowd cheered. Ford drove at a moderate speed of from 60 to 70 miles an hour for the first lap and then he completed the first 2½ miles he pulled to the side of the track allowing the racers to cross the wire at a speed of 80 to 90 miles an hour.

The weather was perfect for the race. The sky was clear with a fleecy white cloud here and there and the sun beating down on the scene gave every indication that the weather would be all that could be desired and no threat of rain.

Never before in the history of the race was there such a varied assortment of cars. The 8 cylinder creations predominated. In the list of forty starters were 33 eight cylinder cars, three of 16 cylinders and four of four cylinders. Thirty one of the cars were of the rear drive pattern, seven were front drives and two had four wheel drive systems.

CHIEF GIMBLETT GIVEN "SHINER"

Nose is Also Broken in Scrap With Albert Cooper.

FIRE IN ASHBURNHAM.

After supervising firefighting operations at the home of Albert Cooper of 336 Cameron street shortly after noon on Sunday, Fire Chief George Gimblett of the City Fire Department became involved in an altercation, as a result of which he is under the care of his physician to-day suffering from a broken nose and a blackened eye.

Interviewed by The Examiner for his version of the affair the chief declined to make any statement for publication, but emphatically denied allegations made by Mrs. Cooper that he was the first to strike a blow. "Mrs. Cooper was not a witness of what happened" the Chief stated, "and is therefore not in a position to say anything about the affair."

The Examiner reporter also called at the Cooper home, before interviewing the Chief, and was shown into the kitchen whose badly charred walls and ceiling still bear evidence of the intensity of the fire which is believed to have started from overheated stove pipes.

Mr. Cooper was not at home, but his wife related the following story:

She had recently returned from hospital, she said, and was visiting with her sister on Sunday morning while her husband was at church. She had the baby with her and also an elder child, while others of the family were left to play outside the house.

Having occasion to go to her own home to get something for her mother, one of the children opened the front door and noticed flames shooting up at the rear of the range. At the same time one of the other children came in at the back door. The draft created by the opening of the doors caused the flames to spread rapidly and an alarm was rung into the fire department.

Mrs. Cooper acknowledged the good work done by the brigade, but alleged that after the fire was out the Chief began questioning her thirteen-year-old son in a manner to which her husband objected to.

Words led to blows, stated Mrs. Cooper, and while the Chief and her husband were at grips on the verandah, they both fell off to the ground. She said the Chief's nose appeared to be badly injured, and he came into the house and bathed his face.

Alderman J. A. McNabb, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, declined to comment on the occurrence.

OTTAWA WORKS FOR CONFERENCE

Four Committees and Sub-Committee Appointed to Prepare Plans.

CABINET ADVISES.

OTTAWA, May 30 (C.P.).—Preparations for the Imperial Economic Conference are going forward. A sub-committee of the Dominion Cabinet and four committees made up largely of Departmental experts, have been constituted to arrange for the Empire meeting. Under the Cabinet sub-committee, the four committees will deal with matters of tariff, of economic and financial questions, of administration and staff, and finally with hospitality. At least one of the committees, that on tariff, has been holding meetings for some time. It has under consideration various representations received from different parts of Canada.

The organization of a meeting such as the Imperial Economic Conference is a matter of considerable labor, and it is anticipated that all four committees will find plenty to do between now and the date of meeting. Cabinet, it is understood, will devote a considerable portion of its time for the next week or so to discussing preparations.

However, the problem was courageously attacked and with the co-operation of Queen's University, the City of Kingston and individual subscriptions, the plan was successfully completed, the last unit being financed by means of a mortgage of $275,000 on which the hospital was now paying 6 per cent.

Mr. Armstrong explained the organization of the hospital management under a board of governors of 73 members; a committee of management, superintendent, etc. It was fortunate in having the services of the eminent doctors and surgeons of Queen's University. Altogether there was in this 400-bed hospital a staff of 277, of which the nursing staff comprised 153. It had been found possible so far as operating costs went to break even and to allow some $3,000 to be devoted to debt reduction. Mr. Armstrong declared, in explaining a chart which showed that the daily cost per patient was $3.98. The hospital charged municipalities at the rate of $1.50 per day for indigent patients and in a number of cases accepted a grant in lieu of this per diem rate. The City of Kingston made a grant of $18,000 a year which meant an average cost of $1.00 per day for Kingston indigent patients given hospital treatment.

The Kingston hospital was now receiving patients from many outside points, in fact about 50 per cent. of those admitted came from outside of Kingston; some from a considerable distance; a tribute to the efficiency of the hospital and of its medical staff.

Dr. Fitzpatrick of St. Joseph's Hospital paid a tribute to Mr. Armstrong's work as administrator at Kingston, and referred to the difficult problems of hospital services.

E. Bruce Fowler of Nicholls Hospital referred to the problem of additional accommodation of that institution which, he said, would have to be kept in mind. An expenditure of $300,000 or $400,000 could not be advocated under present conditions but by the Spring of next year he hoped that something could be done and he was satisfied that the first capital expenditure to be made by the city council would be in connection with the hospital.

The thanks of Rotary were extended to Mr. Armstrong on motion of Rotarian W. R. Morris.

Rotarian Andrew Brown reported some 4,000 tickets already sold in connection with the Rotary Carnival draw.

At the time of Matthews' action the team was headed for a crowd of people emerging from a nearby railway station.

WILLIS DOUGLAS DENIES CHARGE

CASE ADJOURNED.

An alibi was the defence raised by Willis Douglas who appeared in Police Court this morning before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K. C., on remand in answer to a charge relating to the theft of thirty Plymouth Barred Rock hens from the fowl house on the farm of Thomas Breckenridge of Asphodel on the night of May 16-17 last.

The accused was also arraigned on a further charge relating to the theft of seven bronze turkeys from the farm of Mrs. David Garvey of Asphodel on or about December 17, 1931.

Most of the evidence was heard this forenoon in the first case, the trial being adjourned until Wednesday morning due to the absence of witnesses for the defence who had failed to come from Cobourg.

In adjourning the action the Magistrate observed that he did not wish it to be thought that witnesses were to be permitted to come to court just when they pleased, but he did wish to give the accused youth a fair trial. The present situation had arisen out of a misunderstanding he said, but he was not going to let such a practice develop into a habit in his court.

J. A. O'Brien was counsel for the defence, while Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K. C., conducted the prosecution on behalf of the Crown.

Thomas Breckenridge, formerly of Asphodel township said on the night of 16th-17th of May something unusual happened. He went out to the hen house and the birds were all frightened. There were thirty living hens left, one lying dead and thirty taken away. On Monday morning he had counted his hens out of the poultry house and there were sixty-one. They were all Plymouth Rocks R.O.P.

He looked all around the farm but could not see any footmarks nor car tracks. He had seen some of the hens since in Peterborough. There were eight birds.

Crown Attorney—How did you know they were your hens.

Witness—I spoke to them and they came to me and let me pet them on their backs.

Cross examined, witness said he bought 50 of the birds.

Mrs. Jane Stewart of Peterborough said she saw the accused on May 10 and he asked her if she wished to buy some chickens. It was either a Monday or Tuesday morning the prisoner had called at witness' house. She did not see the hens and did not know what breed they were.

Repossessed Car

Delora W. Johnson of 548 Edison avenue said he knew the accused. Witness was employed by Brewer Motor Sales and went to Cobourg last Wednesday and repossessed a car the accused had had.

Douglas had lived and worked at Cobourg some little time before the day witness repossessed the car, he said to Mr. O'Brien. Provincial Constable David Silvester received a complaint from Breckenridge that he had lost some chickens. Witness recovered ten Plymouth Rocks in Peterborough.

The Accused

At the conclusion of the case for the Crown, Willis Douglas, the accused gave evidence that he had been working at Cobourg glueing boxes. He worked there two weeks and a half prior to his arrest. He knew where Mr. Breckenridge lived, having worked for him about four years ago.

Mr. O'Brien—Were you on Mr. Breckenridge's property on the 16 or 17 of May last

"No sir," the accused replied

He later stated that on the evening of May 16 he was out in Cobourg with his girl friend at the home of Wesley Cooke of Division street, Cobourg. At quarter to eleven that night he went to the home of Gordon Douglas, his cousin, with whom he boarded. He slept with his brother Clarence and did not leave the house at all that night.

Accused maintained that he was not out of Cobourg at all on the dates mentioned in the charge.

He had heard the evidence of Mrs. Jane Stewart, he said, but denied ever having seen her before this morning in Police Court.

Under cross-examination by Mr. McElderry the accused stated he had never seen Mrs. Stewart prior to her appearance in the witness box.

Accused said he purchased a car from Brewer Motor Sales in September last. It was in his possession on May 16 - 17. It had since been repossessed by Brewers. The car was in the yard at the residence of Gordon Douglas on the night of May 16 and 17. Accused also had a Chevrolet car which he kept at Westwood. He had one set of markers for the two cars.

He stated that he had stayed in the house listening to the radio on the afternoon of May 16. He believed he had gone down town in the evening. "I don't keep track of myself," he said, when pressed by Mr. McElderry for details as to his movements.

He also related details of his visit to the home of Wesley Cooke on the following evening.

Mr. O'Brien announced he had received word from Cobourg that his witnesses could not find it possible to get to Peterborough today.

SALESMANSHIP NEEDED IN BRITISH WEST INDIES

Hon. W. H. Price Returns From Trip to Jamaica.

MONTREAL, May 30.— (C. P.— Aggressive salesmanship in the British West Indies is necessary if Canada is to compete successfully with the United States, Col. W. H. Price, Ontario Attorney-General, declared to-day. Col. Price arrived from Jamaica late last night and will reach Toronto to-nigh. He returned from his brief holiday much improved in health.

Sentiment is in favor of Canada but we have to go after business in more determined fashion. We have to fight for it, Col. Price said. He did not think there was any possibility of Canada ever taking over control of tht British West Indian Colonies.

MYSTERY STATION PUZZLES.

Radio fans in New Zealand have been much puzzled by a mysterious broadcasting every night, and radio officials in the country have been unable to locate its source. The announcer always prefaces his remarks with "Arloo, arloo," and at times it sounds like "Hilu, hilu," but it is undoubtedly the equivalent for "Hello, hello." Some nights he gives an English-American program, and on these nights he announces in what is presumed to be Ammanese, English and French, but his remarks in English are hard to follow owing to the foreign accent. When he commences his announcing in English after speaking in Ammanese, he undoubtedly says "Hello, hello," but with a foreign accent. Some authorities believe it may be from the powerful station at Saigon, French Indo-China.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

MAIL "CAN" LABEL AT PREMIUM.

Souvenir collectors are reported to be bidding high for the label on a can which once carried mail from the lonely island of St Kilda to the coast of Scotland. St. Kilda was deserted last year. The can was cast in the sea and has just been found. It is the last of these known to be delayed in arriving. The people who lived on St. Kilda had a novel method of posting their mails. The letters were put into a canvas bag, which was sealed in a corn-beef can. This was properly ballasted so that it could weather storms when flung into the sea. While four out of every five arrived at the destination, this one was missing for a long time. Mails were usually launched with a westerly gale and on an ebb tide. Some went as far as Norway but many drifted to the Orkney or the Shetlands, where they were picked up and handed into a post office.

A very successful tea was held on Saturday afternoon in the Guild room of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, under the auspices of the Young Women's Auxiliary. The leader, Mrs. J. McNabb, was general convenor of arrangements. The guests were received by Mrs. A. T. Barr and Miss Lily Kay, president of the Y.W.A. The room was decorated prettily with palms, ferns and flowers and the table was done very attractively with a cloth of Cluny lace centered by a mirror reflector holding a majolica bowl filled with sweet peas. Silver candelabra held candles in pastel tints of pink, mauve and green. The little tables were arranged with lilacs and tulips in silver bud vases. Mrs. R. R. Hall and Mrs. E. F. Mason poured tea and coffee, assisted by members of the Y.W.A. During the tea hour, piano music was played by Miss Velma Strong and Miss Mary Nixon, while Miss Mignon Mayneord and Miss Phyllis Rome gave whistling and vocal solos and duetts, accompanied by Miss Lilly Kay. A sale of cooking was in charge of the Girl's Club, while the groups headed by Miss Lily Kay and Miss Dora Dymond had charge of the sale of fancy articles.

We continue to enjoy the companionship of our loved ones to the extent that we let these fine elements of their lives accompany us along the route of our lifelong journey.

• • • • • • •

There is comfort in such companionship through the whole of our existence. We do nit lose all when physical comradeship severs.

• • • • • • •

We continue to have with us the things which were part of their characters. Sometimes these things influence us to nobler efforts, to higher purposes and more staunch and upright characters than we would have drifted into, if the solace of their actual presence was still with us.

• • • • • • •

And so to-day, let us enter anew into that joy of the spirit which lessens grief, that invisible companionship which satisfies our longings.

• • • • • • •

Our dead are not lost to us here. Their lives have a vital afterglow which remains undimmed until we see them again face to face.

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

CARD READING AND CONTRACT MAKING

Card reading is one of the most fascinating features of the game of Contract Bridge. To be able to determine after a few rounds of play the distribution of the suits in the hands of your opponents is frequently of almost incalculable value in the making of a contract. The good player almost subconsciously early acquires the habit of mentally noting each card that is played and drawing inferences from it that will aid him in placing not only the key cards of the suit, but the entire distribution of a suit around the table. Sometimes this knowledge is of little value, but, even if it is of no importance on a particular deal, to make it a practice to note the distribution of the suits is good play, because you never can tell when a hand will turn up in which this knowledge is essential to the making of your contract.

Today's hand, played by Mr. Lewis R. Ayres of Philadelphia, is one in which an ambitious contract of six spades was only fulfilled because Mr. Ayres, who held the South hand, was able to utilise the elimination play through his knowledge of the distribution of the suits.

Neither side vulnerable.
South, Dealer.

The Bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	2♡	4♠	Pass
5♣(1)	Pass	6♠(2)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—South, with 5 honor-tricks, is not unduly optimistic in making a Slam try.

2—North's bid for a Slam is not fully justified. His hand contains, it is true, magnificent trump support, but has in all only 1½ honor-tricks. The void in diamonds may mean only a duplication of values and the declarer may be compelled to helplessly watch his opponents take in 2 or 3 tricks before surrendering the lead.

West opened the Queen of hearts, and Mr. Ayres won with the King. He then led a diamond, which was trumped in Dummy. He returned to his own hand with a trump and repeated this process until his hand was void of diamonds and the adverse trumps had been picked up. Now, to guard against the possibility that West had made an unsound Overcall bid, he led another round of hearts, upon which East discarded a diamond. South's chance of making the contract depended upon East holding five clubs; therefore Mr. Ayres now laid down the Ace and King of clubs and followed with the deuce, which East was forced to win. This was the only trick for East and West, as East's hand was now void of everything but diamonds and clubs, and the lead of either would permit a discard in one hand and a ruff in the other.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

VITAMIN "A" NECESSARY FOR HEALTH.

The statement is made that if we eat the ordinary foods, meat, vegetables, fruits, and bread or cereals that the body will not suffer in health from lack of nourishment.

This statement is true enough, but it should be remembered that each and every food is necessary to retain good health, as an abundance of one kind of food can not make up for any lack of another kind.

For instance, in countries where starches alone make up the bulk of the diet as in India and China, there occurs certain ailments known as deficiency diseases because the diet is deficient or lacks certain food factors that are found in sufficient quantities in starches.

One of these ailments is a swelling of the eyelids and increased amount of fluid, so that in a few days it is almost impossible to open the eyes. Yet even in severe cases if proper food is given the eyes quickly clear up, and complete relief is obtained.

What kind of food is necessary to cure or prevent these cases?

Any food containing the fat soluble vitamin A—egg yoke, milk, butterfat, cod liver oil, or the fats in the glands—liver and kidney—and some leafy vegetables—spinach, cress, raw cabbage—will prevent this eye condition.

Dr. Arthur M. Yudkin, Yale University, has been able to show the presence of vitamin A in the retina, the inner nerve covering of the eyeball, which forms the light receiving structure of the eye. When the body is robbed of this vitamin in normal diet, the amount in the retina also decreases.

In North America, the diet of all classes is so rich in milk, vegetables, eggs, and butterfat that there are now no cases of this eye disease existing. However, owing the country-wide depression, a nurse writes from Kansas that many of the children are suffering with eye ailments, and all of these with bad eyes are from ten to fifteen pounds underweight.

What is the lesson?

It simply teaches us that if the nervous structure of the eye is affected, the rest of the nervous system is likewise affected, thus bringing about general ill health.

The daily diet, therefore, to keep the nervous system well nourished, should contain one or more of the foods above mentioned, that is, yolk of eggs, cream, butter, milk, animal fat, spinach, cress, raw cabbage. Lean meat, muscle, is not an effective food for this purpose.

I Was Terribly Run-Down

Says Mrs. Doughty: "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Built Me Up"

Wrought Marvellous Change

"I believe it my duty to tell others what wonderful results I obtained from Dr. Williams' Pink Pills," writes Mrs. James Doughty, Brantford, Ont. "I was in a terribly nervous and run-down condition; very pale and with no ambition. I took three boxes of the Pills, and I soon began to feel like a new woman. No trouble to do my housework. The Pills built me up and put me in first-class condition."

Mrs. Richard Rusk, Roblin, Man., writes: "Diphtheria left our daughter, Beth, a nervous wreck. She was unable to continue at school. I gave her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and the change in her was marvellous. She is enjoying splendid health—and we do feel that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved her life."

Don't allow yourself or your daughter to be robbed of health and vigour. Take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They are no temporary relief. They banish run-down or nervous conditions by creating new blood, which imparts health, vigour, and vitality. 50c—at your druggist's.

NEW FASHION BRIDAL FLOWERS

Slender Cluster With a Graceful Scarf Favored Now.

SOME NEW IDEAS.

CHICAGO, May 30. (CP)—Fashions in wedding flowers change, although little realized, and June brides of 1932 will not carry the traditional bridal shower bouquet this season.

The newest bouquet, favored by a number of smart Chicago brides, is a slender cluster with a long graceful scarf of flowers, made of one kind of flower. For example, a recent prominent Chicago bride carried one made entirely of lillies-of-the-Valley, 500 stalks being required. This idea can be carried out with gardenias or sweet peas.

Very smart are clusters of white Roses, gardenias, sweet peas or the rare and costly white orchids with scarf ends of lillies-of-the-Valley. The latter are also effective when intermingled in the cluster.

IN BED WITH BACHACHE

"Two years ago I suffered with severe pains in the small of my back and could with difficulty hold myself upright. At times I had to go to bed for a week at a time. I went to and from hospital for 3 months, and they certainly did me good, but they told me they could not keep giving me medicine, but that I needed complete rest for 6 months, away from the children. I could not bring myself to be parted from the children, so I did not go to hospital any more. I started using Kruschen Salts and have had no trouble with my back since." —Mrs. W.

Kruschen contains vital salts that go right down to the root cause of backache. Soon after you start on Kruschen, the sharpest pains of backache cease. As you persevere with the "little daily dose" the twinges become less and less frequent, until finally you hardly know what an ache or pain is. Then, if you're wise, you'll prevent the possibility of a relapse by continuing the tiny, tasteless pinch of Kruschen every morning.

500 Persons Homeless In Yorkshire Floods

LONDON, May 30 (C.P.).—Although the plight of the flooded villages of the South Yorkshire area is improving, the position today remained grave. In the Trent Valley region continuous week-end rains made the situation dangerous.

American Couple Marry on Bridge

NIAGARA FALLS, One., May 30 —Seeking an international flavor, Dr. Francis Edward Capshaw of San Francisco was married late last night in the exact middle of the Falls View Bridge, the international boundary line, to Miss Margaret Louise Boling, San Francisco. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Osborne of First Baptist Church, Niagara Falls, N.Y. It had been intended to have the ceremony on the Maid of the Mist, but the last trip was missed. Mr. and Mrs. Emil Leblanc of Paris, France, came over here for the wedding. After the ceremony the couple motored to Rochester, N.Y., and to-day will take off in the bridegroom's plane for San Francisco, from whence they will go on a honeymoon trip to Honolulu.

Brilliant Display Of Northern Lights

A most unusual display of Northern Lights was seen last night, eclipsing any similar spectacle seen in Peterborough for years.

The sight, also noticed in Cleveland, Ohio, was carefully observed by Prof. J. J. Nassau of the observatory at Case School of Aplied Science, of that city, according to a C. P. despatch to The Examiner.

Prof. Nassau said a large spot in the sun may have been responsible for the phenomenon.

"Until recently," he said, "there has been no spot on the sun. However in he last few days a sun spot at least 22,000 miles in diameter has been noticeable. This may explain the unusual sight in the northern sky."

Last night's display assumed a wavy appearance, stretching from north-east to south-west. This particular kind has been given the name merry dancers. About two o'clock this morning all that was left was an arch of white light similar to a rainbow fading away on the horizon.

The meteorological name for northern lights is "aurora borealis" and they were supposed to have been of an electrical origin.

NEW M.P. AN AMAZING DEALER IN MILLIONS

John Slater Was Poor Boy, Football Player, and Became Big Financier

Eastbourne, Eng.—Mr. John Slater, who has been called "the mystery man of millions," has been returned unopposed as M.P. for Eastbourne in place of the late Mr. Edward Marjoribanks.

The new M.P. started work at fourteen, played full-back for Bolton Wanderers, and then became a millionaire while still in his twenties.

At the age of twenty-nine he lost two million pounds in a single deal, but instead of being crushed, he started again and remade his fortune.

To-day, at the age of forty-three, he has great interests in the industry and finance of this and many other countries.

He began as a clerk, but he had saved enough at twenty to become partner in a coal business.

From this he went on to buy collieries, steamships, cotton mills, iron works and shipbuilding yards.

Immediately after the war he was making spectacular deals in millions in London.

"I shall work in Parliament for the coal industry," he says. "I shall work to break down the coal mines act, or to have it so amended as to be in touch with the realities of the situation."

Eastbourne's new M.P. is an ardent empire free trader.

BAND CONCERTS START FRIDAY

Special Program is Being Arranged by Rangers' Band.

IN VICTORIA PARK.

The band concerts will start this year on the King's birthday, Friday next, June 3rd. A special program has been arranged by the Rangers Band, including a new concert march written by Cyril J. L. Rickwood and sent to the band by the Department of the Interior. As the name implies, this march has been written to celebrate the acquiring of Riding Mountain National Park by the Dominion Government. It portrays the natural beauties of this park, the opening heavy strains suggesting the rugged type of scene leading to a smooth movement, suggestive more of the placid lake type of scenery.

The band will also feature a selection entitled "For King and Country", which was arranged and dedicated to His Majesty during the World War.

Included in the popular number for Friday night, is the waltz ballad, "Paradise" from the R.K.O. radio presentation of Pola Negri on a "Woman Commands."

The Ranger's band is essentially the band of the people. It is part of the natural life of the working community. Its bandsmen are workers, like its audience and its music has in it the appeal of comradeship.

The music of the band is their own music given to the less gifted by the more gifted few, with all alike delighted by a give and take which brings romance and color and the magic of music's beauty into the drab local life of every day. Wherever there is a band it deserves the enthusiasm of its members and the support of its community.

Circus Performer Fractures Spine

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 30. —(CP)—Julio Olvera, Mexican circus performer who made a business of risking his life for the entertainment of others, is reaping a bitter reward today. He is almost totally paralyzed and his life hangs in the balance.

Olvera, whose specialty was sliding on his head down a 100 foot wire, stretched at an angle of 45 degrees from the roof of the big top, slipped Saturday night in what was to have been his closing performance here and plunged 30 feet to the ground.

He landed on the back of his neck.

Hospital authorities said today he had fractured his spine in the neck region and was paralyzed from the shoulders down.

MURRAY STREET BAPTIST CHURCH ANNIVERSARY

Dr. John MacNeill Delivers Two Splendid Addresses.

20TH ANNIVERSARY.

Commemorating the twentieth anniversary of the opening of the present edifice of Murray Street Baptist Church, Dr. John MacNeill, president of the Baptist World Alliance and Principal of the Faculty of McMaster University, preached at both services in Murray Street Baptist Church yesterday.

One of the outstanding figures in the Baptist Church, Dr. MacNeill was formerly pastor of Walmer Road Church, Toronto. He has recently returned from an extended tour of Japan, China, India and Burmah.

The Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, pastor of Murray Street Church, in speaking at Sunday morning's service of the significance of the occasion, said that it was through the combined efforts of Rev. J. R. Webb, former pastor of Murray Street Church and present pastor of King Street Church, Kitchener, and T. Frank Matthews of Toronto, who was chairman of the building committee, that the church building was erected.

He regretted that the Rev. Mr. Webb had not found it possible to be present for the anniversary, but he was glad to extend a welcome to Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Matthews who were present at the service.

Dr. MacNeill preached an inspiring and helpful sermon, taking his text from Hebrews 2, verses 11 to 13, "For both He that sanctifieth and they who are sanctified are all of one for which cause He is not ashamed to call him brethren, saying I will declare thy name unto my brethren, in the midst of the church, will I sing praise unto thee. And again, I will put my trust in him. And again, behold I and the children which God hath given me."

Need of Trust and Faith

The underlying thought which the speaker stressed, was the present need of the world to have trust and faith in God. There was no time in the world's history when so much was being spoken about brotherhood and when there were so many social organizations. Many of them were good, some of them were futile, he said, "but if you have it in your hearts to do something for humanity, let us do as Christ did. Share with humanity the deepest secrets we have of God, and let us come to have more trust and faith in Him."

It was one of the great truths of Christ's interest in humanity that He permitted Himself to live as a man in the simple service of God.

He believed the conception that most people had that Christ lived by faith, but that in a real crisis He was able to summon some hidden spring of Divine power, that is not ours to command, was a wrong idea.

If it were true, why did not Jesus change stones into bread? It was not that He did not have the power to do so, but it was because He could look down the centuries. He could see His people in their hour of sorrow and tribulation. He knew of the days when His people were to also go down into Gethsemane, and that it would not be in their power to summon hosts of angels or to perform miracles.

There the speaker thought was the encouraging and beautiful aspect of the situation, whereby humanity occupied the same relation to God as did Jesus Himself.

TULIP 'TIME' IS OBSERVED

Residents of Holland, Michigan, Observe Customs of Old Dyke Land.

IN FESTIVAL ARRAY.

HOLLAND, Mich., May 30.—There's apple blossom time in Normandy, there's cherry blossom time in Nippon and there's tulip time in old Holland and in its American namesake, Holland, Michigan.

Once a year when spring has touched with green the sand dunes edging Lake Michigan, residents of nearby-Holland discard the workaday customs and costumes of bustling America for the picturesque traditions and garb of the Dutch fathers, who founded the colony in 1847.

And so to-day the streets of this modern city of the middle West, in celebration of the annual tulip festival, are alive with bonneted and saboted residents who have turned back the pages of history for a week to keep green the memory of the "old country."

Tulips—2,000,000 of them—splash the whole town with color. Prime rows of red and yellow line the streets and parkways. Nearly every dooryard ahs its neat bed of color. Some are composed of rare and strangely hybridized breeds. Fluted whites, delicately tinged with pink; large, tall ones, running the gamut of poppy colors; and some that are so deep and velvety a purple as to seem almost black. These are interesting to the fancier, but the plain, ordinary red and yellow tulips are what lend to Holland an enchantment for a week or so.

Prim and sturdy like their tulips, the Hollanders add the bright hue of their native costumes to the mass of color. Baggy pantaloons and winged bonnets are brought down from garrets. Costumes which were everyday clothes to father and grandfathers, or even to the wearers themselves, clothes in which they were garbed when they first glimped New York harbor and a strange new land. Wooden shoes are old friends to many.

Armed with pails and scrub brushes they first scrub clean the streets in honor of the 175,000 visitors they expect to receive during the week of festivity. Clicks and clacks in staccato rhythm are heard as the squad of wooden-shod street cleaners move about their tasks.

Even the restaurants enter into the spirit of the occasion. Old Dutch receipts are resurrected from ancient cook books. Balken brei and vettebollen and delicious little sausage rools with an unpronounceable name take the place of honor on the meau cards.

PLAY PRESENTED IN APSLEY HALL

Large Audience Sees Members of St. Luke's A.Y.P.A. Present "The Empty House."

St. Luke's Peterborough A.Y.P.A. came to Apsley on May 24th and performed their latest dramatic success, "The Empty House" in the Parish Hall. The title is one that would not commend itself to a superstitious company perhaps, but "what's in a name" anyway. In this case the title belied itself, for it was almost a full house that greeted its appearance. The motif of the play was a little above the heads of the audience, but nevertheless the story was followed with the keenest interest. Needless to say the performers sustained the enviable reputation they have gained, and in the present production new talent has been discovered.

With such a competent cast, individual criticism would be out of place, as all filled their roles most capably. Between the acts Mr. Christopher Sproule gave selections on the mouth organ. The proceeds in aid of St. George's church amounted to $21.65.

Refreshments were supplied the company by Mrs. Spence and Mrs. Kilborn, and the Rev. C. A. G. Spence accorded the players, on behalf of the church wardens and himself, a hearty vote of thanks for their kindly action in coming again to Apsley to help the church to which Rural Dean G. J. Bousfield replied.

The cast was as folows:

THE MARKETS

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 30.—Helped by a better export demand, wheat prices rallied late Saturday from early downturns that were associated with unsettlement of securities.

Export purchases of North American wheat totalled 1,000,000 bushels, including some United States hard winter. On the other hand, weather indications for next week were construed as bearish, pointing to more moisture and seasonable temperatures auspicious for crops.

Wheat closed irregular, 5-8c down to 3-8c up compared with Friday's finish; corn unchanged to ¼c advance, and provisions unchanged to a decline of 2c.

Holiday Affects Trading.

With a double holiday ahead, traders showed a rather general disposition to hold off from any aggressive market action and to await private monthly crop summaries next week.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 30. — The more optimistic tone of the Liverpool market and export trade were ignored in the grain pit on Saturday and prices sagged fractionally. Traders appeared to have adopted a "wait-and-see" policy. Values at the close of the short week-end session were ¼c to ¼c lower.

May and July each dropped ¼c to 63⅛c and 63⅞c, respectively, while October closed ⅛c to ¼c lower at 66c.

The market was narrow in range and entirely local in character. Export trade continued in fair volume throughout the session and a fair quantity of durums was contracted for. Opening higher on strong Liverpool cables, the market see-sawed in dull trade throughout to close at the low point.

Trade in cash wheat and coarse grains uncovered nothing of interest, and prices generally were unchanged at the close.

Toasted Ribbons of Whole Wheat

FOR BREAKFAST IN A HURRY...

EAT Muffets when you are rushed at breakfast or at any other meal. Takes no time. Serve right from the box with cream or milk, or pour on hot water or milk. Economical . . . a Muffet costs about a cent. One is enough for a meal.

Delicious, because Muffets give you all the nutlike flavour of toasted whole wheat. Fascinating . . . for the wheat kernels have been rolled into a ribbon of open texture, then wound round and round to form the Muffet.

Supreme in nourishment. Muffets give you all the food value of the whole wheat with its bran and mineral. And in addition Muffets is the only whole wheat biscuit which contains the sunshine Vitamin D, rarest of all the vitamins.

Have Muffets in the pantry all the time. Serve at any meal. At all grocers.

"THE only things I own that are still worth one hundred cents on the dollar are my three Confederation Life Policies! How I wish that I had followed the advice of your representative, (given to me several years ago), and put more of my current earnings into Life Insurance Protection! But I was like a great many of my friends . . . money was coming too easily. I was making profits in the 'market' as well as in my business. True, I invested in bonds and other securities that I thought were safe and sound . . . but they weren't.

"All that I made in the 'market', I lost . . . and a great deal more besides. Some of the bonds I invested in have depreciated considerably in market value. Industrial Companies whose preferred stocks I bought have passed their dividends; and, to crown it all, earnings from my business have fallen nearly fifty per cent. Instead of being . . . as I thought . . . comfortably well off, with my family well secured against any financial contingency, the only thing that stands between them and comparative poverty, if anything happens to me, is my Confederation Life Insurance."

Remember, he wasn't asked to buy more insurance. His only worry was whether he was in sufficiently good health to pass the medical examination for a large amount.

Fortunately for him, he was . . . and with the stroke of a pen . . . i.e., signing a cheque for the 1st premium . . . he was able to put back into his estate a very large sum of money to replace losses due to unwise speculation and unfortunate investments.

Catch-- Them Before They Climb....

PRICES To-day are below "sea-level," if we may be permitted to use the phrase as a simile for par.

They're actually "sub" prices in the sense that many commodities, and principally the necessities of life, are being sold below cost of production, or at least below the cost at which merchants, manufacturers and wage-earners can continue to produce them and maintain normal standards of living.

What, then, is the inevitable result? Prices must come "up for air" . . . national and individual prosperity demands it and the upturn is immediately in the offing.

To-day's prices are depression prices. They can only be compared with prices during other periods of depression of past years . . . they cannot remain in this country any more than depression can continue in a country so basically prosperous in resources, in enterprise, in wealth, in commercial and industrial leadership.

These are conditions which will, and are already, adjusting themselves . . . by inevitable laws of economics.

We've reached the low . . . and at the low is the time to buy. With Food, Clothing, Furniture and almost everything else at the lowest prices in 15 years; with the purchasing power of your dollar greater to-day by 40% to 100% than at any time since the war surely it's time to stock up . . . even to buy beyond your immediate needs because unless you buy now, or very soon, you're surely going to pay more . . . when prices come "up for air."

CANADIAN DEPARTMENT STORES LIMITED

Officers Elected Belmont Institute

BELMONT, May 30. (Examiner Correspondence). A complete turnover of the officers and directors of Belmont Women's Institute, (with one exception) was the result of election of officers held at the annual meeting in the township hall. Mrs. Jos. Seabrooke secretary treasurer, alone remained in office, all others deciding to be members only, for the ensuing year. This is really a splendid idea, as it creates a wider interest in Institute affairs, those who have been officers are always interested, and the new officers have to be in order to have the work done. The duties of the secretary however require a certain amount of experience, and those in charge of Institute affairs, advise retaining the secretary as long as possible.

Following are the newly elected officers: President, Mrs. Robert Anderson; 1st Vice Pres., Mrs. Harry Tinney; 2nd Vice Pres., Mrs. George Smith; Sec'y Treas., Mrs. Jos. Seabrooke; Directors: Misses Lily Anderson, Iva Smith, Nellie Tinney, Mary Anderson; District Director, Miss Nellie Tinney; Auditors, Mrs. Harry Scott and Miss Harry Tinney; Lunch Committee, Mrs. Keene and Mrs. Hartin; Pianist, Mrs. Harry Scott; Sick and Relief Committee, Mrs. Tinney and Mrs. Will Aunger; Representatives to District Annual, Mesdames Robert Anderson, M. Aunger and J. Seabrooke, and Miss Nellie Tinney; Caretaker of hall, Mr. Jason Roe.

The minutes of the last annual meeting were read, as also the treasurer's report, showing a balance of $95 on hand. The retiring president, Mrs. Will Smith, outlined the year's work, and thanked the members for the splendid support given during her term of office. She bespoke for her successor the same measure of support as she had received.

A letter was received from an Old Country branch Institute enclosing a programme which is patterned after our own programmes, but quite a fancy design. Names of a number of members who would like to hear from members here were also enclosed.

Letters were received from Mrs. Peoples and Mrs. Sexsmith thanking the members for flowers sent during illness of these two members.

A letter from Miss S. Leonard of the local school thanked the Institute for a handsome cushion donated to the school.

A place was decided upon for planting the shrubs obtained through membership in the local Horticultural Society, and Mr. Jason Roe was left to plant the same.

The service of refreshments and a half hour spent in social chatter brought the afternoon to a close.

NEW TRAFFIC SIGNAL IN TOKIO.

As the result of studies made by Japanese experts in the United States a new automatic street traffic control system has been devised by Y. Tamani, electrical engineer, and installed in Tokyo, Japan. The system is designed to oprrate signals and lights in a stand at the centre of the street intersection or on poles at the corners. The automatice time-regulating device may be longer at certaine times of the day. A provision is also made for stopping all traffic on approach of the royal family, the fire or police departments, or for other emergencies. When the new system was introduced traffic received instructions through a loud speaker as to what to do.

CRUISES FOR SCOTTISH BOYS

Scottish school boys are to be given opportunities to take cruises in a military transport next summer. Those in charge of the plan are outlining routes so that a great part of the money spent will remain in Britain. The honorary presidents and vice-presidents include the Lord Provost of Edinburgh, the Mayor of Southampton, and the Conveners of the Edinburgh and Glasgow Education Committees. The Convener of the Cruises Committee is William Gentle, headmaster of George Heriot's School. Under the plan it is proposed to charter the military transport, Neuralia, and two cruises are contemplated, the first from Leith on July 23, to Scandinavian ports and the Kiel Canal, the second from Immingham on August 3, covering the same route in the reverse order.

FOR THE YOUNG PEOPLE

HELPFUL HARRY

ONCE upon a time there was a little boy named Harry, who lived with his mother on the edge of a wood. He was called Helpful Harry because he was so willing to help other people. When he awoke in the morning he arose without being called and was soon neatly dressed and ready to help his mother with their frugal breakfast. After breakfast he brought in wood and water and helped prepare the other children for school. When he had arranged everything so that his mother would not have to leave the house during his absence, he went cheerfully on his way.

He had to go through the woods to reach the school building and he was walking briskly along, wishing that he was grown up and able to earn money that his mother would not have to work so hard, when he met an old woman hobbling along the path. She was very poorly dressed and walked with a cane. The road was uneven and rocky in many places and the old woman would have fallen had not Harry gone to her assistance.

"Lean on me," said Harry to the old woman, "for I am young and strong."

"Oh, thank you, my lad," said the old dame, "but who may you be?"

"I am called Helpful Harry," said the boy.

"And rightly named you are," said the woman, "and here is a present for you." And she handed him a little bundle tied with a blue string. Harry thanked her and sped on his way to school.

Suddenly he came upon a little girl crying by the wayside.

"What is the matter, little girl?" asked Helpful Harry.

"I'm lost," wailed the little girl.

"Well, I'll find you," laughed Harry. "Come along with me." And he took the little girl to the edge of the wood where they found her mother looking for her.

"Here," said the little girl when they were about to part, "is a present for you because you did not pass me by." And she put in his hand a little acorn cup.

Harry now had to hurry for the other boys had all gone on before, and it was near time for school to begin. Just as he was coming out into the little path that led into the school house he saw a forlorn and hungry dog too weak to walk.

"Oh, you poor doggie," said Harry as he knelt down beside the creature, "what can I do for you?" The dog licked the little boy's hand and sniffed hungrily at his lunch basket, wherein Harry's mother had packed the best food that her poor larder afforded.

"Oh, you poor thing! You are almost starved to death. I will give you some of my lunch." And Helpful Harry fed the poor dog the nicest things in his basket.

Harry would then have gone on his way to school, but the dog tapped the ground with his tail to attract attention, and placed a little package in his hand. Then he wagged his tail as much as to say, "here is a present for you."

Harry now had to run all the way to school to make up for lost time. When he arrived at the school room he put his presents in a corner of his desk. He did not touch them again until he was ready to go home.

A short time after he had left the little school house he sat down on an old log and looked at his presents. As he opened the first package, the old woman appeared and said: "In that bundle is a small staff which will grow larger as you grow older, and will help you find your way safely over all the rough places in the world. It is a magic staff, so do not lose it," and she was gone.

Then he took the little acorn cup out of his pocket and the little girl he had met in the woods appeared and said: "That is one of my tears in the cup," and she pointed to what Harry had thought a drop of rain clinging to the side of the little cup. "It will turn into a magic glass by which you can see your way no matter where you are, or what trouble you are in. Do not break it, for it is a wonder glass." Then she, too, disappeared.

Harry now opened the package given him by the hungry dog, and found nothing inside but a big bare bone. "That bone," said the dog, who appeared in front of the astonished Harry, "is a magic bone, and by just looking at it through the magic glass or tapping it three times with the magic staff, will turn into the most delicious of food." Then the dog trotted away and was seen no more. Harry wondered much, and gathering his treasures together he ran home to his mother as fast as his legs could carry him.

Now there was great rejoicing in the poor hut on the edge of the wood, because with the magic bone and the help of the magic staff and the wonder glass they would never know want.

Years went by and Helpful Harry had grown to be a fine tall youth. The poor hut was now replaced with a comfortable cottage and Harry's brothers and sisters had all been helped to get on in the world by his fairy gifts. But he had been warned by the old woman, who appeared to him once again, not to be too prodigal with his wishes, as a time might come when he would need the help of his magic friends, and he must not find them weary with too much serving. She also warned him that should he lose his helpful nature and become proud and arrogant the magic gifts would disappear.

One day Harry was sitting at the cottage door and dreaming dreams as youth will. His faithful staff was in his hand. "How I wish that I might have a great adventure," thought Harry.

No sooner had the thought entered his head than he was borne upward on his staff, and set down in a far kingdom, where all the people seemed to be having a holiday.

"What is the matter, kind sir?" Harry asked of a villager. "You all seem very merry; is there a royal wedding or christening going on?"

"Oh, no, my good lad," said the man, "but our young princess has vowed that she will marry no common man. She wants too much for the days of miracles are passed; but we are having a week of holiday and feasting while many proud princes pass in review before our little lady. But, alas, she will have none of them. They come up this road and go down that road," continued the man, "and all that come in go sorrowfully out, for none have successfully carried out her wishes."

Just then Harry felt a prod in his side and looking down saw his magic staff acting most queerly; it was dancing up and down and crying only for his ear.

"Try the magic glass, try the magic glass."; So Harry took the little acorn cup out of his pocket and held it before his eyes and, looking right through the magic tear, he saw into the princess' mind. "Lead me to the castle, my good man," he said to the villager, but the man only laughed, so Harry joined the long line of nobles and princes walking up to the palace door. Here he was courteously received, as word had been left by the king to admit all comers. He awaited his turn and as the noble youth in front of him was turning sorrowfully away he looked into the bright eyes of the princess, but he saw that she was weeping bitterly.

"It is my wish," the princess was speaking, "that he who would aspire to my hand must give instant relief to the starving people in a far and distant kingdom, for I cannot rejoice and be merry whilst they lack bread. There has been a drought and famine is upon them. Can you, fair sir, give succor to these poor creatures; but I warn you that the way is difficult, for it lies behind high and rugged mountains."

"With Your Smile To Guide Me," Said Harry, "I Will Give Instant Relief To All The Sufferers"

"With your smile to guide me," said Harry to the princess, "I will give instant relief to all the sufferers; and moreover, you may see me accomplish the feat." Now did all the courtiers stand aghast for very wonderment, but Harry flashed his little acorn cup before them, and lo, as in a looking glass they saw the stricken city; but Harry had disappeared on the magic staff. Far over the mountains the good staff bore him until he gained the city's gates. Entering in he took the magic bone from his pocket, and striking it thrice with the staff there was spread such a feast before the people that they fell down before him and hailed him as their deliverer. All this time the image of the city had been shown through the magic glass to the princess and her court. She ceased to weep and clapping her hands declared she would marry no one but the brave youth with the tender heart who had gone to the rescue of the sorrowing people. Then she cried, "Look, look, they have made him their king."

And so it was, for the populace had brought out royal robes and put them upon the young man, and a golden crown upon his head, and he had promised them they would never know hunger again, for most of their troubles had been brought about by their grasping and greedy king, whom they had dethroned.

But while the princess still looked through the magic glass, the youth stood beside her in his royal robes, and she descended the throne and put her hand in his. And so they were married amidst much rejoicing, and a great feast was spread. Then the young King and his wife, the Queen, were swiftly carried over the mountains to the city over which they were to rule.

He reigned long and gloriously, and far and near he was known as Harry the Helpful.

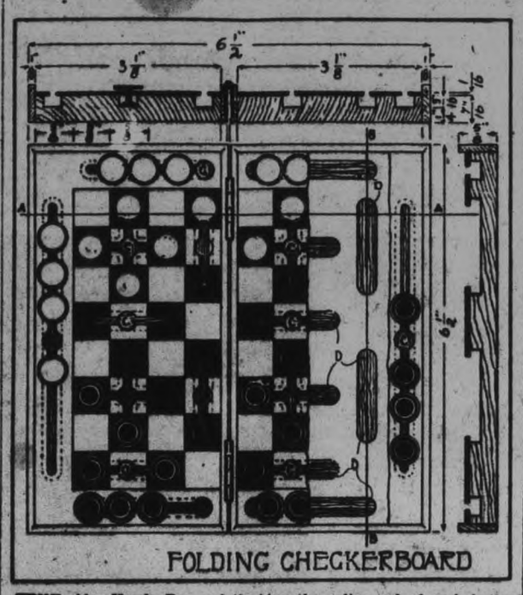
The HANDY BOY AT HOME

BY CHARLES A. KING.
STATE NORMAL SCHOOL, PLYMOUTH, N.H.



FOLDING CHECKERBOARD

THE older Handy Boy and the home worker will not find this checkerboard hard to make though it cannot be made in a slap dash manner. It may be carried in the pocket and is always ready for use if time is to be killed, for it folds to about 1¼" x 3⅛" x 6½". The checkers may be made from short shank collar buttons, bone, gold or silver plate or inked for different colors, and not over ½" in diameter on the bottoms which form the checkers. The board may be held in the hand while playing without changing the checkers. The checkers are placed by entering the collar end of each button in one of the holes C and moving it to the desired square, and removed by reversing the process.

Make two bottoms of any easily worked wood 7-16" x 3⅛" x 6¼" and two pieces of about ⅛" smooth, hard surface pasteboard the same size. Lay out ⅛" squares on each piece of the latter, indicate the black squares of each, and mark the exact centers of black and white squares to correspond with the marked centers suggested on the left side of the board, for both will be alike. Place each pasteboard to coincide with its wood back, hold it firmly and with a needle point mark centers of squares of both pasteboard and board at once to insure accuracy. Cut grooves 3-16" deep and 5-16" wide as suggested by boring 5-16" holes, first in all the center points as at D, being careful that the point of the bit does not go through the back. Bore more holes if necessary and trim and shape the grooves to size, so the collar end of the collar button will move freely. Blacken the grooves. Mark the ends E and the center of the ¼" slots, both straight and crossed, in both pieces of pasteboard. Make ⅛" holes at the ends E and a 5-16" hole in the center at C. Glue the pasteboard accurately to the grooved back, miter ⅛" x ⅝" strips around the edges and glue them thoroughly. Drive a few ⅝" brads if necessary, but not into the grooves. Fit 1" x 1" brass butts as shown and lay aside.

The outside may be stained or finished natural but the pasteboard should be given a coat of white shellac. Touch up the marks of the squares so they may be followed easily and paint the white squares. Draw the black squares with a ruling pen and fill in with black paint. When thoroughly dry give the inside a coat of varnish with a soft brush, being careful not to brush out the squares. Clean varnish out of the hinge sockets and fasten hinges with screws. Now slip in the collar buttons and may you beat when you play your first game. When the board is folded a broad rubber band will hold it together.

THE PANTRY STORE

OUR pantry's filled with cakes and jam
And bread and fruit and nice boiled ham,
And peas and beans and sugar beets
And heaps of other goody treats.

Each night my mother says to me,
"Go in and buy the cakes for tea."
So I walk in and say, "Look here—
I want some cakes Miss Pantry dear!"

Miss Pantry says, "Go help yourself
To anything upon the shelf."
And so I go there every day
But never, never, have to pay.

The truth is this—I can't deceive—
My shopping trip is make-believe,
For everything was bought before
With grown-up's money at the store!

A Juvenile Juggler

BOB had been to the circus. And he was much impressed with the wonderful feats performed by the Japanese jugglers, especially when they lay on their backs and balanced and spun small, brightly painted barrels on their feet.

End over end and round and round the barrels whirled on the soles of their feet. With marvelous dexterity they tossed them to each other, back and forth, catching them on their feet better than you or I could have done with our hands.

So, the next afternoon, Bob decided that he would play Japanese juggler. He found an old barrel behind the woodshed and, carrying it down to a secluded part of the garden, he looked carefully around to see that no one was watching. He had visions of himself making that old barrel spin around in a way that would have made even the Japanese jugglers themselves envy him.

He lay down on his back, raised his feet high up in the air and picked up the barrel to place it on the soles of his feet, just as the jugglers in the circus had done. But, somehow, it wouldn't stay there—not even for a moment! It rolled right off!

Then he remembered that they gave the barrel a certain rotary motion, first with one foot, then with the other. So, confident that he had the secret of the trick, Bob balanced the barrel on his feet and then kicked downward and backward with one foot.

Bang! Down came the barrel—almost on his face. In fact, it just did graze his head! He tried it several times and was finally rewarded with a nice, fat, aching bump on his forehead where the barrel struck him as it fell.

He remembered just then that the Japanese jugglers had placed a barrel on its side on the ground, stood on it and then walked, making the barrel spin round and round under them with amazing rapidity. Ah! He would try that! He knew he could do it, too!

So, balancing himself carefully, he climbed up on the barrel. Then, boldly and strongly, he stepped out. The barrel spun all right! Indeed yes! In fact, it revolved too much. Like a flash it whirled out from under him and Bob sat down on the ground so hard that he felt certain he must have gone clear through to China. And he saw about a million stars!

Which was quite enough for Bob, at least for that day. But he consoled himself with the thought that if he had been born a Japanese he could have done the tricks. He didn't realize that those same Japanese who had performed so wonderfully in the circus had practiced days and days and months and months before they were able to do so.

Nothing, you know, that is difficult to do in this world can be done off hand; you must work hard to accomplish it.

Gray Headed Dandelions

ONCE upon a time, not so very long ago, a family of yellow-haired dandelions decided to move from the forest into the town they had heard so much about. So in the fall, with the help of the wind, they moved and all winter they worked making good roots ready for spring.

As soon as the warm sunshine came they sent up some green leaves to see if spring was really here. The leaves sent down word that spring had come and that the new home was very pleasant. So the dandelions decided to go up into the sunshine and see for themselves what the new country was like. First one dandelion went up all by herself, and as she stayed the other decided she must like it so they went too. Till at last six lovely golden-haired dandelions stood up straight and tall in the sunshine.

"I like this better than the woods," said the biggest dandelion, "for there are fewer trees and more open space." "Maybe I will grow bigger here," said the little dandelion, "for I like the warm sunshine."

And sure enough. The rains came and gave them water, and the sun helped with his warmth and the dandelions grew big and tall. The littlest one grew as big as his mother and was very proud and happy.

Then one day a very dreadful thing happened. Two men came walking by the dandelions' home and as they passed, one said to the other, "Just see those dandelions! I mean to dig them up tomorrow morning!"

The dandelions were so frightened they could hardly move. Just when they were so nicely settled to be dug up and thrown away! Such a thing never happened in the forest! All day long they talked in whispers about it! All the night through they worried about how to save themselves!

When the morning sun peeped over the horizon, what do you suppose it saw?

The worry and fright of the night had turned the dandelions' beautiful hair all gray and they looked jaggered and tired like old, old people!

And when the fresh morning breeze blew pouf! pouf! across the town, the gray hair disappeared, and six old baldheaded dandelions sadly waited to be dug up.

CHERRIES ARE RIPE!

(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color)

OH, look, Teddy, the cherries are RED!" cries YELLOW-haired Susie May to BROWN-haired Teddy. "See them among the GREEN leaves!"

"I should say so!" exclaims Teddy, "and there are a lot of them, too. I'll have to climb the tree to get at them!"

"What a pretty GRAY (use BLACK lightly) trunk it has!" says Susie May with appreciation.

"Just look at those apple trees over yonder! There all PINK (use RED lightly) with blossoms! You can hardly see the little GREEN leaves for the flowers."

"They have BROWN trunks and the bark is not as smooth as the cherry!" says Susie May.

Susie May wears an ORANGE (use RED and YELLOW mixed) color beret. Her dress is bound with bands of ORANGE color material. The dress is light PURPLE.

Teddy wears a YELLOW blouse and BLACK bow tie. His trousers are BROWN and his belt BLACK. He carries a RED and BLUE tin pail and his GRAY cap. Susie May has a YELLOW basket with a RED handle.

The grass is GREEN and the sky is BLUE. The path is light BROWN.

Susie May has PINK cheeks and RED lips.

The border of this picture can be colored dark GREEN and the lettering RED.

"I hope Mother will make a big cherry pie!" says Teddy.

Maureen Orcutt Eliminated in British Golf Championship

FAVORITE TO WIN GOLF TITLE ELMINATED BY JEAN HAMILTON, LITTLE KNOWN ENGLISH PLAYER

United States' Contingent of Women Golfers Encounters Disaster From Start.

DIANA FISHWICK ALSO OUT.

Enid Wilson, Defending Champion, Defeats Lulu Esmond Seven and Six.

SAUNTON, England, May 30, (AP)—Maureen Orcutt, of Englewood, N.J., tournament medalist and a strong contender for the title, to-day was eliminated from the British women's golf champion ship by Jean Hamilton, a little known English player, two and one in the first round.

Miss Orcutt who holds the Canadian title led the qualifying field with a score of 151 and on the basis of her sterling play had been established as the most likely invader to win the title no American has ever held.

She also competed in the British women's last year and was eliminated in the third round by the well-known player, Elsie Corlett.

The United States contingent encountered disaster right from the start, Mrs. Opal Hill, the Kansas City star, bowing before the Irish internationalist, Mrs. J. H. Todd, by a 2 and 1 margin, while Mrs. J. B. Watson, former Scottish champion eliminated Mrs. Harley Higbie, of Detroit, Mich., 6 and 4.

Diana Fishwick Eliminated

In the string of upsets, Miss Diana Sishwick, who won the title in 1930, went down before the superior play of Susie Tolhurst, former Australian champion, but carried her opponent to the 19th green.

Doris park continued the rout of the Americans by defeating Helen Hicks, United States titleholder, three and two but Mrs. Glenna Collet Vare, former American champion, over whelmed Mrs. George Coats, of Troon, seven and six, to join Virginia Van Wie in the second round.

Mrs. Leona Cheney, Los Angeles, Calif., came through with a one up victory over the former British champion, Doris Chamber, of Liverpool, to leave three Americans in the second round.

Playing much poorer golf than she did in the qualifying rounds, Miss Orcutt led by one hole at the ninth but lost them three straight to go two down. She won the 15th to stave off defeat for a moment but could not match Miss Hamilton's three at the 17th.

Epsom Derby Course In Splendid Shape

EPSOM DOWNS, Eng. May 30. —C P Cable)—Despite torrential rains the famous Derby course over which the classic of the English turf will be run on Wednesday, is in splendid condition and providing no further severe weather is encountered will give the Derby horses good going.

Their cards:

	Out
Orcutt	5	5	6	5	5	5	4	4	4—43
Hamilton	4	6	5	6	5	4	4	5	5—44
	In
Orcutt	5	5	6	3	5	5	5	4
Hamilton	4	4	5	3	5	6	5	3

Miss Fishwick's own errors defeated her after she had rallied after being three down at the turn. The Australian woman pushed her tee shot to deep rough on the extra hole and Fishwick seemed sure of winning, but she putted clear across the green and then chipped back to a bunker on the other side while Miss Tolhurst was recovering nicely to lie almost dead in three and Miss Fishwick conceded the hole and the match.

Mrs. Higbie never had much chance against Mrs. Watson who won the first hole and never thereafter was down. Turning three up, Mrs. Watson won the 10th with a par four and the 11th with another par to go five up. Mrs. Higbie rallied sufficiently to halve the 12th and 13th but Mrs. Watson ended the match on the next green where she was down in five.

Plays Excellent Game

Virginia Van Wie of Chicago shot excellent golf all the way to defeat the present Scottish champion, Jean McCulloch, 8 and 7.

Miss McCulloch failed to win a hole from Miss Van Wie. The Scottish title-holder halved the first, fourth, seventh and tenth, but the Chicago girl won all the rest.

Enid Wilson, defending champion, defeated Lulu Esmond, seven and six.

Miss Van Wie meets Miss Tolhurst, conqueror of Miss Fishwick, in the second round to-morrow morning, and Mrs. Cheney plays Miss Hamilton.

Mrs. Vare will encounter Mrs. John Challen, of Blackwell, in the second round. The latter defeated Mrs. Hugh Percy, also of England, 3 and 1, to-day.

The elimination of Mrs. Lacoste, who as Mlle. Simone Thion De La Chaisne, won the British title in 1927, came as a distinct surprise. She was never able to strike her true stride, and fell before the steady play of Mrs. J. B. Walker, of England, 5 and 3.

Now Human Sprinters Get Stall Gates

THEY'RE OFF! THIS TIME IT'S THE SPRINTERS.

They had to put horses into stall gates in order to get them away evenly, but who would ever think that human beings were to be subjected to the same treatment? Nevertheless, it is quite a possibility, as seen above. H. Rottenberg, of London, England, has invented an apparatus for the purpose of eliminating false starts and to prevent any runner from beating the gun. When the pistol is fired by the starter the barrier flies up automatically, allowing the runners to leap out. In the above layout, Evan Hunter, secretary of the British Olympic Council, trying out the new invention. Below is shown the "gates" an instant after the gun has been fired.

Latest news and views of the Golfing World

By RALPH H. REVILLE

Ralph H. Reville

The Open Championship of Canada will be played over the course of the Ottawa Hunt and Golf Club on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the 7th, 8th and 9th of July.

The secretary of the Royal Canadian Golf Association has this week issued the official programme of the outstanding event of the season. The championship shall be decided by the entire field playing 36 holes, one round of 18 holes on Thursday and 18 holes on Friday. All competitors within 20 strokes of the leader on Thursday and Friday shall play 36 holes on Saturday. In the event of a tie or ties, the competitors who tie shall play an additional round as arranged by the committee. In this connection it might be stated that heretofore 36 holes have been played in the event of a tie, as was done in 1930 at Hamilton between Tommy Armour and Leo Diegel and last year at Mississauga between Hagen and Alliss. The United States Golf Association this year is limiting the play-off to 18 holes in the event of a tie and the R. C. G. A. may probably follow this example, although whether 18 holes or 36 holes will be left to the discretion of the Committee.

In the case of amateur golfers applications will be considered only from players whose handicap is 6 or less.

The prizes amounting to $1,465, subject to any alteration necessitated by ties, shall be divided as follows: The winner shall receive the Championship Golf Medal and the first pribe, $500.00 in money. The prize money shall be awarded only to a professional. First prize $500; second prize $300; third prize $200; fourth prize $150; fifth prize $100; sixth prize $75; seventh prize $50; eighth prize $40; ninth prize $30; tenth prize $20. The Association will present a golf medal for the best amateur score.

In addition to these prizes the "Canadian Golfer" will as usual donate $50.00 (1st $35, second $15.) to the Canadian Professionals returning the lowest two scores in the championship.

The last time the Open Championship was held in Ottawa was in 1920 at the Rivermead Golf Club when the late Douglas Edgar, Tommy Armour (then an amateur) and C. R. Murray, Royal Montreal, tied and in the play-off Edgar won. The course of the Ottawa Hunt has never staged a championship before but experts claim that it is one of the best tests of golf in Canada.

Hagen will be at Ottawa to defend his title and Leo Diegel, MacDonald Smith and Tommy Armour, former Open Champions will also be there with the cream of American and Canadian players. All golfing roads will lead to Ottawa the week of July 7th.

The appointments of professionals for Canadian clubs for the season of 1932 is now complete and the total reaches the quite imposing one of 281, made up by provinces as follows: Alberta 16, British Columbia 22, Manitoba 19, New Brunswick 10, Nova Scotia 13, Ontario 129, Prince Edward Island 2, Quebec 57, Saskatchewan 13.

This total does not include assistant professionals, of whom there are now quite a large number, the majority of the pros. in the larger clubs finding it necessary to have an assistant. These professionals make all the way from $5,000 or in some cases more, down to $1,000 or so. It will thus be seen in the aggregate that half a million dollars or more will be picked up by the paid brigade during the golf season now in full swing throughout Canada.

Mr. H. W. Maxson, president of the Province of Quebec Golf Association announces that at a recent meeting of the executive of the association it was unanimously decided to appoint Mr. P. H. Walker as Hon. Secretary-Tressurer and elect him to the executive. The permanent office of the secretary is now located at 710 Railway Exchange Building, Montreal. Mr. Walker will make a worthy successor to Mr. R. J. R. Stokes, who was for ten years Hon. Secretary of the Association and who did so much to make the P.Q.G.A. such an outstanding Provincial Association.

The Prince of Wales is thoroughly enthusiastic about the game of golf, writes an English correspondent. He works hard to improve his form, and the fine showing he made in the Royal Navy Tournament at Sunningdale proves that he is a good eleven handicap. Should the royal golfer improve this season as much as he did last he may reach the distinction of a single figure handicap. His sphere of competition must necessarily be limited, but his entry for the Army Championship and his appearance in the Parliamentary Handicap, mark a mighty long stride from the seclusion in this most democratic of games. It is good for golf that the Prince and his royal brothers are so keen about it.

ANXIOUS TO FIGHT!

Wesley Ketchell, the Portland, Oregon, light-heavyweight, goes right along knocking out 175-pounders, and some of them pretty good lads. He has knocked out something like sixteen men the past year, which is not at all a bad record for a southpaw. He is most anxious to fight George Nichols for the title and would like to come east and start off with such good ones as Lou Scozza, Dave Maier and Harry Bobets, also Joe Knight, southern champion.

Box Lacrosse Rules

The following rules were adopted for box lacrosse from the regular lacrosse rules which are still in effect in 1932, as revised April 6th of this year. When box lacrosse is played, these rules listed below will prevail over the O.A.L.A. and C.A.L.A. rules for the 12-man game:

1. Lacrosse sticks for box lacrosse shall not be more than 46 nor less than 42 inches in length, except for the goalkeeper who may use any length stick.

2. This deals with the goal, its size and shape, etc.

3. The goal crease shall be in the shape of a semi-circle, having a radius of 9 feet from the centre of a line drawn between the goal posts and an imaginary line extending on each side to meet the semi-circle, from which point on each side a line will be drawn at right angles extending to the back stop. The goal crease line and the line between the posts will be in white and 2 inches wide.

4. When box lacrosse is played indoors the playing area shall be at least 160 feet long by 60 feet wide. Larger areas must have the sanction of the Executive.

5. A box lacrosse team shall consist of 7 players on each side, to be designated as follows: Goalkeeper, Right Defence, Left Defence, Rover, Centre, Right Forward and Left Forward.

6. No other than the regular team of 5 substitute players and substitute goalkeeper shall appear in uniform where a match is played.

7. Each player shall have a large conspicuous number, not less than 10 inches in height, on back and front of sweaters. No two players of a club shall use the same number during any playing season—for the benefit of spectators and officials.

8. The playing time of the match shall be 3 periods of 20 minutes each, with a 10-minute rest between periods.

9. In no case shall the ball be faced closer to goals than 15 feet from goal crease and when out of bounds at least 10 feet from boundary.

10. Players may substitute at any time, providing that returning player reaches players' bench before change is made.

11. No player on the defending side may throw the ball back to the goalkeeper when in possession of the ball in front of goal.

12. A free throw shall be given to the opposing side if a player in the opinion of the deferee deliberately throws the ball out of bounds.

13. A minor penalty shall be 2 minutes, a major 5 minutes, a match penalty the rest of the game, but after 15 minutes—if specified at the time of penalty by the referee or judge of play—the club may use a substitute for the player receiving the match penalty.

14. All dispute during a game will be settled by the referee and his decision will be final.

NOTE: The convention gave the O.A.L.A. Executive the power to change the box lacrosse rules and regulations at any time during 1932 if certain rules and regulations did not work out satisfactorily.

LEFTY LESURF BLANKS SAINTS FOR 9-0 VICTORY

Maple Leaf Hurler Allows One Hit in Stellar Mound Performance.

STRIKES OUT 17.

Winners Hit Depellaro and Watson in Third and Fourth to Gain Runs.

Superb pitching by 'Lefty" Lesurf marked the opening game of the City Baseball League at Stevenson Park Saturday. He pitched one-hit shutout ball for the Maple Leaf Juveniles in the first half of a double-headed to blank All Saints 9 to 0. In seven innings played, his southpaw slant whistled past no less than seventeen batters, and he struck out thirteen of the first fourteen to face him.

With such pitching, the Saints could do nothing, Delpellaro getting the only hit of his side, a single through in the fifth. The Leafs had an easy time in the field and they hit both Depellaro and Watson hard in the third and fourth innings to get most of their runs. Williamson and Calladine led the stickers with a double and two singles apiece, with Dickson bagging a double and a single. Nice catches of flies were made by Amyotte and Dickson.

JOE DONOVAN TO MEET DANE

Buffalonian Matched Against Local Pro for Friday Night's Show.

OUTSTANDING OPPONENT.

An opponent has been secured to meet Jack Dane in one of the bouts of the all-star boxing card being offered at the Brock Street Rink on Friday night. The individual in question is none other than Joe Donovan, which means that the Peterborough light heivyweight is being called upon to meet the best man he has yet faced in his short but meteoric career. Everybody acquainted with the noble art has heard of Donovan's prowess. A Buffalonian, Joe has mingled with the best in the business, both in the middle and light heavyweight classes.

Toronto has been a favorite hunting ground for Donovan and he has engaged in some great scraps there, beating some outstanding boxers. Either at boxing or slugging, Joe can hold his own, and that is what makes him such a dangerous mitful. He will have a great advantage in the matter of experience over the local and that means a great deal in a bout.

However, Dane has still to be beaten since he started in the professional game last Summer and in his recent bouts in Toronto he has displayed wonderful improvement. He has been training hard for this bout, as he has been promised a bout here with a championship contender providing he can take Donovan's measure.

This will be but one of a series of interesting bouts being arranged by Matchmaker Hallat for the first all-star professional boxing program being offered in Peterborough.

Incidentally there will be no increase in prices despite the fact that it could considerably more to stage a boxing show than it does a wrestling affair. And when the full card is made public, it will be realized what a bargain show it is going to be.

PIRATES WIN FROM FOSTER JUNIORS 6-4

Two Big Innings Give Bucs the Victory in Junior League Fixture.

Hetherington Holds Edge.

Trenter, McCullough and Trantor Featured in Neat Fielding Plays.

Pirates put Foster Juniors overboard to the tune of 6-4 in the second half of the City Baseball League double-header at Stevenson Park Saturday. Only a few fans braved the threatening weather and consequently these few saw a good junior tilt. Two big innings, the third and sixth, in which they scored three runs each, gave the Bucs the game. A seventh-inning rally by Fosters was nipped with two on and one run in. All three Foster runs came in the first inning.

Hetherington, on the Pirate mound, had an edge over Pearson, fanning seven and allowing seven hits, including Sweetman's double. His opponent struck out three and was touched for nine hits, two of them being two-baggers by Mowry. Jim Sweetman led the Foster hitters with a double and two singles in three times up, while Padgett had two hits in two trips. Bert Bailey had three single in three trips for Pirates with Mowry getting two doubles. Tranter, McCullough and Padgett all pulled of neat fielding plays.

Catch Current Prices Before The Tide Turns

"Time and tide wait for no man."

Nor are the low prices of to-day and the turn of the tide toward higher prices going to wait for those who haven't the vision, courage and foresight to buy when prices are at the lowest ebb in 15 years.

And this changing of the tide as applied to prices is more than a mere simile . . . it's a certainty . . . price tides change as surely as ocean tides.

To-day's prices on food, clothing, furniture, furs, cars and other things are from 40% to 100% lower than they have been in years and lower than they will be before the turn of another season.

Don't be caught off your guard when it's so important that your savings be guarded.

Leafs and Royals Break Even At Montreal

SMITH HURLS TORONTO CLUB TO 11-0 WIN OVER ROYALS

Clarence Fisher is Star of Montreal's 5-4 Opening Victory.

LEAFS COP SERIES.

MONTREAL, May 30.—Art Smith pitched as stylish a game as he ever turned in during the two years he wore a Royal uniform yesterday at the stadium, and, limiting his former team-mates to three scattered hits, gave the Leafs an even split in the double bill, which was witnessed by a crowd of 9,000. The Leafs pummelled three Royal hurlers for an 11-0 win behind Smith's great hurling. Earlier in the day the Royals had captured a 5-4 victory, mainly through the efforts of a former Leaf, Clarence Fisher, whose great relief hurling and single in the ninth, won a game "Lefty" Claset appeared to have lost in the sixth.

The Leafs gave the gathering a taste of what was to follow in the nightcap when they laced Claset for five hits and four runs in the sixth inning. But for successive homers by Shiver and Ripple, Royals would have lost both games, but these two put the locals back into the game in the sixth and Walters' single tied the score and Fisher won his own game a moment later with another single.

Rout Three Royal Pitchers.

Three Royal hurlers tried vainly to halt one of the most impressive slugging sprees seen at the stadium this year in the nightcap and failed miserably. Pomerski was out before he had retired a single Leaf in the third, and Collingwood pitched to three batters and all hit safely. Before Brenton, third Royal hurler, could retire the side seven Leafs had batted; four had hit safely and three runs were in to give Smith a 5-0 lead. This was not all for they picked up another in the fourth on a great double steal and then staged a final merry-go-round in the ninth when the entire side came up, produced four hits and five runs.

Smith needed only one run to win, for so well had he hurled that only two Royals, Thomas and Ripple, who hit doubles, got to second base in the nightcap. Susce got the only other Montreal hit, a single, and Art Smith started a double play, which wiped him off the sacks in the second. Smith walked but one man and fanned two. It was his second straight shut-out over the Royals, for he beat them in a nine-inning game in Toronto early this month. It was his seventh win of the season.

Lead Nightcap Attack.

Fritz and Hughes led the fourteen-hit attack in the nightcap, and Ray Morehart was the only Leaf who failed to connect. Bob Smith hit a pair of doubles, and Fritz and Hughes each got a two-bagger. Smith drove in two runs himself in the seventh with a ringing single.

The Leafs thus won the series, two games to one, for Frank Barnes outpitched Walter Brown on Saturday to win, 3 to 1. The Leafs won in the ninth by breaking a 1-to-1 deadlock on smart baserunning. Two singles, a sacrifice, which went as a fielder's choice, when the throw to third was late, filled the bases, and Brown walked in the tie-breaking run. The winning tally came home after the catch of Walker's fly to Ripple.

FLUKE HOME RUN SETTLES ISSUE

Foley's Circuit Gives Red and White Stores 10-9 Win Over Examiner.

CLOSE FOUGHT BATTLE.

A fluke homer settled the issue in the men's softball game at Central Saturday night, Foley's four-bagger giving the Red and White Stores a 10-9 win over The Examiner's galaxy of stars. A good-sized crowd took in the classy exhibition, and the closeness of the score indicates the battle fought.

Curry opposed Price on the mound to start it and, backed with good support, they went along on fairly even terms. Curry retired at the end of the fourth with six runs against him, and Price had to leave in the fifth with seven in. Montgomery then twirled for the Grocers and Scates succeeded Price with honors even the rest of the way.

Start Off Strong

The Newspapermen started strong getting two runs in the first, two in the third and another brace in the fourth. In the seventh, they crossed the platter three times to wind up their scoring, being blanked the last two frames. The Grocers notched a marker in the second inning, another in the third and they broke loose in the fifth to shove across five. Two more in the seventh gave them a 9-all tie with their opponents. In the last half of the eighth, Foley rapped a hot single to the outfield, and the ball took a bad hop to get away from the fielder and go for a cheap home run, giving the Harrison crew the game.

The four pitchers all turned in some good hurling, and they received snappy support most of the way, only a few costly errors being committed. It was an exciting fixture, with two smart, well-matched teams fighting hard and the breaks settling it.

Good Day at Bat

Dugan of the Pressmen, continued his work with the willow, smashing out a triple and two singles in five trips. His teammates, Hardill and Gillespie, each had three hits also. Dobson and Dorrington of the winners helped themselves to three bingles apiece, the latter beating out three bunts for safeties.

Ruth Connects for his 14th Homer

CUBS-PIRATES SPLIT DOUBLE BILL SUNDAY

All National League Clubs Finish Day in Same Position as They Started.

DODGERS-BROWNS EVEN.

Senators and Yanks Also Divide as Ruth Gets Three Homers in Two Days.

Dazzy Vance finally has won himself a ball game from the Boston Braves, perhaps because Bill McKechnie so far forgot himself as to start something besides Young Bob Brown against the veteran speedball artist of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The Dazzler, beaten twice by the Braves with Brown pitching against him, finally broke the spell yesterday, winning a 3-2 decision in the second game of a double header. Vance allowed only three hits and fanned nine but it took a two-run rally in the ninth to save him. Pinch hitter Bruce Caldwell's single drove in the tying run and Lefty O'Doul drove in the winning tally with another. The Braves had won the first game 10-6, with an eight run drive in the second inning. Brown received credit for this victory although he was so wild he had to be relieved by Huck Betts in the ninth. He walked eight men.

All other National League teams played double headers and split them leaving the eight clubs in the same relative positions they occupied before the day's firing started.

The league leading Chicago Cubs broke Pittsburgh's five-game winning streak behind Pat Malone in the first game 7-3 but the Pirates won the second, 2-0 behind Glenn Spencer's effective hurling.

After Bill Hallahan had pitched the St. Louis Cardinals to a 5-0 shutout victory in the opener, the Reds came back to win the nightcap, 3-2 the winning score coming across in the 11th on two singles and a sacrifice. The New York Giants spotted the Phillies seven runs and then beat them, 10-8 in their slugging opener but failed to fathom Jim Elliott's slants in the second game and succumbed 4-3.

Yanks Lengthen Lead

In the American League the New York Yankees stretched their lead to three games by beating Washington, 11-8 as Babe Ruth hit his 14th home run. Vernon Gomes staggered through the entire game to hang up his eighth victory, outlasting three Senator pitchers, but Rube Walberg shut out the Sox with four hits in the second game, 3-0. Jimmie Foxx clouted his 16th homer in the opener.

Two Homers For Ruth.

Saturday's double header in Washington gave Babe Ruth an opportunity to ring up two more home runs, but the Yankees lost both games to the Senators. Detroit and Chicago divided a twin bill, while the Athletics and Cleveland won single victories over Boston and St. Louis, respectively.

The Giants dropped the third and final game of their series with the Brooklyn Dodgers Saturday without one victory in the engagement. Tony Cuccinello and Glen Wright propelled home runs for the Dodgers, Wright's proving the margin of victory with a man on base. Chuck Klein's 11th homer of the season figured in the Phillies' victory over Boston. Cincinnati tossed the Cubs for a loss, and Pittsburgh won their fifth straight at the expense of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Detroit strengthened its hold on third place with a 4-3 triumph over the Chicago White Sox, Luke Appling's fumble in the seventh paving the way for the Tigers' winning run. Bill Rogell, Tiger shortstop, had a busy day afield, accepting 16 of the 17 chances he had.

The St. Louis Browns, scoring seven runs in the eighth, trounced Cleveland 12-3, in the first game of a double-header, but could do little with Mel Harder in the second and the Indians won, 2-1. The Browns' lone tally was a home run in the ninth by Campbell.

Bob Weiland outpitched three rivals as the Boston Red Sox whipped the Philadelphia Athletics, 6-4, in the first game of a twin bill

DELORO BEATS PACKERS 3-2 ON HOME FIELD

Visitors Weakened by Absence of Two Regulars From Their Line-up.

RETAIN EARLY LEAD.

(Examiner Correspondence)

MARMORA, May 30.—Deloro received Canadian Packers on Saturday afternoon in a league football fixture and won after a good game by 3 goals to 2. Packers were weakened by the absence of two of their regular players, Buchan and Nicholls while Deloro had the same side which met defeat a week previous, in rearranged form.

The homesters won the toss and kicked off. Packers pressed in the opening stages without securing a favorable opportunity for scoring. Eventually play was taken to the other end where Brooks unsuccessfully tested Griffin and Brown shot wide when in good position. Packers returned to the attack with N. Downer and Foster standing out prominently. Deloro came back with a rush. Hart sent in a good shot which Griffin cleared. The ball reached Stewart who was in a good position. Instead of shooting, he trickily sent the ball back to Brown who baffled the goalie with a neat drive. Deloro continued to press and Brooks almost scored on a fine center by Simmons.

Deloro was not long denied their second goal, Hart taking advantage of weak defence work by the visitors. End to end rushes were now the order of the game. After Brown had shot high, Ross at the other end almost scored, O'Neill having to fall by the upright to avert a count. Brooks sent in a hot shot at the other end and as Griffin fell with the ball, it appeared to some that a goal had been scored but Deloro was quite satisfied that it was otherwise and when half time came the score read, Deloro 2, Packers 0.

Smelters Score

Upon resumption of play Deloro for a while pressed, Brown being aggressive. Then Packers livened up and Dyer and Hotson tried hard for a score. N. Downer took a free kick, but the ball was cleared by the Deloro defence. Jones sent in a hot shot but O'Neill was equal to the occasion. Returning to the other end Hart was just a trifle too high with a good drive and A. Downer cleared when Deloro forwards threatened. Brooks soon placed his team further ahead with a nice goal. Packers again got going with fine combination and following a corner, Jones headed the ball for it to strike the cross bar. Play for the next five minutes was somewhat scrappy, both teams relying more on individual effort than combination. Resorting to combination once more Packers became aggressive and from a corner Jones received to score his team's first goal. Both goals were now visited in quick succession. After Brown's shot had hit the upright, A Downer kicked a trifle wide when facing the Deloro goal. About ten minutes before the final game, O'Neill left his goal to negotiate a shot and N. Downer did the trick.

The Deloro goalie made a good save in the last minutes of the game as a visiting forward, sent in a hot drive following a corner. Owing to tire trouble on the way down the Packers were delayed in arriving and the game was commenced half an hour late.

The teams:

BUZZ ARLETT CONNECTS FOR 2 MORE HOMERS

Eight Circuit Blows Made in Double-header at Jersey City.

KEYS SPLIT WITH BEARS.

Rochester Finally Halts Bisons' Winning Streak by Taking 8-7 Decision.

The pernicious habit of splitting double headers has been a contributing cause to the downfall of many a team that could win the greater part of its singles bills, but so far as the current International League season is concerned, it seems merely to have added to the closeness of the exciting race for the lead.

All eight of the circuit's clubs engaged in twin bills yesterday and any one of the five contenders that could have won both games would have taken a gigantic forward stride. They all failed, however, and wound up just where they started.

Baltimore and Buffalo, tied for first place, suffered the worst consequences of that second game letdown. Each team won its first game, the Bisons running their string of victories to six straight by downing Rochester 6 to 2 and Baltimores Orioles pounding Jersey City for a 14 to 6 triumph. Then they each turned around and lost a heart breaker in the second half of the programme.

After pounding out 15 hits, including four homers, in the opener, the Orioles could get only seven hits off Ogden in the second game, shortened to six innings to allow the Birds to make a train. And although they made the most of their blows, and Buzz Arlett got in his second four-ply wallop of the day and his 16th of the season, the Skeeters won 10 to 8.

Buffalo had the second game all but won in the final inning but Jack Winsett lost two fly balls in the sun and Rochester came through with three runs, winning 8 to 7. The Bisons furnished a good supply of home runs to entertain 15,000 fans.

Buck Crouse and Bubbles Hargrave, the two catchers, each hit two and Ollie Carnegie smacked one in each game to equal Baltimore's total of six for the day.

All Divide Doubles

Montreal and Newark, trailing the first place clubs by one and 1½ games respectively, divided doubleheaders with lower ranking clubs. An ex-Royal, Art Smith, spoiled the day for Montreal by pitching a three hit shutout, his second straight over his former club, while Toronto hammered out an 11 to 0 victory in the second game. The Royals had won the first 5 to 4, when relief pitcher Clarence Fisher drove home the winning run in the eighth.

Newark had things all its own way against the last place Reading Keys in the opener, winning 7 to 1 with some heavy hitting behind Welch's good mound work. But in the second contest, Carrol Yerkes and Vince Barton turned the tables. Yerkes blanked the Bears with three hits in the ten innings while Barton made the fourth hit off Harry Kolsclaw good for a victory when he slammed a drive out of the lot for a home run.

Saturday's warfare in the International was confined to three games, the Rochester-Buffalo argument being washed out by rain. The Toronto Maple Leafs backed up Frank Barnes' fine pitching with a ninth inning 3-1 win over the Montreal Royals who had Walter Brown on the firing line. Jersey City bowed to Harry Smythe's flinging for the Baltimore Orioles, and the Reading Keys squeezed out a 10-inning victory over Newark.

FORTY DARING DRIVERS AWAIT START OF 500-MILE AUTO RACE

130,000 Spectators Likely Witness 20th Speed Classic at Indianapolis.

MAY BREAK RECORDS.

(By Carles Dunkley, A. P. Sports Writer)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 30.—Forty daring young drivers, with nerves of steel, awaited the start of the twentieth 500-mile international automobile race at the Indianapolis motor speedway today, with the prospect of more than 130,000 spectators would witness the death defying battle for prizes of $100,000.

The race promised to be the fastest and the most dangerous in the history of the classic. Two men were killed as the result of accidents in the qualifying tests and their survivors feared for their lives in bouncing their cars over the perilous 2½ mile brick course.

With a moderate degree of luck and favorable weather conditions, the winner of today's race figured to break the track record of 101.13 miles per hour, established by Peter Depaolo in 1925.

Lou Moore, Hollywood, Calif. who finished second in 1928, starts from the coveted number one position as the result of sending his 8-cylinder car through the qualifying test at the rate of 117.363 miles an hour. All of the forty drivers qualified at speeds ranging from 104 miles an hour to the average made by Moore.

Louie Schneider, former Indianapolis policeman, winner of the 1931 race, qualified his car at 710.681 miles an hour. Schneider with Billy Arnold, the 27-year-old Chicagoan, who won the 1930 race, remained the favorites with the crowd to triumph today. All the drivers are Americans with the exception of Juan Gaudino from Buenos Aires, Argentine.

Crossing the finishing line first, the fastest and all in one piece is the object of the daring drivers to win first prize of $35,000. The fastest car is far from assurance of victory. A year ago Arnold led the race for 405 miles, and then had the misfortune to break an axle which sent his car crashing into a retaining wall. He spent six months in a hospital, but is back today in his same old car determined to repeat his triumph of 1930.

Yesterday's Stars

Bill Dickey, Yankees—Clouted triple and three singles; drove in four runs and scored two against Senators.

Mel Harder, Indians—Stopped Browns with seven hits to win 2-1.

Bill Hallahan, Cardinals. — Blanked Reds with five hits to win 5-0.

John Moore, Cubs, and Glenn Spencer, Pirates—Former collected four hits including two doubles in first game; latter held Cubs to six hits and blanked them in second.

Lu Mallon and Don Hurst, Phillies.—Hit home runs to aid in defeat of Giants.

Dazzy Vance, Dodgers.—Held Braves to three hits, fanned nine and won 3—2.

Rube Walberg, Athletics. — Blanked Red Sox with four hits.

Marmora Monarch Club Is Organized

MARMORA, May 30.—A well attended and enthusiastic meeting of Marmora youths was held at the Royal Hotel on Saturday evening when the Marmora Monarch baseball team was organized. W. J. Cottrell was asked to occupy the chair. Jack Hickey, secretary-treasurer, reported a good response to the subscription list which had been circulated for the previous two days and that bats and balls had been ordered. Capt. Percy Gray was unanimously elected president of the club and W. J. Cottrell who elected vice-president. With the secretary-treasurer and Manager Homer Hewitt these will form the executive to deal with finances of the club. A letter is being sent to the Havelock Albion Junior Club asking them to co-operate in the matter of trying to secure a Campbellford junior team to form a league.

A very compact salmon cannery, with a capacity of from 300 to 400 cases daily, recently opened near Vancouver, B.C., is said to be the smallest in the British Empire.

BEN McMASTER'S GOAL SAVES ELECTRICS FROM SOCCER LOSS

Scots Fail to Hold Early Lead Gained in Injured Players' Cup Final.

GAME ENDS IN 2-ALL TIE.

After leading two thirds of the game with a two goal advantage, the Scots took things too easy near the finish, to permit Ben McMaster to rattle in two splendid efforts, to make the count stand two all at the end of the ninety minute tussle, in the semi-final of the Holloway Injured Players' cup, before a fair attendance of spectators. The Scots played the whole period with only ten men, while the C.G.E. had the full eleven, that included Schumaker from Belgium, who along with the newcomers that just require a little more coaching. Jack Clark acted as referee in an efficient manner in place of A. McKinley.

Slow Opening

Captain Craig, of Caleys lost the toss to Captain Ben McMaster of C.G.E. who took advantage of the wind and sun at his back, but the Scots were the first to become dangerous with the close passing tactics to gain two fruitless flag kicks. The C.G.E. retaliated with long swinging passes that Darling placed to perfection. His pivot man harassing the defense to get a proper try at goal, although he about accomplished his purpose when he was well set to shoot but George Blowers picked the ball off his toe. Play ran from end to end at a rapid pace at this period, with the forwards endeavoring to make an opening that produced corner kicks aplenty. Both centreforward's individual manoeuvres caused excitement around the goal areas as they met clever oppositions, by the fullbacks, who used first time clearances along with the appropriate shoulder to spoil the attacking force shot at goal. The triangle play on the left wing of the Scotsmen penetrated the C.G.E. territory to get the opening counter when A. McPhate lifted the sphere inside the upright into the top corner, as Daynes, goalie C.G.E. was at the other end. The success of the Caleys created greater excitement than ever amongst them as they tore in close upon the C.G.E. citadel to miss by inches. Finally S. Clark cleared up-field where B. McMaster passed the ball out to Darling who placed it back again to him, making the latter offside as he beat Frick with a smart grounder. Play continued in mid-field as the interval arrived. Caleys 1, C.G.E. 0.

Play With Ten Men

The Caleys continued to play ten men against eleven for the rest of the game. In spite of the handicap, they were superior in tactics, more particularly in the halfback division, that concentrated in shooing the ball forward whenever in the vicinity of the goal. A break away by W. McCracken, on the Scots 'right, left O'Halloran in a favourable position to send in a lightning drive, in below the crossbar, out of the reach of the custodian. With a two goal lead, they slowed down a little, to let the C. G. E. take advantage of the opening through Darling, on the left wing, who deceived the opposition when he banged a peculiar drive into the far corner of the net, while Frick stood awaiting a ground drive at the other end of the uprights. The Scots went back again into the C.G.E. area to bombard the C.G.E. custodian with shots that failed to make any impression upon him as he turned them back with clever clearances. With only ten minutes to go, Ben McMaster set a fast pace in the Scots half and bewildered the full backs when he sent a smashing drive in below the cross bar that bulged the rigging, to put the game on an even basis again. Thereafter the players let loose all they had in an attempt to get the winning tally. First the Scots, then C.G.E. forwards would take up the initiative to witness many anxious moments when the goalies would frustrate their attacks when everything looked promising. Nothing resulted from then on and the count stood at two all—C.G.E. 2, Caledonians 2.

Goal scorers—C.G.E., B. Mcmaster (2). Scots, A. Phate and O'Halloran.

C.G.E.—J. Daynes, goal; R. Clyde and J. Mitchell, full backs; R. Scheumaker, S. Clark and B. Bolam, halves; R. Cooper, J. Allan, B. McMaster, D. Anderson and H. Darling forwards.

CASUAL COMMENTS

Let's see, what's on tap in the way of sports to-night? It seems that softball holds the stage this evening, a girls' game at the Bowl between Keene and Choates at six bells, and Sugar Bowl and All Saints in a men's game at 6.15 up at Central. C.G.E. play Deok's at Central tomorrow night, but there is no local game between gals' teams, Maple Leafs going down to Lang against the Sixth Line bunch.

Only a handful of genuine ball fans braved the threatening weather Saturday and saw the City Baseball League opener, a doubleheader at Stevenson Park. They saw some pretty fair baseball for so early in the season, the second game in particular being close, Pirates scuttling the Foster Juniors 6 to 4 in anybody's game.

• • • • • • •

Believe it or not, the ancient hidden ball trick was worked in this game. Tranter, of the Bucs, was parked on second and ambled off a few steps when, to his surprise—not to mention embarrassment—Padgett who played second, tagged him with the ball. Padgett, Lovine and Craig all turned in some nice fielding for the losers.

While Hetherington twirled a good game for the winners and both teams fielded fair, it was bunched hits that accounted for the Pirate win. At that ,they were threatened by a last-run rally which fell two short of tying it up. Jimmie Sweetman, Mowry and Bert Bailey were the leading hitters in the junior fracas.

• • • • • • •

The juvenile tussle, in which Maple Leafs blanked All Saints 9-0, was chiefly notable by the great portside hurling of "Lefty" Lesurf. In the seven innings they played, he fanned seventeen and held the luckless Saints to one hit, a single. Three in a row were struck out by Lesurf in the first, second, third and fourth innings, one in the fifth and two each in the sixth and seventh frames. Nice twirling, what?

• • • • • • •

Bill Calladine and Williamson, of the Leafs, both banged out a double and two singles, while Dickson connected for a double and a single. The City League this year should provide plenty of good competition and ought to draw more patronage than previously. Bob Hotrum and Curly Lebarr umpired both games, and what a whale of a difference a good umps makes.

The second game of the City Box Lacrosse League starts at the Brock tomorrow evening at 8.30 beween C.G.E. and Orde's. The Electrics have been more or less under wraps and under cover, and not much is known abot them compared with Brintons and Orde's. However, we imagine this outfit will have a number of old time hockey players mixed with lacrossers on the lineup and should give Orde's a real battle. And the next tussle is Thursday between Brintons and C. G. E.

Kingston defeated Cobourg 3-2 in the Peny town Saturday, which means either the chanogs slipped back a couple of miles or else the Cobourg crew has improved a great deal in a week's time. Probably the Lakeshore team's line-up has been shaken up following the Petes' game, and the classy Hoot Gibson must have been on top of his form. With this combination, Cobourg is nobody's setup.

• • • • • • •

They play the Petes here next Saturday afternoon to open the home season, and as Teddy Rollings cracked after the game in Cobourg last Tuesday: "We're going down to Peterborough the 4th of June and ruin your opening day by walloping you hard just as your outfit did here, wait and see!" Well, the Petes are working out Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights of this week from six till dark, so they can't say they weren't ready, just in case Rollings can back up his threat.

Local girls' softball teams who would like exhibition games at any time during the season with the National Maids of Belleville are advised to get in touch with A. G. Meagher, 9 Octavio St., Belleville. We suppose Mr. Meagher means games either here or in the Quinte City. He wrote us this morning requesting this notice to be put in, and here you are.

• • • • • • •

A small man's softball game at Central Saturday ended up 10-9 for Red & White Stores over Examiner, a fluke homer winning for the Grocers in the eighth. A fair crowd saw a grand old battle with the teams pulling off fine ball and so evenly-matched that they had to settle it up by taking advantage of breaks.

• • • • • • •

The Rasping Quartet of The Examiner's was going full blast. Fred Scales, Harry Dugan, Max Beard and Scotty Galbraith, make up this chorus and when they turn the heat upon the opposition, it would singe the ears off a brass monkey. And when the poor umps makes a "fox pass" with these boys around, why we almost feel sorry for him!

NEWCASTLE JOY-CRAZY AS TEAM COMES HOME

Cup Winners Get Greatest Reception in City's History of Sport

Newcastle, Eng.—Tens of thousands of people went wild with excitement outside Central Station here when Newcastle United team, the winners of the F. A. cup, came home after defeating Arsenal.

Women and children in the dense crowd fainted and stretchers were passed over the heads of the crowd to deal with the casualties.

Mounted police had great difficulty in clearing a way for the team's triumphal procession down Neville St., and the police band, who were to have played the team through the streets, had to put away their instruments and help control the crowd.

Far more people turned out than when the United brought back the cup in 1924.

The team's arrival home was first announced by a burst of fog signals. The railway line for a quarter of a mile outside the station had been studded with the signals.

A crowd of men and women who had gained access to the station left the barriers, and in a moment Nelson (the captain) and his ten comrades were surrounded.

It took the team 18 minutes to cover 50 yards.

A civic welcome was given to the team, and the lord mayor of Newcastle was hoisted on to the motor coach which bore the team through the cheering crowds to the Newcastle Empire.

ROSENEATH CLUB WINS IN PROTEST

Bailieboro Forfeits Victory in Initial Game of Northumberland League.

BAILIEBORO, May 30 (Examiner Correspondence).—The local ball club forfeited the initial game of the season, which was played at Roseneath between the local team and Roseneath on May 24. The locals winning the game 8—6.

The Roseneath executive protested the game on the grounds that the ball and strike umpire had violated the rules of baseball in the first inning of the game, when with two out the local catcher was charged by a Roseneath runner coming home from third base. The catcher held the thrown ball and tagged the runner out, and when he was hit and knocked unconscious the ball got away from the catcher in the skirmish: the umpire directly called the runner out, declaring the ball had been held a sufficient length of time to decide the issue.

On Saturday evening representatives from Bailieboro, Plainville, Harwood, Roseneath and Alderville met in the town hall at Alderville to deal with the protest. A lengthy argument between the representatives of the two teams interested followed. The local representatives argued the point that the protest was not in order, as the umpire's decision was final according to organized baseball and it was not in the power of the club executives to change an umpire's decision. No satisfaction could be obtained from the opponents, however, and the president, E. Crowe, stated his decision that the umpire's decision was at fault. The Roseneath representatives stated that if the decision was given again them they would drop out of the league.

Representatives from Plainville, Harwood and Alderville were then given the issue to decide, after considering the protest from every angle, they brought before the meeting a resolution asking if both teams were agreeable, that the game should be played over again on June 6th, on neutral grounds, with neutral umpires, and the gate receipts be evenly divided and that both clubs bear the expenses of the protest, which amounted to $10.

Agree to Resolution

The Bailieboro club agreed to accept the resolution as read, in order that the dispute might be settled and that a good fellowship should exist between the various teams. Arrangements were finally made to accept the resolution and that the game be played at Alderville on June 6.

After the Roseneath protest had been dealt with, the meeting decided to enter the teams of the Northumberland League in the "B" Section of the O.B.A.A.

ALL SET FOR "DEATH DERBY."

Here are two of the speed demons who are scheduled to take part in the annual Indianapolis Memorial Day 50-mile automobile race to-day. They are: Leon Duray (1) and Billy Arnold (2). Often referred to as the Death Derby, the race has taken a tremendous toll of life and limb in the past. Recently Sergeant Harry Cox, member of the 113th Observation Squadron of the Indiana National Guard, was instantly killed, and Benny Benefield, 25, dirt track driver of Indianapolis, was critically injured, when the car in which he was practising for the race was wrecked when it plunged over the outer wall of the speedway.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

OLD MR. TOAD'S HEART ALMOST STOPS

By Thornton W. Burgess

You miss the mark, but why bewail?
The very smartest often fail.
—Longlegs the Heron.

Slowly, carefully, Longlegs the Heron was stalking his pray. That means that he was trying to steal within striking distance without being discovered. Old Mr. Toad, peeping through the overhanging grass that hid him, watched Longlegs with fascinated eyes. He wondered who it was. It might be a Minnow. It might be a young Trout. It might be one of Grandfather Frog's children. It might be one of his own small cousins, the Hylas. Of one thing he was sure, and that was that it wasn't himself that Longlegs was after.

Watching Longlegs he was reminded of how many times he had stalked a fly or an unsuspecting ant or worm. He had done it in just the same way. That is funny when you come to think of it, for two persons more unlike than Old Mr. Toad and Longlegs the Heron it would be hard to find in all the great world. Yet in their methods of stalking prey they are much alike. Just as Longlegs steals slowly, carefully toward his victim, putting each foot down as if he were walking on eggs, so does Old Mr. Toad steal up on his prey. With both the approach is much the same.

It is when they come within striking distance that their methods change. That long neck which has been folded back on his shoulders by Longlegs is suddenly shot out and down with amazing swiftness and his prey seized in that great spearlike bill he carries. Old Mr. Toad, on the other hand, has no long neck. Indeed, his neck is so short that he might almost be said to have no neck at all. But he doesn't need one. Out from his big mouth shoots a flash of pink with such swiftness that you barely see it. Out and back it goes in the twinkling of an eye. That fly or that ant he had been stalking has disappeared. Old Mr. Toad is swallowing something, and in his golden eyes is a look of satisfaction and contentment. He has used his long tongue as Longlegs uses his long neck and bill.

Old Mr. Toad was not especially interested in the matter of who it was that Longlegs was after. As long as it wasn't himself he wasn't concerned. He saw so much of this kind of thing every day that he was used to it and only mildly interested. He wished that Longlegs would hurry up and catch whoever it was he was after and go his way. Yes, sir, that is what he wished. You see, he wanted to sing, and he didn't dare to with Longlegs so near. He wanted to sing his spring love song. There was no knowing when Mrs. Toad might be near enough to hear it.

Longlegs was standing motionless on one foot.

Longlegs was standing motionless on one foot, the other lifted for the next step. He dared not take that next step just yet for fear he would frighten the one he was after. It seemed to Old Mr. Toad that he never would take it. But at last he did, and began to move forward in that slow, careful manner. At last he stopped and his head drew back a little. Old Mr. Toad knew what that meant. It meant that he was within striking distance and was preparing to strike.

"Is it a fish or is it a frog, I wonder," thought Old Mr. Toad. "Anyway, in a second I will know."

The head of Longlegs shot out and down. At the same time there was a tiny scream of fright, a splash and then a stirring up of the mud below. It all happened at once and in a second, but sudden as it was and quickly as it was over, Old Mr. Toad saw that which almost made his heart stop beating. It wasn't a fish and it wasn't a frog that Longlegs had been after. It was none other than Mrs. Toad herself. Do you wonder that Old Mr. Toad's heart nearly stopped beating? ?

It isn't often that Longlegs misses, but once in a while he does. He had missed this time, for Mrs. Toad had jumped just as he struck. He didn't waste any more time there. He turned and stalked off along the shore to try his luck elsewhere. As for Old Mr. Toad, he filled that music bag of his and began to sing. And the note of yearning had given way to a note of pure joy, for there, just putting her head out of water before him, was Mrs. Toad.

What To-Day Means To You

"GEMINI"

If May 30th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8.10 a.m. to 10 a.m., from noon to 1.15 p.m., and from 7.30 p.m. to 9 p.m. The danger periods are from 6 a.m. to 7.45 a.m., and from 3.30 p.m. to 5 p.m.

An inundation of unexpected demands upon your strength and time on May 30th will hinder the progress of your usual tasks and upset scheduled plans for the week. Mrs. Grundy will be unusually busy slaying victims amongst the young married set; those who have been playing with fire are in for some bad burns, unless more caution is displayed.

The child born on this May 30th will be a rather weak-willed, submissive little being, and will greatly reflect both parental and school influences during later life. It will ge refined and quiet, and will not choose rowdy companions. Whether an indifferent or a prize scholar will depend a great deal upon its teachers—it will need to be drawn out and encouraged.

Born on May 30th you are a close-tongued, cautious, and an ultra conservative being. You have the unemotional person's wisdom of silence and lack of display. Your quiet obstinacy is difficult to combat, as you go your own way oblivious of the would-be desires of others. Your honesty and integrity are recognized by one and all, but your nature seems untouched by the warm fires of personal magnetism. The world may expect more justice than mercy from those of your type.

You have a great capacity for hard work, and the ability to carry out dreary forms of drudgery without complaint. You would give your last ounce of strength rather than quit a thing begun or accept defeat. You are frank and fearless, but are not diplomatic. You have an average type human mind, and you know how to use it to attain what you want out of life. You could never be original, but you are capable of doing very excellent work in some established field.

There is some morbidness in your nature, and you allow yourself to brood over disappointments and to harbor feelings of resentment. You never forget or forgive a vital wound. Although you do not possess many of the endearing and softer qualities that attract people to others, you possess other characteristics which make you a good and loyal friend.

Torch Singer Bride

Libby Holman, shown here, who sings torch songs, and Smith Reynolds, youthful heir to the tobacco millions, have been married for months, it was revealed recently. The new Mrs. Reynolds is the daughter of a Cincinnati lawyer and once planned to practise law herself.

Government Gives Large Steel Order

HAMILTON, Ont., May 30. — A contract involving the fabrication of 500 tons of steel has been awarded the Hamilton Bridge Company, Ltd., by the Provincial Government, W. B. Champ, president announced this morning. The company is to erect the steel work for a bridge over the Branch River at Englehart, on the New Ontario Highway.

SPLIT LOOMS UP IN FRENCH PARTY

Radical Socialists Want No Dealing With the Conservatives.

REDUCED ARMAMENTS.

PARIS, May 30 (C.P.).—The possibility of a split in Edouard Herriot's dominant Radical Socialist Party arose to-day when the Left Wing adopted a resolution advocating participation by the Socialists in the new Ministry which M. Herriot is forming.

The Left Wing members turned their backs squarely on any coalition with the Conservative parties which were defeated in the recent Chamber of Deputies election. Their resolution held the Conservatives responsible for "France's isolation abroad and her budget deficit at home."

The Left Wing members demanded reduction in European armaments, decreased military expenditures, an interdiction on the private manufacture of armaments, compulsory arbitration of all disputes between nations and cancellation of inter-governmental debts.

The new Chamber of Deputies, in which the Radical Socialists are the strongest party and Leon Blum's Socialists are second, will convene next Wednesday. Premier Andre Tardieu, who has been serving as nominal head of the Government since the defeat of his group in the election, will immediately give up his office. He already has submitted his resignation but he agreed to hold on until the new Government was formed.

BEING TAKEN TO CLEVELAND

MONTREAL—Frnk Shapiro, alias Fred Jacobson, wanted in Cleveland on a charge of safe-cracking was on his way there today under police escort. He waived extradition yesterday. Charges of being in possession of burglar tools and carrying a revolver illegally were preferred against him here, but withdrawn so he could face trial in Cleveland.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

Severe Headaches Pimples on Face

Miss Marie L. C. Blackwell, Gunn, Alta., writes:—"For two years I suffered from severe headaches, and pimples on my face.

My headaches seemed incurable, and I thought the pimples would never disappear.

A friend recommended Burdock Blood Bitters, and on trying a bottle I found the headaches disappear, and I am not bothered any more with the pimples."

"OLD BILL" IS DEAD, FAMOUS IN WAR

London.—"Old Bill" is dead.

There was not a soldier in the front line who took more risks than "Old Bill." He carried messages across the battlefields and to all parts of France.

"Too intelligent to get hit," they said of him.

Thousands of lives depended on the safe delivery of the messages he carried. Not one of the messages went astray.

He went over to France with ex-Sergeant H. C. Dunk, who is now an L.G.O.C. driver, and he was his companion up to his death.

Thousands of miles he flew by aeroplane during the war. He was at Ypres and Arras. After the war he saw service in Germany. He was "demobbed" on March 7, 1920.

"Old Bill" was the last of the war-time carrier pigeons.

EDITOR DROWNS

E. T. Scott of Manchester Guardian Loses Life on Lake Windermere

Manchester, Eng.—Mr. E. T. Scott, editor of the Manchester Guardian, lost his life in an accident on Lake Windermere.

He was the son of Mr. C. P. Scott, managing director of the Manchester Guardian, who died in January and whom he succeeded as editor in July, 1929.

Mr. Scott, with his 16-year-old son, Richard, put out in a dinghy to reach a yacht in the lake and the dinghy capsized.

Mr. Scott was 48. He was at one time at Rugby and Oxford, and in 1907 was private secretary and A.D.C. to Sir Sidney Olivier, Governor of Jamaica.

FOUR PRINCES FOR MASONIC CEREMONY

At Laying Corner Stone of New "Silent" Hospital

London.—Four British princes will take part in a ceremony at Olympia on May 19 at the laying of the stone of dedication of the new Masonic hospital to be built at Ravenscourt Park.

They are the Prince of Wales, Provincial Grand Master for Surrey, the Duke of York, Provincial Grand Master for Middlesex, Prince George, Worshipful Master of the Navy Lodge, and Prince Arthur of Connaught, Provincial Grand Master for Berkshire.

The Duke of Connaught, president of the Freemasons' Hospital and Nursing Home, and Grand Master of the Order, will lay the stone on a platform, and an electrical connection will at the same time cause the actual stone to be laid on the hospital site.

Eleven thousand members of the order will be present at the ceremony —including 3,000 women—probably the largest gathering of Freemasons that has been seen in England.

The hospital will be one of the most "silent" of its kind in the world. There will be no bells, and as all communications will be by means of electric lights the entire building will be soundproof.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION. NO. 13

By Edgar Rice Burroughs
(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

Tarzan jumped to his feet just as the band of apes swung into the clearing. Toyat, the king, led them, growling menacingly. "Tarmangani!" he cried, leaping into the air and coming down on all fours. He struck the ground savagely with his clenched fists. He growled and foamed and leaped again and again. Tarzan knew he was working himself into a pitch of rage, hoping it would arouse the savage spirit of his fellows.

"Kill the Tarmangani!" shrieked Toyat. "He comes to make dead our shes and balus." "It is Tarzan of the Apes," growled M'walat, "our friend. When I was a little balu, he saved me from Numa." Several bulls were now circling and leaping about at the ape-man's side. Tarzan knew them well. Sooner or later, one of them would excite himself to such a pitch of frenzy that he would suddenly leap upon him.

Then it would be a free for all fight from which not all would emerge alive. Tarzan of the Apes did not wish to battle with his friends. He raised his open palm to attract attention. Then he spoke to them, calming their fears and briefly relating the story of his boyhood among the apes of Kerchak. His tone was one of quiet authority and the anthropoids gradually paused to listen to his words. But it was a long speech for jungle folk.

Already, before he was finished, one bull was overturning a rotting log, looking for insects. Soon the others lost interest and either foraged for food or squatted in the grass. Toyat himself at length forgot his anger. And so Tarzan ranged again with the great apes, loafing lazily through the forest with the shaggy brutes for many days while northward, Shiek Ibn Jad crept slowly toward the leopard city of Nimmr.

Doukhobors Appeal To Premier Bennett

KAMSACK, Sask., May 30. — (C.P.). — Saskatchewan Doukhobors have appealed to Prime Minister R. B. Bennett for the release of their jailed brethren in British Columbia — the nudist Sons of Freedom.

On a farm near here yesterday hundreds of Doukhobors, mostly independents and none apparently members of the Sons of Freedom, drafted a resolution demanding immediate release of all Doukhobors imprisoned at present in British Columbia.

Threats of a demonstration if the demand is not met were heard on all sides, but the nature of it was closely guarded. There had been rumors of a nude parade yesterday at Vergin, but this did not materialize.

Doukhobors gathered here from all directions, coming by truck, wagon and auto, numbers making the journey from Benito, Man.

No trouble occurred as mounted police kept close watch on all proceedings.

PILES GO QUICK

Without Salves or Cutting

Itching, bleeding, protruding piles are caused by bad circulation of the blood in the affected parts. The parts become weak, flabby, almost dead. Only an internal remedy can remove the cause. Thousands who have suffered pain and cutting fail. Dr. Leeuwenburg's prescription, HEM-ROID succeeds because it removes congestion, restores circulation, heals and strengthens the diseased parts. HEM-ROID has such a wonderful record of quickly ending even piles of long standing, that McDermid & Jury, and Reid's Drug Store say one bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets must end your piles agony or money back.

LONE SURVIVOR OF UPSET BOAT REACHES SHORE

Three Young Men Drown When Canoe Overturns in Bay.

TELLS TRAGIC TALE.

Clung to Sides But Dropped Off Exhausted One by One.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 30 (C.P.) —A tragic tale from the lips of the semi-conscious survivor led to a coastguard vessel to-day to search the waters of the Chesapeake Bay for the bodies of an Olympic prospect and two brothers.

A night's experience in clinging to a submerged canoe and seeing his companions loose their hold and go down was mumbled out by Lawrence Blume, 22, who was brought to Baltimore after he had been picked up by an outgoing steamer.

The victims were John H. Houchens, Jr., 23, who had entered the boxing tryouts for the United States Olympic team; George Gillespie, 28, and Paul Gillespie, 22, brothers, all of Baltimore.

The party of four set out Saturday for a canoe trip in the bay. About 14 miles from Baltimore, the water became choppy and they decided to return.

Dropped Off One By One.

The story, pieced together from Blume's almost incoherent statements, was that a series of large waves filled the canoe and it submerged. The four young men drooped into the water and held on to its sides.

Blume said Paul Gillespie was the first to disappear. His brother became hysterical and he soon sank into the water. Blue and Houchens got back into the canoe, but a wave swept them out and the former returned alone, getting back into the craft before he lost consciousness.

Appeals To Minister Are Being Delayed

OTTAWA, May 30.—(C.P.) —Appeals from deportation orders, made to the Minister of Immigration by the group of alleged Communists detained at Halifax, were scheduled to open to-day but have been postponed owing to the fact that eight of the eleven men in detention, have appealed habeas corpus decisions handed down in Halifax last Friday.

Habeas corpus actions taken on behalf of the eight men were dismissed by Mr. Justice Carroll of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia, and the date for hearing of the appeals to the Minister was fixed for to-day. On Saturday, however, it was announced that leave to appeal the habeas corpus decisions to the full bench of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia, had been granted. The appeals to the Minister will be delayed until the other actions have been settled.

Police Court

Pleading guilty to being drunk while in charge of a motor vehicle on King's Highway 28 on Saturday last, and to a further charge of being in possession of liquor contrary to the provisions of the Liquor Control Act of Ontario, William R. Coville of the Coville Transport Company Limited, Toronto, was today sentenced by Magistrate O. A. Langley to seven days in the County Jail, and was also fined $100.00 and $8.00 costs.

The accused, who was represented by J. A. O'Brien, pleaded guilty to both charges. Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., prosecuted for the Crown.

In making a plea on behalf of the accused for the minimum penalty, which was that imposed by the Magistrate, Mr. O'Brien urged that his client occupied a responsible position as head of the Coville Transport Company carrying on business at 13, 15 and 17 George street, Toronto, and employing fourteen men.

In extenuation, he pleaded that the prisoner had been driving from Toronto to the north of Peterborough County, where he was taking a load of household effects to a summer cottage. He had worked for a period of 24 hours at a stretch, and the small quantity of beer that he had taken in his exhausted condition had acted with more effect than might have been expected.

Under the circumstances he suggested that where a man who was head of such an organization had fallen from grace, his previous good record should be recognized. His client had never before been in a police court—not even as a witness.

The Crown Attorney was satisfied with the minimum penalty, which was imposed as already stated.

Because he could not get a meal ticket at the Police Office on Sunday, a transient who gave his name as Herbert Norton, of Woodstock, threatened to break into a residence to obtain food, and also used very abusive language to a police officer and in the hearing of persons who were on the street.

This morning he appeared before Magistrate O. A. Languley, K.C., and pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy, and for which he was given three days "on the hill" and warned that he must get out of town as soon as his "stretch" is completed.

Asked if he had anything to say, prisoner observed, "I was hungry, and asked for something to eat. I saw some good houses around and thought that I would be able to get something if I called there."

Inspector James Reid testified as to the prisoner's conduct upon being told that he could not get a meal ticket. "The city has fed 2,800 persons since January," he stated, "and recently the issue of tickets had ceased."

Magistrate: "When you were told they were issuing no more tickets, why did you carry on in that manner?"

"Well, I was told at the hotel that the city was still giving relief," he replied.

A Lindsay man, who was charged with having liquor in his possession without being the holder of a permit, pleaded guilty, and was ordered to pay the sum of $100.00 and $4.50 costs.

Magicians Turn Tables on Magician At Annual Convention of Society

DETROIT, Mich., May 30 (C.P.). — The spectacle of magicians being fooled by other magicians entertained common folks who make up the audience to-day as the Society of American Magicians held their annual convent on here.

One of the victims was Walter Donnahl, sleight-of-hand artist, who presented his magic tube in which he produced scores of colored stars from practically nowhere. In the audience were several magicians in their own right.

"Do it again," called an observer.

Reaching confidently into the tube, Donnahl suddenly looked bewildered, then crestfallen.

"Hey," he said, "who swiped my stars?"

"Look in your hip pocket," called someone from the audience.

As bewildered as any lay member of the audience, Magician Donnahl reached in the pocket—and drew forth scarf after scarf, while the common folks cheered.

But the local outfit has had more practise and looks stronger this season, and should put up a great battle.

Norwood, Peterborough and Campbellford will likely make up this O. A. L. A. district league. Harry Tudhope is in Campbellford today in an attempt to get the Hydro team to return to the fold again.

BOMB EXPLODES BESIDE PALACE

Three Arrested Following Bomb Throwing at King Alexander's Residence.

USED AS WARNING.

BELGRADE, Jugoslavia, May 30 (C.P.).—A bomb exploded near the palace of King Alexander at 2.30 a.m. this morning, seriously injuring one person and smashing the windows of a nearby store.

The spot was only a few yards from the Parliament Buildings.

There also were reports, not immediately confirmable, that bombs were found in a railway station, near the Military Academy, beside the Senate Building, near the Ministry of Interior, in front of the offices of the newspaper Politico and in front of the workmen's insurance office.

In connection with these a Hungarian, a Croat and a woman, whose nationality was not given, were arrested.

Although one person was injured by the bomb which exploded, apparently it was not intended to kill or to cause great property damage, but rather as a demonstraton or warning.

King Alexander left to-day for Niska Banja. It was announced that His Majesty was gone for several days' rest.

LANG UNABLE TO ABOLISH UPPER HOUSE

Privy Council Dismisses Appeal of New South Wales Premier.

ISSUE FOR TWO YEARS.

No Question Since Federation Has So Greatly Agitated Australia.

LONDON, May 31. (CP)— The judicial committee of the Privy Council to-day dismissed the appeal of Premier J. T. Lang of New South Wales against the decision of the New South Wales Supreme Court preventing the abolition of the state's legislative council.

SYDNEY, New South Wales, May 31., (CP)—No political question since the federation over 30 years ago has agitated Australia as did the appeal to the Privy Council at London involving fate of the upper house in the New South Wales Legislature.

Basis of Campaign

Premier J. T. Lang regained power nearly two years ago, after stating in his campaign speeches that one of the things he intended to do was abolish the upper house, which defeated a number of his legislative projects shortly after he assumed office.

Thwarted in some of his drastic financial legislation by the upper house, Lang moved its abolition. The previous government had anticipated the move, however, and had amended the constitution to make necessary a referendum to the people before the council could be done away with.

Referendum Thought Taken

Lang claimed that in having mentioned abolition of the upper house during his campaign the referendum had already been taken. The upper chamber was presented with a bill from the lower house providing for its own demise; constitutional lawyers advised its passage, realising that the upper house would be swamped with new members, enough to assure passage if Lang was opposed.

Court action was taken under the previous governments constitutional amendment, but Lang replied to this by a further measure to repeal the previous constitutional amendment. The upper house passed this also, then made application to the high court for an injunction restraining the governor from giving his assent to both measures.

The injunctions were granted and Lang appealed to the Imperial Privy Council at London. The Council's decision against him was handed down to-day.

INCOMES TAXES ARE INCREASED BY U. S. SENATE

Four Per Cent of First $4,000 Income and Eight Per Cent on Rest.

GRADUATING SURTAX.

Sales Tax Also Advocated as Means of Balancing Budget.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—(CP)—In a new effort to fill in the gaps between governmental income and outgo, the U. S. Senate today voted another increase in income taxes.

Shortly after Ogden L. Mills, Secretary of the Treasury had told its finance committee the revenue bill as it now stands would raise $840,000,000 and that $1,125,000,000 would be needed. The Connally amendment was approved. It was estimated this would bring up upward of $70,000,000.

Four Percent Tax

The amendment provides for normal taxes of four per cent on the first $4,000 income and eight per cent on income above $4,000 with a sur tax graduating to a maximum of 55 per cent on income in excess of $1,000,000.

Income rates previously voted by the senate were three per cent on the first $4,000, 6 per cent on the next $4,000 and nine per cent on income above $8,000 with a maximum surtax of 45 per cent.

Existing income rates are one and one half, three and five per cent on these income brackets, respectively. With a maximum surtax of 20 per cent.

The vote on the Conally amendment was 53 to 9.

Meanwhile, word came from the finance committee that Secretary Mills was advocating the sales tax as a method of boosting the total revenue to the amount needed.

Flier Fails Twice But Not Dismayed

NEW YORK, May 31 (C.P.)—The failure of two long distance flights overnight has not stifled the ardor of Stanislaus Hausner to fly the Atlantic, back to the Poland from which as a child of two he came to the United States.

He will be ready to-morrow to start the flight. There were further tests to be made to-day, and weather reports will determine his starting time.

Failure of instruments plus unfavorable weather conditions forced Hausner to return to New York last Saturday after having flown 300 miles off the Maine coast on the start of a flight over the sea.

IRISH OPPOSITION MAKES MERRY AT EXPENSE OF DE VALERA

Dail Eireann Speeds Up Work in Order to Adjourn July 8.

TO ATTEND CONFERENCE.

(By George Hambleton, C.P. Staff Writer.)

DUBLIN, May 31 (C.P.)—The Irish Free State Dail Eireann is speeding up business to permit the Free State delegation to go to the Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa.

On the motion of President Eaman de Valera, the Dail this afternoon decided to sit four days a week, instead of three, and to rise on July 8. Mr. De Valera explained adjournment on that date would be necessary to permit the ministers to make the necessary preparations for the conference, which opens July 21.

The Opposition, under former President William Cosgrave, made merry over the proposed adjournment. Mr. Cosgrave demanded, while the House laughed, "Is the Government afraid of defeat while

Nail Is Located In Child's Stomach

Regarded by members of the medical profession here as a remarkable case, an infant child, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Luther of 593 Park street, is being kept under close observation, following an accident in which the child swallowed a nail two and three-quarter inches in length.

The child was X-rayed and the nail was located in the stomach. Further X-ray examinations are to be made with a view to determining the exact location of the object from time to time.

It was stated by Dr. G. R. Scott, who is attending the child, that he regarded the case as a most unusual one. The size of the object, he stated, was such that even an adult would find great difficulty in swallowing it.

Lanchi and Kiagshan, China, have just been connected by a new highway.

MOODY-WOOD DEFEATED IN TENNIS FINALS

Betty Nuthall and Frederick Perry Play Brilliant Game to Win.

In French Championships.

S. W. Wood Eliminated in Third Round of Men's Singles by Rene Lacoste.

AUTEUIL, France, May 31 (CP.)—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody and Sidney Wood, Jr., of the United States were defeated in the finals of mixed doubles in the French tennis championships to-day by the British pair, Betty Nuthall and Frederick Perry. The scores were 6-4, 6-4.

Perry, British Davis Cup ace, played brilliantly for the winners.

Lacoste Is Victor.

Rene Lacoste, former ace of the French tennis world, now staging a comeback after three years of illness, eliminated Sidney B. Wood, of New York, from the third round of the men's singles in the French tennis championships to-day in a bitter five-set duel, 6-0, 6-1, 3-6, 6-8, 7-5.

Hopelessly outclassed during the first two sets, Wood steadied at the start of the third set and battled for every point. Particularly in the last two sets did the duel reach dramatic heights as Lacoste four times reached match point before stroking the winning placement.

Although Lacoste still is below the form that made him famous as one of France's Davis Cup "three musketeers," he was the same impeccable court coverer at the finish. Wood lacked the experience needed to outstroke and outwit him.

Quarter Finals.

Jacques Brugnon, another veteran of a great French Davis Cup era, defeated P. H. Gajan, 6-4, 6-3, 6-1, in a third round men's singles match and Mme. Rene Mathieu entered the quarter-finals of the women's singles by eliminating Jacqueline Goldschmit, 6-0, 6-2.

Henri Cochet, French idol and tournament favorite, romped through the second round with an easy victory over Jacques Arago, 6-4, 6-4, 6-0.

FRANCE DELAYS DEBT DECISION

Cabinet Leaves to Successors Signing of U. S. Agreement.

SPREAD PAYMENTS.

PARIS, May 31.— (A.P.)— The Cabinet definitely decided to-day to leave over to the incoming ministry the signing of an agreement with the United States covering war debt payments by France which were omitted under the Hoover moratorium.

This action was taken because the Tardieu Government had been defeated at the polls and considers itself empowered to handle only current affairs without assuming new responsibilities.

It has been suggested that parliamentary approval may be required for the agreement, but no difficulty is anticipated. In informed circles the belief is expressed that an agreement similar to the recent British-American agreement would be ratified. The British spread their payments for the Hoover year over a 10-year period.

PLANE LIFTED FROM VOLCANO BY HOT BLAST

Fearless Priest and Pilot Land Inside Volcano Crater.

STILL ERUPTING.

Landing is Made Inside Crater on a Small Lake.

KANAKANAK, Alaska, May 31 (C.P.). — Father Bernard R. Hubbard, the Glacier Priest, said to-day hot currents from the erupting vents in the Anaikchak volcano crater literally lifted Pilot Frank Dorbandt's plane out of the depths of the crater four days ago.

With Herb. Larison, a mechanic, as the other occupant of the plane, the Santa Clara (Calif.) University professor said a landing was made inside the great volcano on a small lake and the party spent five hours on the crater's floor. No plane ever has been known to land inside an active volcano before.

Explored Steam Jets.

After spending the time exploring amid the steam jets and erupting vents, the problem arose of getting into the air again and of climbing above the crater walls.

"Taking off gracefully from the lake," Father Hubbard said, "Dorbandt piloted the plane close to the volcano's 2,000-foot wall where the hot currents made a strong upward draft.

"The plane climbed close to the precipitous rim. On each turn the current pushed the plane upwards, and finally the last thrust shot our craft over the rim."

The landing on the lake was made after 50 minutes of flying inside the crater's walls, Father Hubbard said.

Still Erupting.

A three-mile area blown out of the crater a year ago was still erupting, he declared, and a fresh eruption about a mile in area was going off.

The volcano crater, the largest in the world, has been studied for three years by Father Hubbard during his exploration work.

NOT PROSECUTE SUNDAY FISHING

REGULATION OF 1845.

TORONTO, May 31 (C.P.)—Neither the Department of Game and Fisheries or the Ontario Attorney General's Department has any intention of prosecuting anglers for fishing on Sunday, both stated to-day. J. Barrington, Deputy Minister of the Game and Fisheries Department, has asked the District Supervisor to forward a report from Eugenia Falls, where an angler was ordered to stop fishing by a game warden and a Provincial Constable last Sunday.

There is no clause in the Fish and Game laws to prevent the Sunday fishing, Mr. Barrington stated today, and while it may be prohibited under the Lord's Day Act, his department is not responsible and does not plan to enforce such regulations.

As far as can be ascertained, the action of the Eugenia Falls officers was based on a regulation of 1845. The same Act declares it is unlawful to swim on Sunday.

Elmer Freel Draws Portafino In Derby

Elmer Freel of Hamilton and well-known to several local people as the brother of Wilbert H. Freel, manager of the Woolworth Store here has drawn the horse Portafino in the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes, and is prospective winner of $150,000 as a result.

The lucky ticket-holder is 29 years of age, an employee of McLaren's Limited of Hamilton, and in his spare time conducts an orchestra. While he stands a chance of winning $150,000, he is certain of winning at least $8,750 on the sweep.

Mr. Freel's ticket bore the legend "Westdale," 210 Hunter street west, Hamilton." He would not state why he had signed the name "Westdale," when interviewed by The Hamilton Spectator. Upon being notified of his good fortune, Mr. Freel took action to protect his interests against any "informer" by having a writ issued against his possible winnings.

Second prize in the sweep is about $100,000; third is $50,000; there being 28 firsts, seconds and thirds, and everyone who draws receives a smaller amount whether their horse even races.

Glass Smashed and Woman's Voice Heard to Say "Come Quick."

LONDON, May 31 (C.P.). —A mystery involving high London society circles developed to-day when Michael Scott Stephen was found shot to death in a flat occupied by Mrs. Elvira Dolores Barney, beautiful daughter of a prominent family.

The identity of the victim was not established until several hours after the early morning tragedy, which followed a cocktail party.

Widely-known Family.

Mr. Stephen was a member of a widely-known English family who has played a prominent part in the fashionable West-end life during the last two years.

Scotland Yard got very busy on the mysterious case, and Sir Bernard Spillsbury, eminent pathologist, was called in.

Glass smashed, they said, and a woman's voice cried: "Come quick" police arrived and took charge soon afterward.

Doctors who were called found the body of a good-looking young man about [illegible] on a sofa.

Barney, it was understood, came from New York in 1926. Soon afterward he met his wife, Elva Dolores Mullins, who was trained as [illegible] actress and had made several appearance on the stage as Dolores Ashley. Her younger sister, Avril, is the wife of Prince George Imeritinsky, a former officer of the Grenadier Guards.

MADRID, May 31 (C.P.). — One man was killed and at least 10 more or less seriously injured during 24 hours of Syndicalist riots in Spain up to early this morning.

The dead man is Francisco Gil of Murcia, who was killed when his fireworks shop was blown up. His five children were seriously burned.

At Ceuta the strikers broke into food stores and ransacked them, breaking the leg of the owner of one store. Civil Guards fired into the air and dispersed the strikers, arresting the leaders. Authorities closed three Syndicalist headquarters and cordons of police were placed about all public buildings and churches.

Forty Arrested.

At Seville 40 were arrested after an unknown assailant wounded a civil guard in the back. The strikers fired upon two street cars, breaking the windows, but injuring no one.

Other traffic in Seville was at a standstill. Troops were ordered to remain in their barracks, ready to thwart any movement toward general disorder. In towns near Seville strikers burned 12 harvesting machines and wounded one farmer.

Authorities here said the bomb plot uncovered at Seville last week was not attributable to the Monarchists, but to Left groups.

NEW ELECTIONS BEING SOUGHT BY HITLER PARTY

National Cabinet Will Likely Take Place of Bruening Government.

HITLER SEES PRESIDENT.

Aged President Seeking Key Man to Lead Germany.

BERLIN, May 31 (C.P.)—A stop-gap "National" Cabinet to replace the Government of Chancellor Heinrich Bruening seemed most probable to-day as President Paul von Hindenburg continued his conferences with political leaders.

At the same time, however, Joseph Goebbels, mouthpiece of Adolf Hitler ,the former army corporal who leads the triumphing National Socialist hosts, was demanding the dissolution of The Reichstag and new national elections, cocksure in the belief the voters would return the Nazis to power.

The prospect of the rise of Hitler's Fascism to power brought a storm of protest from the Communists. The general committee of the party issued a communique declaring the Fascist course of the coming government constituted a menace to the Soviet Union. It called the German workers to "revolt against an imperialistic war."

Seeking Key Man

In the meantime the aged President was seeking a key man on whom to build the new Cabinet that will have to steer Germany's policies through the critical Lausanne Conference on war debts and reparations next month.

TOWNSHIP COURT OF REVISION FACE 175 ASSESSMENT APPEALS

Third Session of North Monaghan Council as Court Meets Monday.

SUBURBAN PETITION

The third session of North Monaghan's Court of Revision opens at the Court House Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock with still a large number of the original 175 or 180 appeals to be dealt with.

Two sittings have produced a generally downward revision of the new assessment as prepared by W. G. Waterman, last year's deputy-reeve of the township. They began last Wednesday afternoon with a prolonged overture of sharp suburban criticism of Mr. Waterman's conception of his duties and of his adherence to that directing idea. These complaints were all attuned to the petition of 96 ratepayers protesting to the council against the assessment increases which Mr. Waterman had applied over a suburban arc swinging from the west end of Charlotte street around to the east end of Lansdowne street.

The petition was a formal document with a carefully worded preamble, and a soft pedal muffling the emotional undertones, but when the Court of Revision organized itself in the presence of the crowded county council chamber last Wednesday, Mr. Waterman confronting the wrathy ratepayers, the spirit of the petition was embellishments with variations that rasped at times with discords.

Proposals from the gallery to revert to last year's assessment or to make the increase a general revision of 10 per cent over the whole municipality were rejected by the court, and it was finally decided to attack the pile of appeals in their alphabetical order, alloting a stated number of letters each session in order that the appellants would know when they could be heard.

North Monaghan's assessment ferment last year arose in the rural sections, with Norman Moncrief a prominent figure in the 1931 protest, and it may be recalled that in the compromise which was effected it was suggested that the 1932 Council should direct the assessor to steer his course toward actual values of properties.

And the council passed the following resolution:

"Resolved that the council, for the year 1932 be requested to instruct the assessor to assess the property of the township at the actual value in accordance with the provisions of the assessment act. Signed July 14, 1931: John McIntosh, W. G. Waterman, W. J. Byers and George Patton."

One of the unwritten municipal rules draws a sharp line between one council and its successor, and frowns on instructions, resolutions or similar posthumous constraints, and it is perhaps a fact that the

he was likely to seek a Cabinet made up of substantial figures, devoid, as far as possible, of political complexion. Chancellor Bruening, the press reports said, was still undecided whether to accept the portfolio of Foreign Minister in the new government, or to retire entirely and take a much-needed rest.

Although he has driven himself on, the Chancellor's health has not been any too good for some time, and he already has suffered heart attacks.

Hitler Sees President

Hitler conferred with the President for more than an hour last night, discussing pressing national problems. Previously the President had summoned Paul Loebe, chairman of the Reichstag and a power in its biggest party, the Social Democratic group.

Many reasons were assigned for the resignation of the Bruening Cabinet, only a short time after it had received a fresh vote of confidence from the Reichstag. Chief among them was the President's impression that the Socialist-Centrist coalition of Dr. Bruening no longer represented the will of the people and his reported conviction that the army would be no longer behind the Government in case of an uprising.

NEW GOVERNMENT OF FRANCE TO BE COMPOSED OF SOCIALISTS

Combination of Radical and Republican Socialists Expected.

TAKE OFFICE JUNE 4.

PARIS, May 31.—(C.P.)—A general expectation that the new French cabinet which it slated to take office on June 4 under the Premiership of former Premier Edouard Herriot, Radical Socialist leader, would be a combination of Radical Socialists and Republican Socialists was expressed to-day.

The prediction was made after the Socialist party committee on resolutions outlined a nine point program containing the conditions on which they would agree to join with M. Herriot in the formation of a new ministry.

M. Herriot held a conference with President Lebrun before noon and went directly afterwards to the Radical Socialists headquarters, where a series of meetings began to determine what the attitude of the party would be towards the Socialist demands.

Radical Socialist members of the Chamber of Deputies, however, expressed themselves as opposed to the Socialists conditions, although it was said that M. Herriot probably woul be given a free hand to discuss the situation with Socialist leaders.

The Socialist program still has to receive the approval of the General Congress of the party, but it was expected the approval would be given.

Officials of the Department of Interior said she was being brought back because the Government intended to re-open the investigation into the slaying. She will be lodged in jail here while the new investigation is under way, they said.

FIVE BALLOONS REMAIN IN AIR

Six Took Off in United States' Balloon Race Last Night.

ONE DEVELOPED LEAK.

OMAHA, Neb., May 31 (C.P.). — Five of the six balloons that took off from the Omaha Municipal Airport last night in the United States balloon race were believed to be still in the air early to-day.

The sixth balloon, the Omaha Junior Chamber of Commerce entry, was forced down late last night when a leak developed in the bag.

The Chevrolet balloon, with Tracy Scuthworth, member of the Michigan State Legislature, as pilot, bumped its bag along the ground for a considerable distance before crashing its way through a fence. By industrious heaving overboard of ballast Southworth and his aide, John E. Engle, barely managed to clear a row of trees and rise into the air.

A stiff wind from the south swept the balloons from sight in rapid order once they managed to get into the air.

How would you like to entertain at a rose-colored party?

* * * * * * *

Invitations can be verbal or written and if the latter, send them out on rose-colored paper or white with a single confetti rose petal lightly pasted in one corner.

* * * * * * * *

Decorate the rooms with roses. At this time of year these blossoms are not plentiful in Peterborough—that is in local gardens, so one might have to resort to paper roses.

* * * * * * *

Or it would be simply lovely to have the party in a garden where roses are blooming.

* * * * * * *

According to the ancient Egyptians, the rose was an emblem of silence. From this arose the tradition that anything told under the roses was strictly confidential.

* * * * * * *

So the ballotting of guesses in the game, "Under the Roses" is confidential.

* * * * * * * *

In a rose arbor or one stimulating it stands a table with a bowl of rose petals on it. By its side is a box having a slit in its fitted cover. There are slips of rose colored paper and pencils also on the table.

* * * * * * *

Each player is allowed one guess as to the number of petals in the jar. On the paper ballot the player writes his name and guess and deposits it in the box.

* * * * * * *

A person is in attendance at the table and when all the guessing ballots have been deposited, she, assisted by two others, goes over the slips. The person whose guess is most nearly correct wins a rose.

* * * * * * *

Supply guests with rose tinted cards and pencils and ask them to write down between snatches of well-known songs, the names of as many different kinds of roses as they can remember.

* * * * * * *

And, of course, the prize is given to the one who has the longest and most correct list.

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

by Ely Culbertson

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

191

READING THE LANGUAGE OF BIDS

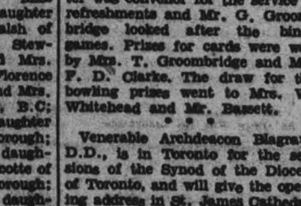
Successful play of Contract Bridge absolutely demands a sound system of bidding. Brilliant play is interesting. Spectacular results cause comment at the Bridge table, but the brilliant player, in addition to his brilliancy, should also be a good partner to be a winning player. Contract success is based upon a sound understanding between the partners — it is here that the value of a system of bidding is clearly demonstrated.

Recently, at the convention of Culbertson teachers in New York, I saw a hand played in one of the Duplicate events which disclosed how strangers using the same system of bidding may reach high contracts with scarcely an element of risk. Certainly the element of risk was much less than the results sought. Four ladies from Southern states had arranged to play as members of a team of four in one of the Duplicate events on that program. One member of the team was unable to be present, so a young man from Philadelphia was chosen to fill the vacancy. The talk between the two partners was brief. Mrs. Merideth Jerow of Norfolk, Virginia, was to play with Mr. Francis White of Philadelphia.

"Of course," said Mrs. Jerow, "we will play the Culbertson System, but don't you think we should be conservative until we see how we get along together?"

"I certainly do," responded Mr. White, and the cards were picked up by the players.

South, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



Mrs. Jerow sat South and her Opening bid was one spade. West passed and Mr. White gazed with fascination at his 5 honor-tricks plus and made the correct response of three hearts, a Forcing Takeout. South, to deny the possession of any additional strength not shown by the Opening bid, responded with three notrump and hoped that her new partner would be willing to let the contract rest there as her hand promised nothing beyond a game. Mr. White, however, was not through. He bid four diamonds, inviting his partner to select the one of these suits she could best support. His partner lacked adequate support for either, hence responded with four notrump. The game limit had been reached and passed and now Mr. White, throwing conservatism to the winds, made the final bid on the hand.

"Seven notrump," was his bid, "and," he added as the Dummy went down, "you have to play it."

The bid of a Grand Slam with this hand can only be justified through the fact that it was a match between teams-of-four, the result of which is determined by a comparison of the scores of the bidding teams. Mr. White rightly reasoned that a Small Slam bid with the North and South holdings was inevitable. His bid of seven notrump was much too strong, although the bid of one spade by Mrs. Jerow, which opened the spectacular contracting, showed 2½ honor-tricks plus. In other words, Mrs. Jerow could not have opened on a bare 2½ honor-tricks. Thus, her hand must contain at least the Ace of spades, the King of clubs, two Queens and at least a Knave, or in lieu thereof, a long spade suit. Length in spades was denied by the fact that Mrs. Jerow never rebid that suit. Hence, her hand must be stronger in honors to justify the Opening bid. If either of the Queens in her hand were in a red suit, it would probably establish that suit with no losers. Even if that failed, there remained a finesse in the diamond suit. The contract was made, although as the hand shows, its success depended upon the diamond finesse. The more conservative bid of six notrump should have been the final bid, but the fortunate distribution of the key suit permitted the making of the contract.

TODAY'S POINTER

Question: What is a finesse?

Answer: Finesse is the attempt to win an extra trick by utilizing the position of high cards in relation to opposing honors.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

EPSOM SALTS FOR SLUGGISH LIVER.

I speak about the liver more frequently than about any other part of the body. Your doctor will tell you that the liver is truly called 'the king of the organs' owing to the number and importance of the jobs that it has to do in that body of yours.

As one quarter of all the blood of the body is always in the liver you can see how necessary it is that the liver be kept active and that the drainage of bile away from the liver and gall-bladder should not be interfered with in any way. A slow-acting live and gall-bladder, or where there is some slight infection irritating the lining of vessels and tubes, can set up an inflammation and so 'slow up' the circulation that real trouble, even formation of stones, may result.

For a great many years the treatment for this condition was a dose or doses of calomel, followed by epsom salts a few hours later. This treatment is still generally followed.

A short time ago it was felt that instead of putting calomel and epsom salts all through the system, that the liver and gall-bladder should be drained or 'cleaned out' by putting the epsom salts down a thin tube which went through the stomach right into the small intestine and thus right where the gall-bladder and liver pour the bile into the small intestine.

After the epsom salts had been down a short time the patient lies down with head lower than the rest of the body, and the thick dark bile comes up the tube and so out of the body. This method of drainage has been very effective, and it certainly gives the patient real satisfaction to see that 'black stuff' come out the tube.

However, some research men are of the opinion that simply taking a dose of epsom salts in the usual way by the mouth, and following it with a little cold water, is really just as effective and spares the patient the time required by the use of the tube.

Some expense is likewise saved in those cases where the patient seems unable to insert the tube himself and requires the doctor's assistance. Dr. John Tilden Howard, who advocates the use of the epsom salts by mouth instead of by the tube, suggests that about two level tablespoonfuls of epsom salts be given in one quarter of a glass of water, and this followed by one-eighth of a glass of cold water. This may be once a week or more often if necessary.

It is interesting to know that such an old remedy is still considered the best medical treatment for sluggish liver and gall-bladder.

BISHOP CHARGES WOEFUL WRONGS INVADE CHURCH

Present Conditions in Christian Church Condemned by Bishop of Fredericton.

WICKEDNESS SET UP.

Makes Call to Repentance and Prayer at Synod Meeting.

FREDERICTON, N.B., May 31. — (C.P.).—Strictures on present conditions in the Christian Church were contained in the charge delivered to-day by Rt. Rev. J. A. Richardson, Bishop of Fredericton, to members of the clergy and laity assembled here for the 63rd annual Synod of the Fredericton Diocese of the Church of England in Canada.

"By multitudes of professing Christians, ordinances of the Church are almost habitually neglected," he declared. "For very many attendance at the Lord's Table is infrequent and perfunctory. Unworthy standards of moral life are accepted and condoned. Divorce, with all its attendant evils, is rampant everywhere.

Standards Fallen.

"The standards of business life have become debased in many quarters, so that the proud are called happy and they that work wickedness are set up. God has been allowed to become superficial and selfish in its aims.

"Everywhere in the world, and under the very shadow of the Church, these conditons are comparatively common, and it is certain that we cannot claim to be free from them.

Call To Repentance.

"The call that comes to us, then, is the call that has recently echoed from the Vatican. It is the call to repentance. It is the call to prayer."

With reference to economic conditions, Bishop Richardson said "hard times are a challenge to the Church as well as to a people."

UPWARD TREND IS NOTICEABLE BISHOP STATES

Right Rev. Bishop Lyons Addresses Ontario Synod.

DEMANDS CONFIDENCE.

Ottawa Conference Promises Better Times for Empire and World.

KINGSTON, May 31 (C.P.). — "There is no reason to believe that better times are just around the corner. The world has witnessed a record fall in commodity prices, world-wide unemployment, unprecedented world depression, and the abandonment by England of the gold standard, which has been regarded as something in the nature of the keystone of national and world prosperity. Yet in spite of all, we seem to sense an upward trend in many directions."

With these words, Right Rev. Bishop John Lyons of the Anglican Diocese of Ontario this morning delivered his first charge as Bishop when the annual session opened here.

Constitute Challenge.

"World conditions, instead of causing us to slacken our efforts, constitute a challenge to the Church and an urgent call to her membership to meet the varied demands of these days with the spirit of confidence," he said.

"These days in which the Church is called upon to bear witness are far from being peaceful and prosperous. We have just emerged from a difficult year," he continued.

"The Economic Conference, which convenes in Ottawa in July, should receive our prayerful support. It is the beginning of a greater co-operation between the different units within the Empire, and it is to be hoped the ultimate results will not only benefit ourselves and the Empire, but the world at large."

League Saved War.

"While the League of Nations may not have fulfilled the expectations of many," Bishop Lyons continued, "and to not a few may appear to have failed in some respects, yet we all acknowledge it has exercised a wholesome influence. Were the League not in existence and functioning, the world to-day might be in a state of war," he declared.

Bishop Lyons referred to the loss sustained by the Diocese in the departure of Dr. C. A. Seager to become Bishop of the Diocese of Huron, and also expressed his keen regret that Most Rev. J. F. Sweeney, Metropolitan of Ontario, has resigned.

The chair was occupied by the president, Mrs. Vaughan, who conducted the opening devotional exercises, followed by prayer by Mesdames Bushnel, Earle, Brandon, Blanchard and Miss Anderson.

The business of the meeting included the appointment of a secretary of Christian stewardship and finance and a press reporter. Mrs. Lamb and Mrs. McPhee were appointed.

The devotional leaflet, "Judas, the Man That Might Have Been," was given by Mrs. Bushnel. Papers on prayer were read by Mrs. Bradburn, Mrs. Morcombe, Mrs. McPhee and Miss Rutherford.

A very interesting and lucid report of the seventh annual meeting of the Lindsay Presbyterial of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada that was held in Beaverton recently was given by Mrs. Vaughan, who was the delegate from this branch. The Presbyterial accepted on invitation extended by Mrs. Sloan, of Little Britain auxiliary, for the next annual Presbyterial. Miss E. Dunoon, of Lindsay, occupied the chair, and 175 delegates were present. In the five-minute reports Mrs. Herrington, Missionary Monthly secretary, reported a decrease of forty-two subscriptions to this magazine during the year 1931. The suggestion was made that the more prosperous auxiliaries supply the magazine to rural auxiliaries who felt that they could not afford it.

Miss Coone, associate helpers' secretary, gave an encouraging outlook of this department. There was an increase of membership in four auxiliaries.

Interesting Account.

Mrs. Chambers, of Beaverton, speaking of the work of the strangers' department, submitted a very interesting account of the work done in visiting strangers and extending a helping hand wherever needed. She reported: Total number of strangers visited, 141; removals, 23; patients in hospitals, 37; number visited on return from hospital, 27; number of persons other than strangers cared for, 145.

Mrs. Craighead, supply secretary, gave a wonderful report of the work being done by this department. Supplies of a total value of $1,789.20 were sent out by this department. Of this the auxiliaries furnished $1,672.10; the Mission Bands, $79.80, and the circles and C.G.I.T. groups, $36.30. These supplies were sent to Saskatchewan, Hobbema, Alta., an Indian reserve, and to Haliburton County. Ninety per cent. of these were used in the home mission field.

Mrs. Herrington, literature secretary, reported an increase in the 99 auxiliaries in this Presbyterial. 49 study books were purchased, 36 use the study book in the monthly meetings, 5 use it in study groups, 22 use the suggestive leaflets. During the year 48 annual reports were purchased.

The afternoon session opened at 1.30 by a service of worship, conducted by the Atherley auxiliary.

In the very splendid report furnished by Miss Nell Brown, the corresponding secretary, much helpful information was gained. The 32 auxiliaries which comprise the Presbyterial have a membership of 751 annual members and 288 life members. The amount sent to the treasurer totalled $86.38.

In the absence of Mrs. Dunoon, the treasurer, the financial statement was read by Miss N. Brown. This report showed that during the year the sum of $8,982.00 had been received, of which $8,908 had been sent to the branch treasurer.

Mrs. G. H. Shipman, of Cannington, led in dedicatory prayer. Mrs. Ward, temperance secretary, showed a growing interest in the work of her department.

In the report of Baby Bands, given by Mrs. W. McPherson, of Woodville, there are four bands with a total membership of 111, of which 9 are life members. Mrs. McPerson stressed the need of a superintendent in each auxiliary in this great field for service.

Mrs. Latter, of Brechin, Mission Band secretary, reported that there are now 23 Mission Bands in this Presbyterial, with a membership of 592.

The work of the Young Women's Auxiliaries, Mission Circles and C.G.I.T. groups was very ably dealt with by Mrs. Newman, of Lorneville.

Following an address by Miss Dunoon, Mrs. (Dr.) Irvine called on Mrs. Morrison and Mrs. Feir, when Miss Dunoon was presented with a beautifully bound copy of the new Hymnary, on behalf of the Presbyterial.

A very hearty vote of thanks was moved by Mrs. Blanchard, seconded by Mrs. Bushnel, and tendered to Mrs. Vaughan for the fine report she had given. The meeting closed with the benediction.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. T. H. McConnell on Thursday, June 9, at 3 p.m.

Young People's Union.

The last meeting for this term of the Young People's Union of Trinity United Church was held in the basement of the church Monday evening with a large number of members and visitors present.

Miss Evelyn Bigelow took charge of the opening exercises and the business.

The splendid program was introduced by a vocal solo, "When the Moon Comes Over the Mountain," sung by Evelyn Morcombe. A well rendered guitar selection was played by Harry Blewett. With the outstanding characteristic of a degree of soft brilliance, Miss Lily Race gave as her contribution of piano music "Her Kiss." An equally applauded instrumental was played by Francis MacPherson.

The Rev. Mr. Blanchard, in his usual pleasing manner, gave a vocal number, as also did the junior quartette, which is composed of Billy Earle, Howard Vaughan, Bill Weir and Bob Bourne.

Games and contests were indulged in until 10 o'clock, after which refreshments were served.

The league will re-open the second Monday in September.

THE COST OF NATIONAL RADIO.

Officials of the Canadian Radio League, the organization chiefly responsible for putting Canada into the broadcasting business on a national basis, are expressing regret that a salaried commission is to be appointed to conduct the Government radio system.

That regret, The Examiner feels certain, is pretty generally shared, although it is impossible to see how a business so large as the national broadcasting system should eventually prove could be carried on without a salaried management.

The Radio League probably paid more attention to getting this country committed to nationalized radio than it did to the method of financing such an activity, and it will likely be found that once the Government gets fairly launched in the broadcasting field that the financial end of the proposition will constitute a serious problem, particularly should advertisers fail to react to the limitation that is to be placed on direct advertising.

There will be general hope that the burden will not be loaded unto the radio set-owners.

SHOULD BE INVESTIGATED.

The incident following an Ashburnham fire in which Fire Chief Gimblett was injured in a fight with a householder who objected to the manner in which his little son was being interrogated by the head of the department as to the origin of the blaze cannot be lightly dismissed by the City Council.

Certainly the circumstances call for an official investigation.

On the one hand, city officials who are carrying out their duties in a circumspect and proper manner are entitled to protection.

On the other, citizens have the right to protest against an over-assumption of authority and to defend themselves if threatened by public officials.

Sunday's affair apparently lies within one or other of these categories, and in either case the interest of the public demands that the truth shall be brought out and adequate light be thrown upon the whole incident.

We cannot afford to have officials assaulted if they are within their rights, nor can we afford to have citizens or their families badly treated by officials with an extravagant idea of their powers and responsibilities.

Only a proper inquiry can decide as to whether this regrettable aftermath of Sunday's fire should come within the first or the second of these classes, and it would be a mistake not to carry out such an investigation immediately regardless of whether or not the courts are called upon to decide the legal aspect of the incident.

THE DUTY OF TO-DAY.

"Having learned by the experience of Prime Minister Bennett, Ramsay MacDonald and others, the public opposed to such men politically should display a kinder attitude toward them and recognize that, according to their lights, they are honestly endeavoring to make their country a better place to live in and the lot of the man in the street a bit happier."—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

That is excellent advice that might well be heralded in this country.

These are not ordinary times; the problems that confront governments are not ordinary problems; the task of trying to guide the country through this troublesome period and find a path back to prosperity is a heavy strain upon those at the head of affairs.

That task should not be made more difficult by political sniping, by continuous attempts to harass the administration and complicate the work it is attempting to do; the time will come for party strategists to indulge in that sort of thing to their heart's content, but it should be left until the proper season.

At this time with unemployment on a large scale to contend with, with agriculture at a low ebb through a world collapse of prices, with business and industry carrying on in many cases against odds and the people generally burdened by heavy taxation, something approaching the nature of a political truce would seem to be a paramount necessity.

Criticism should be constructive and helpful, not merely partizan and malicious, and some consideration should be given to the great responsibility that is thrown upon those at present in charge of affairs.

THE PEOPLE WANT ACTION.

If Premier Henry choses to accept the West York verdict as an endorsation of himself and his administration he will be guilty of an error in judgment that may well wreck his Government at the next provincial election—provided that Mr. Hepburn does not continue to come to his assistance by injudicious platform utterances.

Some allowance, of course, must be made for economic conditions, for bad times naturally react to the disadvantage of the party in power, but the West York result shows something more than the natural consequence of present conditions; it indicates that among those who have given the Government support in the past there is a distinct lack of confidence in the Premier and his associates.

That can scarcely be wondered at, for even the best friends of the Government are forced to admit that since the departure of Mr. Ferguson there has been fumbling and hesitation in the handling of important issues; the attitude of the administration toward the Hydro investigation has not been such as to inspire confidence, and the belated decision to include the $125,000 payment to John Aird, Jr., did nothing to restore the Premier's prestige, inasmuch as the public linked it up with the visit to Canada of Mr. Ferguson and gave the High Commissioner all the credit for the change of front.

Mr. Henry has been in the political game for a long time; his sincerity of purpose and his personal integrity have never been questioned, but that clean record will not save him should a majority of the people decide that his leadership lacks the firmness and decisiveness of action that public opinion demands of political leaders.

The Premier still has a chance to rise to the occasion by determinedly grappling with the problems confronting him, by inaugurating a period of strict retrenchment and by an earnest effort to reduce taxation and lift some of the burden from the shoulders of the people of the Province.

A program of economy that would include a sharp reduction in the membership of the Legislature and in the size of the Provincial Cabinet, along with other savings that should readily suggest themselves, would restore the reputation of the Government—and it looks as if nothing else will.

CANADA, THE UNITED STATES AND TRADE

The United States Senate on Monday night voted virtually embargoes against Canadian lumber and copper. It voted to place a duty of $3 per 1,000 board feet on lumber; to place a duty of four cents a pound on copper. This affects, practically destroys, $28,000,000 of Canadian trade.

All but a crippling blow to our lumber industry and a severe check to our copper exports, this action by the United States Senate may yield good. It may be that it is just what is required to impress upon all of us the vital importance of not permitting failure in the coming Imperial Economic Conference.

For the real meaning of this news from Washington is that Canada may as well make up her mind that she cannot hope for anything like dependable trade arrangements with the United States. That country, whether it is under a Republican or a Democratic administration, and no matter what the political complexion of Congress, doesn't propose to buy anything from Canada that it can help; and any arrangement that it may make with Canada of a contrary character will be a temporary arrangement, subject to withdrawal at Congressional caprice.—Ottawa Journal.

WHERE ARE THE M.P.'S?

A valued subscriber of the Times-Journal asks us who has been representing Elgin West in the Dominion Parliament during the past two weeks while Mr. M. F. Hepburn was engaged in campaigning in the West York by-election as Ontario Liberal leader. We realize that the question was popped at us in a rather sarcastic vein, and while we do not deem it advisable to attempt an explanation, we would like to point out that Mr. Hepburn is not the only member of the Dominion Parliament who has not been in the House the past few weeks. And few of these absentees, we feel, have as legitimate an excuse as Mr. Hepburn for their absence.

Press despatches during the closing weeks of the session have referred repeatedly to the small number of members in the House when important discussions were taking place. In the last few days before prorogation, when millions of dollars in estimates were rushed through and important legislation passed, the attendance has been smaller than ever. Wednesday the House was called on to vote on want of confidence motion on the Government's farm policies by Miss Agnes Macphail and the records show that 64 members cast votes. This means that out of a House of 245 there were 181 absentees.

Talk about cutting the size of the Provincial Legislature! A start might be made on the House of Commons, where half the total number of members, or less, usually transact the country's business.—St. Thomas Times-Journal

COLD FEET OR COMMON SENSE.

A young man in Stratford was due to make his first parachute jump at the local airport on Sunday. Before he did so another parachute jumper who had a great deal of experience jumped off at 2,000 feet. He had two parachutes attached to him, and the one on which he relied opened at first and then went wrong, with the result that the jumper came hurtling toward earth, his fall being broken when he struck a hydro wire, and the break was sufficient to save him from what was certain to have been sudden death.

After that the local man decided not to make his first attempt at parachute jumping. A spectator remarked at the time, "I guess he got cold feet." Perhaps others said the same things; such remarks are always quite common when things turn out that way. We do not know for sure just what cold feet means, but in this case we are inclined to regard it as nothing more or less than sanity asserting itself; it was, we are quite sure, common sense in operation.

If you have any doubt in the matter ask yourself this question: If you had seen a parachute jumper with long experience crash down and escape death by the merest chance, would you, a person with no experience, go up a couple of thousand feet in the air, and attempt the same thing? We are certain your answer would be in the negative, and also that it would be quite emphatic. With such an answer we would find ourselves in entire agreement.

There is something about these Sunday performances with which we find ourselves quite out of touch. Apparently there is no law to prevent it, but it is entirely foreign to Sunday as we have known it and to the use to which it should be put.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Globe's column-long editorial on the West York by-election failed even to mention Mr. Hepburn. Was there any significance in the omission?

The Indianapolis race may provide excitement, but surely it is a misnomer to classify it as sport.

Work on behalf of crippled children must go on. That is why there should be liberal support for Rotary's Summer Fair effort.

And now the great game in West York is trying to figure out where the votes garnered by Mr. Buckley would have gone if the Labor candidate had not been in the field.

Evidently there are not many Socialists in West York where a radical candidate failed to get one hundred votes.

The Lesson.

Heres' a story that the American Lumberman attributes to Harry Kendall, who says it really happened. Kendall was in the barber shop of an express-train club car speeding through the western mountains when he overheard one of the porters, a spry, small Negro, amusing himself by joshing the other one, a big, athletic fellow weighing about 200 pounds.

"Look heah," said the lightweight, "ef Ah wuz ez big as you is, Ah wouldn't be makin' no beds or shinin' no shoes on the Santy Fee. Ah'd be out in dem hills ketchin' bears. Lots uv big bears in dem hills. If Ah wuz ez big as you is Ah'd be out dere ketchin' dem big bears wid my hands."

The big porter grinned and said nothing. But after a while he stirred and looked down on his companion.

"Looky heah, son," the big boy said, "they's lots er little bears in dem hills, too."

We don't intend to gild the lily by adding to this text. Not any more, at least, than this: When we think of things other men should do, it is just as well to remember the little bears about our size that we could be catching.—Nation's Business.

Solids were quoted at 17¼c to 17½c for No. 1 and 16¼c to 16½c for No. 2, while retailers were offered prints at the steady prices of 20c for No. 1 and 19c for No. 2.

Searching For Body Toronto Men Crash

LINDSAY, May 31.—A car containing four Toronto men came into collision with a car driven by Dennis Fitzpatrick of Lindsay here Saturday night. The Toronto men were on their way to Greenhurst, Sturgeon Lake, where they spent Sunday searching for the body of Samuel Sloat, drowned two weeks ago.

Oats 1,775 cars, approximately 3,500,000 bushels; wheat 4,393 cars, approximately 6,350,000 bushels and there is still a lot of grain in the elevators and in the hands of the farmers.

Sir Henry Thornton said that when the Peace River produced 10,000,000 bushels of grain or its equivalent in tonnage the outlet would be built.

LAYMEN GUESTS OF TORONTO MEN

Official Work of Synod is Explained to Lay Delegates at Banquet.

CHOICE OF DELEGATES.

TORONTO, May 31.—Anglican laymen, who are delegates to the Synod opening its annual session this morning, met last evening at dinner in Simpson's Arcadian Court and listened to official explanations of the business to be brought before the Synod. William Tyrell presided. The attendance was 50 per cent. greater than a year ago, it was officially stated. The delegates from outside parishes were guests of the Toronto laymen.

R. W. Allin explained the procedure that will be followed as a result of the announcement made recently that Archbishop J. F. Sweeny had forwarded his resignation as Metropolitan of Ontario to the House of Bishops. According to the official statement no choice of a Bishop or Metropolitan can be made for some time.

Pension Plan.

C. L. Foster explained the national pension scheme for the clergy and their dependents and urged that the principle be adopted at this session. It is proposed to raise a capital fund of $4,000,000, of which about $1,000,000 is now on hand. There is no intention of putting the pension scheme in operation at the present time, Mr. Foster said. C. A. Kinnear spoke on parochial returns, M. O. Tremayne Sutton on men's clubs, R. W. Allin on the duplex envelope system and A. H. Cuttle on certain features of rural representation.

Choice of Delegates.

A. H. Monk of Bethany said congregations should be more careful in electing delegates. Only those who would be sure to attend should be chosen, he declared. Mr. Justice J. F. Orde and D. T. Symons, K.C., Chancellor of the diocese, moved a vote of thanks to the chairman and to the various speakers.

No reference was made at the meeting to the notice of motion given by Canon F. H. Hartley for the appointment of a committee to arrange for a proper celebration of the centenary of the Oxford Movement, but laymen present discussed among themselves the controversial features that have developed since the publication of the convening circular.

COLLETT VARE IS ELIMINATED IN THIRD ROUND

Enid Wilson Practically Quelches Foreign Invasion in British Women's Golf.

BY FOUR AND TWO SCORE.

United States Left With One Representative in Mrs. Leona Cheney.

SAUNTON, England, May 31 (C.P.). — Enid Wilson, Britain's youthful champion, practically squelched the foreign invasion today by defeating Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, five times champion of the United States, four and two, in the third round of the British women's golf championship.

It was Mrs. Vare's sixth invasion of Britain, none of which has succeeded.

Joyce Wethered, England's greatest woman player, stopped Mrs. Vare's march on three occasions, and on her last visit in 1930, she was defeated by Diana Fishwick, an English unknown then, in the final round.

Mrs. Vare was nine over par for the 16 holes of the match.

Mrs. Leona Cheney, the former Mrs. Pressler, of Los Angeles, defeated Doris Park, fine English match player, one up, to leave the United States with one representative among the last eight.

To Meet Miss Brown.

Mrs. Cheney meets Miss B. M. Brown, of Formby, Lancaster champion six times, in the fourth round to-morrow.

Miss Wilson played great golf to put out th former United States champion, making few mistakes.

The British champion, large and strongly built, plays as slashing a game as any man, and with Mrs. Vare Virginia Van Wie, and Molly Gourlay put out of the play to-day, is an overwhelming favorite to retain her title.

She played in the United States championship last year, being eliminated in the semi-final round by Helen Hicks, who went on to win the title.

Miss Tolhurst was eliminated in the afternoon by Mrs. H. Clark, Irish internationalist, 2 up. Results of other third round matches:

Miss P. R. Montgomery defeated Mrs. J. B. Watons, 4 and 3.

CADETS ATTEND DIVINE SERVICE AT LAKEFIELD

Members of Canadian Legion Also Present in Body at St. John's.

DR. MACKENZIE PREACHES

LAKEFIELD, May 31 (Examiner Correspondence)—The Grove Cadet Corps, about seventy-five strong, and members of the Canadian Legion, to the number of about forty, attended the morning service in St. John's Church. The veterans were in mufti and medals, and the Cadets in their trim khaki uniforms. The parade, headed by the bugle band of The Grove Cadet Corps, marched to the Town Hall and joined the veterans, preceding them to the church, which was built in 1866, the year when Canada was last invaded by a foreign foe.

The church was filled to capacity for the service, which was the simple shortened service of The Grove Chapel; Mr. E. de C. Fletcher was at the organ and the choir was augmented by Mr. Eisdell and fourteen small boys from The Grove. Red and green, The Grove colors, were used in the flowers on the altar; red tulips and green foliage being very effective. Rev. A. W. Mackenzie, M.A., D.D., was in charge of the service and was assisted by Rev. W. J. Creighton, M.A. The lesson was read by Cadet J. Macrae, and Cadets Macrae and D. G. Bagg took up the offertory.

Rev. A. W. Mackenzie was the preacher and delivered a sermon which was both inspirational and thoughtful, suited to all his hearers, both old and young. He took no text but spoke of Christ's life on earth as our pattern. He ridiculed too much display of pomp and circumstance and showed the keen sense of humor which made Him so very, very human in the way He made fun of the Pharisee who strained at a gnat and swallowed a camel and who polished the outside of the cup leaving the inside dirty. In these hard days when all the world is suffering, we can never restore the balance till we realize Christ, not only as a Saviour, whose blood will take away our sin, but as a pattern. Christ does not want dead men; He wants living men, living the Christlike life with higher and nobler ideals; with less of self and more for others. Some men and women are very much opposed to the Cadet movement as being an anti-pacifist movement, but it is not that; and these people are talking about what they do not understand; for the idea of a Cadet Corps is to teach boys to be manly, clean, and self-respecting, subject to discipline. None of us want another war, and we hope that none of the Cadets will ever be called on to fight, but we want them trained to be good citizens and Christians.

Immediately before the offertory Mr. H. Eisdell sang, "If With All Your Hearts," from Mendelssohn's oratorio, "Elijah," which was a very great musical treat, and recalled to some of the older members of the congregation the fact that years ago when Mr. Eisdell first came to The Grove that he was a member of the choir of St. John's. Mr. Eisdell has gone far in the musical world since that time, and St. John's is proud of its connection with him in the earlier days of his musical career.

Following the service, the parade re-formed on the east side of the church and marched north on Queen street, with the veterans in the lead, to Stanley street, where the veterans fell out and stood at attention till the Cadets marched by. The Legion men were headed by T. Cunningham, the standard bearer, carrying the Union Jack.

A very remarkable feature of the church service was the presence among the veterans of two of the original Princess Pats'. These were Capt. C. W. Finnemore and Sergeant C. C. Stenner, both residents of the village, where they are held in highest respect. Outside the large cities of Canada there are few if any, places where more than one of this very much diminished group are to be found, and Lakefield is unique in having two living here.

MRS. ROSE ANN JULIAN

MARMORA, May 31 (Examiner Correspondence).—Shortly after 4 p.m. on Monday, residents learned with regret of the sudden passing of Rose Ann McGarvey, widow of the late Marion Julian. The deceased, who was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Matthew McGarvey of Marmora Township, was born in Rawdon township. The greater part of her life however was spent in Marmora township. Of recent years, her health had not been robust and three weeks ago she was compelled to take to her bed. She, however, appeared to be rallying and for the past few days sat out on the verandah of her home on North Hastings avenue. It was while sitting there on Monday afternoon that the fatal seizure came. She was ever of an industrious nature, and deeply sympathetic with others in their hour of affliction. She was a lover of flowers and exhibited a great fondness for children. Particularly was she a favorite with her many nephews and nieces. She was a faithful member of the Anglican Church and most charitable towards those of different faith. She was a loyal members of Marmora L.T.B. 177, which she joined many years ago, and she also treasured her membership in the Modern Brotherhood of America, into which she was initiated when a resident in the United States.

When health permitted, she rendered valued assistance to worthy causes. Many have lost in her a staunch friend and will miss her all the more because her end was so sudden. She is survived by three brothers, David and James of Marmora and Edward of Toronto, and three sisters, Mrs. Adam McGarvey, Mrs. James Gray and Mrs. Allan McGarvey, all of Marmora. The funeral takes place on Thursday afternoon with the rector, Rev. A. B. Caldwell, officiating. Service will be at St. Paul's Church, at 2.30 p.m., with interment in Marmora Protestant Cemetery.

M. A. SORSELSEIL GUEST SPEAKER

condemnation to those children who will sign a parent's application for the old folks' pension though well able themselves to care for the aged father or mother, and also of those who misrepresent facts in order to secure the monthly grant.

In replying to the words of welcome extended by the pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones, B. D., and by the class president, Thomas Douglas, who was also on the pulpit platform, the speaker of the day mentioned the fact that he is teaching two men's Bible classes each Sunday afternoon, and that he has been in Sunday School since he was five years old "and that is more than fifty years, but do not ask me how many more than fifty; there are two points on which I am sensitive, and those are my age, and my waist line". The laughter which greeted this remark being justified by the rotundity of figure which made the location of the 'line' mere guess work.

Listing the various organizations for administering to relief and social betterment, with which he is actively and continuously in touch day by day, Mr. Sorsoleil mentioned that out of the stress of present economic conditions one good thing is being accomplished "though it is a tremendous price to pay, yet out of it all we are being driven nearer together, and are developing a greater national oneness and also an international outlook that will make for the avoidance of war, and the building up of a consciousness of unity as a world state."

The speaker closed with an earnest plea to put into actual practice the principles of the religion of Jesus Christ as listed in Matthew five and six as fundamental to the success of all social service activities, and Mr. Greenlaw's solo, "The Beautiful Garden of Prayer", most fittingly followed the discourse.

Twenty-Sixth Anniversary

Speaking on behalf of the sixty members which make up the men's class, Mr. Douglas made reference to the fact that the twenty-sixth anniversary was being observed, and that it had grown from a small beginning until it is now one of the largest in Central Ontario; also to the notable fact that the class has had but two teachers in its history, members of the same family, the late Miss Agnes Hampton, and for some years now her sister, Mrs. (Dr.) Rae. "To these two faithful servants of God much of our success is due; we are serving a good purpose as a training ground for Christian service in the church, the Sunday School, and the community."

"We are not out for money, but for inspiration, for spiritual culture, and for a larger fellowship and joy in Divine service", concluded the president, Mr. Greenlaw's fine, rich baritone appropriately following these remarks with the Negro spiritual "Steal Away to Jesus".

The soloists of the day literally "sang their way into the hearts of the large congregations", the duet by Mr. Greenlaw and Mrs. MacKenzie "In the Garden", at the opening of the evening service being one of the high lights in the musical selections of the day. Mr. Sorsoleil's talk at night was on "The Second Mile of Life", and his words especially to the young people were particularly impressive, laying emphasis upon going the extra mile in their studies, in filial affection, and in making the church their community centre, "pleasure and satisfaction are assured as the outcome."

In concluding his remarks the speaker mentioned that fifteen thousand families are requiring relief in Toronto at present, and that social conditions are just as serious and the need of sacrifice just as real as in the days of the war "Then it was big guns belching across No Man's Land; today grim want and starvation are dogging the footsteps of men and women. Direct relief is apparently in sight for unemployment relief has proved very expensive; and that means that we shall have to give, and give, and many big problems are involved. In the name of our Great Master let us give fairly, cheerfully, and abundantly."

Immediately following the address Mr. Greenlaw sang by request, "My Mother's Prayer", and "The Old Rugged Cross". Ten young men of the Tuxis Square received the offering and the anniversary of the Men's Class reached the Sunday's close marked by services that established a record in the quality of the addresses delivered, and the talent of the soloists of the day.

The anniversary concluded with an entertainment by Ye Olde Tyme Village Quartette in the church on Monday evening.

At the card party seven tables of euchre were played, with Miss Amy Watson and Mr. George Stenner winning the prizes, and Mrs. G. Hutt and Mr. C. Duff winning the consolation prizes. The lucky chair prize was won by Miss Amy Watson.

Rev. Mr. Beaton suggested that it would be very helpful if topic cards were procured for use at the meetings. After some discussion it was decided to leave this matter over until the fall term.

The Scripture reading was taken by Mr. Jamieson.

Mr. Beaton addressed the members, and in an interesting talk, suggested that an especial effort be made to have the meetings well attended. A vocal trio, "Jesus Bids us Shine," was sung by Misses Dora Luts, Phyllis Parcels and Marjory Jamieson, and was much appreciated. A most interesting talk was given by Mr. Albert Motchman. NORTHUMBERLAND REGIMENT ATTENDS CHURCH AT COBOURG

Dr. Boyle Stresses Need of Unity of English Speaking Peoples.

Col. R. J. Gill Takes Salute.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 31 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — The first garrison parade of the season by the Northumberland Regiment was held on Sunday in Cobourg when, under the command of Lieutenant Colonel H. Sauva, V.D., and accompanied by visiting officers and members of the Canadian Legion, divine service was attended in the afternoon at St. Paul's Anglican Church. Captain, Rev. H. T. Boyle, D.D., chaplain to the regiment, conducting the service and preaching for the occasion.

The parade left the Cobourg Armouries at 2.30 p.m., headed by the regimental band under the baton of Bandmaster W. Pearson. All companies mustered a good representation of officers and men. Colonel R. J. Gill, Brockville, officer commanding the 8th Brigade, was present in his official capacity, other officers being Colonel H. Neilson, O.C. Reserve battalion of the Northumberland Regiment. Col. F. D. Boggs, a former commanding officer of the unit, and Col. H. J. Smith of Trenton.

After divine worship the parade formed up outside the church and proceeded to the war memorial, where a wreath was laid at the base of the column by Col. Boggs and Col. Neilson. Proceeding from there to the main street, the salute was taken by Col. Gill from the steps of the city hall as the unit marched past him.

Dr. Boyle welcomed the regiment to the church and expressed the hope that every one as soldiers would harmonize their uniforms with their positions as Christians. St. Paul had said, he stated, "Endeavoring to keep unity of spirit in the bond of peace," and there might seem something paradox in the fact that men who were pledged to fight if called upon to do, to defend their King and country, should come to worship in the house of the Prince of Peace.

There were many groups of people, reasonable and intelligent, the preacher pointed out, that thought that no man should go to war. Since the Great War with all its misery and sorrow and loss of life, the minds of these people were engendered with the hatred of war, and they would go to any length to stop it.

"If I asked any man present if he liked war, he would answer 'No'." said Dr. Boyle; yet, on the other hand, he was sure that if they saw the rights and liberty they prided themselves in and which had been handed down from posterity, in danger and slipping from their grasp, and asked if they were going to let this be, the answer would be, No; and they would be ready to pay the same price for the precious gifts handed down to them. "That," he said, "was the justification for the wearing of uniforms to-day.

The world was living in troublesome times, the preacher pointed out, especially internationally, with petty bickerings and hatreds. With all these things he saw as the greatest instrument for peace the organized opinions and forces of the English-speaking peoples. This, he saw, as the governing factor to be exercised for peace, for it stood for loyalty to cement England with the English-speaking peoples of the world.

RATE MAKING BODY TO GOVERN TRUCKS

TORONTO, May 31.—"I think the time will come when we will have to have a rate-making body in Ontario for truck transportation similar in function to the Railway Commission, and for the same reason," declared Hon. Leopold Macaulay in his address as guest speaker before last night's fourteenth annual general meeting and dinner of the Ontario Motor Truck Owners' Association, under the chairmanship of F. A. Magee, at the Royal York Hotel.

In characteristic forthright fashion Mr. Macaulay asserted: "Don't forget that we have 490,000 private passenger cars with 600,000 licensed operators in Ontario to consider first", also. "We have established in this country an elaborate railroad system, which has in the vicinity of 300,000 workers dependent upon its reasonable operations for their daily bread—and also concentrated populations in cities, towns and villages, built on the strength of those railway operations—and we must see to it that they get 'a fair break,' and that the State does not subsidize a new transportation system unduly at the expense of the previously established system."

George H. Hedges, entered as No. 13 in a motorcycle race at Camberley, England, collapsed after climbing a hill known as "Devil's Drop," and died soon afterward.

new council gave no such instructions. And Mr. Waterman was under no obligation to heed them if they had been issued

The recent petition to the council set forth the following statement: (a) That there is a noticeable difference in the assessment of properties of a similar value in the said area;

(b That the assessment is beyond reason in comparison with the depreciation of our property in the last three or four years;

Bring Back Prosperity

In times like these...

more than ever, life insurance is a boon to all—to the Uninsured as well as the Insured.

As its premiums accumulate they are promptly used to assist in purchasing homes, in aiding farmers and financing industry—thus keeping Canadian citizens gainfully employed.

It insures more than Life—it helps to provide work for the Breadwinner, and Food, Comfort and Shelter for his family.

It supports the Nation, too—the collective enterprise of all the people. During the Great War, for instance, the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada itself subscribed for $70,000,000 Canadian and allied government war loan bonds.

Last year the Sun Life subscribed $23,000,000 to Canadian government issues. A portion of the proceeds of these loans was to relieve unemployment. Even the jobless share indirectly in the benefits of life insurance.

The Sun Life is an important factor in restoring prosperity to Canada. For over sixty years it has been privileged to serve its policyholders and proud to serve the State. To-day, its world-wide organization and facilities make it more serviceable than ever to the whole community.

VOCAL RECITAL CONSERVATORY IS APPRECIATED

Miss Geraldine Collins and Lt.-Col. M. H. Park Heard at Recital.

MRS. GREEN AT PIANO.

(By Jeanette).

The recital of songs given by Miss Geraldine Collins, mezzo-soprano, in the hall of the Conservatory of Music last evening was extremely interesting and satisfying. A lovely program of varied music, vocal and instrumental, was provided by Miss Collins, and the assisting artists of the evening, Mrs. Agnes Logan Green, pianiste, and Maurice Park, tenor singer.

An audience of over two hundred people expressed by their applause, following each selection, their enthusiastic appreciation of beautiful numbers, which included songs in four languages, of classical, favorite and folk music type.

Miss Collins' sympathetic voice, expressive and rich in sentiment, with its attractive, melodious timbre and sweet, appealing quality, was heard in some very ambitious and difficult solos.

Outstanding in excellence and extremely popular with their listeners, were the three folk songs which brought Irish, English and Scotch airs to the fore. They were a dainty little number, "The Red Lark," arranged by Healey Willan, who also was responsible for the arrangement of the old version "Drink to Me Only with Thine Eyes," with its very attractive, portamento cadences, and the Scottish song, "Angus MacDonald," with its homely sentiment, its vigorous crescendo passages, its pathos and the very fine pianissimo that distinguished many of the lines.

The same delicate pianissimo in the sweet voice was notable in "The Sailor's Wife," another favorite with the audience, judging by the applause which followed its rendition.

Delilah, The Enchantress.

Miss Collins' voice was superb in the aria from "Samson et Delilah" which climaxed the program. In soaring, brilliant tone, she sang this beautiful composition, with Mr. Park joining briefly. Another duett by Miss Collins and Mr. Park was the lovely music of the farewell number, "Home to our Mountains," from "Il Trovatore," also followed by a great deal of applause.

The opening quartette of songs by Miss Collins included an Italian aria from "Euridice," the "Invocazione di Orfeo," also three delicately-toned numbers of romantic mould and sweet quality: "Thou art Repose" (Schubert), "A Swan" (Grieg) and "Rose, Softly Blooming" (Spohr).

The second group opened with the sonorous, noble Latin stanzas of Cherubini's "Ave Maria," which was beautifully sung, a lovely bit of Brahms' composing, in "A May Night," and Henschel's "Morning Hymn," with soaring, vibrant force in the sweet singing.

Mrs. Green's piano playing was as satisfying and artistic as ever. The smooth, sure, sweet tone, the finished charm which animates the music of this popular pianiste, was displayed in three numbers that cast their spell over the audience. They were a Chopin Etude, a Prelude by Scriabini, and Leschetitsky's "Arabesque," a gorgeous bit of colorful, glowing sound. As an encore, Mrs. Green played Grainger's setting of the Londonderry Air, with its haunting pathos and charm.

Mr. Park's warm, expressive tenor voice was a welcome addition to the program. He sang with ease, expression and sentiment, investing all his songs with that quality of beautiful tone and interest in his own singing that makes them so very attractive. The renewed and prolonged applause that met his quartette of songs showed how very interesting they were to the listeners.

Mr. Park sang that jocund little English folk song, "A Sailor Loved a Lass," that never fails to make a hit with his hearers. Then came Roger Quilter's arrangement of Shakespeare's song, 'Mistress Mine,' with its dainty sentiment; and a song in French from "Carmen," "La fleur que tu m'avais jetee" ("The flower you have thrown me") the dramatic plaint of the luckless Don Jose to the woman who has charmed him, and thrown him a flower. The last number was in Italian, that always charming number from "Rigoletto," "La donna e mobile" that has immortalized forever in melody the favorite masculine theory that women are fickle jades.

To the applause which greeted his music, Mr. Park responded with a dainty song about the lovely Celia.

Accompaniments for the vocal numbers were played by Mrs. Green with sympathetic and satisfying appreciation of their needs.

Miss Collins wore a very pretty gown of white organdie made on long, graceful lines, with a black velvet girdle and a lovely breast knot of violets. She received many beautiful floral tributes and had a very effective background in a stage arranged with many tall standards filled with purple lilacs and baskets of roses.

Word of the sinking was received at the U.S. coastguard base here in a message from the Lightship, which said the schooner's crew had rowed there.

The Irene and Helen was described as a derelict and a menace to navigation. The cause of the fire was not reported.

FORGER WANTS PEN TERM WANTS TO GAIN TRADE

TRURO, N.S., May 31.—(C.P.)—Pleading guilty to a charge of forging endorsement on a stolen cheque Jack Cameron asked Magistrate Harold Putnam to send him to Dorchester penitentiary so he could learn a trade. The magistrate sentenced him to serve three years.

Cameron, sought by Truro and Canadian National Railways police since March, was arrested last week on a farm not far from Hamilton. He was located through a letter written to a young woman in Halifax.

Cardiff, Wales, wishes to annex Penarth in Glamorgan county, and has offered to pay the county $1,000,000 for its loss in taxes when Penarth becomes part of the city.

DROP CHARGES AGAINST RECTOR

Picture of Almost Nude Young Girl Meant for United States.

DISGUSTING TRAP.

LONDON, May 31 (C.P.) — That much discussed photograph of an almost nude young girl posing with the Rev. H. F. Davidson, 62-year-old rector on trial before church authorities on immorality charges, was intended for publication in the United States, it turned out to-day.

The mother of the young girl in question so testified before the Ecclesiastical Court at Church House, Westminster. Photographers had told her, the mother said, that publication in America "might mean a lot for her daughter."

The photograph is an issue in the trial because the prosecution contends it is proof that the rector was somewhat indiscreet, and he avers that he was trapped into posing—a belief which the girl's mother shares with him.

"It was just a disgusting trap well worked out from the beginning," the mother testified.

She had stipulated she said, that her daughter was not to be photographer in the nude, and to make sure the stipulation was obeyed, she placed the girl in the retcor's care.

Another witness to-day was the Bishop of London, who told of Mr. Davidson's work for outcasts and said that until the present accusations he never heard an attack on the rector's moral character.

The prosecution announced that all charges against Mr. Davidson involving unknown women would be dropped.

Vancouver Delays Sweep Plebiscite

VANCOUVER, B.C., May 31 (C.P.). — Discussion on a proposal to hold a plebiscite in December to decide whether the city shall ask the Dominion Government to authorize Government - controlled sweepstakes for charity purposes has been deferred by the council until a later date. The sweepstake proposal was put before the Council by Alderman H. J. DeGraves.

Already several protests have been received by the Council. Protests against sweepstakes and against the projected plebiscite were contained in letters from Vancouver Presbytery of the United Church of Canada, Greater Vancouver Ministerial Association, and the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

CHURCH HONORS SKITCH FAMILY

Communion Table in Lindsay Church is Dedicated to Memory of Lindsay Couple.

VETERAN LADY PASSES

LINDSAY, May 31 (Examiner Correspondence)—On Sunday evening at the First United Church a new Communion table given by P. H. Skitch, brother of Fred Skitch, of Peterborough, in memory of his father and mother, was dedicated. The dedication services were conducted by Rev. Dr. Holling, and was the first service in which he officiated since his accident. He was assisted by Rev. N. A. McMurray, D.D., of Niagara Falls. In his dedicatory address, Rev. Dr. Holling paid a tribute to Mr. and Mrs. Skitch, who had been members of the Methodist Church and later the United Church for a great many years. They gave of their time and substance and were deeply interested in the affairs of the church.

In a drive to stamp out bootlegging in Lindsay, Constable Pat O'Connell, R.C.M.P., made a drive on a number of places on Saturday night and seized quantities of home brew. Accompanied by Chief Lawler and Constable Hodgson, the officer visited the home of Jack Germyn, on the Lindsay-Ops boundary, and found five bottles of what is alleged to be moonshine in the garage. Germyn claimed that the liquor must have been placed there by a man to whom he gave the key of his garage. The place has been under observation for some time, and although the raid was made at two o'clock Sunday morning, it is alleged four cars pulled into the yard. Two other places were also visited, and home brew confiscated.

At a session of the police court at Cannington during the past weekend, Edward Hobson of Toronto was given one year definite and six months indefinite in the Toronto Reformatory for the theft of a motorcycle.

The death occurred on Sunday at Fenelon Falls of a former resident of Lindsay in the person of Mrs. George Henley. The deceased was 83 years of age and was a pioneer resident of the district. She came from Londonderry, Ireland, with her mother and brother, the voyage lasting six weeks. They travelled by boat and wagon from Quebec to Port Hope, and were conveyed by ox cart over the trail to Lindsay.

Herd Tramples Leafs in Buffalo Doubleheader

LEAFS ARE HELPLESS AGAINST BATS OF STAMPEDING BISONS

Buffalo Sets Record of 44 Runs in Twelve Successive Innings.

DETORE LEADS ATTACK.

(By the Associated Press)

Ray Schalk's Buffalo Bisons registered the International league's only gain over Memorial Day and they did it with a fence-shattering barrage for which there hardly seems to be any precedent.

Drawing the Toronto Maple Leafs as their holiday playmates, the Bisons scored 44 runs on 38 hits including eight home runs, one triple and seven doubles. Had the second game not been limited to seven innings there is no telling what further damage the big Bison bats might have done.

With Fred Fussell pitching four-hit ball in the opener, Buffalo won as it pleased, 18-1. The second game was even more sad from a Toronto viewpoint as the Bisons made 26 hits good for a 26 to 3 victory. Miller, Winse't, Ryan and Crouse hit home runs in the first game for Buffalo and George Detore contributed three and Ollie Carnegie one in the nightcap. Detore got six straight hits in the second game and clouted two of his three homers in the six'h inning when the Bisons scored eight runs.

The net result of all this firing was to give Buffalo undisputed possession of first place in the standings. All other clubs divided double headers.

Frank Packard's two home runs helped Baltimore wallop Reading, 13 to 4 in the first game but the Keys came back to take the second 6 to 4, as Miller held the clouting Orioles to seven hits.

Bears Divide Bill

Newark easily won the first game from Jersey City, 9-4, scoring five runs in the eighth, but the Skeeters turned the tables behind Art Jones' effective hurling in the second, 7 to 3. Bois Nekola started this battle for the Bears but walked the first four men that faced him and he was promptly derricked.

After losing the opener to Montreal, 4-2, Rochester pulled the second out of the fire in the seventh and last frame by an eight to seven count. George Fisher's home run with two on settled the affair after Montreal apparently had the game won.

Yesterday's Stars

Eppa Rixey, Reds, and Bill Swift, Pirates—Former stopped Pirates with six hits 4-2; latter held Reds to five in afternoon to win 5-2.

Watson Clark and Van Mungo, Dodgers—Held Phillies to four hits in each half of double bill, Dodgers winning 12-4 and 5-3.

Rogers Hornsby, Cubs—Helped beat Cardinals with home run and double.

Mel Ott, Giants—His homer with two on decided first game against Braves.

Eddie Morgs and Luke Sewell, Indians—Former drove in five runs against White Sox in first game with home run and double; later drove in five in second with home run and single.

Lyn Lary, Yankees—Clouted home run, triple, double and two singles against Redsox in double header.

Jimmy Dykes, Athletics—Drove in seven runs in two home runs, double and single.

Charley Gehringer, Tigers—Hit home run, two doubles and two singles in first game with Browns.

Grace Hawkes at third played a nice fielding game as well as leading her team at bat.

Keene Girls Easily Beat Choates 36-6

Flashing a clever style of classy softball, the Keene Girls last night overwhelmed the hard-fighting Choate team by the score of 36-6 in a scheduled game at the East City Bowl, before the largest crowd of fans which have appeared so far this season. Despite the chilly weather the crowd stayed until the last of the seventh when the game was called on account of darkness.

The ability to know what to do at the proper time coupled up with neat fielding turned the trick for the visitors, who showed in several ways that they are benefitting by their experience and improving fast. The pitching too was well above par, Mary McCarthy tossing them over with plenty of speed, control and confidence, which sent four batters out swinging and allowed but five hits. Marj. Brown at second, Helen Nelson at short and Roberta Gainor in right field were the star performers in the field.

Choates failed to click from the start and with the visitors showing a tendency to wallop the offerings, the score soon mounted into double figures. Jean Munro started on the mound but was given ragged support and Barbara Blade took over the duties in the fifth. She was also hit freely. The same girl playing second in the first part of the game made some nice catches.

King Edward Swamps East-Enders 20 To 2

King Edward team ran away with the King George outfit, 20 to 2, in a Public School Baseball League fixture on the latter's grounds yesterday, practically cinching the title for the southenders. They broke loose in the last inning to cross the plate ten times on hits, errors and wild pitches.

"Lefty" Detlor, on the K.E. rubber, held the losers to five hits, one of them Burton's homer. He pitched steady ball and had good support. Burton went along good until the seventh, giving the others just five hits, but they cracked out six in the last session when he weakened. His support was shaky, particularly toward the end.

The East City nine got their only two runs in the first, while King Edward scored in every inning but the fourth, the last one being a free-for-all. Detlor and Mowry both got triples while Menzies banged out a two-bagger. Heal had four singles in five times up. McLean of the other side solved Detlor for two hits in three appearances, and Burton connected for a hard four-base blow. Pammett, King George catcher, was hurt in the sixth and had to retire.

The teams:

King Edward—Heal, 2b; Todd, 3b; Menzies, rf; Mowry, lf; Jobe, cf; Connors, c; Detlor, p; Post, ss; Grose, 1b.

Schlesinger, the 1930 winner, in 9 hours 9 minutes 51 seconds.

Hollyer, who was second in the 1931 race, held that position until after 30 miles, when he went ahead. Schlesinger led for the first half of the race, when Clegg took command, only to surrender the lead to Hollyer after passing through Crawley.

English railwaymen defeated their Welsh rivals by 30 points to 40 at Newport, where T. W. Green covered the 12 miles in 1 hour 41 minutes 58 seconds. A. J. Slater (Sussex W. and A.C.) secured the Sussex A.A.A. 20-mile championship at Brighton, his club gaining team honors.

Gains Outpoints Carnera in London Bout

BRITISH HEAVYWEIGHT WINS HANDILY OVER MAN MOUNTAIN

Gains Boxes With Superb Skill Born of Long Ring Experience.

ACCLAIMED BY CROWD.

LONDON, May 31 (C.P. Cable).—Larry Gains, Toronto Negro, who is heavyweight boxing champion of the British Empire, to-day was hailed as the only British fighter who had been able to beat Primo Carnera, Italian man-mountain.

Gains took the decision last night in a 10-round bout at White City Stadium, where 70,000 persons, the largest crowd ever to see a fistic duel in Great Britain, roared itself hoarse in acclaiming his victory.

Larry, fighting a man 60 pounds heavier than himself, boxed with superb skill born of long ring experience, occasionally stepping in to rock the giant Italian with terrific clouts to the head and body. An elusive target for the blows of his slower adversary, he suffered practically no damage and stepped from the ring almost as fresh as he entered it.

Yelling thousands milled about the dusky battler from Canada as he and his seconds struggled to reach their dressing room after the fight, seeking to shake Larry by the hand or slap him on the back. Mrs. Gains sprang from her seat at the ringside and threw her arms about her husband's neck while the seconds fought to hold the crowd back.

Takes Defeat Grumpily.

Carnera took his defeat somewhat grumpily, complaining in rather broken English he had won at least five rounds. Ringside commentators, however, hailed Gains' victory as a triumph of courage and boxing skill over strength. "Larry," they said, "had outsmarted and outgeneraled the giant all the way and had shown himself superior in every department, except in clinches, where Primo's huge physique gave him the edge."

Referee Hart's decision was accorded a mixed reception by leading morning newspapers. The Daily Mail, the Daily Herald and the Morning Post all said Gains showed marked superiority and won the fight handily.

The News Chronicle, however, said it was astounded at the decision and gave Carnera nine rounds. The Daily Telegraph said Carnera clearly won a "terribly tame fight," while the Express described Carnera as superior. The Times called the decision a "rather questionable verdict."

Dodgers Sweep Phillies for Double Victories on Memorial Day.

CUBS BREAK EVEN.

Yanks Increase Lead by Taking Double Decisions From Boston Sox.

(By Gayle Talbot, A.P. Sports Writer.)

The Detroit Tigers, still getting better pitching and hitting than any of their Western neighbors, had slipped back into second place in the American League to-day, a half game ahead of the faltering Washington Senators.

The fact, almost unnoticed in the turmoil of yesterday's Memorial Day double-header, is eloquent of the fighting qualities of "Bucky" Harris' team. O fto a flying start, the Tigers set a hot pace in the opening weeks of the campaign and were leading the league until they made their first trip east.

Unable to maintain their fast clip, the Bengals tumbled down to fourth place and the consensus was they had shot their bolt. But they started another drive a week ago, have won seven of their last eight games, and to-day Harris' crew looks like anything but a false alarm.

Heavy hitting won yesterday's first game from the St. Lou's Browns, 17 to 9, and tight pitching by Tom Bridges took the second 4 to 0.

It took the assistance of the Philadelphia Athletics to plant the Tigers in second place. The Mackmen trimmed Washington twice, 13 to 2 and 8 to 6, before 40,000 fans at Shibe Park. Jimmy Foxx 17th home run with two on beat Alvin Crowder in the afternoon.

Huggins' Memorial.

The Yankees dedicated a memorial to their former leader, Miller Huggins, and fattened their league lead with a brace of victories over the Red Sox, 7 to 5 and 13 to 3. The Sox climbed Herb Pennock for 16 hits in the first game, but the veteran stuck it out to win.

Completing the series of clean sweeps in the American League, the Cleveland Indians beat Chicago twice, 12 to 6 and 12 to 11. A four run rally in the last of the ninth game them the nightcap and stirred up a round of fisticuffs between several of the White Sox and Umpire Moriarity.

The Boston Braves' pennant hopes suffered a severe jolt as they dropped two decisions to the Giants. Carl Hubbell southpawed them into submission, 6 to 2, in the opener and a two-run Giant rally in the tenth decided the nightcap, 4 to 2.

Cubs Split Double.

Rogers Hornsby helped the Chicago Cubs divide their double bill with St. Louis. After the Cardinals had driven Burleigh Grimes from the box to win the first tilt, 6 to 4, the Cubs' pilot hit a home run and a double off Tex Carleton to help take the nightcap, 6 to 2.

Two Brooklyn pitchers, Watson Clark and Young Van Mungo, turned in sterling games as the Dodgers swept their bill with the Phillies, 13 to 4 and 5 to 3. Each allowed but four hits, and Mungo struck out 12.

Cincinnati and Pittsburgh broke even, the Reds taking the morning encounter, 4 to 2, behind Eppa Rixey's tight pitching, and the Pirates grabbing the second, 5 to 2, as Bill Swift allowed but five hits.

JADICK COMES BACK

Johnny Jadick, the Philadelphia lad who won the junior weiterweight championship from Tony Canzoneri some time ago, has returned to his home in the Quaker City after a month's rest in Bermuda. Johnny says he is in fine condition again and is now ready to meet all comers and will also defend his title against the best in the division as soon as he can get a couple of battles under his belt.

Campbellford Town Softball Schedule Opens With Win For Mill.

ONLY ONE HOMER MADE.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 31 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Opening the softball schedule in the Campbellford Town League with a postponed game from Friday last, the Mill trimmed the Outlaws in a fast and keenly contested game last evening, played on the High School grounds. The count was 15-8.

Opening the play, Reid for the Mill made the first count. Bill Brennan following with the first and only homer in the game, knocking a grounder which scudded past the outfield. The Outlaws started the counting in the first innings when they netted four runs, but this was the only count they made worth while. The Mill, although only knocking a three count in the first, came back with a five and a two in the second and third and established a lead which the Outlaws were unable to catch or pass.

Fielding was exceptionally good, with the Mill doing some good work. The majority of "outs" were made by catches, very few players being caught out on bases. As catcher for the Outlaws, Twig played a splendid game behind the plate.

ORWELL WILL GO TO POST OUTSTANDING FAVORITE

Winner of Guineas, Owned by Washington Singer, is 2 to 1 Choice.

MIRACLE NEXT

To-morrow at Epsom Downs close to a half a million people will gather to watch the most famous and colorful horse race in the world—the Epsom Derby.

No race in any country can compare with the Derby. The Kentucky Derby, the Grand National, the King's Plate, the Belmont Stakes all fade into insignificance before this magnificient spectacle.

This year will mark the 152nd year of the Epsom classic, although it will actually be only the 149th running of the race at the Downs, for during the great war the race was held elsewhere to make room for a gigantic hospital which was established on the historic course.

This year's race sees Orwell the outstanding favorite, being quoted at 2 to 1 in the betting lists. In fact, he was such a popular favorite that it was at first thought no other horse would receive any recognition from the public. This, however, was avoided when the fans looked for a contender to beat the favorite, and discovered Miracle, Dastur and Hesperus, who showed up splendidly in trials.

Why Miracle should be placed above Dastur in the list is hard to explain, since Dastur, Hesperus and Spenser all ran better in the Two Thousand Guineas last month. Dastur finishing second to Orwell. Dastur is owned by the Aga Khan, the most famous racing man in England.

Miracle, however, showed a decided reversal of form early this month in the Newmarket Stakes.

First Run in 1780.

But the racing experts of the British Isles show a decided leaning to Orwell, the Washington Singer-owned, Joe Lawson-trained winner of the Two Thousand Guineas. If Orwell can repeat in the Derby, he will duplicate the feat of Cameronian last year by winning the two outstanding flat races of the English racing season.

The Epsom Derby was founded in the year 1870 by the Earl of Derby and the first race was won by Sir C. Bunbury's Diomed. It was always run the first Wednesday in June, over a course exactly one mile and a half and 20 yards. The purse varies from year to year, but usually reaches close to $50,000. King George and members of the royal family will likely be in attendance at the blue riband tomorrow.

Betting Not Heavy

If the past history means anything, then the mudders will get their chance in to-morrow's race, for it has rained the last three Derby days. But the rain fails to dampen the ardor of the fans who come from all parts of the isles to view the race—there is no admittance fee except to the stands.

And this year, some two thousand will be able to view the races without even going to Epsom, for James L. Baird, British television pioneer, has fitted up his apparatus to connect with a London cinema, and the entire scene will be "wired" and shown on the screen.

Hundreds of thousands of pounds will change hands, although it is not expected that the amount will be as much as in former years. The Calcutta Sweepstakes will be greatly depreciated in value this year, while bookies and betting agencies have been complaining for weeks about the lack of money wagered.

THREE MOUND STARS SIGNED

Scotty Maudsley, Casey Masterson and Bill Cripps Will Do Hurling This Summer.

GOOD INFIELD PROSPECTS.

The Crescent Baseball Club, of the East Peterborough League, is practically organized already for another intermediate campaign which begins June 7. Bill Prindible and Harry Ranger, co-managers, have been busy trying out and scouting players and prospects for the past two weeks, with the result that a strong Crescent outfit will make a bid this year for E.P.L. honors.

Pitchers signed so far are Scotty Maudsley, Casey Masterson and Bill cripps, all first-class intermediate hurlers. Ab Delahaye, hard-hitting catcher, will hold them up. Those trying for position on the infield include Archie Weir, Bill Sweetman, Tommy Miller, Crary, Hartley and Oven—the latter a newcomer from Cobourg. Pryde, of Milton, is working for a spot in the outfield, as are the Jones brothers, Mark Swanger, Jack Huggins and several others not yet signed.

All this club's playing certificates must be in at the next team practise, Thursday night at six at the Exhibition Grounds. With a few more good workouts under their belts, this outfit should prove right up in fast Intermediate "A" baseball again. The whole East Peterborough League should be stronger and better balanced than was the case last year, although the C.G.E. crew are having trouble getting started, having lost many of their stars to the seniors. But when they do get organized, the Electrics, Cogs and Crescents will make up an E.P.L. at least as good as in 1930, when crowds jammed the stands to see every contest.

BILL SIMMON HURLS 20-4 WIN

Jack Playford Connects For Circuit With Three On in Sixth Inning.

CITY MEN'S SOFTBALL.

The grand old man of softball, Bill Simmons, now in his 68th year, twirled the Sugar Bowl to a 20 to 4 victory over All Saints in the Men's Softball League game at Central last night. Backed by great support, the veteran showed fine control, his fast ball and cricket delivery turning back the Saint sluggers regularly. He fanned two and allowed ten hits.

The heavy-hitting Bowlrites got next to Jack Hope in the sixth when they countered eight runs. Before that, they notched a brace each in the first and second innings, and four in the fourth. They shoved in four more in the ninth. The Saints were held scoreless till the fifth when two trotted in. Another two in the sixth gave them their quota for the night. They didn't get a hit until the fourth stanza, McGregor went good for the losers the last three innings.

For the champs, Bill Calladine rapped out three singles, while Simmons got one hit in two official times at bat, walking the other three times he was up. Playford stepped into the Hall of Fame by poling out a home run with three aboard in the sixth. Olaveson and Sanderson, of All Saints, both had two hits.

The fielding of the losers was a bit unsteady at critical times, while Hope had a number of wild pitches. On the other hand, the winners played a great defensive game, despite three misplays. Two snappy double-plays, Miller to Dormer, and Weese to Miller to Dormer, cut down their opponents when they threatened.

The teams:

CASUAL COMMENT

There's a City Box Lacrosse League game billed for to-night at the Brock. It's between C.G.E. and Orde's, and starts at 8.30 o'clock. We know Orde's are strong, but haven't much of a line on the Electrics yet. They should be able to field a good team, and we understand they have been working out regularly, so ought to be ready for this tussle. Norwood and the Petes tangle here to-morrow night in an exhibition game.

It looks like a busy week in sports around town. In addition to these two lacrosse games, with a Brin'on-C. G. E. one later in the week and softball nightly, there's a pro boxing show being put on by Charlie Hallat at the Brock Friday night, and the C.O.B.L. local opener between Cobourg and the Petes Saturday afternoon. You pay your money and you take your choice.

The Crescents, of the E. P. L., are pretty well set now and they appear to have a classy intermediate team lined up. Cogs also are coming along okay, but the C. G. E. team will take some time yet to get properly organized. They lost five or six stars to the senior club this year, and that will be hard to get over. However, they hope to get started shortly, and the loop ought to be strong and well matched. It starts on June 7, one week from to-night.

• • • • • • •

The seniors practise again to-morrow evening at Stevenson Park and again on Friday night in preparation for their game with Cobourg here on Saturday. Art Primeau intends putting out his strongest line-up in an attempt to get his team away on the right foot at home by beating the Lakeshore crew in Peterborough. The Petes beat them in Cobourg the 24th, and should repeat, but one never knows in baseball.

• • • • • • •

With Havelock definitely in the City League, things ought to be stirring there from now on. The schedule for the juvenile and junior divisions will be drawn up shortly but the bantam one won't start for a couple of weeks yet. There are now four bantam teams, three juveniles and three juniors, assuring Peterborough of plenty of future baseball players.

The strong Sugar Bowl softball team was too good for All Saints at Central last night, and the veteran Bill Simmons twirled the up-towners to a one-sided victory. He received fine fielding support, and hard hitting. Jack Playford smacked out a four-bagger with the bases loaded in the sixth, and that trought the derrick for Jack Hope, Saints' moundsman.

• • • • • • •

And in the girls' game at the Bowl, last year's championship Keene team rode roughshod over Choates before a big crowd of fans. The out-of-towners are strong in every department, and last night served notice they are right out to cop the title again if possible. Of course, they'll find plenty of opposition later on when all the teams are clicking right.

True to his promise to provide a classy pro boxing card here at the Brock on Friday night, Charlie Hallat has already announced two outstanding bouts. They are between Jack Dane and Joe Donovan in one, and Frisco Grande and "Red" Egerton in the other. Local fans have never seen Grande in action, and they will likely turn out to see the Italian conqueror of Frenchy Belanger. He whipped the world's champion twice. Still, Dane will be the big attraction, and he picked himself a tough spot when he agreed to meet the tough Buffalo lightheavy here. Three other bouts will make it a fine card for those who like the fine-cut article.

THE BEST REWEREE

On the Pacific coast the fans and most critics consider Lieut. Jack Kennedy the best referee in the world. There are many in the midwest who also think that the lieutenant is one of the finest ring arbiters who ever handled a boxing contest. His work at the Great Lakes station during the world war and again on the coast was all that could be desired by any. Both fans and fighters have always had the greatest confidence in Jack—because they knew he was on the level at all times and showed no favoritism.

Four Players In Battle With Moriarty
Arbiter Suffers a Broken Right Hand

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 31 (C.P.). — A battle of fists reminiscent of a bygone baseball era with George Moriarty, veteran American League umpire, and four Chicago White Sox players as the belligerents, sent officials of the American League hurrying here for an investigation to-day.

Moriarty, who in his playing days maintained a rough and tumble reputation and once trounced Ty Cobb, went down before superior numbers after knocking out Milton Gaston, Chicago pitcher, yesterday. Moriarty was reported to have suffered a broken right hand and head injuries.

The fight occurred after Cleveland took both ends of a doubleheader from the White Sox. Cleveland players who witnessed the encounter declared the Chicago players started it. Manager Lou Fonseca of the visitors, himself a participant, declared Moriarty took the initiative. Moriarty and the other umpire, "Bill" Dineen, refused to talk.

President Will Harridge of the American League left New York to conduct an investigation here to-day. J. Louis Comiskey, president and owner of the Sox, and Harry Grabiner, vice-president started from Chicago. Suspensions ranging from 30 days to life are possible for a physical attack on an umpire.

FRISCO GRANDE ON BOXING CARD

Twice Victor Over Frenchy Belanger, Matched Against "Red" Egerton.

FIVE BOUT SHOW.

Another outstanding bout has been added to the all-star boxing program being offered at the Brock street rink Friday night, a bout that will vie with the Jack Dane-Joe Donovan one as to which will occupy the stellar position. This scrap will show here for the first time Frisco Grande, Phillipine bantam champion, who has met no fewer than four world's titleholders during a brilliant career in the ring. And opposing Grande will be none other than Frankie "Red" Egerton, crack Toronto scrapper.

Grande' world's champion opponents were Frankie Genaro, Midget Wolgast, Frenchy Belanger and Fidel La Barba. And it is interesting to note that Grande holds two decisions over one of these champions, the Filipino having beaten Belanger at Kingston and in Toronto. This is enough to indicate the high class of the Filipino. And the fact that Egerton has met among others, Steve Rocco, Harry Goldstein, Billy Ayrton and Earl Duquette assures that Grande will have bitter opposition in a bout that promises to be one of the most heetic staged here.

A colorful little fighter, in the full sense of the word, is Grande. Of typical Filipino chunky build, he is a powerful little fellow, his chocolate figure being a regular dynamo of fistic energy. Nor is the sorrel topped Egerton any the less both in appearance and boxing ability.

Grande recently graduated from the flyweight ranks and is hot foot after bantam honors, so he cannot afford to take any chance of getting beaten. And the same applies to Egerton who is in line for some lucrative bouts in in Toronto. It should be a whale of a scrap when these two little Berserks get together and one that will be long remembered in these parts.

And the same goes for the other main bout, that in which Peterborough's boxing product, Jack Dane, makes a bid for higher fistic honors by risking his unbeaten record against the experienced and doughty Joe Donovan of Buffalo. This is in the nature of an acid test for Dane, who, if he is successful, has been promised a match with a world's light heavy weight title contender, said bout to take place in Peterborough. It can be realized how Dane will be trying to win Friday night.

JACK DANE

In all there will be five bouts and when the full card is announced, some idea will be had of the plentious matchmaking of Charles Hallat. The latter wants this first all-star boxing program to be a success and is sparing no efforts or expense in trying to make it so. And withal there will be no increase in prices.

West-End Team Wins From Queen Mary

Good twirling and good support gave Prince of Wales School a 7-1 win over Queen Mary on the former's diamond yesterday. McIlmoyle steamed his fast ball by a block of hitters and his infield backed him up in snappy style. They piled up seven runs at bat on hits, stolen bases and misplays. Clark's support, on the other side, was a bit wobbly at times. Johnson had a three-bagger. The teams:—

Queen Mary.—LeClair, 1b; Mortimer, ss; Kelly, lf; Clark, p; Leith, rf; Crary, 2b; Whiteside, cf; Harding, c; Chesher, 3b.

Prince of Wales.—McIlmoyle, p; Jay, c; Scholey, 1b; Platt, 2b; Williams, ss; Webb, 3b; Chambers, lf; Johnson, cf; Lucas, rf.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

"STRANGERS IN LOVE"

Frederic March, who made such an impression on his audiences in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" has one of those peculiar dual roles which seem rather spooky at moments, in this picture. As Arthur Drake, the jealous and cruel brother, he talks to himself as his twin brother, Robert, and gives just as good a characterization of the nice brother as he did of the unlikeable one.

"Strangers in Love" has laughs running through it. It is not a comedy in the strictest sense of the word, and yet it has the farcial element to quite an extent. There is a detective who really does detect even though he looks like a fake. There is a society girl who turns to business life when her father's money gives out. And there is the man who almost pays out $50,000 to avoid being caught helping himself.

The action is swift, although the dialogue is a little irritating, at moments, especially when Drake gets bungled up with his dual identity. Kay Francis is Diane Merrill, wearing her usual type of startling clothes. And Stuart Erwin is just as good as ever in the role of Robert's pal. Juliette Compton is the hard-boiled adventuress, a blonde, at that. Time was when the fair-haired girls had the angelic roles and the wicked lady always sported dark locks. Now, the more platinum the better, as far as devilishness is concerned in the feminine roles. Perhaps Jean Harlow had something to do with this change. She can look much more wicked than any brunette ever imagined.

There is a funny Andy Clyde comedy and the usual run of entertaining short reels.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

MRS. TOAD DOES HER DUTY

Of duties none is wholly free.
'Twas always thus and e'er will be.
—Old Mother Nature.

"I'm so glad to see you, my dear," said Old Mr. Toad to Mrs. Toad as she appeared in front of him, having just come up from out of the mud at the bottom of the Smiling Pool. "I have been singing for you for a week and was beginning to be afraid that something dreadful had happened to you. My heart almost stopped beating a few minutes ago when Longlegs, the Heron, nearly caught you. That was a narrow escape, my dear."

"If you were watching, why didn't you give me warning?" demanded Mrs. Toad.

"I didn't see you until you jumped" Old Mr. Toad hastened to explain. "I never was more surprised in all my life, for I didn't know you were in the Smiling Pool yet."

"I got here yesterday" replied Mrs. Toad.

Old Mr. Toad looked surprised. "You got here yesterday!" he exclaimed. "Do you mean to say that you go here yesterday yet never came near me until now? Didn't you hear me calling you?"

"Certainly I heard you" replied Mrs. Toad. "Not only did I hear you but I watched you when you did not suspect that I was near. It was great fun. Cou see I wanted to look around a bit before letting you know I was here. I wanted to find the best place to deposit our eggs when the time comes. In raising a family of children a lot depends on the start they get."

"What do you know about raising a family?" demanded Redwing the Blackbird, who happened to be sitting on a last year's cattail just above the Toads. "You never raised a family in your life. You don't even know your own children when you see them. Your children raise themselves or they don't get raised. As parents, some of you water people are jokes. Take Mrs. Spotty the Turtle, for instance. She goes off and digs a hole in the sand, lays her eggs in it, covers them up and goes off and forgets all about them. She doesn't even know when they hatch. You and Mrs. Frog are no better. You deposit a lot of eggs and never go near them again. You haven't any sense of duty, whatever."

"I do have a sense of duty! I do so!" retorted Mrs. Toad indignantly.

Redwing chuckled. "I've lived here through a good many springs" said he, "and I never yet have seen you show the first sign of a sense of duty toward your children such as a mother should show. Now there's Mrs. Redwing, a real mother for you. From the time the first egg is laid until the time the children are as big as she is and have learned how to care for themselves she never forgets her duty to them. And I try to do my duty as a father. If our children grow up and go out into the Great World it is because we have done everything possible to help them. If your children grow up it is wholly a matter of luck."

Mrs. Toad was fairly choking with indignation. "No such thing!" she declared. "It isn't wholly a matter of luck. It is very largely in the start they are given. It is in seeing to it that her children are given a proper start that a mother's duty lies. Given a proper start the children will get on all right. I know my duty and don't you think I don't! My children will have the proper start and they'll be able to take care of themselves while your's are still crying to be fed. There is such a thing as giving children too much care and spoiling them."

"And there is such a thing as not giving them care enough!" declared Mrs. Redwing, who had arrived just in time to hear the last remark.

Mrs. Toad turned her back on the Redwings. "Come on" said she to Old Mr. Toad. "I'll show you where the eggs will be placed this year. There is a lovely bed of weeds which will furnish the very best of food for the babies and at the same time give them a perfect hiding place."

She led Mr. Toad to the bed of water weeds, and there a few days later she carefully twined among them long strings of tiny eggs in a jelly-like substance. This finished, she led the way to another part of the Smiling Pool. "There," said she "my duty is done. The children can't help but get a good start there, and that is all we need to think about. I don't believe in worrying over children."

What To-Day Means To You

"GEMINI"

If May 31st is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a.m. to 10.30 a.m., from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m. and from 10.15 p.m. to 11.45 p.m. The danger periods are from noon to 1.30 p.m., and from 6 p.m. to 7.20 p.m.

Planetary aspects for May 31st will create feelings of false optimism, and moods rash, more than courageous, will prevail. Guard against swindlers and touters and do not risk any financial hazards! Do not tempt Fate on this date; she will be playing with marked cards, and you had better not call her hand.

The child born on this May 31st will have a gay and volatile nature, combined with a strongly imaginative turn of mind. It may not, in early years, excel in the dull routine of the schoolroom, finding disciplinary measures oppressive and irksome. In later years, however, when it has found its true vocation, it will plunge into studies with an energy and a light-heartedness that will both amaze and delight its parents.

You, if born on May 31st, are so impulsive that you are more fortunate than wise. You are content to enjoy the sunshing days of the future. You have an airy and a care-free nature, and although you do not mean to be thoughtless of others, your rash acts often cause unlimited worry to those near and dear to you. You are rather unsettled, and although you have excellent possibilities and could achieve wonderful results along artistic lines, your enthusiasm are as short as they are violent. You are better off working for somebody else than carrying on by yourself.

Your personality is engaging and entertaining, but this does not prevent you being somewhat shy and reticent in the presence of strangers. With friends, however, you let yourself go and reveal yourself as a charming companion. You are tactful and generous in your dealings with other people, and are always ready to overlook a fault. If you are occasionally disappointed you do not brood over it and allow it to embitter your outlook but dismiss it abruptly from your mind and proceed to forget all about it. This power of dismissing unpleasant things from your mind gives you an easy contentment and happiness.

CLOSING MEETING FOR YOUNG PEOPLE

Disband for Summer; Ladies' Aid Makes Grant to Church.

QUEENSBORO, May 31. — (Examiner Correspondence). — The Ladies' Aid met at the home of Mrs. Charles Thompson, with a good attendance. The president, Mrs. Goldwin Holmes, occupied the chair.

Donations for the bazaar were received from Mrs. Harry Tokley, Mrs. Hary DeClair and Mrs. Goldwin Holmes. The aid voted fifty dollars toward the funds of the church board. Mrs. Everson was appointed to see about a program for the next meeting, which is to be held at the home of Mrs. Harry Tokley one week earlier than usual on account of the church picnic, planned for the first of July on the church grounds.

Mrs. C. B. Hamm, of Madoc, a former member of the society, closed the meeting with prayer.

Young People's Society.

The closing meeting of the Hassard's Young People's Society until next fall was held in the church on Thursday evening under the leadership of Miss Alma Moorcroft, convenor of the social and recreational department. Miss Marion Mutton opened the meeting with a hymn and prayer. The topic, dealing with the place of art in human life, was taken by the convenor and most ably dealt with. After a short talk on the topic and exhibition of some pictures, Miss Moorcroft demonstrated the subject by drawings on the blackboard. These were very instructive and entertaining, as well as revealing the artistic qualities of the convenor.

Charles and Miss Alma Keene sang a duet; Miss Annie McCoy gave an organ instrumental; Roy Moorcroft and Clarence Haydon played a couple of selections on the violin and harp, each also playing a mouth-organ; Raymond Gunsolus gave a reading, which was much enjoyed; Miss Ethel McKillican gave a paper bearing on the topic, and Miss Gertie Anderson gave a paper also.

At the close of the meeting a resolution was moved by Miss Mutton, the president, and seconded by Dennis Chapman and unanimously received, extending to the pastor, the Rev. J. F. Everson, the appreciation and thanks of the members of the society their thanks for his helpfulness and co-operation in carrying on the work since organization last fall.

The meeting was closed with the Mizpah benediction.

Farm Hand Injured When Colt Kicks

MILLBROOK, May 31 (Examiner Correspondence). — Stanley Theobald was severely injured on Sunday afternoon when he was kicked in the left side by a colt, which was in the farm yard at the home of Lloyd Sutton, Eighth Line, Cavan, where the injured man has been employed for the past six years, just as he had unharnessed the team with which he had been working, and was about to take the horses into the barn for the night.

The colt had not been broken in, and was apparently in a playful mood when the accident occurred. The imprint of its hoof was left as clearly marked as though branded in the flesh of the young man's side. Mr. Theobald is 20 years of age, and a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Theobald of Millbrook. Dr. Hamilton, of Bethany, gave medical attention, and though no bones are thought to be broken, severe suffering has resulted from the unfortunate happening.

TUSCAN KNIGHT UPSETS CHOICES

Slow to Start, But Wins Dash by Two Lengths—Pays $16.75.

DAILY DOUBLE

KING'S PARK, Montreal, May 31.—Two-year-olds made their first appearance here this season in the opening race at King's Park yesterday afternoon and for the first time in the history of the track, a race was run at a half a mile.

The race went to the odds on favorite Washout which dominated the event throughout, taking the lead at the start and scoring handily at the end over Whizzing D, which was close in pursuit all through, and Column Right.

Seevral Canadian bred youngsters made their first racing appearance in the race.

The battling finishes which marked Saturday's racing were renewed when Margaret Cal won the second in a driving battle, with only a head margin over Hat Brush. The winner, a stoutly-backed favorite, was away in front, but Hat Brush gained rapidly, drew up even on the final bend, and there was a driving battle right to the wire, with the choice scoring by a head. Sun Bonny was a remote third.

Tuscan Knight upset the run of winning choices when returned an easy winner in the third, a dash of six and a half furlongs. Slow to get going, he was in the rear ranks going to the first turn but slipped through on the inside, and moving to the outside in the back stretch drew away handily to win by a couple of lengths over Belmons and Golden Sandals. This completed the first daily double, which paid $59.40. Tuscan Knight returned $16.75.

Probate made his first start of the season auspiciously by easily outfooting a band of Canadian-breds, going six and one-half furlongs. The winners raced up with good speed through the back stretch to wrest command from Varsity and was not threatened the rest of the journey, winning by three lengths. Varsity, after being shuffled back, came again to head out Rose Spot in the final strides.

Complaint Registered

An executive member complained about a team playing a player who was not fully registered seven days. After considerable debate and the finding of the executive of a whole, the chairman informed the club representative that this infringement will not be tolerated and other clubs were to take notice accordingly that they must abide by the rules.

W. H. Carr made application as an official referee under the jurisdiction of the P. and D.F.A.. He will be requested to appear before the examination board next Monday evening at 7.30, with Jack Clark acting chairman.

Golfers To Revert Old Playoff System

SAUNTON, Eng., May 31 (AP)—In view of the many objections from competitors to the system of two qualifying rounds and match play for only 64 players in the British women's golf championship this year, the Ladies Golf Union is expected to go back to the old system of all match play in 1933.

This was indicated to-day as Glen Eagles, in the Scottish highlands was selected as the scene of the tournament and plans for it were discussed.

This year's tournament was played under the new system as an experiment and met little praise and much opposition. English tournaments traditionally have been all match play, the competitors meeting on the day set and having at each other in 18-hole matches until the two finalists were decided. The British amateur is played in that way as well as most of the minor tournaments.

C.G.E. Box Lacrosse Club Debut To-Night

A fast, rugged C.G.E. lacrosse team makes its City Box Lacrosse League debut at 8.30 to-night up at the Rock, tackling Orde's in what promises to be an exciting fixture. Both teams are in the pink, with several stiff workouts in the past week or ten days. With the Electric seven made up of several experienced exponents of the gutted stick game and the rest of the team being hockey players and other athletes, the Orde bunch will find they have a tough job on their hands.

The latter outfit is fast, tricky and always ready to swap stiff bodychecks. With so many hockey stars on this line-up, it is natural enough to see them rough it up at times, as was true of last week's classy battle between Brinton's and Orde's. Box lacrosse looks to be in a fair way of carving a niche for itself in the community's sport gallery, and these City League teams to-night will be in there trying all evening.

Lawn Bowling

In spite of the fact that last night was the opening of the regular schedule some of the bowlers played in "mid-season form." Besides overdraws, etc., some of the more experienced players indulged in "runners" and even a few "killed" some ends.

Alderman McNabb pulled one last night for the "book." He was lucky enough to get a perfect end, or a score of 8 against Bob Coleman.

One pleasing feature about last night's bowling was the number of new bowlers on hand. And, moreover they were having a good time.

The following were the scores for the night's play:

Dyer 11, Skinner 19.
Bredin 16, Hendry 24.
Clegg 8, Hutchinson 20.
Fitzpatrick 9, Johnson 28.
Dr. Allen 7, Norm Routly 28.
Anderson 14, Glover 17.
R. Coleman 14, McNabb 24.
Harrison 10, Barton 19.
F. Brown 11, J. T. Braund 14.
G. Sorensen won from Mr. Ross by default.

The following games will be played to-night:

Howden vs. Nels Routly.
Wilf Wood vs. Freeman.
Cullen vs. Cairns.
G. Coleman Sr. vs. Oke.
Maynecord vs. Hill.
G. Coleman Jr. vs. A. Brown.
W. E. Taylor vs. Wall.
Bennett vs. Chesler.
Donaldson vs. Gimblett.
H. Wood vs. Disney.

There are no scheduled games for Wednesday afternoon, but the greens will be open for anyone wanting a "scratch" game.

U.S. Tennis Player Next Meets Brazil

PHILADELPHIA, May 31 (C.P.)—The United States next step in the quest for the Davis Cup—the encounter with Brazil in the zone finals—will be taken by the same four players who yesterday completed the clean sweep of the matches against the Australian tennis team.

Chosen last night by the Davis Cup selection committee, H. Elsworth Vines and Frank X. Shields, singles stars, and Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn, the doubles team, look forward to a meeting with the Brazilians probably next Saturday, Sunday and Monday at Forest Hills, L.I.

Previous plans called for this quartette to leave immediately for England to engage in the Wimbledon championships beginning June 20, but the tentative moving up of the engagement with Brazil brought about a decision to keep them in this country to meet the South Americans.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION. NO. 14 By Edgar Rice Burroughs
(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

In another part of the jungle events were transpiring that were to entangle Tarzan in the meshes of a great adventure. A black porter caught his foot in a hanging vine and stumbled, throwing his load to the ground. Of such trifles are crises made! This one altered the entire life of Jimmy Blake, American, rich, young and handsome and on his first African big game hunt.

Blake's "Safari" had encountered the poorest of luck and was about to turn back to Railhead. Wilbur Stimbol had come as Jimmy's guest and guide but had proved rather a poor sport. Now he was disgruntled by Blake's decision to return home. Suddenly the load, falling from the black porter's shoulders crashed forward into Stimbol, hurling him to the ground.

Stimbol and the black porter scrambled to their feet amidst the laughter of the negroes who had witnessed the accident. The porter grinned. Stimbol was livid with rage. Before anyone could interfere, the white man struck the black a terrific blow in the face that felled him, and as he lay there Stimbol kicked him savagely, yelling: "Take that, you clumsy cur!"

Before he could repeat the outrage, Blake seized him by the shoulder, wheeled him about and struck him precisely as he had struck the black. Stimbol fell, rolled over and reached for his automatic. Before he could draw it, Blake had him covered with a .45. "Out that!" said Blake crisply. "Now get up and listen to me."

BOY HAS LOST SIGHT OF EYE

Five Year Old Chap Was Struck in Eye While Riding With Parents.

PELTED BY MISSILES.

Five-year-old James Smith, who was admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital suffering from injuries received when the car in which he was riding with his parents on Saturday night was pelted with a barrage of missiles, will lose the sight of his right eye.

Definite announcement that the sight of the child's right eye has been destroyed was made to The Examiner by Dr. N. D. Buchanan, who also believed it probable that the eyeball would have to be removed. The little boy's general condition is reported by hospital authorities to be favorable.

As reported in last night's Examiner, Mr. Smith, accompanied by his wife and son, was motoring on the road running west of Crawford's Grove about ten o'clock on Saturday. Without any warning to the occupants of the car, a barrage of missiles was thrown through the windows, showering glass in the interior of the car. The right eyeball of the boy was cut through.

Obituary

MRS. MARY DOLBY

The death occurred, May 17, in Pasadena, California, of Mrs. Mary Dolby. The deceased was a resident of Peterborough with her husband, William Dolby, and children for eleven years, leaving here in 1926 for Pasadena.

She leaves, her sorrowing husband; one daughter, Louise Dolby of Montreal, Que., and three sons, Gordon of Rockland, Mass.; Thomas of Alhambra, and William of Pasadena.

The funeral was held May 20, with entombment at Forest Lawn Mausoleum.

MISS BRIDGET O'CONNOR

The death occurred, recently in Edmonton, of Miss Bridget O'Connor, 102, believed to be Edmonton's oldest woman, and a resident of that city for the past 20 years.

The deceased was born in Peterborough, moving from here to Montreal, then taking up residence in Edmonton. She had been active until her last illness overtook her, a fews weeks ago.

She is survived by a nephew, Thomas O'Connor, Edmonton, and a brother Jack, living in Chicago.

The funeral was held, May 20, from St. Joseph's Cathedral, with interment in the Edmonton R.C. cemetery.

ELIZABETH (BETTY) STAUNTON

The funeral of little Betty Staunton, eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Staunton, 854 George Street, took place yesterday, and was attended by an unusually large cortege. The public expression of condolence from many friends and the many handsome and beautiful floral tributes received from as far as Los Angeles testified to the widespread sadness caused by the death of the little girl, and the kindly sympathy extended to her sorrowing parents and two little brothers.

Ven. Archdeacon Blagrave officiated and six choir boys from St. John's Church acted as pallbearers. They were Walter Howell, Roy Pitchford, Victor Coleman, Alex. Chivas, Everitt Gibbs and Gerald Perks.

MRS. HENRY STEWART

Mrs. Jane Stewart, widow of Henry Stewart of 406 Sheridan street died to-day at Nicholls Hospital, following a brief illness. She was 68 years of age.

Although in failing health for some months past, Mrs. Stewart was not confined to her bed until the latter end of last week, and last evening she entered Nicholls Hospital on the orders of her physician. Her death will doubtless come as a severe shock to her many friends in Peterborough and throughout the district in which she was so well known and held in highest respect and esteem.

Mrs. Stewart who was a native of Percy Township was prior to her marriage Jane Waddell. Before coming to this city many years ago, she resided in Hastings.

For a long period Mrs. Stewart was proprietress of the old Temperance House which used to stand on Hunter street almost opposite her late residence, and many newcomers to the city in those days may look back with pleasure to the kind consideration and motherly treatment which they could always rely upon receiving at the hands of Mrs. Stewart. Hers was a life of service for others.

She is survived by one son, William of Markham, Ontario, and by two daughters, Mrs. Ralph Carson and Miss Laura Stewart both of Toronto. Her husband was the victim of a motor accident some three or four years ago.

The funeral is to be held on Thursday from the residence, 406 Sheridan street at 2 p.m., with interment in the family plot at Trent Valley cemetery, Hastings.

"The church and the world," he said, "have not too far away from the central note of the Gospel of Christ that in your faith you shall win your souls. HUNDRED BOYS HAVE CAMP DAY

Sunday School Groups Join in Outing at Kawartha.

GAMES AND SPORTS.

Approximately 100 boys and leaders from various Sunday schools in the city enjoyed "A Day In Camp" on Saturday. This was made possible through the co-operation of the Rotary Club through Doug. Loomis, who loaned Camp Kawartha for the day.

The boys left the city at nine o'clock in the morning by motor car and truck, arriving at Camp shortly after 10 o'clock. Rev. C. D. Daniel, Boys' Work Board Camp Drector, then took charge of the proceedings.

Brought Lunch.

Lunch was supplied by the boys themselves, and after a sing-song they had a free period. Jimmy McClenaghan, who was in charge of sports, arrived at 2.30 and started the softball arolling, a short dip in the refreshing waters of Clear Lake and everyone was ready for "Bouillon" tastefully prepared by President Leo Copp and Assistant Chief Browne. Bread and jam and cocoa completed the menu. Group games followed and then came the most impressive part of the day's program. The boys filed one by one, with only the beautiful notes of violin played by Arnold Spencer, into a perfect temple where, led by Camp Director Daniel and assisted by John Hunter and Max Parnell, a vesper service was held. The sun slowly sinking to the west, the partially clouded sky, the magnificent reflection on the water, all sun through the foliage, the softly singing of "Day is Dying in the West," led by music of the violin, and the beautiful readings and prayers will be a long lasting memory in the hearts and minds of all present. The service finished silently and still feeling the awe and spell cast upon them by God's great outdoors the boys filed back to the main hall of the Camp.

Have Fire Meet.

A camp fire had been planned but due to weather conditions the evening program was held around the fire-place, a sing-song, a three C. talk by Mr. Daniels, the presentation of the basketball shields by Rev. Wm. McDonald, a plea for Camp by J. L. Brown, chairman of Camp Committee, and the thought for the whole day summed up by Leo Copp with the singing of "Follow the Gleam," closed the day.

Mr. Browne announced that the Boys' Work Board had made arrangements for Kawartha Camp for the week of July 4th-11th, and wished all the boys who had enjoyed themselves during the day to try hard to be in attendance when an equally good time when the same leaders will be in charge.

The Board is gratefully indebted to Messrs. Andrews, McDonald, Gillespie, Tranter, Daniel, Copp, Ferguson, Potter, Gillies, Allen and Barrie for the use of their cars for the day.

Camp broke up at 9 p.m., but a hitch in arrangements of transportation left some of the boys in camp until a few of the cars made a return trip from Peterborough for them. Some anxious parents were relieved to find that their boys were safe and sound, although somewhat belated in their return to the city.

The Weather

May, with its first installment of beautiful summer weather, is now a thing of the past, and June with its romance and roses has been ushered in. The highest temperature during May was 82 degrees on the 16th, but there were three other days with 80 or over. The lowest temperature was 38 degrees, on the 5th. The temperature also touched the freezing point on the 2nd, 3rd and 22nd, and came very close on several other days. Some damage to plants was done on the 22nd in a few sections. The rainfall was 2.50. The heaviest was on the 27th, when there was a fall of .85 in a thunderstorm. There was rain on ten days. The Maples began to leaf on the 12th; they were in full leaf by the 27th—three days later than the average date.—W. P.

Premier Bennett Asks Archbishop To Fix Day of Prayer for Conference

LONDON, June 1 (C.P. Cable). — The Archbishop of Canterbury told the Convocation of the Upper House of Canterbury today he had been approached by the Canadian Prime Minister in regard to the possibility of setting aside a day of prayer for the success of the Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa.

Although he did not feel justified in encouraging the proposal because it did not seem right to isolate the Ottawa Conference from other international meetings, the Archbishop said, he would emphasize the call to all Christian citizens to remember constantly and earnestly in their prayers the statesmen who were bearing so tremendous a responsibility.

BOARD OF EDUCATION PROTESTS TO CITY COUNCIL AND ENDORSES ACTION TAKEN BY ITS CHAIRMAN

Lack of Cooperation Between Two Bodies is Regretted in Motion.

BESSBOROUGH VISIT.

Failure to Include Member on Reception Basis of Protest.

That the representations to the City Council and the press recently made by Mrs. W. R. Morris were a dignified and respectful protest from a body second only in importance to the City Council, and that failure to include a member of the Board of Education on the reception committee to the Earl of Bessborough, Governor General of Canada, warranted a further official protest to the Council was the general opinion expressed in discussion of the question at a special meeting of the Board of Education last evening.

In opening the discussion, Mrs. Morris, chairman, stated a special meeting of the Board had been called for two reasons. In the first place, she said, she wished her fellow members of the Board to either approve or disapprove of the action, or lack of action on her part in regard to the arrangements for the recent visit of the Governor General. Secondly, the meeting had been called, she explained, by reason of the fact that five members of the Board expected to be out of the city during the early part of next week.

In giving the Board a full report of the circumstances which led her to make formal protest to the City Council, Mrs. Morris remarked: "If you are not satisfied with what I did, it is for you to say so." She also said she had paid particular thought as to whether she should have consulted the Board before taking the action which she had, but she decided it was not necessary as she was acting on the assumption that neglect to include a representative of the

Sin Makes Papers Read, Says Divine

KITCHENER, Ont., June 1. —Newspapers are popular because they present sin on their front pages, stories of murders, robberies, details of shameful human lust, immoralities of mankind, rumors of wars and deceit, declared Dr. J. Maurer, D.D., pastor of the First English Lutheran church, Kitchener, in his Synodical sermon at the opening service of the Evangelical Lutheran Synod in St. Johns' church, Waterloo, last night. His remark was made by way of explaining that human nature is interested in sin. For the same reason church papers which do not carry the stories of sin are read with little interest. Rev. Mr. Maurer contended.

LEONA CHENEY IS ELIMINATED IN SEMI-FINAL

Sole Surviving Foreigner Loses to Enid Wilson Three and Two.

COURAGEOUS STAND.

Miss Montgomery Gains Finalist Position by Defeating Mrs. H. Clarke.

STAUNTON, Devonshire, Eng., June 1 (C.P.)—Miss Enid Wilson, defending champion, defeated Mrs. Leona Cheney, sole surviving foreigner, three and two, in their semi-final in the British women's golf championship here to-day. Miss Wilson led all the way. At the turn she was one up.

Miss Purvis-Russell-Montgomery, defeated Mrs. H. Clarke, of Ireland, in the other semi-final, three and two, and will play Miss Wilson to-morrow in the 36-hole final.

Miss Wilson, a powerful player with the wooden clubs, crushed Mrs. Cheney on the long finishing holes where the American woman had trouble with her brassie.

Playing close to par all the way Miss Wilson delivered the final blow with a tremendous wood shot to the edge of the 16th green, while Mrs. Cheney was topping a brassie shot. It was simple then for the British girl to chip up close and sink a six-foot putt for the hole and the match.

It was a gallant campaign for a title no American has ever won and Mrs. Cheney received congratulations from British as well as American onlookers in the galleries for her courageous stand against a woman who must be counted with the great of English golf.

SOCIETY SCORES USE OF ANIMALS AS ATTRACTION

Twelfth Annual Convention of Humane Society Here.

OVER 100 DELEGATES.

Reviews Work Accomplished in Alleviating Practices of Cruelty to Animals.

The question of maintaining wild animals as an attraction for wayside service stations occupied the attention this morning of the delegates and members attending the twelfth annual convention of the Provincial Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, meeting here for a two-day session in the Empress Hotel.

The registration of out-of-town and local people totalled fifty-five at noon to-day, with more expected later. They included delegates and members from Toronto, Kingston, St. Catharines, Galt, Picton, Kitchener, Oshawa, Guelph and Port Hope. The Peterborough society, which has a membership of 111, was well represented at the opening session. Among those already here are Miss Marshall Saunders, of Toronto, well-known authoress and very active in Humane Society endeavors; J. J. Kelso of Toronto, who is treasurer of the Provincial S.P.C.A., and is also prominent throughout the province as superintendent for Ontario of the Children's Aid Society; Lt.-Col. D. S. Tambiyn, D.V.Sc., O.B.E., of Kingston, who is president of the Kingston Humane Society and author of the book entitled "The Horse in War"; J. M. Wilson, of Toronto, manager of the Ontario Society, and just returned from Bermuda, after an absence made necessary by too much devotion to work, also Major G. A. Heather of Kitchener, whose delightful Irish accent doesn't coincide altogether with his very Scotch name.

Morning Session.

This morning's session, held in the ladies' parlor at the Empress, was presided over by Mr. Wilson, while Mr. Kelso spoke briefly, welcoming the delegates and giving a brief review of the work accomplished by Humane Societies during the past fifty years.

Older Cruelties.

Mr. Kelso referred to many of the abuses common in the past, which have been largely wiped out by endeavors of humane organizations, such as cock and dog fighting, the shooting of pigeons and other live birds, clipping horses in winter time, beating horses, using old horses in the streets, the tight check rein, the use of ill-fitting and broken harness and blinders, careless and brutal treatment of animals in abatoirs and slaughter houses, the tieing of live chickens' legs on the markets and suspending them from pegs, plucking fowl while still alive, abuse of food animals while transporting them on trains, neglecting animals in country places, poor stabling of horses and general indifference to animals.

The minutes of the previous annual meeting in St. Catharines were read by Mr. Wilson, who also gave the financial statement.

Balance For Year.

Commencing the year with a balance on hand of $1,809.23, the total receipts during the twelve-months amounted to $4,455.14, including

Estranged Husband Takes His Own Life After Slaying Two

Hamilton Man Slays His Father-In-Law And Fatally Wounds His Wife's Brother After Breaking Into Home.

SEPARATED FROM HIS WIFE—DIVORCE ACTION SCHEDULED TO COME UP IN COURT TO-DAY.

Deeply Distressed At Prospect Of Separation From His Wife And Little Child—Entered Home Seeking Wife.

HAMILTON, Ont., June 1 (C.P.). — Grim tragedy was enacted early this morning when Frederick Daniel Gowdy, 28, broke into the home of his father-in-law, slew two persons, and later ended his own life.

Three deaths marked the conclusion of a long story of love and hatred.

William Butcher, 173 Wood Street East, Gowdy's father-in-law, was killed by a single shot from a shotgun in the hands of Gowdy at 2.30 this morning. His son, Bertram Butcher, died in the hospital shortly before seven o'clock of wounds inflicted by the same weapon.

Gowdy was separated from his wife, and a divorce action was pending, the case being scheduled to be called in the Supreme Court here to-day. Some months ago, the young man was charged with assaulting his wife and the case was heard in County Criminal Court. Suspended sentence was allowed, the Judge commenting that Gowdy seemed to be much-wronged man. Since that time the young husband started action for divorce, and seemed deeply distressed at the prospect of separation from his wife and little child. Yesterday he haunted the court house and seemed very distraught.

Broke Into Home.

During the night, he evidently reached a terrible resolution, and arming himself with a shotgun, broke into the Butcher home. He is believed to have been seeking his wife, but entered his father-in-law's bedroom, the room where his wife usually slept. Mr. Butcher confronted the intruder and conversed with him for a few moments in the bathroom. It was evident from the conversation that Butcher did not know who the man was who stood before him in the dark. A snarled warning not to move was heard by Mrs. Butcher in a room nearby, and then the shot boomed out that ended the elder man's life. Gowdy then attempted to escape from the house, but was pursued

MINERS REFUSE STRIKE POLICY OVER COAL BILL

By a Narow Majority Decide to Negotiate With Government.

SEEK AMENDMENTS.

Call Upon House to Ratify Geneva Convention on Hours of Work.

LONDON, June 1 (C.P. Cable).—The conference of National delegates of the Miners' Federation declined to-day to adopt a strike policy in protest against the Government's Coal Mines Bill.

Instead the miners' representatives passed, by a narrow majority, a resolution instructing the Executive Committee to negotiate with the Government over the question of strengthening the Coal Mines National Board in order to meet the circumstances that will arise at the end of 12 months, when the gentleman's agreement regarding wages expires.

Statutory Basis.

The resolution also requests the miners' representatives in the House of Commons to press for necessary amendments to the bill towards meeting the miners' demands which are for placing wages on a statutory basis and for ratifying the international working hours convention, which sets a seven-hour day.

The Government is called upon to ratify the Geneva Convention on hours of work underground, which would reduce the working day by half an hour, and is asked to press for international economic agreements on output, prices and markets.

Small Majority.

The card vote was 278,000 for the resolution and 239,000 against.

The Government's bill was given second reading in the House last evening after defeat of a Labor amendment which would have rejected it on the ground it failed to include a scheme of reorganization and unification of the coal industry.

MAKE ENQUIRY INTO SALARIES PAID BY BOARD

Whole Expenditure Question Will Be Thoroughly Considered.

CUT OUT FRILLS.

Hancock Declares Revision of Teachers' Salaries Save City $35,000.

In presenting his motion at last night's special meeting of the local Board of Education, asking that the Committee of Appointments be directed to investigate and enquire into the salaries of all persons employed by the Board, with a view to making recommendations for reductions of ten per cent in the salaries of teachers and other employees, W. J. Hancock opened up a lengthy discussion.

His motion, which was seconded by E. F. Reid was defeated while an amendment moved by Dr. G. R. Scott and A. J. Lillico carried the vote. Dr. Scott's amendment asked that the committee of appointments of the Board of Education be directed to enquiry immediately into the salaries of employees of the Board.

A further resolution that carried unanimously on motion of I. P. McNabb and seconded by Dr. J. J. Craig was, "that the chairman of the Board of Education call at as early a date as possible a special meeting of the Board to decide upon any economies that can be effected and that the various committees be requested to meet also with a view to bringing in recommendations to effect such economies, in view of existing conditions may decide is necessary.

ditions may decide is necessary."

Reduce Expenditures

In opening up the discussion Mr. Hancock said he felt the time had come when something should be done to reduce the expenditure of the Board of Education. "I believe", he said, "there are qualified teachers willing to work for less than the teachers we now have." He also expressed the belief that if the teachers salaries were revised a saving could be effected of $35,000. The question should be taken up at once in order to give the teachers a fair chance to resign, or to take other action which they saw fit.

Dr. Scott felt that it was "small"

CHARGE AGAINST COX DISMISSED

No Evidence of Wanton Negligence Magistrate Langley Finds.

ACCIDENT APRIL 30.

Remarking that the case was "a very close one," but that upon the evidence before him he could not find that the accused had been guilty of wilful and wanton negligence, and expressing the opinion that the accident was rather the result of incompetence in the handling of the car, Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., to-day dismissed the charge of criminal negligence against Adam H. Cox of 188 Douro Street, City.

All the evidence in the case against Cox was heard before the Police Magistrate two weeks ago, the accused having been defended by R. R. Hall, K.C.

In giving his decision this morning, the Magistrate recalled that the accused was driving an automobile south on George Street on the afternoon of April 30, when it stalled at the intersection of George and Hunter Streets for some reason. In evidence the accused had stated that he got out of the car to crank it and had turned the engine over a couple of times without effect. He then went to the car on the left side and operated the choke, subsequently again going to the front of the car to crank it.

The accused had testified that as he turned the crank the car lurched forward with the result that a number of persons were more or less seriously injured.

The real question to be decided was as to whether Cox had neglected his duty by failing to take reasonable precautions and care when in control of the car. In order to establish the charge against the accused it had to be definitely established that the accused was guilty of gross and wanton negligence.

BILL TO ABOLISH RIGHT OF APPEAL BEING DRAFTED IN FREE STATE

Would Do Away With All Appeals to British Privy Council.

PART OF PROGRAM.

DUBLIN, June 1 (C.P.). — The Republican Government of the Irish Free State is drafting a bill to wipe out appeals to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, the highest tribunal in the Empire.

The Government, it is understood, hopes to submit the bill to the Dail Eireann before the summer adjournment on July 8. It is an adjunct to the proposals to withhold payment of the land annuities to Great Britain, and to abolish the Parliamentary oath of allegiance to the Crown.

The right of appeal to the Privy Council is already in effect virtually inoperative in the Free State. In several measures passed by the Free State Parliament under the former Cosgrave administration decisions of the Privy Council were nullified. But these measures applied to particular cases; they were not general.

The proposed bill attacks the general right of appeal.

ADOLF HITLER NOT TO OPPOSE VON PAPEN'S NEW GOVERNMENT BUT AWAIT ELECTION CHANCES

Nazis Decide Upon a Policy of Neutrality in German Reichstag.

SABOTAGE LEADER.

Von Papen Plotted Against Canada and Directed Spies.

BERLIN, June 1 (C.P.).—Adolf Hitler, stocky, blue-eyed former Austrian Army corporal, who last night threatened to block the efforts of generals of the Kaiser's old Imperial Army in their efforts to form a new German Cabinet was inclined to change his mind to-day, leaders of his National Socialist Party indicated.

Hitler's headquarters announced late last night that the Nazis would not support a Cabinet formed by Franz Von Papen, former officer of the general staff of the Imperial Army, who was selected yesterday by President Paul Von Hindenburg, former field marshal, to succeed Dr. Heinrich Bruening as Chancellor.

To-day, however, later counsels in the Nazi camp tended toward a policy of neutrality toward a Von Papen Cabinet until such time as new general elections are most convenient, which, it was said, would probably be after harvest time when the farmers would have time to listen to political speeches.

Nazi Delay Decision.

The final decision of the Nazi position is still to be formally made however, but there was also a tendency on the part of the party leaders to shy away from responsibility for the coming Lausanne Conference on war debts and reparations, and the odium which might come from a failure of the conference.

As a result of the new Nazi attitude the Von Papen Cabinet seemed to-day to have a chance of governing Germany, at least for a short time. The newspapers dubbed it a Feudal Cabinet on account of the prospect of its being dominated by members of the old German nobility.

It Hitler's decision to oppose the Cabinet had held he probably would have had little trouble defeating it on a vote of no confidence in the Reichstag. To do so would have required gathering 177 votes to join with his 107 Nazi strength. To furnish these 177 votes he would have 143 Socialists, 77 Communists, and 68 Centrists, gathering 177 votes to join with his 107 Nazi strength. To furnish these 177 votes he would have 143 Socialists, 77 Communists and 68 Centrists to draw upon.

Ordered Recalled.

Von Papen was military attache at the German Embassy in Washington during the early part of the war and was recalled by the Kaiser at the request of the United States' government for his military and naval activities.

In April, 1916, he was indicted by a Federal Grand Jury in New York in connection with an alleged conspiracy to blow up the Welland canal. There were numerous charges that he had participated in directing the activities of Ger-

ROUSING WELCOME.

LONDON, Ont., June 1 (C.P.) — All the Conservative Members of Parliament and of the Legislature of Ontario representing Western Ontario constituencies were in the city this morning for the ninth annual convention of the Western Ontario Conservative Association. At 10.45 o'clock they gathered to welcome Premier Bennett; Hon. W. A. Gordon, Minister of Labor; Hon. D. M. Sutherland, Minister of National Defence, and Armand Lavergne, Deputy Speaker of the House of Commons.

Premier George S. Henry of Ontario and seven members of his Cabinet were greeted when they arrived in the city from Toronto, mostly by motors.

Never before in the history of London have so many Ministers and Parliamentarians in office been in the city at one time, and they were given a rousing welcome by Londoners and by people from all the 14 counties of Western Ontario.

Following an organization meeting in camera, Mr. Bennett, Mr. Henry, the members of the Federal and Provincial Cabinets, and those of their wives who were present, were entertained at a private luncheon.

The convention proper opens at 2 o'clock this afternoon, when Premier Henry will be the chief speaker. Premier Bennett will be the main speaker at the evening banquet to be attended by about 1,650 persons.

MINERS THREATEN NATIONAL STRIKE

British Miners Object to Government's New Coal Bill.

LONDON, June 1. (C. P. Cable) The executive of the Miners Federation called a meeting to-day to discuss alternatives between acceptance of the government's new coal bill and calling for nation-wide stoppage of work in coal mines.

The miners base their objections to the Government's measure on grounds that it does not ratify the international convention which would limit working hours underground to seven a day. Their protest also that a guarantee by mine owners that they will maintain existing wage schedules for another year does not provide sufficient security. The Government, they say, should take some legislative action to regulate wages.

The bill was given second reading in the House of Commons last night after defeat of a Labor amendment calling for its rejection on the ground it failed to provide a scheme for reorganization of the coal industry which would replace it in the economic structure of the country.

Hitler Pays Tribute To Henrich Bruening

WEIMAR, Germany, June 1 (CP). —Adolf Hitler, leader of the German National Socialists, paid tribute to-day to the "diligence and energy" of Dr. Heinrich Bruening, who resigned Monday as Germany's Chancellor.

ARMY BALLOON OVER ALBERTA ONLY ONE LEFT

Expect to Reach Edmonton and Establish a New Race Record.

BALLOON IS FIRED ON.

Six Balloonists Started Out From Omaha on Monday Evening.

OMAHA, Neb., June 1 (C.P.) — Victory in the United States nation balloon race and possibly a new record remained literally in the air to-day as the United States army balloon No. 2, only bag still aloft of six that started from here Monday, was reported swinging toward Central Alberta.

Despatches from the Canadian Province indicated the bag and its pilot, Lieut. W. J. Paul, had excellent prospects of getting as far north as Edmonton, more than 400 air miles farther southwest than the spot in Saskatchewan where the Goodyear VII, fifth to land, came to earth yesterday.

Edmonton, it was unofficially estimated, is about 1,250 air miles from Omaha, and should Lieut. Paul reach it, he will break the record of 1,072 miles set in 1924 by W. T. Van Orman, when he soared from San Antonio, Texas, to Rochester, Minn.

Settled in Saskatchewan

The Goodyear VII, piloted by Roland Blair and Frank Trottier, travelled approximately 750 miles from Omaha, settling near Tyvan, Sask. Approximate distances covered by the other four pilots were: Capt. W. J. Flood, United States Army No. 1, 600 miles; Tracy Southworth, Chevrolet Motor Company balloons, 410 miles; E. J. Hill, City of Omaha, 450 miles, and Pete Larsen, Omaha Junior Chamber of Commerce entry, 10 miles.

The Army No. 2 in last previous reports was sighted late yesterday, about 150 miles southwest of Regina, and the later report indicated it has crossed into Alberta and was continuing rapidly toward Edmonton.

Dropped Very Low

Two Gull Lake residents reported the bag dropped low enough as it passed over the town early yesterday so they could grasp its ropes and stop it.

"Are we near Regina" asked one of the bag's occupants. Informed it lay 758 miles to the west, the army balloonists shot back up into the air and passed from view into the west. The bag was identified by a big blue patch on its side.

The pilots of the Goodyear VII, upon landing, told Tyvan residents several shots were fired at them in the Province of Manitoba, apparently from a high-powered rifle.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., June 1 (C.P.). — The motion picture studio where Greta Garbo has been employed for the past several years apparently has concluded the film star really meant business when she said, "I tank I go back Sweden." The studio has presented her with a traveling bag.

Miss Garbo's contract officially ended to-day, although she made her last appearance before the camera some weeks ago.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios had sought to have the Swedish star sign a renewal of her contract. She announced she preferred farm life in her home land to Hollywood.

Her manager announced last Sunday the actress would leave Hollywood within ten days for Sweden for an indefinite stay.

Film producers list Miss Garbo as the film's greatest box office attraction to-day. Whether or not the studios had failed to meet her salary demands was not revealed.

by young Butcher, who in turn fell wounded by a charge of shot.

Police were summoned and removed young Butcher to the hospital, but he died shortly before seven o'clock today. He had sustained terrible wounds when the charge from Gowdy's gun struck him in the abdomen at close range. He remained conscious until his death.

Mr. Butcher, Sr., died as the result of a large artery in the lower part of his body being severed by the shot, investigations made later revealed.

A thrilling man-hunt took place at dawn as police sought the murderer. About twenty officers had surrounded the Butcher house on Wood street after the alarm was received. A fisherman informed police that he had seen a man with a shot gun running down Wellington street in the direction of the dump. The man had crossed into the dump area and disappeared into the gloom and a few moments later a shot rang out.

The police formed a cordon around the area and waited for daylight. Shortly after their arrival a second shot was heard, when it became light. The officers moved across the space, converging upon the center and the body of Gowdy was discovered.

INTERRUPTIONS IN SERVICE

The regular monthly meeting of the Peterborough Utilities Commission was held yesterday afternoon. Mayor Denne requested the Commission to rearrange the poles on north Water Street where the city is building a park. The Commission assured the Mayor that the poles would be set right.

The following letter was received from the chief engineer of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, Engineering Department, Toronto, re interruptions to service on April 10 and 11:

"In accordance with the request contained in your letter of the 19th instant, we are submitting the following information in explanation of the interruptions of your service which occurred on April 10 and 11.

"As you know, the 44 kv. system set-up on the above dates was not normal due to the fact that special provision had been made to supply the Peterborough load over the No. 2 circuit from the line running between Peterborough and Healey Falls in order that changes might be made in the Quburn switching structure to permanently accommodate and make effective use of the new No. 2 circuit to Peterborough.

"Trouble on the circuit between Healey Falls and Peterborough has been so rare that it was felt the cost of making more elaborate arrangements for the short period that the switching structure would be out of service, was not justified.

"Unfortunately, late on Sunday evening, April 10, trouble developed on an airbreak switch at Norwood D.S. involving the 44 kv. line between Peterborough and Healey Falls, and resulted in interruptions to Peterborough as noted in your letter. The fact that this trouble at Norwood occurred while special conditions existed at Auburn Station was, of course, purely an unfortunate coincidence.

"The information conveyed to you by Mr. Archer was quite correct in accordance with his understanding of the situation when he left Peterborough on April 9, but our System Operating Superintendent saw fit to revise and advance the program to facilitate and accelerate the completion of the work at Auburn Station. The final object of this change of program was, of course, to reduce the time during which Peterborough would be fed from one 44 kv. source only, and on that account was quite justifiable."

The following resolutions were passed:

Resolution: That it be pointed out to the Suburban Area Commission that it would be of considerable benefit to the investment of $600,000 which this Commission has at their pumping station and filtration plant, in addition to the benefit it would be to the electrical machinery of the Canadian General Electric Company at the Waterwork Dam, if the road past these properties be paved.

Resolution: That the seven wooden poles on the Market Square be replaced with metal ones, and that the line be rebuilt.

Resolution: It was decided to repeal the 11c per 100 cubic feet rate for metered water so that the rates for metered water will now be 15½c per 100 cubic feet for the first 5,000 cubic feet used per month and 5½c per 100 cubic feet for the balance used per month less 10 per cent. discount for prompt payment; also not to collect thet frontage rate for the laying of the waterworks mains after July 1 next. This frontage rate is 6 cents per lineal foot less 25 per cent. discount for prompt payment.

These changes in the rates will result in an estimated reduction of $3,336.82 a year.

THE DEAD-STOP PLAN.

The attention of Examiner readers is directed to the letter in to-day's issue from Arthur Gabourg, secretary of the Safety League of the Province of Quebec.

Mr. Gaboury's eloquent appeal, based on thirty years' experience as a traffic man and on his observance of how well a similar law is functioning in Quebec, should inspire fresh interest in this Province in the question of reducing level crossing accidents.

Quebec's method of dealing with this important problem was to pass a law requiring all motorists to bring their machines to a stop before venturing over a crossing.

Last year, as Mr. Gaboury points out, there were only 13 grade crossing accidents in Quebec, as compared with 59 in Ontario, and he adds that the reduction will be even more marked as the law becomes better understood and observed.

The secretary of the Quebec League also stresses another point that opponents of the plan overlook, namely, that this stop law is founded on sound psychology and it helps to create a safety habit.

Mr. Gaboury makes out a splendid case in favor of the Quebec plan, and his letter deserves serious consideration.

KEEP CHILDREN OFF THE STREET.

A bulletin from the Ontario Safety League sounds a warning that is sharply accented by the latest accident records—that children should be kept from playing on city streets.

It is pointed out that the accident hazard as a result of this dangerous practice increases at this season of the year because good weather tempts the children to use the roadway as a playground just at a time when motor traffic is approaching its peak for the year.

During April six Ontario children were killed and 110 injured by automobiles, and in the majority of cases the victims were playing on the street—a record that carries its own warning to parents who, in view of the certainty that the peril will become greater with the advent of summer weather and summer traffic conditions, should lose no opportunity of impressing upon children the fact that city streets cannot safely be used as a recreation area.

At the same time the probability that, in spite of repeated warnings, children will at times be found playing on the roadway puts a responsibility upon the shoulders of every motorist to drive according to these conditions and to have his car under control to meet a possible emergency.

The automobile accident record has become as appalling as war, and it should be everybody's duty to bring about safer conditions.

JUST AMATEURS OVER HERE.

From recent revelations made at Washington it is evident that Canadian parliamentarians are mere children in the art of obtaining the most advantage out of the franking privilege their position affords them.

Members of the United States Congress last year, we are told, mailed out last year no fewer than 33,413,032 free pieces of mail, weighing 4,385,007 pounds, upon which the normal postage would have amounted to $723,671.

It is estimated that this avalanche of free mail, largely made up of circulars, would require 123 average length mail trains, or if it were packed in storage cars, would be the equivalent of eight trainloads.

Our Canadian members have never even faintly approached that record, nor have they a chance to cash in on another privilege of the American Congress by which members are enabled to have all kinds of reports and speeches printed in the Congressional Record—corresponding to our Hansard—and thus made available for free mailing.

Some Ottawa parliamentarians may have been guilty of rather lavish use of their free mailing opportunities, but the figures quoted from Washington indicate that the game is merely in its infancy on this side of the border.

HARD TO UNDERSTAND.

One feature of the Ontario political situation that the man on the street finds difficult in understanding is the indifferent attitude adopted by such Liberal papers as the Globe and Star toward the Liberal provincial leader, M. F. Hepburn, M.P.

There was no mention of Mr. Hepburn in the Globe's comment on the West York by-election result, and the Star's editorial on the same subject intimated that if the Liberals had been solidly behind the present leadership the riding might have been won, despite the presence in the field of two other candidates to split up the anti-Government vote.

It would be interesting to know just why these journals are so cold toward the Liberal provincial chieftain.

Is their failure to support Mr. Hepburn due to that leader's tendency to make sensational statements with a boomerang twist to them?

Or can it be traced back to the nominating convention, which in selecting Mr. Hepburn to lead the Liberal party in Ontario scrapped the prohibition plank that had been a prominent part of the Liberal platform?

At all events the Globe, it would seem, is striving rather to ginger up the Henry administration than to advance the cause of Mr. Hepburn, and the Star, while finding little good in the present Government, has not been able to persuade itself to endeavor to have that Government replaced by another headed by Mitchell F. Hepburn.

Meanwhile the Progressive leader, Hon. Harry Nixon, is playing Damon to a Hepburn Pythias, and yet the Progressive party is pronouncedly dry, while the Hepburn forces have tossed prohibition out of their program.

It's all very mystifying.

THE OTTAWA CONFERENCE.

The forthcoming Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa, of which so much is expected, will not deal merely with tariffs and preferences on raw materials. Many of its problems will relate to industries in which engineers are concerned and will have to do with the exchange of manufactured materials, machinery, engineering equipment and the like. The future development of the manufacturing industries of all the members of the Commonwealth of Nations will depend upon the decisions taken with regard to these points and, in this respect, we shall be particularly affected by the attitude which the representatives of Great Britain will assume.

The point of view which will presumably be taken by the Canadian representatives as regards our manufacturing industries has been well expressed recently by the president of an important manufacturing company. In his address he observed that the conference would be approached by all in the hope of strengthening and broadening the commercial relations between Canada, the other Dominions and the Mother Country, by an arrangement for mutual co-operation. He pointed out that each participant in the conference will have domestic considerations which must guide its actions and that no agreements are likely to endure which ignore the principles of self-preservation. He considered that the main purpose of the conference will be to see what possibilities there are of changing in favor of Empire trade the flow of imports of such goods as are not now produced in Canada, rather than the consummation of any action which would be calculated to menace the position of the Canadian producer.

The events of recent years have demonstrated that there can now be no question of limiting freedom in establishing or maintaining particular lines of manufacture. All must be free to follow such policies as are considered best suited to their circumstances. This, indeed, is now recognized in Great Britain, as well as in the Dominions. For example, commenting on the conference, "The Times" recently urged that if orderly complementary production is to replace the present promiscuous competition which is conducted under frequently changing tariff restrictions, it will be necessary to obtain hearty co-operation between those engaged in the same branches of industry in different parts of the Empire. This co-operation, the article continued, is not likely to be secured immediately in all trades, but a beginning can be made with some, always bearing in mind that the fixed policy of the Dominions is opposed to any general tariff reductions which would expose newly established industries in the Dominions to the competition of the older industries in Great Britain without compensatory advantages.

We may take it, therefore, that the work of the conference in regard to industrial questions will be based on these principles. The crux of the matter will be, to ascertain how far Great Britain is prepared to go in guaranteeing a market for Dominion foodstuffs, and to what extent effective preference can be given to British manufactures by Dominions which are developing their own manufacturing industries. It is now of little use to look back over the last eight years, a period of drift during which no comprehensive action along this line has been taken. The conference in 1930 attempted to deal with economic questions, it is true, but at that time it was faced with an insuperable obstacle in England's adherence to free trade. Since the British election of 1931, however, the situation has undergone a complete change, and therefore the conference of 1932 has possibilities which have never existed before. But to take advantage of these, there must be a spirit of give and take in which local viewpoints must be subordinated as far as possible to the larger vision. There should be wider recognition of the principle that no country should continue to subsidize an industry that has no economic justification.

There is another aspect of the situation, and a promising one, which has been outlined by Mr. L. S. Amery. If the Empire markets for manufactured goods could be pooled effectively, they would provide a demand which would justify a large increase in our scales of production of certain kinds of materials, machinery and equipment. This would make possible an economy in cost comparable with that reached in the American mass-production plants which have as their customers the 120,000,000 people of the United States. The British Empire market, in fact, offers possibilities of this kind which do not appear to exist elsewhere. Will the conference be able to make a definite advance in this direction?

In considering the rationalization of industry within the Empire, the conference cannot possibly deal with individual industries in detail, but can and should agree on the general principles upon which such rationalization must depend. In doing this, it will be necessary to face many difficulties, such as those regarding currency and exchange, emigration and immigration, price regulation and a host of related questions, answers to which will have to be found before working agreements can be framed.

There is, of course, the possibility that when the delegates meet in Ottawa the expectations of many of the watchers will prove to have been too sanguine. In the case of such a conference, it is natural to assume that progress will be more rapid and agreements more readily reached than is actually possible. Surely if the work of the conference is to endure and begin a period of orderly development which will co-ordinate our present unrelated trade activities, it is above all necessary that the foundations be well and not too hurriedly laid. The plans for the proposed structure must be logical and command general approval before they can be worked to. If the conference provides such plans, its main object will have been attained, constructive work can proceed and there will be every prospect of success when operation begins.

We may well agree with Dr. Leacock that the conference must be no mere meeting of business men trading wheat for coal, for it will have to deal with world forces and world failures. In order to succeed, it must depart a long way from what has been hitherto the accepted course of international trade. But if successful in finding for us a way of reorganizing our trade, industry and exchange in the Empire so that our production shall match our consumption, that way will be the way back to prosperity.—Engineering Journal.

REVEAL THE BEAUTIFUL

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear sir:

That Peterboorugh is a beautiful city is appreciated by many, but is maintained only by continued effort.

The Horticultural Society's influence towards beautification has been well supported by the citizens as evidenced by the fact that few homes remain without flowers and lawn.

There are two matters we would remind our citizens of—that united influence he brought to bear at this time. Many of the ugly board fences have already been removed, permitting the sun to do its beneficent work. Many lovely spots yet remain hidden by the fence which in these modern days is out of keeping with the age.

Beauty appeals to the artistic taste; it is also now known to be essential to better health and lastly an aid to realty values.

We most earnestly request that those citizens who may have a board fence on their boundaries, remove it that something beautiful may grow in its place. There are still plots where little or nothing is done to destroy thistles, burdocks, and other obnoxious weeds. This is very discouraging to the promotion of the beautiful and should not be. We ask that these pests be cleared out. Your co-operation is cordially invited.

JOSEPH S. BELL,
Beautification Committee, Peterborough Horticultural Society.

THE DEAD-STOP LAW.

May 30th, 1932.

To Mr. Editor:

Dear Sir,—Everybody agrees that railway grade crossings are most efficient man-traps. And the brutal fact is that these man-traps shall not be abolished for years to come.

Signals and gates lessen slightly the danger. Throughout Canada, we have done the utmost to increase the efficiency of these signals and gates. But can more be accomplished?

In Quebec, we have thought that more could be accomplished. We have passed a law that compels the motorist to bring his car to a dead stop before venturing on the grade. This law has not been long in force. Yet our grade-crossing accidents have been reduced (Quebec, 1931, 13; Ontario, 59). We confidently hope—and we have reason to hope—that this reduction will be, as this stop law becomes better understood and observed, more and more marked from year to year. I make bold to assert that this reduction would be greater, in our very own Province, if Ontario adopted a similar law and co-operated with us in this respect.

The fact that a close relative of mine, a citizen of Hamilton, was recently killed at an Ontario grade crossing, prompts this renewed appeal. No one can say that the stop law would have prevented this accident. It is an individual, isolated case. Nevertheless if this accident had happened in Quebec, we could say: "We have done everything that could possibly be done to avert such an accident." Ontario cannot truthfully give itself the same testimony.

The dead-stop law is based on sound psychology. It applies a principle which is universally adopted by traffic experts and which is embodied in the law, now enforced in almost every large city—of the boulevard stop. We reasonably assume that the motorist cannot, as long as his car is in motion, measure accurately the dangers of the thoroughfare or railway ahead of him. Moreover, the motion of his own car fosters in him that desire to keep on going, which every observant motorist has surely noted within himself. It is a problem of motoring psychology which the dead-stop law alone can solve. The aim of the law itself is psychological: it is habit-forming, the intention of the law-maker being to create a safety habit that will act as a constant check on the motorist and will eventually eliminate the constant grade-crossing risks.

Although it may not be very fashionable at present to speak of fairness to our railroads, allow me to point out that the dead-stop law is moreover an act of common-sense fairness towards our railway companies—just as the boulevard stop in our large cities is an act of common-sense fairness to the traffic of thoroughfare arteries.

I appeal to the spirit of co-operation of Ontario citizens, and I ask them—as a traffic man of thirty years' experience and as the secretary of the Province of Quebec Safety League—to re-consider their attitude in regard to the dead-stop law. I dare say, under my signature, that, as long as the dead-stop law has not been adopted in Ontario, our fair and progressive neighbor is not doing all that can be done to prevent accidents at grade crossings.

Thanking you for your courtesy, dear Mr. Editor, I remain,

Very truly yours,

ARTHUR GABOURY, Secretary General, Province of Quebec Safety League.

The Murder at Hazelmoor

By Agatha Christie

INSTALMENT ONE

Major Burnaby drew on his gum boots, buttoned his overcoat collar round his neck, took from a shelf near the door a hurricane lantern, and cautiously opened the front door of his little bungalow and peered out.

The scene that met his eyes was typical of the English countryside as depicted on Christmas cards and in old-fashioned melodramas. Everywhere was snow, deep drifts of it—no mere powdering an inch or two thick. Snow had fallen all over England for the last four days, and up here on the fringe of Dartmoor it had attained a depth of several feet. All over England householders were groaning over burst pipes, and to have a plumber friend (or even a plumber's helper) was the most coveted of all distinctions.

Up here, in the tiny village of Sittaford, at all times remote from the world, and now almost completely cut off, the rigors of winter were a very real problem.

Major Burnaby, however, was a hardy soul. He snorted twice, grunted once, and marched resolutely out into the snow.

His destination was not far away. A few paces along a windy lane, then in at a gate, and so up a drive partially swept clear of snow to a house of some considerable size built of granite.

The door was opened by a neatly clad parlormaid. The major was divested of his overcoat, his overshoes and his aged scarf.

A door flung open and he passed through into a room which conveyed all the illusion of a transformation scene.

Although it was only half past three the curtains had been drawn, the electric lights were on and a huge fire blazed cheerfully on the hearth. Two women in afternoon frocks rose to greet the staunch old warrior.

"Splendid of you to turn out, Major Burnaby," said the elder of the two.

"Not at all, Mrs. Willett, not at all. Very good of you to ask me," He shook hands with them both.

"Mr. Garfield is coming," went on Mrs. Willett, "and Mr. Duke and Mr. Roycroft said he would come—but one can hardly expect him at his age in such weather. Really, it is too dreadful. One feels one must do something to keep oneself cheerful. Violet, put another log on the fire."

The major rose gallantly to perform this task.

"Allow me, Miss Violet."

He put the log expertly in the right place and returned once more to the armchair his hostess had indicated. Trying not to appear as though he were doing so, he cast surreptitious glances round the room. Amazing how a couple of women could alter the whole character of a room—and without doing anything very outstanding that you could put your finger on.

Sittaford House had been built ten years ago by Captain Joseph Trevelyan, R.N., on the occasion of his retirement from the navy. He was a man of substance, and he had always had a great hankering to live on Dartmoor. He had placed his choice on the tiny hamlet of Sittaford. It was not in a valley like most of the villages and farms, but perched right on the shoulder of the moor under the shadow of Sittaford Beacon. He had purchased a large tract of ground, had built a comfortable house with its own electric light plant and an electric pump to save labor in pumping water. Then, as a speculation, he had built six small bungalows, each in its quarter acre of ground, along the lane.

The first of these, the one at his very gates, had been alloted to his old friend and crony, John Burnaby—the others had by degrees been sold, there being still a few people who from choice or necessity like to live right out of the world. The village itself consisted of three picturesque but dilapidated cottages, a forge, and a combined post office and sweet shop. The nearest town was Exhampton, six miles away, a steady descent which necessitated the sign, "Motorists engage your lowest gear," so familiar on the Dartmoor roads.

Captain Trevelyan, as has been said, was a man of substance. In spite of this—or perhaps because of it—he was a man who was inordinately fond of money. At the end of October a house-agent in Southampton wrote to him asking if he would consider letting Sittaford House. A tenant had made inquiries concerning it, wishing to rent it for the winter.

Captain Trevelyan's first impulse was to refuse, his second to demand further information. The tenant in question proved to be a Mrs. Willett, a widow with one daughter. She had recently arrived from South Africa and wanted a house on Dartmoor for the winter.

"Damn it all, the woman must be mad," said Captain Trevelyan. "Eh, Burnaby, don't you think so?"

Burnaby did think so, and said so as forcibly as his friend had done.

"Anyway, you don't want to let," he said. "Let the fool woman go somewhere else if she wants to freeze. Coming from South Africa too!"

But at this point Captain Trevelyan's money complex asserted itself. Not once in a hundred times would you get a chance of letting your house in midwinter. He demanded what rent the tenant was willing to pay.

An offer of twelve guineas a week clinched matters. Captain Trevelyan went into Exhampton, rented a small house on the outskirts at two guineas a week, and handed over Sittaford House to Mrs. Willett, half the rent to be paid in advance.

A fool and her money are soon parted," he growled.

But Burnaby was thinking this afternoon as he scanned Mrs. Willett covertly, that she did not look a fool. She was a tall woman with a rather silly manner—but her physiognomy was shrewd rather than foolish. She was inclined to overdress, had a distinct colonial accent, and seemed perfectly content with the transaction. She was clearly very well off and that—as Burnaby had reflected more than once, really made the whole affair more odd. She was not the kind of woman one would credit with a passion for solitude.

As a neighbor she had proved almost embarrassingly friendly. Invitations to Sittaford House were rained on everybody. Captain Trevelyan was constantly urged to "Treat the house as though we hadn't rented it." Trevelyan, however, was not fond of women. Report went that he had been jilted in his youth. He persistently refused all invitations.

Two months had passed since the installation of the Willetts and the first wonder at their arrival had passed away.

Burnaby, naturally a silent man, continued to study his hostess, oblivious to any need for small talk. Liked to make herself out a fool, but wasn't really. So he summed up the situation. His glance shifted to Violet Willett. Pretty girl—scraggy, of course—they all were nowadays. What was the good of a woman if she didn't look like a woman? Papers said curves were coming back. About time too.

He roused himself to the necessity of conversation.

"We were afraid at first that you wouldn't be able to come," said Mrs. Willett. "You said so, you remember. We were so pleased when you said that after all you would."

"Friday," said Major Burnaby, with an air of being explicit.

Mrs. Willett looked puzzled.

"Friday?"

"Every Friday go to Trevelyan's. Tuesday he comes to me. Both of us done it for years."

"Oh! I see. Of course, living so near—"

"Kind of habit."

"But do you still keep it up? I mean now that he is living in Exhampton—"

"Pity to break a habit," said Major Burnaby. "We'd both of us miss those evenings."

"You go in for competitions, don't you?" asked Violet. "Acrostics and crosswords and all those things."

Burnaby nodded.

"I do crosswords. Trevelyan does acrostics. We each stick to our own line of country. I won three books last month in a crossword competition," he volunteered.

"Oh! really. How nice. Were they interesting books?"

"Don't know. Haven't read them. Looked pretty hopeless."

"It's the winning them that matters, isn't it?" said Mrs. Willett vaguely.

"How do you get to Exhampton?" asked Violet. "You haven't got a car."

"Walk."

"Walk? Not really? Six miles."

"Good exercise. What's twelve miles? Keeps a man fit. Great thing to be fit."

"Fancy. Twelve miles. But both you and Captain Trevelyan were great athletes, weren't you?"

"Used to go to Switzerland together. Winter sports in winter, climbing in summer. Wonderful man on ice, Trevelyan. Both too old for that sort of thing nowadays."

"You won the Army Racquets Championship, too, didn't you?" asked Violet.

The Major blushed like a girl.

"Who told you that?" he mumbled.

"Captain Trevelyan."

"Joe should hold his tongue," said Burnaby. "He talks too much. What's the weather like now?"

Respecting his embarrassment, Violet followed him to the window. They drew the curtain aside and looked out over the desolate scene.

"More snow coming," said Burnaby. "A pretty heavy fall too, I should say."

"Oh! how thrilling," said Violet. "I do think snow is so romantic. I've never seen it before."

"It isn't romantic when the pipes freeze, you foolish child," said her mother.

"Have you lived all your life in South Africa, Miss Willett?" asked Major Burnaby.

Some of the girl's animation dropped away from her. She seemed almost contrained in her manner as she answered.

"Yes—this is the first time I've ever been away. It's all most frightfully thrilling."

Thrilling to be shut away like this in a remote moorland village? Funny idea. He couldn't get the hang of these people.

The door opened and the parlormaid announced:

"Mr. Rycroft and Mr. Garfield."

There entered a little, elderly, dried-up man and a fresh-colored, boyish young man. The latter spoke first.

"I brought him along, Mrs. Willet. Said I wouldn't let him be buried in a snowdrift. Ha, ha. I say, this looks simply marvelous. Yule logs burning."

"As he says, my young friend very kindly piloted me here," said Mr. Rycroft as he shook hands somewhat ceremoniously. "How do you do, Miss Violet? Very seasonable weather—rather too seasonable, I fear."

He moved to the fire talking to Mrs. Willett. Ronald Garfield buttonholed Violet.

"I say, can't we get up any skating anywhere? Aren't there some ponds about?"

"I think path digging will be your only sport."

"I've been at it all the morning."

"Oh! you be-man!"

"Don't laugh at me. I've got blisters all over my hands."

"How's your aunt?"

FRANCE LOWERS TRADE BARRIERS

Agreement Reached With United States Concerning Greater Imports.

FOUNDATION OF TREATY.

PARIS, June 1 (C.P.).—An important trade agreement which is expected shortly to increase the amount of goods that may be imported into France was reached today by the United States and French Governments.

The greement grants the United States most-favored-nation treatment on importations which now are curtailed by the French system of quotas.

The agreement was achieved by Ambassador Walter E. Edge, who has been working on it for some time. The Ambassador succeeded in convincing representatives of the French Government that the present quotas were unfair to United States shippers.

The accord took the form of a decree signed by Premier Andre Tardieu.

It provides a method of establishing quotas in the future by more consultation than has been the case in the past with those handling United States importations into France. Generally speaking, it bases importation limits on the levels of 1931.

The recent Franco - American agreement eradicating the double taxation burden carried by United States houses with branches in France paved the way for the new accord.

These two diplomatic accomplishments will serve as the foundation of a general commercial treaty for which Mr. Edge will negotiate on his return from the United States. Such a treaty would substitute for the existing modus vivendi.

"Might Be Better" T. J. Lang, Morrow Street, Tells Monaghan Council.

COURT OF REVISION.

Appeals for Reduction of Assessment Are Heard To-day.

"We might as well move into the city. It wouldn't cost us much more, and we'd get improvements we haven't got," said Thomas J. Lang, Morrow street, in appealing to the Court of Revision of North Monaghan this morning for a reduction of his assessment.

"You'd be bankrupt if we moved in," Mr. Lang added.

"You're right," Reeve McIntosh remarked.

"The farmers are making their living off their farms," Mr. Lang said.

"They are, eh!" was the ironic comment of W. G. Waterman, township assessor.

"You've got your milk and butter and eggs," Mr. Lang continued. "You're breaking even anyway. A lot of the other people can't get work."

Charlie James: "They can't even get any exercise.

Mr. Waterman to Mr. Lang: "How would you like the job of assessor"

Mr. Lang: "I wouldnt' take it on a bet."

The assessment of $1,550 on Mr. Lang's property, 124 Morrow street, was reduced $200 to $1,350.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

TORONTO EXCHANGE

TORONTO, June 1. (CP). Prices fluctuated widely on Toronto stock exchange to-day. The opening was strong but the market turned downward in the first hour. The decline continued until the early afternoon, wiping out nearly all the gains and in individual instances substituting losses. Some stocks went to new record lows. From then on the market was steadier and prices firmed moderately.

Bell Telephone came out at 79, went down to yesterday's low of 76, and was fractionally above that price at the close. Brazilian at 8½ showed a net gain of ⅝. C.P.R. reduced a net gain of approximately 1 point to somewhat less than ½ point. Nickel was down from its top, likewise, but at 4⅝ it was ½ point above its previous close. Steel of Canada, Walkers common, Consolidated Bakeries, Dominion Stores and some of the oils were other stocks with small gains.

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, June 1.—(C.P.) — Stocks steadied in the late trading to-day after an early rise of 1 to 5 points had been more than lost by most leaders, net gains of 1 to 2 points were made by American Can, Santa Fe, Drug, Liggett, Myers 'B,' Air Reduction, Case, Allied Chemical and Sears Roebuck. American Telephone was weak, turning an early rise of 3 into a loss of about 2. U. S. Steel firmed after a fractional dip into new low ground. Transactions approximated 1,800,000 shares.

STANDARD EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, June 1 (C.P.).—Prices reacted on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange in the afternoon to-day, dropping most of the gains made in early trade. Net changes for the day were irregular, with interlisted stocks improving their position in a last-hour rally.

Lake Shore, ex-dividend $1 share, dropped that amount and Teck-Hughes was slightly lower. McIntyre gained 25, however. Pioneer of B.C. and Hollinger were up 5 apiece and Wright-Hargreaves gained a few cents on declaration of the regular quarterly dividend and a bonus of 2½ cents a share.

International Nickel and Noranda, strong on the opening, fell back for a time and came ahead again late in the day to close up 35 and 20, respectively.

EXTRA DIVIDEND ON MANY GOLDS

Mining Market Shows Marked Improvement, But Some Falter.

LAKESHORE DOWN.

TORONTO, June 1. (CP)—While the opening advance on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange market to-day lost momentum after the first half-hour of trading majority of values among more active shares showed improvement over last night's finals when taken at mid-day.

Lake Shore, ex-dividend $1 a share to-day, fell that amount to $225 but Hollinger was up 10 at $4.45, Teck-Hughes 3 at $3.25 and Wright-Hargreaves, whose directors have declared the regular quarterly dividend of 2½ cents and an extra of 2½ cents a share payable July 1 gained 7 to $2.20. International Nickel gave the best response, price touching a high of $4.90 and showing a gain of 45 at $4.60 when taken at noon. Noranda was up 10 at $13.35 and Eldorado a couple at 78.

Lower-priced golds also participated in the early rally, San Antonio regaining 5 to 35, Moss and Ventures a couple each to 22 and 20, respectively, and Siscoe a cent to 57. Homestead firmed a fraction in the oil section.

FINES FOLLOW STREET FIGHT

Brothers to Pay $14.50 Each or Go to Jail.

RUBIDGE ST. BOUT.

"He looks as if he has had some punishment already," observed Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in remarking upon the condition of a prisoner who stood facing him in answer to a charge of being intoxicated in a public place this morning.

The prisoner, Ross Harran, who was jointly charged with his brother Stanely Harran, was stated to have been drunk on Rubidge street last night and to have been involved in a fight. A swollen optic and strips of sticking plaster which decorated Ross Harran's features testified to the severity of the disturbance.

Asked by the Magistrate if he intended to pay a doctor bill of $3.00 which his drunken bout had made necessary, the prisoner replied, "I have no money."

"Must I infer then that you cannot pay a fine," the Cadi asked, in imposing a fine of $10.00 and $4.50 costs to each of the combatants, or in default "twenty days on the hill."

CHARITY BOARD RELIEF RULES MADE STRICTER

Relief Orders Only Given to Citizens Resident in City One Year.

BAN AUTOMOBILES.

Relief in May Cost City $4,296.83, for Five Months $17,299.29.

The Charity Board's disbursements for the month from April 25 to May 30, amounted to $4,296.83, and for the first five months of this year $17,299.29.

Peterborough's public relief bills through the Charity Board have increased from $4,253.80 in 1928 to $22,689.54 last year. The payments in 1928 totalled $4,253.80 and $4,130.59 in 1929.

Two resolutions passed by the Board Monday night are not only a statement of policy, but are intended as a warning to some persons who may be future applicants for assistance.

Moved by L. H. Ingram, seconded by R. Mulligan, that relief orders be given only to persons who have been resident in the city at least one year.

Moved by James Garside, seconded by James Abraham, that any person who uses a motor car in the summer except for the purpose of earning money be not given relief in winter.

In the past the Charity Board has withheld relief from persons owning motor cars. The anomaly of handing out money from the taxpayers' treasury to any citizen who had means enough to own and drive a car was regarded by the members of the Board as unfavorably as they believed the general public would look on it. Now, they have gone a step further, and their action may be construed as explicit notice that ownership of an automobile becomes an indication of sufficient personal means to go through next winter without appeal to the Board for aid. The only exception may be the man who is now using a motor to help earn money.

Driving around the country in an automobile will be considered a form of improvidence and an action contrary to the wishes and regulations of the Board. And according to the resolution any such applicants next winter will be refused public relief.

Relief Officer Metheral reported that Rupert Starr, who had received relief after he had moved out of the city had paid in $56.75 for such relief.

The members attending the meeting were: R. C. Braund (chairman), W. Rose, J. Abraham, J. Garside, A. E. Metheral, A. McLeod, R. Mulligan, A. McNab, A. B. Cunningham and L. H. Ingram.

FACIAL INJURY BY SHATTERED PULLEY

Eleven Stitches Required to Close Severe Wound.

Eleven stitches closed the facial wound suffered by Allen Sickle of Toronto, who was struck by a flying piece of a wooden pulley while working Monday for the Canadian Water Supply Company drilling for water on the property of the C.G.E. Company.

The pulley burst into pieces while in action, and one of the fragments hit Sickle a heavy blow on the face. He was knocked unconscious, and it was first thought that concussion of the brain might have resulted. X-ray examination yesterday at Nicholls Hospital showed that the injury was not as serious as was first feared. Mr. Sickle was taken to his home in Toronto Tuesday by his parents.

The Canadian Water Supply Company have a conntract with the C.G.E. Company to bore for water, and the young man was an employee of the Toronto company. He boarded at the Montreal House House, Aylmer Street.

Douglas Convicted Chicken Stealing

Willis Douglas of Westwood was this afternoon convicted on a charge of stealing some domestic birds, the property of Thomas Breckenridge of Asphodel Township, under the value of $20.00 and for which he was sentenced to one month at hard labor in the County Jail.

A second charge against the accused of stealing seven bronze turkeys from the farm of Mrs. Garvey also of Asphodel Township, was dismissed. His Worship expressed the opinion that he thought the accused man was probably guilty of the offence, but that the evidence was insufficient on which to record a conviction.

The accused was legally represented by J. A. O'Brien. Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., prosecuted on behalf of the Crown.

KHAN'S DASTUR IN 2ND PLACE; MIRACLE THIRD

Royal Dancer is Fourth

E. Esmond's Royal Dancer, the only one of the starters to win a race over the Downs course this season previous to to-day, was fourth, and the Aga Khan's Firdausi ran fifth.

The other starters (not in order of finish), were Andrea, Bacchus, Buckle, Celebrator, Cockpen, Corey, Hesperus, Jackdaw Second, Jiweh, Orwell, Peter Plant, Portofino, Spenser, Summer Planet, Totaig and Wyvern.

To-day, Orwell proved those who doubted his staying powers were mainly right. He did not stand up under the gruelling mile and a half over the tough Derby course. Famed for his early speed, Orwell was well up among the front division for the first part of the journey but weakened when the final test approached and finished well back.

The victory of April the Fifth came as a complete surprise to the estimated crowds of 1,000. The King and Queen and other members of the Royal Family saw the running. April the Fifth's owner, Tom Walls, is a movie star, trainer and all-around sportsman.

Hold Winning Tickets

Miss M. Costigan, (308 Sanford Ave.) St. Lambert, Que., and Nick Rosner, (1383 Plimton Ave.) the Bronx New York, are holders of tickets on April the Fifth in the Army and Navy Veterans Sweepstakes on the derby. Their prizes will approximate $22,000 each. Tickets on the second horse, Dastur are held by Miss Annie Daly (100 Etna St.,) Brighton, Mass., and partners (955 Valour Rd. Winnipeg). They are worth about $11,000. Tickets on Miracle, which ran third are held by Miss Jane Wilson, (1061 St. Alexander St.) Montreal, and Mr. and Mrs. Hildebrandt, (319 E. 88th St.) New York City. The third prize tickets will have a value of about $5,500 each.

Fourth prize tickets, worth about $2,750 each, are held by Edward Kumpula (Box 1175) Fairbanks, Alaska and George Wong, (Canadian Cafe) Red Deer, Alta.

HEALTH BODY MAKES APPEAL

Subscriptions Required to Maintain Work of Local Health Association.

$1,000 NEEDED.

These are times when everyone feels called upon to curtail their expenses. Probably there is no one in the city but is suffering from a reduced income. Things are good or bad, however by comparison. What might be considered poverty for some would be wealth for others. When illness occurs among those who are in comfortable circumstances it is not such a serious thing, as the best of care and medical attention are assured. But when illness occurs in the home that is destitute of the ordinary necessities of life, where even the required amount of food is lacking, then indeed it is something serious. It may be the breadwinner of the family who is stricken down; it may be the faithful mother, or one of the children—children as dear to them as though they were millionaires. In such cases there is no one to whom they can turn except the Peterborough Health Association.

This work has been carried on year after year and is almost self-supporting. It is carried on by members who freely give of their time, skill and means throughout the entire year that the work may go forward. A thousand dollars is all that is needed to ensure the continuance of the work for another year. It is asked from those who after all are able to give, or from members who have faithfully supported the Association year after year. It is asked in the name of suffering humanity. The need is greater this year than ever before. A thousand dollars can easily be forthcoming in the city of Peterborough for such a cause. "Even as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, ye have done it unto Me." Please send subscriptions to Mr. Borland, treasurer, at the Bank of Toronto, where they will be gratefully received and acknowledged.

RUSH POINT, June 1 (Examiner Correspondence).—The hydroplane which crashed two miles east of here Victoria Day has been salvaged and placed in the barn belonging to F. Breckenridge, until a truck arrives to convey it to Toronto. Unfortunately a number of parts, including the compass and clock, were already missing.

MAKE ENQUIRY

tackle the teachers only. The whole question of expenditure needed revision especially the night school expenditures. He believed a great saving could be effected by "cutting out some of the frills" of education.

Dr. A. Moir agreed with the views expressed by Dr. Scott and named several of the subjects in night school which he considered superfluous in view of the existing conditions. He suggested that in reviewing the situation the Board might well consider curtailing the following classes for the time being: commercial French, ornamental lettering, industrial chemistry, auto mechanics for owners, English class for foreigners, boat building, aviation, telephony etc.

Justified Criticism

The speaker stated he had heard a great deal of criticism from garage men around the city respecting the auto mechanics class for owners. He thought such criticism had been justified as the classes were doing many garage men out of work that would otherwise come their way.

Volunteered 5 Per Cent Cut

In further discussion of the subject the part was not lost of that the teachers had volunteered a five percent reduction of salaries could not well be made to come into effect until the present year was through. But the reason why immediate action is necessary is due, it was explained, that the teachers contracts with the Board expire at the end of this month. Renewals of contracts in the fall, if revision of salaries were contemplated would have to be made, with due regard to the salary schedules for the next year.

Another angle of the discussion was that regarding the government grants to the Board if night school classes were curtailed. It was suggested that what the oBard saved by abolishing certain subjects would be outweighed by what would be lost in the way of grants.

Time For Control

Dr. Moir felt that the time had arrived for governments to exercise control over expenditures. He would like to see the Vocational Committee instructed to write to the Department of Education on the subject.

Mr. Dutton undertook to see Mr. Rutherford of the Department and discuss the question with him.

Cricket Results

LONDON, June 1 (C.P. Cable)—Amazing cricket was seen at Lord's to-day when the county match between Gloucestershire and Middlesex started. Middlesex lost the last six wickets of their first innings for only 16 runs, within 40 minutes, and Gloucestershire collapsed even more badly before the Middlesex bowling, losing their last seven wickets for 13 runs in 25 minutes.

Spectators on hand when Tom Goddard, medium - fast bowler, took three Middlesex wickets for one run, in one over, were startled by the speed with which Gloucester wickets fell later in the day. Ivan Peebles, Test match player, who is a leg-break and googly bowler, took three Gloucester wickets with three successive balls, his total analysis being: 13 overs, one maiden, 34 runs and five wickets.

At Lord's—Middlesex, 131 (Parker 5 for 73, Goddard 5 for 44); Gloucestershire, 133 (Hammond 70, Peebles 5 for 34).

At Cardiff—Essex, 260 (O'Connor 32, Clay 5 for 75); Glamorgan, 26 for four wickets.

At Leeds—Hampshire, 199 (Macaulay 4 for 46); Yorkshire, 10 for 1 wicket.

At Nottingham—Nottinghamshire, 339 for wickets (Arthur Staples, 59 not out, Keeton 103) against Derbyshire.

At Cambridge—Cambridge University, 22 for one wicket, against Sussex; rain stopped play.

At Oxford—Oxford University 159 (Sibbles 6 for 45); Lancashire 105 for 1 wicket (Paynter 54 not out).

At Leicester—Somerset, 46 runs for no wickets, against Leicestershire.

No play was possible in the Warwick-Surrey and Northampton-shire-Kent matches.

UNITED STATES TO AID NATIONS

the British Government believed a world conference to consider the universal slump in commodity prices would ameliorate the economic depression.

Sir John indicated that the Lausanne Conference of European Powers, including Great Britain on June 16 must naturally complicate the situation.

Factors in Crisis.

It has to be remembered, he said, that the terms of reference to the conference at Lausanne include among the objects to be sought, not only the settlement of reparations, but an agreement on measures necessary to solve the other economic and financial difficulties which are responsible for and may prolong the present world crisis.

The importance of co-operation by the United States in such a discussion is so great that His Majesty's Government is losing no time in consulting the other governments who are assisting at Lausanne as to the suggestion (apparently of Mr. Mellon) which has been made.

WARM WELCOME GIVEN SINGERS AT MILLBROOK

Ye Olde Tyme Village Quartette Provides Splendid Concert.

CONCERT IS ENJOYED

MILLBROOK, June 1 (Examiner Correspondence).—A warm welcome undoubtedly awaits any return engagement of Ye Olde Tyme Village Quartette, of Toronto, before a Millbrook audience, the singers winning their way into the hearts of the listeners at their initial appearance here on Monday evening, when they presented a full program the entertainment being under the auspices of the Men's Bible Class of St. Andrew's Church, and forming the concluding item of its twenty-sixth anniversary occasion.

Lovely early summer blossoms were banked as a background for the artists at Monday's concert, the singers themselves as they came to the platform bringing strongly to mind a bed of old-fashioned flowers so beautiful in color, design and texture were their old-time costumes. The personnel of the quartette, who are widely known from their radio broadcasts as well as their numerous appearances for years as public entertainers, includes Miss Marjorie Waters, soprano; Mrs. Betty Thompson McKenzie, contralto; Jas. F. Carter, baritone, and A. C. Chapman, tenor and manager of the company. The talented pianist is Mrs. Carrol F. Rook.

Just a Happy Family.

Characterizing themselves as just "a happy family of happy singers," Mr. Chapman asked the listeners to doff all formality and imagine themselves seated about an open fire in the living-room grate enjoying an evening of music together. For the first half of the program, every number of which throughout the entire evening provided the keenest enjoyment, the singers wore old-time costumes, the ladies with their crinoline, flounced taffeta skirts, deep lace berthas, bare shoulders, brilliant shoulder straps, Dolly Varden hats, and tight little nosegays, seeming to have walked out of a Godey fashion sheet; while the men belonged also in the same picture, the baritone having a suit of lavender shade, with collar and cuffs of a darker tint of velvet; ruffled waistcoat, brooch pinning the high stock, lace ruffles at the wrists, and trousers strapped under the instep.

The "songs of yesteryear," with medley of old-time choruses, in some of which the audience was asked to join, appropriately made up a goodly part of the first half of the program, a duet, "Tenor and Baritone," with "Really, Great Scott," as the recall, bringing a humorous touch that was most cleverly executed. Southern folk songs were also popular, and the Scotch element received recognition when Miss Waters appeared, wearing kilt and tartan of the MacDonald clan, complete to buckled shoes and tam, with upstanding feather, and sang "The Standard on the Braes of Ayr," the recall being "When ye Gang Awa," in duet form with Mr. Carter.

To give the Irish their due, the singers next gave a medley of airs distinctively belonging to the Emerald Isle, Mrs. MacKenzie's solo, "Believe me if all those endearing young charms," beginning the selection and Mr. Carter closing it with "I'm off to Philadelphia in the Mornin'," sung with rollicking enthusiasm, as was also Mr. Chapman's "O Paddy Dear, and Did ye Hear," while Miss Waters' solo was "The Last Rose of Summer."

Conventional modern evening dress was worn for the second half of the enjoyable program, the "Cradle Song" which Mrs. MacKenzie sang as one of her recalls, being outstanding for its beauty of rendition and acting during this part of the entertainment. The selections from Gilbert and Sullivan's operas, the "Yum-Yum Chorus," from the Mikado and "The Royal Queen," sung with that complete harmony of voices and clarity of tone and words which marks the quartette's singing at all times, were most popular, and "The Grand Old Duke of York," with the final rendition in pantomime, was another favorite. The concert closed with a hymn, "Abide with Me," unaccompanied, applause being withheld by request.

Illustrating how widely this well-known quartette has travelled, the manager remarked: "These singers have had four cars to carry them about, and the one now in use has already gone ninety thousand miles." They were entertained at lunch at the close of the entertainment which provided such a rare musical treat to the community, and before leaving the platform were given a rousing ovation by means of prolonged applause as an expression of the enjoyment and appreciation of the audience.

500,000 IN DRY AREA.

RIO DE JANEIRO. — General Alvaro Tourinho, president of the Red Cross, said to-day he had been informed by a medical mission that 500,000 persons were affected by drought in the north-eastern section of Brazil.

DAIRY MEETING HASTINGS JUNE 3

To Discuss Central Ontario Cheese Factory Patrons' Association.

IMPORTANT TO FARMERS

A meeting of the patrons of Hastings cheese factory will be held in Lynch's Hall at Hastings Friday, June 3, at 7.30 p.m. to consider affiliation with the Central Ontario Cheese Factory Patrons' Association which was organized last March.

Meetings have already been held at Kingston, Stirling, Brighton, Madoc and Napanee. The speakers will include J. P. Griffin, secretary of the Ontario Milk Producers' Association; L. A. Zufelt, superintendent of the Eastern Dairy School at Kingston, John Elliott of Belleville; Fred Hubbs, president of the Central Ontario Association, and F. R. Mallory, secretary. G. A. Gillespie of Peterborough will also be present.

The Association embraces the counties of Victoria, Durham, Peterborough, Northumberland, Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington and Frontenac. Its objects are generally to advance the interest of the milk producers connected with the cheese-making industry.

To improve and increase the quantity and quality of milk supplied to the factories.

To work for the consolidation and amalgamation of the present manufacturing plants with the view of operating them twelve months in the year, that is, to have a sufficient number of properly equipped plants located at central points to take care of the surplus milk during winter.

To work for the establishment of one or more central storage plants where the cheese can be assembled, cooled, weighed and graded before being sold, and also to arrange for a more equitable and efficient system of marketing.

To work for the elimination of duplication of milk and cream transportation, the extra expense of which is ultimately borne by the producer and consumer.

To hold meetings and conventions, to consult and advise with the Federal and Provincial departments of Agriculture on all matters pertaining to cheesemaking in Central Ontario.

All the patrons of Hastings factory are urged to attend this meeting, and the invitation is extended to all dairymen.

FRANCE LOWERS TRADE BARRIERS

Agreement Reached With United States Concerning Greater Imports.

FOUNDATION OF TREATY.

PARIS, June 1 (C.P.).—An important trade agreement which is expected shortly to increase the amount of goods that may be imported into France was reached today by the United States and French Governments.

The agreement grants the United States most-favored-nation treatment on importations which now are curtailed by the French system of quotas.

The agreement was achieved by Ambassador Walter E. Edge, who has been working on it for some time. The Ambassador succeeded in convincing representatives of the French Government that the present quotas were unfair to United States shippers.

The accord took the form of a decree signed by Premier Andre Tardieu.

It provides a method of establishing quotas in the future by more consultation than has been the case in the past with those handling United States importations into France. Generally speaking, it bases importation limits on the levels of 1931.

The recent Franco - American agreement eradicating the double taxation burden carried by United States houses with branches in France paved the way for the new accord.

These two diplomatic accomplishments will serve as the foundation of a general commercial treaty for which Mr. Edge will negotiate on his return from the United States. Such a treaty would substitute for the existing modus vivendi.

"Might Be Better" T. J. Lang, Morrow Street, Tells Monaghan Council.

COURT OF REVISION.

Appeals for Reduction of Assessment Are Heard To-day.

"We might as well move into the city. It wouldn't cost us much more, and we'd get improvements we haven't got," said Thomas J. Lang, Morrow street, in appealing to the Court of Revision of North Monaghan this morning for a reduction of his assessment.

"You'd be bankrupt if we moved in," Mr. Lang added.

"You're right," Reeve McIntosh remarked.

"The farmers are making their living off their farms," Mr. Lang said.

"They are, eh!" was the ironic comment of W. G. Waterman, township assessor.

Charlie James: "They can't even get any exercise.

Mr. Waterman to Mr. Lang: "How would you like the job of assessor"

Market Closing On All Exchanges

TORONTO EXCHANGE

TORONTO, June 1. (CP). Prices fluctuated widely on Toronto stock exchange to-day. The opening was strong but the market turned downward in the first hour. The decline continued until the early afternoon, wiping out nearly all the gains and in individual instances substituting losses. Some stocks went to new record lows. From then on the market was steadier and prices firmed moderately.

Bell Telephone came out at 79, went down to yesterday's low of 76, and was fractionally above that price at the close. Brazilian at 8½ showed a net gain of ⅝. C.P.R. reduced a net gain of approximately 1 point to somewhat less than ½ point. Nickel was down from its top, likewise, but at 4⅝ it was ½ point above its previous close. Steel of Canada, Walkers common, Consolidated Bakeries, Dominion Stores and some of the oils were other stocks with small gains.

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, June 1.—(C.P.) — Stocks steadied in the late trading to-day after an early rise of 1 to 5 points had been more than lost by most leaders, net gains of 1 to 2 points were made by American Can, Santa Fe, Drug, Liggett, Myers 'B,' Air Reduction, Case, Allied Chemical and Sears Roebuck. American Telephone was weak, turning an early rise of 3 into a loss of about 2. U. S. Steel firmed after a fractional dip into new low ground. Transactions approximated 1,800,000 shares.

STANDARD EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, June 1 (C.P.).—Prices reacted on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange in the afternoon to-day, dropping most of the gains made in early trade. Net changes for the day were irregular, with interlisted stocks improving their position in a last-hour rally.

Lake Shore, ex-dividend $1 share, dropped that amount and Teck-Hughes was slightly lower. McIntyre gained 25, however. Pioneer of B.C. and Hollinger were up 5 apiece and Wright-Hargreaves gained a few cents on declaration of the regular quarterly dividend and a bonus of 2½ cents a share.

International Nickel and Noranda, strong on the opening, fell back for a time and came ahead again late in the day to close up 35 and 20, respectively.

EXTRA DIVIDEND ON MANY GOLDS

Mining Market Shows Marked Improvement, But Some Falter.

LAKESHORE DOWN.

TORONTO, June 1. (CP)—While the opening advance on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange market to-day lost momentum after the first half-hour of trading majority of values among more active shares showed improvement over last night's finals when taken at mid-day.

Lake Shore, ex-dividend $1 a share to-day, fell that amount to $225 but Hollinger was up 10 at $4.45, Teck-Hughes 3 at $3.25 and Wright-Hargreaves, whose directors have declared the regular quarterly dividend of 2½ cents and an extra of 2½ cents a share payable July 1 gained 7 to $2.20. International Nickel gave the best response, price touching a high of $4.90 and showing a gain of 45 at $4.60 when taken at noon. Noranda was up 10 at $13.35 and Eldorado a couple at 78.

Lower-priced golds also participated in the early rally, San Antonio regaining 5 to 35, Moes and Ventures a couple each to 22 and 20, respectively, and Siscoe a cent to 57. Homestead firmed a fraction in the oil section.

FINES FOLLOW STREET FIGHT

Brothers to Pay $14.50 Each or Go to Jail.

RUBIDGE ST. BOUT.

"He looks as if he has had some punishment already," observed Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in remarking upon the condition of a prisoner who stood facing him in answer to a charge of being intoxicated in a public place this morning.

The prisoner, Ross Harran, who was jointly charged with his brother Stanely Harran, was stated to have been drunk on Rubidge street last night and to have been involved in a fight. A swollen optic and strips of sticking plaster which decorated Ross Harran's features testified to the severity of the disturbance.

Asked by the Magistrate if he intended to pay a doctor bill of $3.00 which his drunken bout had made necessary, the prisoner replied, "I have no money."

"Must I infer then that you cannot pay a fine," the Cadi asked, in imposing a fine of $10.00 and $4.50 costs to each of the combatants, or in default "twenty days on the hill."

CHARITY BOARD RELIEF RULES MADE STRICTER

Relief Orders Only Given to Citizens Resident in City One Year.

BAN AUTOMOBILES.

Relief in May Cost City $4,296.83, for Five Months $17,299.29.

The Charity Board's disbursements for the month from April 25 to May 30, amounted to $4,296.83, and for the first five months of this year $17,299.29.

Peterborough's public relief bills through the Charity Board have increased from $4,253.80 in 1928 to $22,689.54 last year. The payments in 1928 totalled $4,253.80 and $4,130.59 in 1929.

Two resolutions passed by the Board Monday night are not only a statement of policy, but are intended as a warning to some persons who may be future applicants for assistance.

Moved by L. H. Ingram, seconded by R. Mulligan, that relief orders be given only to persons who have been resident in the city at least one year.

Moved by James Garside, seconded by James Abraham, that any person who uses a motor car in the summer except for the purpose of earning money be not given relief in winter.

In the past the Charity Board has withheld relief from persons owning motor cars. The anomaly of handing out money from the taxpayers' treasury to any citizen who had means enough to own and drive a car was regarded by the members of the Board as unfavorably as they believed the general public would look on it. Now, they have gone a step further, and their action may be construed as explicit notice that ownership of an automobile becomes an indication of sufficient personal means to go through next winter without appeal to the Board for aid. The only exception may be the man who is now using a motor to help earn money.

Driving around the country in an automobile will be considered a form of improvidence and an action contrary to the wishes and regulations of the Board. And according to the resolution any such applicants next winter will be refused public relief.

Relief Officer Metheral reported that Rupert Starr, who had received relief after he had moved out of the city had paid in $56.75 for such relief.

The members attending the meeting were: R. C. Braund (chairman), W. Rose, J. Abraham, J. Garside, A. E. Metheral, A. McLeod, R. Mulligan, A. McNab, A. B. Cunningham and L. H. Ingram.

FACIAL INJURY BY SHATTERED PULLEY

Eleven Stitches Required to Close Severe Wound.

Eleven stitches closed the facial wound suffered by Allen Sickle of Toronto, who was struck by a flying piece of a wooden pulley while working Monday for the Canadian Water Supply Company drilling for water on the property of the C.G.E. Company.

The pulley burst into pieces while in action, and one of the fragments hit Sickle a heavy blow on the face. He was knocked unconscious, and it was first thought that concussion of the brain might have resulted. X-ray examination yesterday at Nicholls Hospital showed that the injury was not as serious as was first feared. Mr. Sickle was taken to his home in Toronto Tuesday by his parents.

The Canadian Water Supply Company have a conntract with the C.G.E. Company to bore for water, and the young man was an employee of the Toronto company. He boarded at the Montreal House House, Aylmer Street.

Douglas Convicted Chicken Stealing

Willis Douglas of Westwood was this afternoon convicted on a charge of stealing some domestic birds, the property of Thomas Breckenridge of Asphodel Township, under the value of $20.00 and for which he was sentenced to one month at hard labor in the County Jail.

A second charge against the accused of stealing seven bronze turkeys from the farm of Mrs. Garvey also of Asphodel Township, was dismissed. His Worship expressed the opinion that he thought the accused man was probably guilty of the offence, but that the evidence was insufficient on which to record a conviction.

The accused was legally represented by J. A. O'Brien. Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., prosecuted on behalf of the Crown.

KHAN'S DASTUR IN 2ND PLACE; MIRACLE THIRD

Royal Dancer is Fourth

E. Esmond's Royal Dancer, the only one of the starters to win a race over the Downs course this season previous to to-day, was fourth, and the Aga Khan's Firdausi ran fifth.

The other starters (not in order of finish), were Andrea, Bacchus, Buckle, Celebrator, Cockpen, Corcy, Hesperus, Jackdaw Second, Jiweh, Orwell, Peter Plant, Portofino, Spenser, Summer Planet, Totalg and Wyvern.

To-day, Orwell proved those who doubted his staying powers were mainly right. He did not stand up under the gruelling mile and a half over the tough Derby course. Famed for his early speed, Orwell was well up among the front division for the first part of the journey but weakened when the final test approached and finished well back.

The victory of April the Fifth came as a complete surprise to the estimated crowds of 1,000. The King and Queen and other members of the Royal Family saw the running. April the Fifth's owner, Tom Walls, is a movie star, trainer and all-around sportsman.

Hold Winning Tickets

Miss M. Costigan, (308 Sanford Ave.) St. Lambert, Que., and Nick Rosner, (1383 Plimton Ave.) the Bronx New York, are holders of tickets on April the Fifth in the Army and Navy Veterans Sweepstakes on the derby. They are worth about $11,000. Tickets on Miracle, which ran third are held by Miss Jane Wilson, (1061 St. Alexander St.) Montreal, and Mr. and Mrs. Hildebrandt, (319 E. 88th St.) New York City. The third prize tickets will have a value of about $5,500 each.

HEALTH BODY MAKES APPEAL

Subscriptions Required to Maintain Work of Local Health Association.

$1,000 NEEDED.

These are times when everyone feels called upon to curtail their expenses. Probably there is no one in the city but is suffering from a reduced income. Things are good or bad, however by comparison. What might be considered poverty for some would be wealth for others. When illness occurs among those who are in comfortable circumstances it is not such a serious thing, as the best of care and medical attention are assured. But when illness occurs in the home that is destitute of the ordinary necessities of life, where even the required amount of food is lacking, then indeed it is something serious. It may be the breadwinner of the family who is stricken down; it may be the faithful mother, or one of the children—children as dear to them as though they were millionaires. In such cases there is no one to whom they can turn except the Peterborough Health Association.

This work has been carried on year after year and is almost self-supporting. It is carried on by members who freely give of their time, skill and means throughout the entire year that the work may go forward. A thousand dollars is all that is needed to ensure the continuance of the work for another year. It is asked from those who after all are able to give, or from members who have faithfully supported the Association year after year. It is asked in the name of suffering humanity. The need is greater this year than ever before. A thousand dollars can easily be forthcoming in the city of Peterborough for such a cause. "Even as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, ye have done it unto Me." Please send subscriptions to Mr. Borland, treasurer, at the Bank of Toronto, where they will be gratefully received and acknowledged.

MAKE ENQUIRY

to tackle the teachers only. The whole question of expenditure needed revision especially the night school expenditures. He believed a great saving could be effected by "cutting out some of the frills" of education.

Dr. A. Moir agreed with the views expressed by Dr. Scott and named several of the subjects in night school which he considered superflous in view of the existing conditions. He suggested that in reviewing the situation the Board might well consider curtailing the following classes for the time being: commercial French, ornamental lettering, industrial chemistry, auto mechanics for owners, English class for foreigners, boat building, aviation, telephony etc.

Justified Criticism

The speaker stated he had heard a great deal of criticism from garage men around the city respecting the auto mechanics class for owners. He thought such criticism had been justified as the classes were doing many garage men out of work that would otherwise come their way.

Volunteered 5 Per Cent Cut

In further discussion of the subject the part was not lost of that the teachers had volunteered a five percent reduction of salaries could not well be made to come into effect until the present year was through. But the reason why immediate action is necessary is due, it was explained, that the teachers contracts with the Board expire at the end of this month. Renewals of contracts in the fall, if revision of salaries were contemplated would have to be made, with due regard to the salary schedules for the next year.

Another angle of the discussion was that regarding the government grants to the Board if night school classes were curtailed. It was suggested that what the oBard saved by abolishnig certain subjects would be outweighed by what would be lost in the way of grants.

Time For Control

Dr. Moir felt that the time had arrived for governments to exercise control over expenditures. He would like to see the Vocational Committee instructed to write to the Department of Education on the subject.

Mr. Dutton undertook to see Mr. Rutherford of the Department and discuss the question with him.

Cricket Results

LONDON, June 1 (C.P. Cable).—Amazing cricket was seen at Lord's to-day when the county match between Gloucestershire and Middlesex started. Middlesex lost the last six wickets of their first innings for only 16 runs, within 40 minutes, and Gloucestershire collapsed even more badly before the Middlesex bowling, losing their last seven wickets for 13 runs in 25 minutes.

Spectators on hand when Tom Goddard, medium - fast bowler, took three Middlesex wickets for one run, in one over, were startled by the speed with which Gloucester wickets fell later in the day. Ivan Peebles, Test match player, who is a leg-break and googly bowler, took three Gloucester wickets with three successive balls, his total analysis being: 13 overs, one maiden, 34 runs and five wickets.

The scores at the end of the first day's play were as follows:

At Lord's—Middlesex, 131 (Parker 5 for 73, Goddard 5 for 44); Gloucestershire, 133 (Hammond 70, Peebles 5 for 34).

At Cardiff—Essex, 300 (O'Connor 93, Clay 5 for 75); Glamorgan, 29 for four wickets.

At Leeds—Hampshire, 199 (Macaulay 4 for 46); Yorkshire, 10 for 1 wicket.

At Nottingham—Nottinghamshire, 339 for wickets (Arthur Staples, 59 not out, Keeton 108) against Derbyshire.

At Cambridge—Cambridge University, 22 for one wicket, against Sussex; rain stopped play.

At Oxford—Oxford University 159 (Sibbles 6 for 45); Lancashire 105 for 1 wicket (Paynter 54 not out).

At Leicester—Somerset, 46 runs for no wickets, against Leicestershire.

No play was possible in the Warwick-Surrey and Northampton-shire-Kent matches.

UNITED STATES TO AID NATIONS

the British Government believed a world conference to consider the universal slump in commodity prices would ameliorate the economic depression.

Sir John indicated that the Lausanne Conference of European Powers, including Great Britain on June 16 must naturally complicate the situation.

Factors in Crisis.

It has to be remembered, he said, that the terms of reference to the conference at Lausanne include among the objects to be sought, not only the settlement of reparations, but an agreement on measures necessary to solve the other economic and financial difficulties which are responsible for and may prolong the present world crisis.

The importance of co-operation by the United States in such a discussion is so great that His Majesty's Government is losing no time in consulting the other governments who are assisting at Lausanne as to the suggestion (apparently of Mr. Mellon) which has been made.

CLERKS BEATEN BY SAINTS 10-9

Close Play in Second Softball Game Features Fine Contest.

TIGHT BATTERY WORK.

CAMPPBELLFORD, June 1 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Creeping up after three blank innings when the score stood six runs against them, and coming back in the seventh with one run lead, the Saints scored their first victory over the Clerks, the first time these two aggregations have been in action this season in the second game of the Campbellford Town Softball schedule played last evening on the High School grounds by a count of 10-9.

The game was a splendid exhibition with both teams fighting hard for position. The Clerks led the play in the first three innings, scoring a double run in each, the Saints playing blank through this period. Then they swung into action and started to count while the Clerks remained blank themselves. Counting four runs in the fourth, they stood eight at the end of the sixth, against the Clerks six. In the first of the seventh the Clerks batted for three, giving them a lead of one. The Saints, however, made a two in the last frame, winning the game by one run.

Play was close throughout the game with but little base stealing. Some spectacular outfield catching was featured, especially in the third inning, when Gamble and Whitton caught out Bush and Hendy, putting the Clerks down for two straight. McArthur was caught for the third man out by the pitcher.

The teams:

ROTARY INTER-CITY MEET AT BELEVILLE

Presentation to Tom Webster Made by Owen Herity—Rev. G. A. Leichliter of Toronto Speaker.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 1. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent) Staging an inter-city meet at Quinte Golf and Country Club, Belleville, Rotary Clubs from Bowmanville, Port Hope, Cobourg, Trenton, Campbellford and Napanee were the guests of the Belleville clubs on Monday evening when a banquet was held at which the guest speaker was the Rev. G. A. Leichliter of Toronto.

A feature of the meet was the presentation by Owen Herity of a beautiful silver cup to President Tom Webster of the Belleville club on his retirement from office and his departure from the city. Making the presentation Mr. Herity spoke words of appreciation of the work done by the retiring president, to which Mr. Webster gratefully responded.

The Rev. Mr. Leichliter, who was introduced by the Rev. A. B. Payne, spoke on the subject "Truths that Lie" stressing the fact that many childhood maxims which are believed by the young because of the source of their information are actually fallacies. Life's principle is the only adequate value of life he stated, for what counted in life was what a man was, his power and his personality. Mr. Leichliter spoke in a very able and convincing manner and illustrated his talk with many graphic instances using a number of beautiful word pictures.

The toast to the King was given by President Tom Webster, who presided over the gathering, and that to the visitors by A. F. Stillman, many of the guests responding.

Included in the musical portion of the program the Belleville Rotary minstrels entertained with two numbers. Vocal songs were rendered by Jim Bankier and C. A. Cameron, a collaroty waeg iven by Cameron and community singing indulged in under the leadership of the Belleville club's song leader.

MUST ORGANIZE FOR BENEFITS

Fred Mallory of Belleville Addresses Campbellford Dairy Meeting.

ON CHEESE QUESTION.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 1 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — "We've got to get big and strong enough to shoot past Montreal, that octopus that controls our price," stated Fred Mallory, secretary of the Belleville Cheese Board, speaking last evening in Campbellford to cheese factory patrons and outlining to them the necessity of organizing to gain a better price for their produce. The gathering was presided over by Fred. W. Barnum, director for Northumberland County of the Central Ontario Cheese Patrons' Association, the formation of which the meeting was called.

Other speakers included J. P. Griffin, secretary of the Ontario Milk Producers' Association, Toronto, and Walter H. Smith, district agricultural representative, Brighton.

In a very able and convincing way Mr. Mallory explained the cheese situation as he knew it in Central Ontario. Of the Belleville Cheese Board, of which he is the secretary, he stated that its strength was its weakness, because it has cheese selling at its own price, and other organized interests compete to keep the price down. It had been in existence for the past 52 years, and during that time its method of business had not changed. At the present time, he stated that there was some dissatisfaction with the board and its method of handling because prices were down. Last fall, Mr. Mallory said, that fodder cheese sold at nine cents, graded good cheese, and yet this same cheese sold on the English market as fine September cheese. To-day cheese was worth 8 and 9 cents, and buyers were still calling for fodder cheese, and he felt sure, he stated, that this would go on the Old Country market as June cheese. Someone was making a large profit in this deal, and this was not the producer—the farmer.

Col. Kennedy had emphasized the fact, Mr. Mallory stated, that collectively the cheese industry had no one to speak for it, despite the fact that it is second largest industry in the country.

Milk Patrons Organize

This had led to the formation of a Milk Patrons' Association, which included the creameries' patrons as well as cheese factory patrons. But it was soon seen that the price of cheese governed the price of cream, and as a matter of fact the price of milk in the province, and it was felt more essential that cheese factory patrons should be organized. An organization was wanted badly that could force any government to listen to it, and could work to take the surplus trucks off the road, the cost of which comes from the pockets of the farmers. With this idea, the present organization has been formed and organized in all sections of the province with the exception of Kingston, where a committee is acting and arranging for meetings.

Speaking on marketing conditions Mr. Mallory stated there were three methods used—the cheese boards, the U.D.C., and the regulars, or men who sell to the same firm all the time. None of these, he thought to be any good now, for he declared they were all tied hand and foot by the Montreal Produce Association, which had eliminated all competition.

The U.D.C. was doing good work, he said, but was governed by the Montreal concern because it had not the volume of business to dictate to this firm, and the regulars were just nuisances because they eliminated competition altogether.

To shoot past Montreal and sell direct to England, the patrons had to organize, and they were assured that the Marketing Board would stand behind them. The fee for membership was one cent on a thousand pounds of milk, based on the production of the factory last year. This assessment would just realize enough to carry on the routine work of the organization.

J. P. Griffin

Mr. Griffin stated that the movement which was now being discussed was one that he had been looking for for years. The Ontario Milk Producers' Association covers all milk producers with the exception of the cheese industry. This organization had accomplished much, especially for the powder plant and condensers. It had tried to benefit the cheese industry, and despite the fact that there were three cheesemen on the board, there was no backing behind them, no organization to formulate a policy for them.

He had been asking for a bonus on cheese for a long time, he stated, and although nothing as yet had been accomplished, he felt that with a proper organization behind such a movement, results would be obtained.

Raised Standard

Benefits derived from organization, Mr. Griffin stated, could be seen in the case of the cheesemaker's, which banding together had helped to raise the standard of maker and had increased the quality of cheese and brought a premium of three cents for Canadian cheese on the English market, which had put in the producers'—the farmers—pocket two million dollars. Such results could also be obtained by the patrons if they would organize.

Speaking of the forthcoming Imperial Conference at Ottawa, Mr. Griffin said that it would be just too bad for the cheese patrons of the Province if they had not a good strong organization to back up a delegation for that conference.

After some discussion, during which Mr. Smith took the chair, a committee was formed to handle a series of meetings among the cheese patrons and explain the aims and objects of the proposed organization to them prior to taking any definite step although the meeting, which was a large one, expressed agreement with the idea. The committee is: Chairman, W. Stephens; secretary, Fred H. Barnum, William Rowe, Hector Arnold, W. Totten, Roy Walker, Fred Peake, Bert Third, Robert Innes, G. VanVolkenburg, H. B. Wood, James Yule, T. Fry and Alfred Merrill.

TORONTO, June 1.—Lighter receipts of eggs and a fair demand resulted in better prices being paid by local buyers to country shippers for ungraded supplies yesterday, and an increase in levels to retailers. Brokers found a good market for graded eggs, and prices were firm. Montreal maintained higher levels than quoted in Toronto, and were securing considerable supplies from this Province.

Egg Prices

Country shippers were quoted 13½c for extras, 11½c for firsts, and 9½c for seconds, the latter grade being fairly scarce. Retailers were offered extras in cartons at 19c, extras loose at 17c, firsts loose at 15c, and seconds loose at 13c per dozen. Brokers quoted graded eggs in used cases at 15c for extras, 13c for firsts and 11c for seconds, and storage-packed eggs at 15½c for extras and 13½c for firsts.

Butter

Trade in butter was not very active, but this was not exceptional for the end of the month. Prices were more or less steady for creamery solids at 17¼c to 17½c for No. 1, and 16¼c to 16½c for No. 2, with reports of special levels on some offerings. Receipts were showing the regular seasonal increase, but were not burdensome.

Cream

Local buyers of butterfat reported lower prices for June 1. Cream shippers were quoted 1c less per pound fat at 17c for special, 16c for No. 1 and 13c for No. 2, f.o.b. country points.

Cheese

Prices on new makes of cheese were steady, with the increases reported for Monday. Brokers offered new large at 9½c, new twins at 9¾c, and new triplets at 10c, while retailers were offered new makes at 11c for large, 11¼c for twins, 11½c for triplets, and 13½c for stiltons.

CANADIAN EGG MARKETS

OTTAWA, June 1.—A further decline in receipts is reported again from a number of egg markets, and at some points, particularly in the Maritime Provinces, there is a trend to higher prices.

TALK ON RUSSIA IS FEATURE OF Y.P.L.

Mrs. A. J. Armour Tells Campbellford League of Russian Five Year Plan.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 1. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent).—A talk on the Russian five year plan by Mrs. A. J. Armour featured the regular meeting of the Young People's League of St. John's United Church, held on Monday evening in the church hall. The address was highly interesting, the speaker explaining the economic and social condition of that country and the hope that is felt by its leaders for a prominent place in the nations of the world.

The contest "The proverbs on the Wayside Pulpit" which has been a feature of the club activities this season, was won by Miss Nettie Forde, Miss Alma Simpson taking second prize. The musical portion of the program included a vocal duet by Wallace Rutherford and Elmer Jordan; solo by Passchendale Seaborn; piano solo, Fred Dorie; and a contest, "The mountains of the Bible."

A brief address by two former members of the league, Miss Reta Palliser and Mrs. C. McIntyre, was also featured. Refreshments were served by the executive to all present, this being the season's final meeting.

Last Monday, May 23, the league was favoured by an address by Miss Helen MacDonald on her trip to Europe last summer. The members travelled with her by motor, train and steamer through the battlefields of Europe, through France, Holland, Germany, England Scotland Switzerland, Italy and Belgium. Those present will not forget the many interesting features of the trip described by Miss MacDonald such as the concrete highway from Arras to Vimy with its grove of Canadian maples, Edith Cavell's monument in Belgium; the Bridge of Sighs, the city of islands—Venice. The talk was illustrated with photos and maps which Miss MacDonald used to trace her course.

He is a member of the Centrist (Catholic) Party but belongs to the army branch and the belief prevailed here to-day that he would not be able to count on the votes of the 68 Centrists in the Reichstag because most of them were supporters of Chancelor Bruening, who also is a Centrist.

Extremely Conservative.

Failure of Von Papen's attempt to form a government, it was stated in political circles to-day, would leave several possible second choices to the veteran Field Marshal President.

He might invoke Article 48 of the German Constitution, which gives him autocratic power in emergency, and rule without the Reichstag. Or he might order new general elections.

Herr Von Papen continued his efforts to select a group of ministers to-day. The consensus appeared to be that any cabinet he would form would be extremely Rightist and Conservative in its key elections.

There were indications that Baron Wilhelm Von Gayl, organizer of the anti-Red forces in East Prussia in 1919, would be the choice for Minister of Interior, which post carries with it the control of the huge police forces of tthe entire country.

General Kurt Von Schleicher, generally credited with participation in the Nationalist movement which forced Dr. Bruening's resignation, was suggested as a possibility for the post of Minister of Defence, carrying the command of the Army.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

Board of Education on the reception committee had merely been an oversight. She had also believed that a leader of any body should be prepared to take the initiative on such questions, and she was prepared to take the consequences whatever they were.

Lengthy Discussion

At the close of a lengthy discussion on the matter it was resolved on motion of Dr. J. J. Craig and seconded by James Dutton that the Board endorse the action taken by Mrs. Morris in her relations with the City Council regarding arrangements for the visit of the Earl of Bessborough. It was further decided that the secretary of the Board be instructed to write an official protest from the Board to the City Council.

In adding a rider to the resolution, I. P. McNabb said he wished it to go on record that it was regretted there was not a better spirit of co-operation beween he City Council and the Board of Education.

Presenting a detailed account of the negotiations between members of the City Council and herself respecting arrangements for the vice-regal visit, Mrs. Morris stated that the Board had been asked to co-operate by having the schools of the city enter into the program.

Took it for Granted

Inspector A. Mowat, H. R. H. Kenner and Mrs. Morris had fallen in with suggestion made to them and had done all that was asked of them. She had taken it for granted, she remarked, that a member of the Board would be on the reception committee. Finding out later that such was not the intention of the Council Mrs. Morris had consulted City Clerk S. R. Armstrong and also Mayor Roland Denne.

A committee representative of the Board of Education and composed of E. F. Reid, I. P. McNabb and Dr. A. Moir had also entered into negotiations with the City Hall officials. She could not see how the city could forget the Board when they had been obliged to call on the Board for assistance in the program, but apart from that question, she maintained the Board had certain rights of representation as well as other public bodies.

Various Excuses

On Sunday afternoon, Mrs. Morris said she had phoned Alderman Dan Holland, chairman of the City Council reception committee. The Alderman had made all sorts of excuses, such as the length of the route to be covered and the lack of time, etc. He said he would take the matter up with the Mayor.

On Monday Mrs. Morris told the Board she took action herself, sending a letter to the press and also to the Mayor. She termed the letter a "formal protest." Mr. Armstrong and the Mayor had requested that the letter to the press be recalled, and made the promise that the question would be dealt with at a meeting of the Council that night.

E. F. Reid while agreeing with the chairman that a representative of the Board should have been on the Reception Committee, did not concur with Mrs. Morris' action in sending the letter which she did to the press. He did not think that such a course had been in the best interests of the public.

Does Not Agree

Mrs. Morris charged Mr. Reid that when she had spoken to him on the telephone, and had asked him "Do you not think publication of the letter is justified?" he had replied: "Yes. Under the circumstances I do". Mr. Reid did not agree with Mrs. Morris.

I. P. McNabb said there was no question on his part that the Board should have been represented on the reception committee. The Board had endeavoured very gently to draw the attention of the Council what they had at first believed to be an oversight, and for that purpose he had been glad to act on the committee of three that was appointed to meet the Council. He hesitated o believe that the action of the City Council in regard to the Board had been wilful. But he stated, "I am in perfect agreement with all that has been done by our chairman. It is only right that the Board should have been represented on the reception committee. The fact that the schoolchildren formed a large part in the program of celebrations was reason enough in itself. "Those in authority, and I say it in a charitable way, have made a great mistake. If they would do such a thing wilfully then I say they are occupying positions they should not occupy at all" he said.

"Mrs. Morris' representations to the council and to the press was dignified and respectful. Her action will be vindicated by all right thinking citizens of Peterborough" stated Mr. McNabb. It was a pronouncement that was greeted with applause.

Mrs. Morris' action was also endorsed by Dr. A. Moir. "It is hard for me to believe that it was an oversight that the Board was not represented on the Reception Committee. One more person on the committee would certainly not have materially interfered with the arrangements that had been completed" he said.

A Vast Difference

Remarking upon one of the excuses that had been made by the City Council to the effect that if the Board of Education had been represented it would have left the way open for a representative from the Utilities Commission, the Ministerial Association and other bodies, Dr. Moir failed to see what relation any of the other public bodies had with the Board. "There is a vast difference" he exclaimed, "between these organizations and the Board of Education, especially when we realize the large part played in the arrangements by the school children.

Mr. Dutton felt that Mrs. Morris had presented her case on behalf of the Board "very admirably." He was of the opinion that a further protest should be sent to the Council to call attention to the grave oversight on the part of the Council in not having the Board represented.

Dr. Craig who said he had endorsed the action of the chairman of the Board when informed of her intention, said he again wished to endorse what she had already done in the matter.

While he believed that Mrs. Morris' action had been justified to a certain extent, W. J. Hancock was of the opinion that "the letter to the press should probably not have been written without the endorsation of the entire Board."

Dr. G. R. Scott concurred fully with the action of the chairman.

In bringing the discussion to a conclusion, Mrs. Morris remarked that the Mayor was perfectly aware of civic procedure and he knew that the Board was entitled to representation on the committee. "I know what he would have wanted had he been on the Board" she stated. Referring to what she termed the Mayor's "lack of restraint" she also believed she knew what he would have done under similar circumstances. "For a man who thinks he has a political future, he has acted foolishly," she remarked.

Superintendent of boys' work — Mr. John Payne, Pontypool.

Superintendent of young people's work—Mrs. Fred. Gray, Ballyduff.

Head of missionary department—Mrs. Melville Lathangue, Lotus.

Teacher training work—Mr. Marshal Malcolm, Janetville.

Superintendent of children's work —Mrs. Harold Payne, Bethany.

Superintendent of adult department—Mrs. Thomas Jackson, Bethany.

Superintendent of temperance work—Mr. Karl Stinson, Janetville.

Superintendent of home department — Mrs. Sam Stinson, Janetville.

Rev. Mr. Adamson, of Pontypool, ably acted as chairman for the evening session, which was opened by the singing of several hymns, led by the church organist, Mr. J. J. Clarke, of Bethany. Rev. Adamson chose as his Scripture reading Paul's second letter to Timothy, chapter 2, and followed it with fervent appropriate prayer.

Mr. Jakeman, the president, then took the chair and called on Mrs. Scott, of Bethany, to give the report of the nominating committee. Mr. Jakeman voiced his appreciation of the confidence reposed in him as president for the past years. He stated that it would save the executive considerable work and all would have a voice, if the place of meeting for the next convention were decided upon, it usually being held in the centre of the township and often where the Sunday schools are weaker, Fleetwood, Yelverton and Pontypool having been chosen in the past three years. Invitations were extended from representatives of various centres and Bethany was chosen finally as the place of meeting for the 1933 convention.

There were twenty-eight active workers from Ballyduff; eighteen from Bethany; six from Pontypool; thirteen from Yelverton; six from Janetville, and five from Lotus.

Mr. Poole, the general secretary of educational work and special speaker for the evening, installed the officers.

The Bethany male quartette—C. White, E. Bray, J. J. Clarke and H. Preston—accompanied by Miss Viola Gray at the organ, sang to an appreciative audience, "Hark, Hark, My Soul."

Mr. Poole delighted his hearers with a most interesting address, using the blackboard to stress his points. "Just how character is developed in our children" was the main theme of the address. Character doesn't just happen. The wonder is that many develop as they do. The endeavor of the speaker was to suggest something that parents and Sunday school workers might do to mould the best type of character.

"Activity" was the first word used. While children are more active than we sometimes wish them to be, we realize they would not amount to anything if they lacked activity. "Experience," the second word, is gained only through activity, whether mental or physical. If we have the same experience often enough we form "Habit," the third important word, and on our habits hang our "Character."

It was habit that brought the majority of people to the Sunday school convention. Habit is the reason some men buy their wives candy and the reason others do not. Habit mean character. From the moment the child arrives in this world there is activity which leads to experience, then habit, and his final character.

The years from fourteen to twenty-one are the most critical years for many reasons. Up to the age of fourteen the child is largely controlled by adults, by parents, teachers or some external control. He has no opportunity to make his own decisions, and if sent out into the world in this way will probably become a failure. We should then share our knowledge with our children and allow them to assist in valuating, judging and analyzing the various situations of life. We don't learn to swim by someone telling us how, but by swimming. It is so with living and with making experiences and decisions.

LIFFORD LINE.

Mr. Norton Mills, who has been the efficient Blacksmith at Lifford for the past thirty-five years has purchased the fifty acre 'Dean' farm on the eleventh line, which was owned of late years by the late Joseph Atkinson. Mr. Milles intends making several improvements on his newly acquired property before taking up residence there with his family.

The many friends of Mr. Carl Stinson of the Fourteenth line will be pleased to learn that he is making favorable recovery after a serious illness in the Ross Memorial Hospital, Lindsay. On Thursday he underwerwent an operation for appendicitis, with Drs. Gorman and Henderson in attendance.

The committee in charge of the community park in Janetville met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Deyell, on Wednesday evening to transact the general opening business. Plans were made for further beautification of the grounds by the planting of ornamental trees. Following considerable discussion it was agreed to put a flock of sheep in the park to eat down the grass.

EDMONTON, Alta., May 31 (C.P.)—Knocked to the pavement by a blow to the jaw to-day, Mrs. R. McDonald, of the office staff of the Misericordia Hospital, was slugged and robbed of the $2,600 payroll of the hospital.

THE BABY

When morning broke and baby came
The house did scarcely seem the same
As just before. The very air
Grew fragrant with the essence rare
Of a celestial garden where
The angels, breathless, learned to hear
The youthful mother's fervid prayer
To God, to guard her first-born care.
And with what diligence each ear
Did listen, as her lips did frame
The helpless little stranger's name—
When baby came!

JUNE'S FIRST BABY GETS A WELCOME AT THE C.D.S.

CHURCH DELEGATES GATHER IN LINDSAY

Bishop F. J. McConnell Addresses Bay of Quinte Conference.

LINDSAY, June 1. (Special to The Examiner).—The Bay of Quinte seventh annual conference since Union of the United Church officially opened yesterday afternoon when ministers and laymen gathered in the fine auditorium of First United Church and partook of the Sacrament. The sermon was preached by Rev. Mr. Tanton of Cobourg, while the president of conference, Rev. Perry of Ganonoque, conducted the service. There are four hundred delegates present.

Last night delegates to conference were officially welcomed by the president at a mass meeting, which filled the large auditorium. The address of the evening was delivered by a foremost American divine, Bishop Frances J. McConnell, D.D., LL.D., S.T.D., of New York, the topic being "The world situation as it concerns the church to-day."

Rev. George C. Pidgeon, M.A., D.D., of Toronto, delivered a forcible address on "The message for the times."

A civic welcome and a reception from the Lindsay Ministerial Association was extended officially this morning. Two ministers who are fifty years in the ministery will be received, namely, Rev. Dr. Charles D. Baldwin of Kingston and Rev. Matthew E. Wilson of Havelock.

The finance committee will introduce the question of group insurance for ministers which will be recommended to conference similar to the plan adopted by the Alberta conference.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

YESTERDAY we spoke of entertaining at a Rose Colored Party, and so to-day we will continue on that subject.

• • • • • • •

Supper partners, or those for refreshments, are secured by matching colors of roses. One basket of these flowers is passed to the men, one to the women.

• • • • • • •

Each basket has paper roses, no two of which are exactly alike but each basket is a duplicate of the other.

• • • • • • •

Or if natural roses are used, tag two with the same numbers and put one in each basket. Matching numbers in this case secures partners.

• • • • • • •

For Rose Jacket Horner Pie, in the centre of the dining table have a large bouquet of roses, to the stems of which are fastened little favors. The favors are hidden in the rose bowl.

• • • • • • •

When the supper is over, each guest is bidden to take a rose, and so the Jack Horner feature of this fragrant and exquisitet "pie" is revealed.

• • • • • • •

As rose is described as a light pinkish crimson, pink is the color scheme for the supper or refreshments. Th difference between the menus consists in having more of the viands described for a supper than for refreshments.

• • • • • • •

A dainty supper might consist of rose-colored fruit cup; beet roses on lettuce leaves; mayonnaise centres. stuffed olives, celery; tomato rolls and butter; strawberry or raspberry shortcake with whipped cream and coffee.

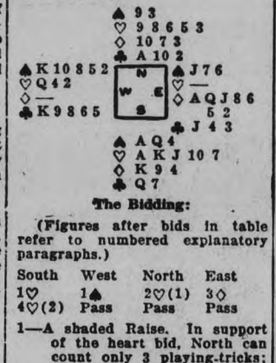
DISTRIBUTION YOUR SERVANT

Mathematicians delving into the mysteries of distribution state that the probability of any particular hand occurring in a deal at Bridge is roughly one in six hundred thirty-five billion. These figures stagger the imagination, but when you consider that this refers to all the possible combinations of cards, you are inclined to let the mathematicals have their way and not attempt to demonstrate it for yourself. This is the reason that so-called "perfect" hands appear rarely at Contract. Actually, any other distribution of the hands is just as rare or just as common, but not nearly so effective. Distribution is a powerful factor both in bidding and play, but it is a useless servant if you do not understand a way to make it serve your purposes, as is illustrated in the deal below.

North and South vulnerable.
East and West not vulnerable.
South, Dealer.



The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1♡	1♠	2♡(1)	3◇
4♡(2)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—A shaded Raise. In support of the heart bid, North can count only 3 playing-tricks; 1 for the club Ace, 1 for the spade Doubleton and 1 for the five-card length in hearts. Tho hand, however, contains imponderable values which justify the Raise.

2—While the value of South's hand has been slightly decreased by West's spade bid the balance has been restored by East's diamond bid, which appears to make his diamond King a winner.

West was forced to lead and it was a case of Hobson's choice. Whatever he elected to do was bad. A lead of the heart would deprive him of a trump trick in all probability. His partner had refused to assist the spade bid and he could not open diamonds because he had none of them. Hoping to find his partner with either the Queen or Ace of clubs, he elected to lead that suit. When the Dummy went down, South correctly read the diamond holding. West had failed to open a diamond because he was void, he reasoned. South could see one probable spade loser and two probable losers in diamonds. He did not anticipate the loss of a heart trick, but it was essential, if he was to make his contract, that he lose no clubs. Therefore he permitted the club lead to run to the Queen. East brilliantly refused to play the Knave, but merely covered the deuce with the trey. This play is a very strong defensive measure and should be made whenever the Dummy shows Ace Ten of a suit and Third Hand holds the Knave with small cards. It can lose nothing and may gain. South won the trick.

Making of game now appeared a cinch, so South laid down the Ace of hearts only to find that West held a certain heart trick. This put a different complexion on the deal and many players with the South hand would now concede defeat. However, the freaks of distribution had made possible the making of an apparently unmakable contract. South now laid down his other top heart, leaving West with the high trump. He then led his last club and won with the Ace in the Dummy. Dummy's remaining club was ruffed in the closed hand and West was forced into the lead with the high trump, leaving him only spades or clubs to lead. West decided to lead a spade and thus South avoided the loss of any tricks in that suit, his losers on the hand being confined to the trump trick and two diamonds. South's accurate play had found a powerful ally in distribution.

Church and Civil Courts Differ On Validity of Two Marriages

MONTREAL, June 1 (C.P.). — Conflict in the views of the Church courts and the civil courts on the validity of two marriages of Miss Marie Jeanne Des Ormiers was shown in a judgment rendered to-day by Mr. Justice Boyer in the Superior Court. In respect to the first marriage in 1928, the civil courts held the marriage illegal because the contracting parties were minors and did not have the consent of their parents. Ecclesiastical courts, however, decided the first marriage was binding and when the young woman married again declared the second marriage bigamous, and annulled it. To-day Mr. Justice Boyer held the second marriage legal and binding.

In the action dismissed to-day, J. Adrien Perrault asked to have his marriage annulled on the ground that his wife was already married and her husband still living. At the time of his marriage, he said, he was ignorant of the previous one. As the church courts had declared her first marriage binding and her second bigamous, he asked the courts to confirm the view of the church and cancel his marriage.

THRIFT HABIT COMES TO FORE

Four Milion Holders of Small War Loans in Britain.

INTEREST IS PAID.

LONDON, June 1. (C. P. Cable)—Derby Day is not ordinarily associated with national thrift so it is an interesting coincidence the great racing festival this year coincides with the date on which the Government pays out 50,000,000 in the half-yearly interest on the War Loan, a large portion of which is held by small investors.

Altogether there are 4,000,000 holders of war loans and every one received the interest warrant at the breakfast table. Contrary to expectations, the amount was not accompanied by any proposal to convert the interest from five to four percent, although it is probable such a conversion, long mooted, will not be long delayed.

Lord Snowden, the Lord Privy Seal, spoke with gratification last night of the continued momentum of the small savings habit. An increase of 10 percent in the last 12 months of the purchases of the certificates of 16 shillings each (about $3.50) is shown. These certificates are redeemable at 20 shillings in five years' time.

The savings habit is becoming ingrained, Lord Snowden added, but there is still colossal wasteful spending. He mentioned that 500,000,000 a year was spent in drink or gambling, this being one-sixth of the national income.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

FOOD FOR THE BRAIN.

Perhaps you have the idea that the food that the brain likes best, that nourishes it best, is fish. For generations this idea has been handed down, because fish contains phosphorus, and phosphorus stimulates the brain.

It will come as a surprise then to learn that the food that the brain uses for its work of directing all the affairs of the body is starch or sugar.

It has been generally agreed for some time that muscle gets its food for energy by the oxidation or using up of fats and sugars, but it is only recently that starch has been found to be the food or fuel the brain requires.

It was found by experiment that the blood returning from the brain showed less sugar and less lactic acid than the blood going to the brain. Now as sugar and lactic acid are not stored by the brain, it makes it clear that it is sugar and lactic acid that the brain uses for its supply of energy.

Dr. W. G. Lennox studied the brain and the muscles of the leg at the same time. While the muscle tissue used or lived on fat, the brain used or lived on carbohydrate or sugar. This is the evidence then that the brain lives entirely on sugar when the other organs burn fat.

However, Dr. E. G. Holmes found that the brain could do its work without sugar, if lactic acid is present or added to the preparation. Further, it was found that unless the sugar was converted into lactic acid in the brain, the brain could not do its work. This means that sugar is converted into lactic acid, and lactic acid supplies the food for the brain.

What does this teach us?

That for all energy required by the body, the main reliance must be placed on starchy foods for both physical and mental work.

It must be remembered, of course, that all the other foods are essential if the body is to do its work properly, as it needs material for growth and renewal of its structure, besides food to provide energy.

Meat, eggs, and fish are the tissue-builders or flesh-formers; salts or minerals preserve the tissues, regulate chemical action, enter into formation of bones and teeth; water enters into the juices made by the organs, regulates body temperature and keeps surfaces moistened, fats supply heat and force, store energy, and are protective foods.

However, the main point is that energy for mental and physical work is derived from starches—sugar, bread, potatoes, and other vegetables.

STRIKE SPREADING THROUGHOUT SPAIN

Lock-out Continues and Clashes More Frequent in Whole Country.

MADRID, June 1 (C.P.). — A threat of lock-outs entered Spain's nation-wide strike to-day as the toll of casualties continued to mount.

The Employers' and Proprietors' Association at Seville, one of the strike centres, threatened to close their factories and shops if workmen continued to refuse to revise their contracts. At the same time, the Andalusian Economic Federation cancelled all its contracts with the workers because of the strike.

Syndicalist leaders at Ceutu called off the general strike there, but it spread to 20 surrounding towns.

Four persons were seriously wounded at Malaga in a clash between police and a group of 600 armed syndicalists. Among those wounded was the syndicalists' president.

There were several casualties at Ceuta yesterday, including three sailors from a Spanish war vessel who were wounded in a skirmish with the strikers.

Many foreigners at Algerciras fixed the flags of their countries on their automobiles to avoid interference after several cars had been stoned and damaged as they left the city. Bakers joned the strike there and the people were forced to depend on the military stores for their bread.

Hawaii's present sugar crop is expected to be nearly 1,000,000 tons.

WHOLE EMPIRE COLONIAL TRADE TO BE REVISED

Changes in All British Trade Treaties Follow Conference.

OVER GREAT AREA.

Treaties Limiting British Preferences in Africa Reviewed.

LONDON, June 1 (C.P. Cable).—Revision of British trade treaties is a likely sequel to the Ottawa conference.

These treaties are many and varied. In some cases they limit the right of great stretches of Britain's Colonial Empire to give tariff preferences. And the Colonial Empire —which does not include the Dominions and India—has an area greater than that of the United States. Its total population is more that than of the whole of the self-governing Dominions. By far the greater part of the British Colonial Empire is in Africa, where these limiting trade treaties especially apply.

By the St. Germain-en-Laye Convention, commonly known as the Congo Basin Treaties, the British East and Central African Colonies are prevented from giving preferences to British goods. The Congo Basin Treaties date back to the partition of Africa. The Berlin Conference of 1884-5 laid down a free trade area covering what was known as the Conventional Basin of the Congo. This basin stretches to the East Coast and includes Uganda, Kenya, Tanganyika, part of Northern Rhodesia and the northern part of Portuguese East Africa. Throughout this region no power exercising sovereignty in any part of the conventional basin can grant preferential rights to its own subjects. With minor changes, the obligations of the Berlin Conference are continued in the St. Germain-en-Laye Convention.

Anglo-French Treaty.

By the Anglo-French Convention of 1898, Nigeria and the Gold Coast are precluded from giving tariff preferences to British goods over French goods. In return, the British trader gets similar rights in the French possessions of the Ivory Coast, Dahomey, and part of the French Soudan.

Territories held by Great Britain directly under mandates from the League cannot give tariff preference to the United Kingdom. British Togoland, the British Cameroons, and Tanganyika Territory are held under such mandates. The mandates provide that these three territories must extend to other states, which are members of the League the same fiscal treatment as is extended to the United Kingdom. Tariff preferences may, however, be granted by territories under British Dominion mandates. Territories held under Dominion mandates are: New Guinea, mandated to Australia; Western Samoa, mandated to New Zealand; Nuara, mandated jointly to the United Kingdom, Australia, and New Zealand; South-West Africa, formerly German South-west Africa, mandated to the Union of South Africa.

Treaty With Greece.

Great Britain has a treaty with Greece which limits the maximum amount of duty she can impose on currants. She has a treaty with Portugal which makes it illegal to describe as port wine any wine other than that produced in the Douro Valley. And the following most-favored-nation clause is embodied in a mass of British commercial agreements with foreign countries:

Articles produced or manufactured in the territories of one of the high contracting parties, imported into the territories of the other, from whatever place arriving shall not be subjected to other or high duties or charges than those paid on the article produced or manufactured in any other foreign country.

Mrs. Russell Ward, Hilton Beach, Ontario, writes: "This is my secret for keeping my family of six well. For all my children I have used Baby's Own Tablets, and I cannot praise them too much. If my baby is fretful, I give her a Baby's Own Tablet, and in a short time she is happy. If there is sign of a cold, I give the tablets, and she is soon all better. Toronto Leafs Drop To Seventh Position

DALY HURLERS FAIL TO CHECK BISON BATTERS

Leafs' Lead Melts as Bisons Assault Pitcher Cantrell For Five Runs.

FINAL COUNT 10-8.

Ollie Tucker and Ott Miller on Herd Line-up Connect for Two Circuits.

BUFFALO, N.Y., June 1—Smacking another assortment of Toronto pitchers from pillar to post, the Bisons put on another of their hitting storms to overcome a four-run deficit as late as the sixth inning and inflicted a third straight larruping on the Toronto Maple Leafs at the Stadium yesterday afternoon.

The final figures were 10 to 8 and the Bison triumph was the third in a row over the Leafs and the ninth in ten starts, while it served to fully protect their full game lead in first place, although the Baltimore Orioles kept pace by slaying the trailing Reading of the Bisons continued at its highest standard, while Ollie Tucker and Oty Miller parked two more homers over the fences to bring the Bison total for three games to seventeen.

A Hectic Affair

The game was a hectic, long-drawnout affair, in which eight pitchers toiled and no less than nineteen bases on balls cluttered up the score sheets. Five twirlers were in the Toronto parade and only Art Mills, who was forced out by an injured ankle after a short spell of effective relief flinging, had the slightest vestige of success in squelching the marauding herd.

They did accomplish one feat of note by rubbing out the sensational hitting string of Ollie Carnegie, who drew a blank in five tries at the plate after slamming ten hits in thirteen previous tries at the platter.

Doljack Napping Again

The chief sample of the Bison alertness came in the last frame, and played an important role in victory. The Leafs had two on with one out in this stanza when the reliable "Bucky" Crouse shot a surprise line throw to first base and nailed Doljack off the bag for a second out. A walk to Sax immediately followed, but Joe Bloomer drew a great hand by striking out Walker for the last out.

Ollie Tucker, Jack Ryan and Otis Miller did the heavy gunning for the Bisons. Tucker laid the wood on the ball for a homer, double and single, which chased five runs home. Miller promoted three over the plate with a timely single, and a terrific slash over the left centrefield fence, while Ryan kept up the brilliant streak which has marked his work for the past three days. The tall shortstop guardian polled a double and two singles, giving him a record of making eleven hits in twenty-one official trips.

CUBS BUNCH SEVEN HITS TO WIN 3-1

Warneke Racks Up His Seventh Victory by Defeating Cardinals.

PIRATES ON THE "UP."

Manush Bats in Winning Run in Twelfth to Give Senators 5-4 Victory.

(By Gayle Talbot, A.P. Sports Writer.)

Charles (Red) Lucas, star member of Cincinnati's mound staff, apparently is out to set a modern record for complete games pitched in a season, and with the full approval of Manager Dan Howley.

Thus far, the popular redhead has started and finished ten contests, with the campaign less than a third gone, and has won seven of them. At that pace, he stands an even chance of equalling or bettering the modern mark of 36 complete games set by Grover Cleveland Alexander back in 1915.

Two hurlers, Wes Ferrell of Cleveland and Bob Grove of the Athletics, turned in 27 full-time jobs last season. Cincinnati's "work horse" should have little difficulty passing that figure. So may Lon Warneke, Chicago Cub rookie, who has started nine games and finished them all, winning seven and losing two.

That Col. Howley is in sympathy with Lucas' ambition was demonstrated yesterday, when the Reds took a 4 to 1 beating from Pittsburg and fell back into a tie with the Pirates for third place in the National League.

Lucas yielded six hits and four runs in the first two innings, but stuck it out to allow only three hits the rest of the way. It made little difference one way or the other, however, as Larry French was pitching almost unbeatable ball for the Pirates. It was Pittsburgh's eleventh victory in fourteen games.

The battle for top position in the National remained at a standstill as both Chicago and Boston won. The Cubs defeated St. Louis, 3 to 1, behind Lon Warneke's six-hit pitching, while Ed Brandt southpawed the Braves to a 7 to 2 triumph over the Giants. Warneke scored his seventh win of the year and Brandt his sixth.

Brooklyn and the Phillies were not scheduled, the lapse causing the Dodgers to drop back into fifth place after a day of affluence in the first division.

Lusty hitting by Heine Manush in the extra innings enabled the Washington Senators to take a hot one from the Athletics, 5 to 4, in 12 rounds and go into a virtual tie with Detroit for second place in the American. Manush slapped a home run in the 11th frame and, when that was not good enough to win, came right back with a triple in the 12th that scored Buddy Myer with the clincher.

Freitas Makes Debut

Tony Freitas, a left-handed from Sacramento of the Pacific Coast League, made his debut for the A's and pitched elegant ball until he was relieved for a pinch-hitter in the 10th. He yielded only seven hits in the ten innings he worked and looked like a certain winner until Joe Cronin nicked him for a homer in the ninth to tie the score.

The day's only other contest in the American resulted in a 6 to 5 victory for the embattled Chicago White Sox over Cleveland, errors by Vosmik and Morgan helped the Sox score five times in the sixth inning.

Detroit was rained out at St. Louis.

Edwards recently passed his first-year course at McGill, taking honors in two of his subjects.

NORWOOD TEAM HERE TO-NIGHT

Tangle With Local Intermediates in Box Lacrosse Exhibition.

AT BROCK STREET ARENA.

A strong Norwood box lacrosse team comes here to do battle this evening against the Peterborough intermediates. They tangle at 8.30 in the Brock, and the struggle should be lively throughout. Both teams will be in this district's group, probably with Campbellford, in the O.A.L.A. schedule this summer, and the contest to-night will show the comparative strength of each.

No less than five times last fall did the Combines trim the Petes in Norwood, playing exhibition games. The visitors this evening feel confident they can do so this year, but the Petes are considerably stronger and much better acquainted with the new game this season, and expect to reverse the order. With the two teams at full strength and a competent referee on hand, fans may look for a lively evening of this speedy sport.

A.Y.P.A. team Beaten In Lakefield League

LAKEFIELD, June 1 (Examiner Correspondence).—Les Canadiens defeated the A.Y.P.A. in the second game of the League on Monday evening by a score of 44-13. The winners ran up a score of 11 in their first innings, which apparently disheartened their opponents as wild throwing and dropping the ball cost them dear for the remainder of the game. The A.Y.P.A. were minus their trusty first baseman and they lacked the speed of their opponents in throwing the ball. Les Canadiens had strenghtened their team and were on their toes, Phyllis Charlton and Ethel Brooks each had a homer amid the cheers of their fans. Little Ellen Patterson had an accident, being hit with the ball on the nose, and required medical attention. The plucky little girl returned to see the finish of the game and the victory of her team. Les Canadiens' fielding was exceptionally good. R. C. Chittick at the plate and Hugh Morrison on bases handled the game. Madeline Abrams and Mary Webdale changed places half way through the game.

The next game will be played on Friday night. The line-up was as follows:—

Score by innings:

Les Canadiens	11	6	3	8	2	14	x	—	44
A.Y.P.A.	0	2	4	0	1	0	6	—	13

The A.Y.P.A. plays Cobourg on Wednesday evening and Les Canadiens play My Valet on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

PESTS ADVANCE BY DEFEATING NEWARK 3 TO 1

Pete Donohue's Superb Pitching Gives Skeeters International Victory.

BIRDS WIN EASILY.

Rochester Takes Third Straight Win of Series From Montreal 9 to 3.

(By the Associated Press.)

Inefficient pitching has been the chief contributing cause to Jersey City's annual plunge into the depths of the International League's second division, but things are looking up for the Skeeters at this moment.

Under a new manager, Charles Moore, the Skeeters have won seven of their last 11 games, chiefly because of tight, effective hurling, and now have moved into sixth place, a notch ahead of Toronto and two above Reading.

Up to May 24 when the Skeeter streak began, Jersey City has won only 11 games and lost 25, a won and lost average of .306 . Since then they have played at a .636 clip, better than any other club in the circuit except the first place Buffalo Bisons and second place Baltimore Orioles.

Pete Donohue, veteran major league right-hander who pitched and won his first game for the Skeeters a few days ago, repeated at the expense of Newark's Bears yesterday. Donohue allowed only eight hits to win, 3-1, and would have had a shutout but for Dixie Walker's home run in the sixth. It was the eighth time in 11 games that the Skeeter starting pitcher went the route. Clyde Barnhart of Jersey City and Forrest Jensen of Newark each compiled a perfect batting average with three hits in as many times at bat.

Orioles Get 14 Hits.

Behind eight-hit pitching by Beryl Richmond, Baltimore made 14 hits off Milstead and Adams and beat the Reading Keys 12-2. Heinie Sand clouted a homer with two on in the second and Ralph Boyle contributed a double and two singles.

Charley Wilson led Rochester to a 9 to 3 victory over the Montreal Royals as Jim Winford and Del Wetherell set the Canadians down with six hits. Wilson's contribution to the winning cause was a home run, double and two singles.

EXHIBITION GAME

My Valet Leafs, girls' softball team, will play an exhibition game in Lakefield against the Lakefield High School girls this Saturday afternoon, leaving Brady's Inn, East City, at 2.30 o'clock. A return game will take place at the Bowl here at 2.30 the following Saturday, June 11th.

Springbrook Team Is Beaten By Bonarlaw

BONARLAW, June 1.—(Examiner Correspondence.)—An exceptionally clean and interesting game of softball was displayed at Springbrook on Monday evening when the Bonarlaw Tigers defeated the Springbrook team by the score of 19 to 11. Gerald Bristol, on the mound for the entire game, was the Tigers' star man,while Heath, Williams and Bateman, taking successive turns on the mound, were unable to outwit the wary and hard hitting Tigers at the bat, where they all did exceptionally good work. The score by innings was as follows:

NORTHEND TEAM RETAINS LEAD TO COP CITY LEAGUE VICTORY

Hutchison, Weir, Calladine and Gardiner Are Standouts for Winners.

FINAL SCORE 8-4.

Leading all the way and with a final splurge in the last period Orde's northend team won their city league lacrosse fixture with C.G.E. at Brock street rink last night by the score of 8-4.

The count by periods was 1-0, 3-1 and 4-2. Most of the players have only the experience they have gained already this season, and while the game was marked by a general looseness of play it had may interesting phases. What the teams lacked in smoothness in stickhandling they made up in persistent following the ball, with a degree of earnestness in checking that was fortunately subdued after the first intermission.

Eddie Williams, Fred Jones, McGregor and Mein stood out for the C.G.E. and Hutchison, Weir, Calladine and Gardner were in a lot of the Orde's action. Dallin, Cadd and Routley were also in the limelight. In fact it was the consistent trying of the whole gold and black crew that kept them in front on the score card.

The teams were as follows:

C.G.E. — Goal, Haig; defense, Swanger and McGillan; centre, Mein; rover, McGregor; wings, Williams and Johnston; alternates, Ritchie, Rainey, Fred Jones, Price.

Orde's—Goal, Meyette; defense, Howe and Hutchison; centre, Gardner; rover, Pat Calladine; wings, Weir and Dallin; alternates, Watson, Cadd, Routley, McLeish, Jarvis.

Referee—Gene Bovin.

Scoring Summary.

Jack Gardner scored the only goal of the first period, an easy roller that ambled under Haig's stick. Dallin passed out from the corner, a high one that Gardner picked out of the air. It was a nice pass. His shot in front of the goal was weak but it dribbled into the net.

Mein had a wide open chance for C.G.E., breaking through the Orde defense. His shot whizzed over the top of the net.

The teams were each a man short beginning the second period, Weir and Jones going off just as the first bell sounded. Weir crashed the C.G.E. man into the boards and Jones retaliated with a slash as he lay on the ground.

Orde's scored early on a snappy pass from Routley to McLeish, whose back hand shot fooled Haig.

Jones was given a free throw and scored for C.G.E. and Gardner on a similar break put Orde's up 3-1 at half time.

The Second Half

Two neat stops at opposite ends started the third period. Calladine and Dallin were wide on their shots. Orde's hung up another goal, Pat Calladine passing to Weir, who scored. Jones drew a penalty for bodying Hutchinson against the fence. C.G.E. got their second goal, Williams shot rebounding from Meyette's stick out to McGregor, who tossed the ball against the twine.

Freddie Jones cut the Orde margin to one goal on a fast high drive from outside the defense. Meyette made a great save on Williams' shot. Gardner, Swanger and Calladine were benched in succession for minor offenses.

Orde's started on a scoring splurge Calladine getting the first goal on a pass from Gardner. The next one was from Weir's stick with an assist for Calladine. Mark Swanger unloosed a couple of rushes but his rifling was off the target. Cadd, on a lone effort, sifted one past Haig, making the score 7-3. Williams put C.G.E. on the score sheet again, and the evening closed with a clean piece of combination, Gardner to Calladine to Dallin, who increased the count to 8-4.

CANADIENS RALLY TO BEAT INDIANS

Stage Stampede in Third Period for Victory in Thrilling Game.

TORONTO, June 1. — Outlasting the Tecumsehs in one of the greatest displays of indoor lacrosse seen here the Canadiens strengthened their grip on the first place in the professional league at the Maple Leaf Gardens last night with a 13 to 10 win. With a crowd of about 4,000 cheering and roaring most of the game the Flying Frenchmen put on a stampede for scores in the fourth period that wiped out the Indians lead and the teams boke even in a wild and furious final session.

Canadiends had the legs, the speed to keep up the consistent speed and when they broke loose in the third session for four tallies the locals were backed to the edge of their own crease in a futile effort to stop them. The Canadiens last night were the Canadiens of hockey, opening up wide and handsome when he opportunities were offered and always ready to take full advantageof the slightest breaks.

DECK'S TROUNCE ELECTRICS 15-6

Fine Twirling By Elliott, Good Fielding and Steady Hittings Turns Trick.

SURPRISE OF LEAGUE.

Bert Deck's Ashburnham team made its bow in the Men's Softball League at Central last night by trouncing C.G.E., 15 to 6, before a good crowd of rooters. Holding the Electrics' sluggers down to one hit in the first three innings by first-class pitching and fielding, the Deck boys grabbed themselves an early lead through hard hitting and a flock of errors. The teams played on even terms the last half of the game.

Freddie Elliott's fast ball fooled the C.G.E. most of the way and good support in the pinches with steady hitting did the rest. He fanned nine and allowed nine hits, and only in the sixth inning did the losers get as many as two runs. They got one in the first, the fourth, the fifth and their last in the seventh.

Nobbs started on the mound for C.G.E. but was batted out in the third after two were in and none out. He struck out two, was touched for four hits and eight runs in that time, erratic support being partially to blame. Stan Lawrence succeeded him and went fair, fanning one and giving six hits and seven runs. The Deck team got four of their markers in the first two in the second, six in the third, one in the sixth and two more in the seventh.

Leads Losers At Bat.

Dave Grant led the losers at bat with two singles in five times up. For the others, Whitnell was the leading clouter with two doubles and a single, while Starr was right behind him with two singles and a two-bagger in five trips. Both outfields went good, but the East City infield had an edge on their opponents. The teams:

C.G.E.—Howson, 3b; Jones, lf; Grant, ss; Osterland, 1b; Tracy, of and c; Millard, rf; Brown, 2b; Kearney, c; Nobbs, p; Lawrence, p; Calladine, 2b; Hollingsworth, cf.

Deck's—Ellis, ss; Whitnell, 1b; Milliken, lf; Starr, 3b; Merrett, 2b; Grisdale, cf; Joyce, rf; Elliott, p; O'Rourke, c.

Score by innings:

C.G.E. ..... 100112100— 6 9 8
Deck's ..... 42600120x—15 10 7

Umpires—Batley at plate; Ranger on bases.

Four White Sox Players Heavily Fined For Their Fight With Umpire Moriarty

CLEVELAND, O., June 1. — William Harridge, president of the American League last night fined Milton Gaston, Chicago pitcher, $500 and suspended him for 10 days as a result of the fight here yesterday between George Moriarity, umpire, and four members of the Chicago team.

The other Chicago players were fined but not suspended, while Moriarity was severely reprimanded for "neglect of duty."

Lou Fonseca, manager, was fined $500; Charlie Berry, catcher, $250, and Frank Grube, catcher, $100. Johnny Butler, Chicago coach, was suspended for five days.

In reprimanding Moriarity, Harridge said the umpire should have removed Berry and Fonseca for their conduct during the game.

Harridge stated in a typewritten report that Gaston was the only one whom his investigation proved to have taken part in the fight in the dressing-rooms here.

Butler had been ordered out of the game following a dispute yesterday. He will not be paid during his five-day suspension.

Fonseca, informed of the decision, said he had nothing to say except Harridge "is the boss. Whatever he says goes with me."

Alva Bradley, owner of the Cleveland Indians, said he was "very well pleased, it's a 100 per cent job."

CASUAL COMMENT

The box lacrossers hold sway here this p.m., Norwood playing the Petes at 8.30 up at the Brock—an exhibition game. It should be a great old battle, with very little of what is sometimes known as the "milk of human kindness" shown between the rival players. The powerful Norwood aggregation walloped Peterborough several times on the former's stamping grounds last fall, and sort of figure on doing it again to-night.

• • • • • • •

However, the local intermediates are stronger this season and should get that hard little ball in their opponents' goal more often than said opponents can get it in theirs (we're speaking of the Peterborough goal now). That's one way of winning, and another is: The homesters might let the visitors score less often than the visitors let them (the homesters) score. But where were we, anyway?

• • • • • • •

Before the lacrosse game, Park Hill meets Brintons at the Bowl at six in a gals' softball fixture, and Examiner clashes with the Daily Stars at 6.15 in Central, a men's fixture. There's more softball then tomorrow night, pro boxing on Friday, a senior baseball game and yet another lacrosse tussle on Saturday. Boy, sports are with us in big chunks again! Practically ever fine night from now till fall, there'll be something doing around town.

• • • • • • •

The lacrosse game Saturday is a City League one between the Brintons and C.G.E., and they play at 8.30 in the Brock. The session was postponed from Thursday evening so as to give out-of-town visitors a chance to have a look-see at how the old game has shrunk in size but increased a hundred-fold in speed and action. The Brintons will have their final practice before this battle tomorrow night at six in the Brock.

• • • • • • •

There's a meeting of the senior ball club at seven in the "Y" to-morrow evening for the purpose of making final arrangements for the opening game here with Cobourg on Saturday. A full turnout of officers and executive members is urged so that the big game at Stevenson Park that day may be run off with all the frills demanded by the first game of the season, and no hitches.

• • • • • • •

Young ball players of the city, here comes Opportunity a-knocking. Through the Baseball Commission we are informed that any bantam, juvenile, or junior player in the city not playing on any team has but to send his name to the Commission secretary, and he will be given a good trial in the City Baseball League. The secretary is Clair Hayes, 462 Sherbrooke Street. Players have it soft nowadays.

• • • • • • •

Deck's East City softball team sort of surprised a lot of folks, both fans and players, by hanging a neat 15-6 trimming on C.G.E. at Central last night. Fine twirling by Elliott, good fielding and steady hitting did the trick, and serve notice that the Sand Pitters are liable to get in the hair of the others the same way.

• • • • • • •

Bob Batley was appointed umpire-in-chief for the complete season at an executive meeting of the men's loop the other night. One of the players who refused to play for the team he signed with was ordered to do so, or else make formal protest in writing to the executive. Otherwise, if he will not play with that team and the manager refuses to release him, he will have to remain out of the league this season. The O.A.S.A. will likely pass on Archie Weir's application for a change of residence, with others, at a meeting on Saturday in Hamilton. Weir and Frank Scully have been OK'd by the O.B.A.A.

• • • • • • •

The Sixth Line maidens won their opening game in Lang last night 21-13 over Maple Leafs. It was close and the Leafs might have made it closer but the strange diamond and stranger ground rules sort of upset them, and the classy country lasses are quick to take advantage of everything, as regular fans last year will recall. They don't play here for a couple of weeks yet.

• • • • • • •

The complete card of pro pugs will be announced to-morrow for the fight show on Friday evening in the Brock. Jack Dane and Joe Donovan headline it along with the scrap between "Red" Egerton and Frisco Grande. The latter has licked several champs at overweight matches, including Tommy Paul, who won the world's featherweight title last week in Detroit. Dane, the husky young mitter who trained in Keene last summer and looked good in local rings, is said to be much better now, and evidently ready to go somewhere. It ought to be a good card.

TRINITY COLLEGE BEATS PETERBORO

Local Cricket Club Loses Out By Small Margin of 26 Runs.

The return game between T.C.S. Port Hope, and Peterborough was played on the Oval last Saturday. Peterborough were unable to repeat their previous performance of an easy win over Oshawa on Tuesday, and were beaten by the small margin of 26 runs, which was a much better showing than the game at Port Hope.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

TWO COUSINS MEET

By Thornton W. Burgess

To be related doesn't mean
Affection may exist between.
—Old Mother Nature

Old Mr. Toad was not singing so much of the time now. He still sang some each day, but each day he did less singing. The truth is he was beginning to think of Farmer Brown's garden and the green things growing there by this time. It wasn't that he was especially interested in the little plants themselves. No, it wasn't that. It was because he knew that where tender green things grow there will be found worms and insects to feed upon and destroy them. It was those worms and insects that Old Mr. Toad was thinking of, for truth to tell he was beginning to be hungry. He had eaten almost nothing since coming to the Smiling Pool.

The chorus of his small cousins, the Hylas and Tree Frogs, was a thing of the past for this year. A few voices were to be heard now and then, but there was no mighty chorus. Decidedly it was time to be getting back to that garden.

"If I don't some other Toad may find and take possession of my favorite places," thought Old Mr. Toad. "I'll start with the very first rain we have. Then I can travel by day as well as by night. It is no use starting until it does rain, for I simply cannot stand a dry skin."

He was sitting partly in the water just back of some lily pads growing in the deep water beyond him. Two or three time he filled his music bag and sang, but rather feebly. He was doing it more from habit than from desire to sing. Suddenly he was interrupted by a deep, heavy, explosive voice that startled him for a omement so that he started to duck under some overhanging grass.

"Chuga-rum!" came that deep, heavy voice again and Old Mr. Toad stopped. He recognized it. He looked eagerly in the direction from which it had come and discovered a big green back and a broad green head with great bulging eyes. It was Grandfather Frog, the Bullfrog. There was no doubt about that. There was no one else in the family as big, and no one with a voice like that.

"Chuga-rum!" exploded that great voice again.

Old Mr. Toad swam over near Grandfather Frog. He was sitting on a flat stone just below the surface of the water, just his head out.

"So, Cousin, you decided to get up before it should be time to go to sleep again?" said Old Mr. Toad.

Grandfather Frog turned and looked at Old Mr. Toad with his great goggly eyes. "Hello, Cousin!" said he. "You are no more beautiful than you were the last time I saw you. Have you just arrived?"

"I'm just getting ready to leave," retorted Old Mr. Toad

"Just arrived! I'm just getting ready to leave," retorted Old Mr. Toad. "I've been here for a month. Some people are lazy. I don't like to say it, and I'm calling no names, but some people certainly are lazy."

"Chuga-rum!" exploded Grandfather Frog and his voice was even deeper than usual. "Chuga-rum! Do you dare tell me that I am lazy?"

"I don't need to tell any one. Facts speak for themselves," retored Old Mr. Toad. "When everybody else is about ready to quit here you are just beginning to sing, if you call that noise singing. I call it croaking myself. You've slept so long down there in the mud that even your coat has grown dark and muddy in appearance. What is the idea in sleeping so long in the spring anyway?"

"That,' replied Grandfather Frog "is none of your business. Who asked you to come down to the Smiling Pool anyway? Go on up where you belong and leave the Smiling Pool to your betters who know where to live and how to live."

'But don't know enough or are too lazy to get up, and so miss one of the best parts of the whole year," retorted Old Mr. Toad.

What To-Day Means To You

"GEMINI"

If June 1st is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11.15 a.m. to 1 p.m. from 4.30 p.m. to 6 p.m., and from 1 to 11.30 p.m. The danger periods are from 9.30 a.m. to 10.45 a.m., and from 8 p.m. to 9.30 p.m.

The pleasure and social sides of life will benefit more than the business and commercial worlds under the planetary configurations of June 1st. Most delays and disappointments of the day will prove to be blessings in disguise through the illuminating lights of the future. A healing time for nervous ailments.

The children born on this June 1st will have cheerful, sociable and sympathetic natures. They will have alert, aspiring minds and much "go." They will not be diggers or plodders, and will pick the easiest roads to achievement. Their real fate lies in a foreign land, or through some one born outside their native land.

Born on June 1st you are more of a thinker than a feeler; a seeker after truth and fact. You are interested in anything and everything, and will never allow yourself to become mentally stale or anchored. You are positively immune from any variety of credom. You like to explore, analyze, index and study in order to perfect your knowledge. You are often a "Doubting Thomas" until you have first-hand information; hearsay and gossip do not satisfy your inquisitive mind. You are so full of facts and figures that you cannot help adopting a mentor-like demeanor. You are a willing teacher to all who care to be your pupil.

You have a reformer's lover for humanity, and to be happy, should engage in some occupation in which you can be of use to your fellowmen. Your heart is full of sympathy, and your motives are unselfish and worthy, but your technique in handling people leaves much to be desired. You do not take into consideration the phychology of the being with whom you are dealing.

You have a distinct horror of promiscuity, and if you be a woman, are morally very strait-laced. You are an idealist when it comes to love and marriage. Do not mate with one of a decidedly wordly nature!

Messrs. Herbert and G. Russell of Millbrook were visitors to the village on Saturday.

The household effects of the late Henry Kidd were disposed of by public auction on Friday evening. Mr. James Roddy was the auctioneer.

Mr. and Mrs. Bamsy and children of Centreville were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. John Heaslip.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Thompson and children, of Peterborough, were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Moncrief.

Miss S. Thigh visited friends in Peterborough on Sunday.

Mr. A. Deyell was a visitor to Peterborough on Saturday evening.

Rev. E. F. Swayne will attend the Bay of Quinte Conference meeting at Lindsay this week.

Building Permits Show Big Decrease

A decided drop in building permits is noticed for the month of May as compared with the same month last year. The figures for last month were only $16,255 while for the same month last year the total was $37,175. These figures bring the year's total up to $51,540, the total at the same time last year was $91,717.

Two dwellings are being erected, one on Clark street, estimated at $3,500, the second on Charles street estimated at $3,400. The service station being erected at the corner of McDonnel and Reid streets is valued at $3,000, and alterations to the C.D.S. store comes to $1,800.

Nerves A Complete Wreck Sat Up Half The Night

Mrs. John Ross, Bark Lake, Ont., writes:—"I was troubled so much with my nerves I was a complete wreck.

I could not do my work, and would have to sit up half the night on account of not being able to sleep.

One day a friend recommended Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I used one box and got relief, and by the time I had taken six boxes I was as well as ever."

SOCIETY SCORES USE OF ANIMALS

various affiliation fees and $2,000 of Government grant. Expenditures included various items for investigations in different parts of the province, $283.45 for last year's convention expenses, less a grant of $90; and $259.62, balance for broadcasting.

The balance on hand at present is $1,536.63.

Members of the nominating committee appointed this morning included Mrs. T. W. Rutherford of Galt, Mrs. Nathan Wade of St. Catharines and Major Heather of Kitchener.

The resolutions committee personnel includes Mrs. M. D. Graesser of Guelph, Mrs. R. A. Plato of St. Catharines, Colonel Tamblyn of Kingston and J. M. Wilson of Toronto.

Live Bear As Novelty

The discussion with regard to the using of wild animals as an attraction for wayside service stations arose from a resolution brought from the Lincoln County Humane Society, by Mrs. Wade, who spoke of a bear which is kept all summer tied to a post and paces back and forth constantly in a small area. The society asked that Provincial authorities be asked to prevent the practice of keeping wild animals on the highways for this purpose.

Mr. Kelso was of the opinion that the maintenance of wild animals in captivity did not always denote cruelty, citing the case of canary birds as instance of the manner in which creatures become used to such conditions, if they are offspring of animals raised in similar conditions.

Mr. Wilson disagreed with this view and went on record very emphatically as being opposed to the whole practice.

Cruelties at Bowmanville

Reference was made to the cruelties practised at the Cream of Barley camp at Bowmanville, where it is impossible to secure convictions, according to various speakers, on account of the standing of the owner.

The keeper of the St. Catharines bear uses the animal well, and feeds him fresh eggs all winter to get him in readiness for his summer vacation.

Major Heather remarked, "Fresh eggs are no compensation for a short rope."

Thomas Sargent, president of the Peterborough branch of the society, brought up the question of motorists who maim or kill dogs and drive away without making any effort to assist the struggling beast or secure information of any sort.

A Local Case

Dr. Thomas Johnston, the local inspector, reported a recent case in which he was advised by local authorities that it would be useless to bring an action in court, as it would be impossible to do anything in the matter.

Mr. Wilson said: "The next time you have a case of that kind, let us know and we will back you up to the limit with legal counsel." He also read from the statutes that the law makes no discrimination between a child, an animal or a bird, when struck by a motorist.

At the luncheon which followed the morning session, Thomas Sargent was in the chair, and an address of welcome was given by Mayor Denne.

Endeavors Elsewhere

Mrs. F. E. Robson of Toronto, recently returned from a trip to Iceland, gave an interesting review of humane endeavors in other lands, and E. S. Martin, past president of the local branch, also spoke briefly.

This afternoon's session included reports from affiliated societies and a drive along the route outlined by the Horticultural Society.

Tonight, at the banquet at the Empress Hotel, Miss Marshall Saunders will speak, also Lt. Col. Ackerman, past president of the Peterborough Society.

Tomorrow's sessions include an address in the morning by Dr. J. A. Campbell, V.S., B.V.Sc., veterinary surgeon at the Animal Hospital in Toronto.

At tomorrow's luncheon, Lt. Col. Tamblyn of Kingston will speak and there will be a prize presented to the best delegation.

In the afternoon, a tea will be held at Walkerfield House, as a closing gesture.

RAWDON LOOP MAY DISBAND

Rumored Bethel May Refuse to Enter Through Scarcity of Players.

HOARD'S ALSO DOUBTFUL.

BURNBRAE, June 1.—(Examiner Correspondence). — With the softball season already several weeks old, there is less than the usual activity in sports circles here, due to the late seeding, which has kept the farmer players busy for long hours. The Rawdon league has re-organized on last year's lines and has a schedule drawn up, with Stirling replacing the Menie entry. But with one game already played come murmurings of a break. Bethel is scarce of players and may flunk. Hoard's are not unanimous as to entering the eastern league, and have already refrained from playing their first scheduled game.

A suggestion from a prominent sportsman of the district which has met decided approval is the formation of an East Seymour league with Hoard's, Menie and possibly English Line, which, along with the Petherick's Corners entry, would make a compact four-team league without much expense for travelling—the main objection to the Rawdon league where some of the centres are twelve miles apart. This distance is also a large factor in twilight games as a start by seven o'clock is almost impossible for a farm group after a long trip.

There is also a possibility of the formation of a junior league shortly. Rylstone and Petherick's made a start in this direction last year. There are enough young fellows in Menie, Hoard's and English Line for at least two nice teams, and the idea would be a three-team group, combining the two northern squads into one unit. This is the only way to keep the sports idea before the younger generation, and this community has a bunch of young boys who show real ability as ball players, but need the training of good organized ball and the valuable experience to be gained from expert coaching.

Hard To Believe

Scene: Editorial office of The Examiner.

Time: Morning (not after the night before).

Characters: Rabid race fan (feminine); lowly reporter.

Furniture: One telephone.

Telephone rings, and our hero rushes madly for the receiver.

Voice over the phone: "Could you tell me who won the Epsom Downs race.

Reporter: "April the Fifth."

Voice (indignantly): "No; today."

Reporter: "Lady, I just told you, April the Fifth won the race."

Voice: "Do you mean that was the name of the horse"

Reporter: "Sure."

Voice: "Good Lord!"

With that last remark the receiver was rudely banked on its hook, and a certain member of the staff is wondering if the closing ejaculation was meant in sympathy for the horse or himself.

FRISCO GRANDE HAS IMPRESSIVE RECORD

Filipino Has Been Matched Against Some of Best Mitt Artists in His Class.

One has only to glance through the record books to realize the type of fighter is this Frisco Grande, who boxes Frankie "Red" Egerton in one of the main bouts of the all-star boxing show being held at the Brook Street rink on Friday night. Among his opponents are the great "Kid" Chocolate to whom the Filipino lost a very close decision at Buffalo. Soon after that Grande came right back and whipped Frenchy Belanger. Fortunately for the latter, it was an overweight match otherwise Belanger would have lost his world's title.

Midget Wolgast, world's flyweight champion, was lucky to earn a draw with Frisco at New Castle Pa., and it is interesting to note that Grande whipped none other than Tommy Paul, who only last week won the world's featherweight championship. Others Grande has fought and the majority of whom he has beaten are Frankie Genaro, former world's champion, Willie Davies, Ruby Bradley, Billy McBeigh, in Toronto; Blas Rodriguez, Mexican bantam champion, and many others too numerous to mention.

Grande was formerly a sailor in the U.S. Navy, as are many Filipinos and he first made his mark as an outstanding boxer by copping both the flyweight and bantamweight championships of the American navy. An idea of his popularity is had from the fact that he boxed in Toronto on no fewer than six occasions. This of course, is his first visit to Peterborough and it should be one that he may have long to remember as this Egerton is a tough little, two-fisted fighter with a habit of beating boxers with impressive records.

Then there is the other attractive main bout, bringing together Peterborough's boxing product, Jack Dane and Joe Donovan of Buffalo, the latter includes among his victims Jimmy Hayes, Pete George, Dominick Angelo, Ray Russell, who gave Dane such a tough scrap in Toronto; Mike Feeney, Jack Lewis, Eddie Morgan, Joe Meegan, Frankie Whitney, Guy Emory and other well-known fighters.

It is an ambitious program Charlie Hallat has lined up, five bouts in all and the complete card will be announced to-morrow. All the out-of-town boxers will be on hand the night before the bout, the commission insisting on this so that there should be no last-minute disappointments. Sport of a high calibre indeed is assured for Friday night.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION. NO. 15 — By Edgar Rice Burroughs
(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

"This is the end," said Blake. "You and I are through. To-morrow morning we split the Safari and equipment. Whichever way you go, Stimbol, with your half, I'll go in the opposite direction." The two men returned their guns to their holsters, the bleeding bl[illegible] and presently the Safari was again on [illegible]ove, a sullen Safari, without laughter or song.

Jimmy Blake made camp at the first available ground in order to divide the equipment, food and men. Stimbol, sullen, would give no assistance. Instead, taking two armed natives with him he started out from camp to hunt, grumbling that it might be his last chance. A mile along a soft-padded game trail they had gone when the native in the lead held up his hand.

Dimly through the foliage, Stimbol saw a black mass moving slowly away from them. "Gorilla," whispered the nearest black. Stimbol raised his rifle, fired—and missed. Into the jungle they pressed and again came within sight of the retreating gorilla. Each time Stimbol fired, he missed. Secretly the blacks were amused and pleased, for they did not like Stimbol.

At a distance Tarzan of the Apes, hunting with the tribe of Toyat, heard the first shot. A shot from a high-powered rifle meant white men, and it was the ape-man's business to know what strangers were there and why. Racing through the trees, swinging from limb to limb, Tarzan sped toward the sound.

Obituary

MRS. DELINA RISHEA.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Delina Rishea widow of Harry Rishea, took place from the family residence, 276 Romaine Street, on Tuesday morning to the Church of the Sacred Heart, followed by a large concourse of friends. Requiem High Mass was sung by her grandson, the Rev. Leo Rishea, with Rev. J. J. O'Brien, her pastor, deacon, and Rev. J. J. Moloney sub-deacon. Rev Dr. Masterson was present in the sanctuary. Rev. J. J. O'Brien, in the course of his remarks, spoke of the necessity of being always prepared for death by constant prayer and attention to one's religious duties. He also spoke of the loss the parish had sustained in the last few months through the death of so many of the old pioneers who, through their labors and sacrifices, had done so much toward the upbuilding of the community. He requested those in attendance to remember them in their prayers and follow their example. Rev. Leo Rishea gave the final absolution, and as the cortege left the church the choir sang one of the deceased's favorite hymns. The remains were laid to rest beside her late husband in the family plot in St. Peter's Cemetery by her three sons, Harry, Fred and Amy Rishea, and Harry Ranger, Clinton Heath, and John Feeley.

A number of friends and relatives were present from out of town including her son, Mr. Fred Rishea and Mrs. Rishea, also Mrs. Gadoua of Rochester, N.Y., and her daughter, Mrs. Jones of Toronto.

In God's sunshine and His smile;
And so I think we'll all agree
That Jackson Park is for you and me.

RESPONDING TO HOOVER'S APPEAL UNITED STATES' SENATE PASSES TAX BILL AND BALANCES BUDGET

Measure Will Raise $1,115,000,000 of Revenue Needed for Stability.

TOUCHES ALL POCKETS.

Heavy Income Tax, Higher Postage Rates, and Excise Taxes.

WASHINGTON, June 1 (C.P.)—The huge new tax bill, bulwark of financial stability for the United States, was passed to-day by the Senate and speeded immediately to the concluding formalities which will make it law.

The measure, designed to raise $1,115,000,000 of revenue, was passed twenty minutes after midnight, at the conclusion of a 14-hour dramatic session without parallel in recent Congresses.

Responding to a suddenly planned and personally delivered plea of President Hoover, the Senate swiftly built up the bill by $280,000,000 with the 11th hour addition of taxes on gasoline and electricity and increased income rates.

No Sales Tax.

It turned a deaf ear to the President's call for a manufacturers' sales tax, defeating this by the decisive margin of 53 to 7 just before passing the bill by the even wider margin of 72 to 11.

It beat down in rapid order a whole succession of attempts to strike out tariffs and revise previous decisions.

The bill was disputed to the House of Representatives for a conference to adjust many differences, none of which were expected to prove dangerous. The prospect was it would be ready for the President's signature by the middle of next week.

Largest in Peace Time.

After the terrific grind, the Senate was weary and short-tempered at the final vote.

As it now stands, the Tax Bill is the largest revenue-raiser ever adopted by this Government in peace time. Its income tax rates are equal to the immediate post-war levies, beginning at four per cent. on the first $4,000 and swiftly mounting.

It carries a tremendous sweep of excise taxes which will probably tap the pocketbook of every citizen. It provides four new tariffs: on petroleum, coal, copper and lumber.

Three-Cent Postage.

It imposes higher postage rates, beginning with three cents for each letter. It places a range of new taxes on financial transactions of all kinds, from stock market deals to routine personal bank cheques.

So determined was the Senate to make enactment of the bill its answer to all doubts and fears of stability, that Vice-President Curtis even named the men who will confer with members of the House on adjusting the bill. Senators Smoot, Watson and Reed, Republicans, Harrison and King, Democrats, were given this task.

Rush At Finish.

Earlier Curtis had adopted railroading tactics to rush the finish, cutting into debate to put the vote on proposed amendments, slamming down the gavel and announcing them defeated before the members could get their breath. It fitted in completely with the mood of the Chamber.

PRE-SEASON FISH AT PENALTY PRICE

Max Dickson, of Burleigh, is Fined $8.24.

Max Dickson of Burleigh Township was this morning convicted by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. of an infraction of the Provincial Fish and Game laws, and was ordered to pay a fine of $7.50 and costs amounting to $8.24, or in default of payment ten days imprisonment. He was given a week in which to pay the fine.

The case was heard by the Magistratte at Buckhorn the other day, and when judgment was given this morning the accused man was not present, but was represented by Elmer Campbell.

His Worship observed that a fish had been killed. It was possible that someone other than Dickson had killed the fish, as there were other persons around at the time, but he had decided to convict upon the sworn evidence of Dickson who had stated that none of the other persons had killed the fish. The inference the Magistrate drew was that as none of the other persons had killed the fish, it must have been killed by the accused.

Son of Captain Dollar Dies Suddenly in Vancouver.

VANCOUVER, B.C., June 1.—(CP) Shipping circles of the Pacific Coast to-day mourned the death of A. Melville Dollar of Vancouver, head of the Canadian-American Shipping Company. His famous father, Captain Robert Dollar, died two weeks ago at San Rafael, Cal.

Mr. Dollar's body was found on the floor of his garage at his home here early last night. He was apparently the victim of a heart attack. He had been under treatment for heart trouble for two years.

FLAMES CLAIM YOUNG VICTIM

Ten Year Old Boy Dies in Storehouse Fire.

THREE ESCAPE.

SOUTH RIVER, Ont., June 2 (C.P.)—Ten year-old Harold Waldriff is dead to-day, and three other boys had narrow escapes when fire broke out in the building in which they were playing last night.

Entering the building through a boarded-up window, Harold, with Bob Quirt, Morris and Gerald Hassard, was attempting to fill an old lamp with gasoline. Some of the fluid spilled over Harold's clothing, and when one of the boys struck a match the place became enveloped in flames. Young Quirt managed to get through the window and run home, while the other three boys, trapped in the blazing structure shouted for help.

Rescued Trio

T. B. Hearn and Hubert Church, who live across the street, responded, and with a heavy plank smashed open the door. They climbed over piles of materials stored in the building and found the boys. The two Hassard youngsters were carried through the door, while Church wrapped his coat about the blazing clothes of the Waldriff lad. He had suffered injuries, from which he died to-day, however.

Only persistent efforts on the part of bucket brigades saved nearby buildings from destruction. The building, used as a storehouse, was owned by Amos Dorsey of Horning's Mills.

Seeing its reflection in a store window, a ram in a flock of sheep being driven through Berwick, England, jumped through the glass.

LINDSAY, June 2 (Special to The Examiner). —At yesterday's session of the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church, Rev. T. E. Richards of Port Perry. Rev. Dr. Holling stated that he had been a member of six conferences, three in the Canadian West and three in Ontario and Quebec. "If any body of men should have stout hearts in these trying times, it is the ministers," said the new president, "Let us recapture a new love and a new passion for Jesus Christ and bring about a remedy for the conditions and ills of to-day. Let us, if possible, strive for a new view of Christ that will bring back radiance and rapture to our Christian experience," said President Holling.

Reports Heard

The number of transfers from the Conference and the number into the Conference balanced this year.

DR. R. JOHNSTON MODERATOR OF PRESBYTERIANS

General Assembly Opens in London With Election of Moderator.

FOUR NOMINATED.

New Moderator Came to Canada in 1904 From County Derry.

LONDON, Ont., June 2 (C.P.).—For the fourth time in history, the Moderatorship of the Presbyterian Church in Canada is held by an Ottawan. The new Moderator is Rev. Robert Johnston of Knox Church, Ottawa, selected over three other nominees — Rev. S. Banks Nison, Hamilton, Rev. James Mackay, London, and Rev. James Wilson of Toronto — to succeed Rev. W. G. Brown, of Saskatoon, last year's Moderator, at the opening session of the 58th annual Assembly here last night.

Came to Canada in 1904.

For the past five years a distinguished member of Ottawa's clergy Dr. Johnston came to Canada in 1904 after being ordained a minister at Castle Dawson, County Derry, Ireland. His first parish was in Halifax where he headed St. Andrew's Church, later moving to Park Street Church in the same city. From Halifax he moved to New Glasgow, N.S., before coming to Ottawa in 1927.

Rev. W. G. Brown, retiring Moderator, presented the feature address of last evening's session to the 500 delegates from various parts of the Dominion. He believed, he said, present economic conditions are a challenge to the universal church.

Dr. Brown advocated the need of the Presbyterian Church in securing a larger number of young ministers and laymen. The church, he continued, should do its utmost to secure an adequate number of young men, adequately trained and disciplined, to carry on its work. He did not believe the church would depend on recruits from other churches to fill up the Presbyterian ranks, he said.

The Most Rev. Jas. F. Sweeny, M.A., D.D., D.C.L., LL.D., Archbishop of Toronto, remains president of the Ontario Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

At the morning session, in a brief talk, Mr. J. J. Kelso of Toronto emphasized the necessity of educating children in humane principles. He cited the example of Russia, where the authorities realize that, to imbue the future nation with their ideas, they must begin with the child.

"They even go so far in our own country," he said, "as to take children as in the case of a Canadian

BRITAIN LEAVES FREE STATE OUT OF TRADE TALKS

Thomas Tells Parliament Government's Position in Regard to Ireland.

BROKE AGREEMENT.

Treaty Made in Ottawa Would Have No Greater Sanctity.

LONDON, June 2 (C.P. Cable).—Because the Republican Government of the Irish Free State has repudiated the Anglo-Irish agreement, Great Britain has not entered into any trade discussion with the Free State preparatory to the Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa.

J. H. Thomas, Dominions' Secretary, made this statement in the House to-day, adding that Great Britain has already discussed trade, in preparation for the conference, with Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Newfoundland, India and Southern Rhodesia.

Debate In House.

Stanley Baldwin, acting Prime Minister, intimated the House of Commons would debate the position of the Irish Free State after the Free State Bill for Abolition of the Oath of Allegiance to the Crown had left the Irish Parliament (it is now awaiting second reading in the Senate), but before the Ottawa Conference.

James Maxton, Independent Labor, asked why the Free State had not been included.

Repudiated Agreement.

"Because," Mr. Thomas replied, "as I have explained, at the present moment the Free State Government has repudiated the Anglo-Irish agreement. We feel no good purpose could be served by entering further negotiations with people until they show they are ready to observe agreements."

Maxton enquired if this meant the Free State would be excluded from the Ottawa Conference.

Thomas Explains.

"It has nothing to do with that whatever," Mr. Thomas said. "The Free State is asked and will, as is well-known, attend Ottawa at the invitation of Canada. We are not concerned with any legal and constitutional aspect of this question but simply with the moral obligation.

"I am only intimating to the world clearly but courteously the British Government cannot assume that a treaty made in Ottawa would receive more sanctity than if it were made in London.

MISSION REPORT IS GIVEN SYNOD

Anglican Synod Takes No Action With Prohibition Union Letter.

SYNOD PENSION PLAN.

TORONTO, June 2 (C.P.). — No action was taken by the Anglican Synod of Toronto to-day following a letter received from A. I. Irwin, of the Ontario Prohibition Union, calling attention to the proposals of the Moderation League to establish the sale of beer and wine by the glass. The letter was received, but no further action was taken.

The report of the Committee on the General Synod Pension Plan was presented by C. L. Foster. The adoption of the plan would necessitate the raising of a fund of $4,000,000 before it could be put into operation, but its adoption could take place at once with a committee appointed to work out the details, he said.

The report of the Mission Board showed there were no vacant missions in the Diocese. Allotments paid last year amounted to $26,245. The Women's Auxiliary had contributed $8,400 to the Diocese during the year.

The Mission Board will reconsider its reduction of a grant to Rev. J. L Hughes, of Peterborough. The grant originally was $1,200, and of that sum $100 had been taken away.

WIFE IS BRIBED NOT TO FIGHT DIVORCE CASE

Offered $200 By Husband Not to Contest Divorce.

OBTAINED DECREE.

Money Never Paid and Wife Now Wants Divorce Set Aside.

TORONTO, June 2.—Whether or not a collusion between John Linton, Windsor, and his wife Elenora Gracie Richardson Linton, helped the former to obtain a judgment in his favor in his suit for divorce is to be decided by Judge Coughlin, Essex County. The question was referred to the County Judge by Mr. Justice Masten, after the latter had heard discussion of a motion submitted to him in weekly court at Osgood Hall.

Linton obtained a decree nisi from Mr. Justice Jeffrey who tried the divorce suit at Sandwich in March last. Mrs. Linton did not appear to defend the action. Subsequently she gave notice of a motion, which was returnable before Mr. Justice Masten for an order setting aside the decree nisi and pleading in support of the motion that her husband had no grounds for divorce and that there had been collusion between herself and her husband.

The nature of this collusion Joseph, Sedgwick, representing the Attorney-General, explained to Mr. Justice Masten.

Mrs. Linton, Mr. Sedgewick said, made a definite allegation that her husband had entered into an agreement with her offering her $200.

Money Not Paid

"Was $200 paid her,' 'asked Justice Masten.

"It was offered, not paid," replied Mr. Sedgwick. Mrs. Linton, in an affidavit filed in court alleged that but for this agreement, she would have appeared at the trial of the action and defended it.

Leslie Blackwell, who represented Mrs. Linton in court, said he found that under the rules his client could not seek by motion to have the decree nisi set aside. On the other hand, the representative of the Attorney-General had undertaken to adopt the motion in so far as it called for investigation of the allegation of collusion. With this, Mr. Sedgwick agreed.

J. M. Garvey, for Linton, opposed the proposal to refer the allegation to Judge Coughlin of Essex County but Mr. Justice Masten decided to order the reference.

CHURCH UNION AGAIN CAUSES HOT OUTBREAK

Old Smouldering Fire Over Subject Flames at Presbyterian Assembly.

ENDICOTT WITHDRAWS.

Refuse to Subscribe to Felicitations From United Church.

LONDON, Ont., June 2.—Rev. James Endicott, D.D., former Moderator of the United Church, withdrew to-day from the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. Amid heated discussion and wide differences of opinion a move was made in the Assembly to refuse to hear the fraternal greetings of the United Church, borne by the former Moderator.

Before a decision was reached, Dr. Endicott withdrew.

An official protest from the United Church against the use of the term "Presbyterian Church in Canada" precipitated the schism.

It also was asserted that the Presbyterian Church had no basis in fact, and that its identity was merged in the United Church through the Union Bill passed by Parliament.

After a long and heated debate, the Assembly finally decided to establish a special committee to study relationships between the two churches and the legal claims of the United Church.

Greetings were heard from the Anglican Church, expressed through Dean N. L. Tucker of London. It was understood an unofficial delegation expressed to Dr. Endicott regret at the incident.

The session this morning opened with an hour's devotional services conducted by Dr. Johnston. Special prayers were said for the success of the Imperial Economic Conference to be held in Ottawa next month. The wisest men in the world, said the Moderator, had failed to bring about economic stability.

The Imperial Conference might be the means of leading the Empire and the world back to prosperity, but to be successful it needed Divine benediction.

Expresses Opposition.

The business session had been opened only two minutes when the old smouldering fire over Church Union broke into flames. The business committee recommended that fraternal delegates from the Anglican, Baptist and United Churches be received.

Jumping up in opposition, Rev. T. W. Taylor of St. Andrew's-by-the-Sea, N.B., said he could not subscribe to the reception of delegates from the United Church.

Without disclosing its source he said he had received a letter protesting against the use of the title, Presbyterian Church in Canada as being illegal. In view of this letter he said he could not receive fraternal delegates from the United

Torrential Rains In West Cause Flood

CALGARY, June 2.— (C.P.) — Roused from their slumbers by the warning crews that hammered at home doors on river fronting streets and avenues, tired residents of Smart Elbow Park district this morning saw the Elbow river break over its banks, spread across lawns and down low-lying streets.

Torrential rains in the mountains and foothills west of Calgary, swelling the streams that pour into the Elbow and Bow rivers, last night brought the flood conditions that vained in intensity early early today.

Early reports said a bridge on the highway to Banff, near Canmore, had been washed out and that parts of the highway were damaged through rivers and streams breaking over the banks.

He was riding with T. J. Reese, Bufalo, when the car collided head-on with a street car, making a left turn on to Stanley street. Reese was able to return home, but Beaumeier continued in a coma, with hope for his recovery until a few days ago. His end came without warning to-day. Coroner McGarry has ordered an inquest to be opened this afternoon.

THREE CHILDREN DIE WHEN FIRE DESTROYS HOME

Parents Stand Helplessly By and Watch Fire Destroy Home.

TEACHER ESCAPES.

House Caught Fire From Smudge Lighted to Chase Mosquitoes.

BIGWOOD, Ont., June 2.—(CP)—Three children were burned to death and four other persons narrowly escaped in a fire which demolished the home of Ernest Gauthier a farmer near here early today. The dead are Marie Berth Gauthier, age 14, Nelson Gauthier, age 11, and Lucienne Gauthier age 9.

Mr. and Mrs. Gauthier escaped, also Aime, their sixteen year old son and Miss Loretta Page, school teacher, the two latter being forced to jump 14 feet from the second story window, suffering badly sprained ankles and minor burns. Another son, Real, aged 12, was spending the night with nearby relatives.

Only for the fact that Mr. Gauthier was leaving for Sudbury at an early hour in the morning to accept a position and had left the door unlocked enabled him to gain an immediate exit and shout a warning to the others.

Awakened by Flames

Mr. and Mrs. Gauthier with the youngest girl, Lucienne, were sleeping in a bedroom adjoining the kitchen where the fire is thought to have originated when Mr. Gauthier was awakened by the crackling of the fire and dense clouds of smoke. He shouted to the four sleeping upstairs and opened the door. Flames were already enveloping the child's bed and beat him back from all attempts at rescuing her.

Miss Page, who was sleeping with the oldest girl Marie, roused her and leaped from the window telling her to follow but she was apparently overcome before she could reached it. Aime, eldest son, battled his way through the flames to the window, calling to his younger brother, Nelson, to follow him but the bedroom was already a flaming inferno and the child was trapped.

PREMIER STANDS FIRMLY BEHIND TARIFF POLICY

Policy is to Cut Down Imports by High Tariffs and Dumping Duties.

2,000 AT BANQUET.

Lashes at Critics of Banks and Insurance Companies.

LONDON, June 2 (C.P.)—Prime Ministetr R. B. Bennett to-day stood firmly behind the policy of his government in cutting down Canada's imports by high tariffs and anti-dumping duties.

"We did it then, soon after assuming power, and we would do it again tomorrow," the Prime Minister last night told 2,000 persons assembled here for the annual banquet of the Western Ontario Conservative Association.

Mr. Bennett scored advocates of monetary inflation and those who attack the stability of Canadian financial institutions. "Canada," he said, "need have no fear of bank failures of which there have been two thousand in the United States in the last year. There has not been one bank failure in Canada. Canadian banks are sound and will continue sound."

Remember German Mark

Holding a crisp one dollar bill in his hand he attacked those of Leftist complexion who suggested turning on the money-printing presses to end distress. He cited the behavior of the German mark after the war as an instance of inflation's consequences.

The Prime Minister spoke briefly of the forthcoming Ottawa Imperial Economic Conference. Canada, he said, would go to the conference with the thought that all component parts of the British Empire must reap real benefits from it.

To Western Ontario tobacco growers he held out hope of vast new markets in Great Britain. Increased trade within the Empire will be Canada's object at the conference next month, he declared.

The Prime Minister left early today for Kingston in his private car.

No One Shall Starve

"No matter what happens, no person in Ontario shall be allowed to starve, and to that end the Ontario Government is planning the organization of a competent committee of outstanding men to set up a standard of assistance which shall be given to those in distress. This committee will be chosen from outside the Government, and will be representative of the most advanced thought in the municipalities of the Province," declared Hon. George S. Henry, Prime Minister of Ontario.

Delivering the main address of the afternoon meeting, Mr. Henry dealt with the affairs of the Provincial Government, outlined measures undertaken in the past, and sketched the Government's plans for the future.

Mr. Hepburn Criticized.

Attacks on Mitchell F. Hepburn, featured by reiteration that Chicago pamphlets were the source of his anti-Hydro campaigning, marked the address of the Premier.

The Provincial Premier gloated over the result of the by-election in West York last Saturday, and pictured the Ontario Liberal chief as disconsolate over the result, so much so that nothing has been

DICTATORSHIP MAY BE SET UP BY VON PAPEN

New Cabinet May Attempt to Function Without Reichstag.

TO CHECK HITLER

Majority in Legislature Would Oppose Von Papen's Government.

BERLIN, June 2 (A.P.) — The possibility of a virtual military dictatorship in Germany during the life of the new Cabinet of Count Franz Von Papen was seen by some political observers to-day.

These observers pointed out that the new Cabinet, which was framed yesterday, would, in all likelihood, be unable to secure a vote of confidence in the Reichstag if it were convened.

They predicted that President von Hindenburg, therefore, would not call the Legislature together, but would continue to function under Article 48 of the Constitution, which grants almost autocratic powers in an emergency.

Repudiated by Labor

Repudiation of the Cabinet by the Centrist Party, to which Count von Papen himself belonged, and by the Bavarian People's Party last night, was taken as an indication of what the Reichstag would do if a vote of non-confidence were proposed.

Other critics accused the President of "turning back to his first love—German Nationalism" in accepting a "Blue Stocking Cabinet devoid of any labor representation. It is the first Cabinet since the establishment of the Republic after the war in which the Socialists and Centrists have not participated.

Check Hitler

If a virtual dictatorship developed, under Article 48 of the Constitution, it was predicted, it would be dominated by General Kurt von Schleichec, the new Minister of Defence, who also would be likely to take prompt steps to check the rising power of Adolp Hitler, Nationalist Socialist leader.

Hitler had no representation in the Cabinet list announced last night.

Baron Konstantin von Neurath, German Ambassador at London, accepted an appointment as Foreign Minister to-day.

Summons Cabinet.

President Paul Von Hindenburg summoned the new German Cabinet headed by Count Franz Von Papen to meet at the Presidential Palace at 5.30 p.m. to-day to take the oath of office.

The formal swearing in of the new ministry wos to be followed at 6 p.m. by its first session in the Chancellory.

The cabinet was completed in skeleton yesterday, was filled in today with the acceptance of Baron Constantin Von Neurath, German Ambassador to London, as Foreign Minister, Count Lutz Schwerin Von Krosnigk as Finance Minister, and Franz Guertner as Minister of Justice.

New Members.

Dr. Karl Goerdeler, who served as "price dictator" under the former ministry and who had been mentioned for Minister of Labor, declined to serve. The Labor Ministry was then taken over by Dr. Herman Warmbold, who was selected as Minister of Economics yesterday. Dr. Warmbold will head both departments.

Count Von Krosigk previously was section chief in the Finance Ministry and had been selected by Dr. Bruening as one of the members of the German delegation to the Lausanne Conference of War Debts and Reparations.

He was a member of the German delegation to the Seven Power Conference in London in July, 1931. Previously he had won a name for himself within the narrower circle of the Finance Ministry, with which he became associated in 1920, by his work as head of the division charged with execution of the finance obligations resulting from the peace treaty.

Dissolve Reichstag.

At the first session of the Cabinet to-night, it was announced, it will begin the draft of a declaration to be read before the Reichstag, probably on Tuesday. It was semi-officially announced that this declaration would be followed immediately by a decree dissolving the Reichstag, thus rendering impossible any vote of non-confidence in the Cabinet.

It was also announced that Erwin Planck, who was right-hand man to Chancellor Bruening also will be the chief assistant to the new Chancellor. He is a son of the famous physicist, Prof. Max Planck. He was promoted to the post of Secretary of State in the Chancellor's office.

DOUGLAS GIVEN MONTH IN JAIL BY MAGISTRATE

Found Guilty of Stealing Thirty Hens in Asphodel.

SET UP AN ALIBI.

Charge Relating to Theft of Turkeys is Dismissed.

Willis Douglas of Westwood was yesterday afternoon convicted by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., on a charge of stealing thirty Plymouth Rock hens the property of Thomas Breckenridge of Asphodel on May 16-17 this year, and was sentenced to one month's imprisonment in the County Jail with hard labor.

A second charge against the accused of stealing seven bronze turkeys from the farm of Mrs. Mary Garvey of Asphodel on or about December 17, 1931, was dismissed. The Magistrate remarked he believed the accused was probably guilty of the offence, but that the evidence in that case had been insufficient on which to record a conviction.

When the hearing of the charges, which commenced on Monday, were resumed today J. A. O'Brien, counsel for the accused, put five witnesses into the box and all stated that Willis Douglas was in Cobourg on the dates mentioned in the first charge.

Clarence Douglas, the first of the defence witnesses called yesterday, testified that he resided at Cobourg with Gordon Douglas. He was a brother of the accused.

He had seen his brother Willis, he stated, at 8.30 on the evening of May 16 at Gordon's house. The accused had gone out at that time and he returned home at about eleven o'clock that night.

Cross-examined by V. J. McElderry, K.C., who prosecuted on behalf of the Crown, witness said he was familiar with the Breckenridge farm. The last time he was there was four or five years ago.

Gordon Douglas, a cousin of the accused, gave evidence of a similar nature, and under cross-examination denied that he had told William Dixon, County Constable, that he had not seen the accused on the night of May 16.

George Bell and Wesley Cook, both of Cobourg, testified that the accused was in Cobourg on the night of May 16, while Ellie Davis stated she had been in the company of the accused man on the night mentioned in the charge. She could not remember having seen Willis Douglas on May 17.

Recalled by the prosecution Mrs. Jane Stewart said she had heard the accused testify on Monday last that he had never before seen witness. She swore that she had seen the accused twice before, once before Christmas and again in the Spring of the present year. On two occasions he had wanted to sell her some hens.

William Dixon, County Constable, related that he went to the home of Gordon Douglas on May 17. Gordon had told witness that Willis went out on the evening of May 16 and that he had not known when he returned to the house.

That concluded the case against the accused.

Before passing sentence as already stated, His Worship heard the charge relating to the theft of turkeys. Mrs. Mary Garvey of Asphodel testified that at about 11 p.m. on December 17 last she had heard the dog barking more than was its usual custom. She had called the dog but had difficulty in getting him into the house. That night she had 28 or 29 bronze turkeys in the coop worth about $5.00 each.

On the following morning witness had found 6 or 7 of the turkeys missing. Feathers were scattered around the farm yard and there was also a nail and a bag string left behind. Marks in the snow indicated that three persons

IRISH OATH BILL OPPONENTS WIN IN THE SENATE

Adjournment of Debate for a Day Beaten in Nine Votes.

AMENDMENTS LIKELY.

Bill Will Probably Be Given Second Reading, Then Amended.

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, June 2 (C.P. Cable).—Debate in the Irish Free State Senate continued to-day on the second reading of President Eamon De Valera's bill abolishing the Parliamentary oath of allegiance to the British Crown.

Adjournment last night brought to light a line-up of parties in the Upper Chamber which gave William T. Cosgrave's opposition party a majority of nine votes. Adjournment was taken after a division when the President's supporters opposed an Opposition motion to suspend discussion till to-day. The vote was 26 to 17, and adjournment was taken.

Observers saw in this division a definite line-up of opinion in the Senate which they prophesied would be maintained throughout the discussion probably causing ultimate defeat, or at least amendment, of the bill.

Some said, however, the bill probably would be given second reading without a recorded vote and would then be hung up while amendments were debated in committee.

Should a deadlock occur between the two Houses over amendments offered in the Senate the bill cannot become law for 18 months unless a general election intervenes.

MILLERS OBJECT TO LOWER RATES

Claim Unable to Compete Equally With Western Mills.

BEFORE RAILWAY BOARD.

OTTAWA, June 1 (C.P.).—Objections of Ontario millers to the lowering of rates by the railways to meet the competition by water carriers on the Great Lakes, was heard by the Board of Railway Commissioners to-day, the millers asking for either a reduction of the rates established last April, or an equalization so that millers not located on the lake ports or west of Fort William might benefit. Chief Commissioner C. P. Fullerton and Commissioners S. J. McLean and J. A. Stoneman heard the application which was presented for the millers by A. C. Boyce, K.C., of Ottawa.

Norman Campbell, president of the Lakeside Milling Company, of Toronto, was the chief witness called this morning. He declared that because of the low lake and rail rates established on April 9, he was forced to absorb up to thirty cents a barrel on flour shipped to the Maritime Provinces, in order to meet competition from Western Canada millers. Previous to the application of the new rate, the company he heads was able to compete on an even basis with the Western millers east of Toronto, and enjoyed an advantage because of their geographical position and their ability to ship direct by carload lots to their customers in the East.

To Mr. Flintoft, the witness said it would appear that the railways were befriending the Western millers at the expense of the Ontario

Oshawa Case

Considerable discussion took place in open conference at yesterday afternoon's session over the appeal from the decision of the Oshawa Presbytery regarding the case of Rev. C. E. Cragg, of Oshawa, who recently apologized in the press, to Oshawa Presbytery, to his church at Oshawa and to Rev. E. Harston of Oshawa, for slanderous statements made concerning Rev. Mr. Harston. A small group in the conference from Oshawa Presbytery supported Rev. A. L. Richards of Whitby, that the question be not opened at the conference, but that a committee be chosen to deal with the matter of the appeal. Conference, however, voted to hear the documents read in connection with the case. The president then named a special committee to deal with the matter. The reporters were refrained from mentioning the subject matter in the documents but will be handed a special report.

Members of the alumni of Albert College, Belleville, gathered and heard short addresses by Mr. W. H. Hopper of Cobourg, chairman of the Board of Albert College; Rev. D. E. N. Mrs. Lawlor showed how the W. M S. had started with raising a few dollars and how the work has grown financially and numerically. In 1931 there were 19,829 members and in the Bay of Quinte Conference the sum of $87,942.48 had been raised, this Conference standing in second place, next to Toronto.

Pray, study, and give has been the motto of the W.M.S. Rev. Dr. Young told of the great work done by home missions in the stricken areas of the Canadian West and the need for assistance. One hundred and sixty carloads had been despatched to the stricken area and 200 tons of clothing, yet the appropriation to home missions had been cut to $167,000 less than the year previous, because of lack of funds. All missions were being maintained, but the grants had been reduced on all sides.

Born in Cramahe, She Has Resided in Campbellford for 56 Years.

Has Remarkable Memory.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 2 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — A resident of Campbellford for the past fifty-six years and one who has seen the town grow from a straggling settlement to the present beautiful and well-ordered municipality, Mrs. A. Bayes, celebrated her 90th birthday Wednesday at her home on Victoria Street, in the same house that her late husband built 45 years ago.

Mrs. Bayes was born in Cramahe Township on June 1, 1842, being Artie, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. P. Merrill. Spending her younger days in that district, she married in 1867 Soloman Bayes, a stone mason by trade, and for some time continued to reside in Cramahe. In 1884 the family moved to Campbellford, and three years later the husband built the present dwelling, which has been the Bayes' home ever since.

Mr. Bayes continued to work at his trade of a stone mason after coming to Campbellford, and many of his erections are still standing as monuments to his memory. In 1907 he received a blow on the head from a falling stone, which eventually caused his death on September 16 of that year.

Mrs. Bayes, although showing her age, and suffering from a slight defect of sight and hearing, has all her mental faculties, and when interviewed by The Examiner, proved to possess a very accurate and retentive memory for dates. She is remarkably active for her age, and her ready response to questions shows that she has kept up with the times and has been all her life a great reader and one who has taken, in the past years, an active interest in her friends and neighbors. She has watched with interest the growth of the town, from a few scattered houses which comprised Campbellford when she came from Cramahe, but now, in her advancing years, she is content to live a quiet and undisturbed life in her own home, which contains many memories of the past to her, with her one daughter, Blanche, as company.

Mrs. Bayes has one great wish at present, and that is to see her three sons, Frank, Harry and Herman, all of whom reside in Manitoba, and with the trust of old age, she is still waiting for the realization of this wish. Besides the three boys, two daughters blessed the union, Blanche, who lives at home, and Mrs. L. Carr of Percy, who was with her mother on this memorable occasion.

Many congratulations were showered upon Mrs. Bayes on the achievement of reaching the 90th milestone of her life, both from members of her family and from the many neighbors and friends who called upon her during the day to offer their wishes for many years more of life's journey.

Plane Does Stunts To Thrill Omemee

OMEMEE, June 2.— (Examiner Correspondence.)— The people of Omemee received quite a thrill on Saturday afternoon when an airplane alighted in the meadow beside the tannery. It was thought that it was a forced landing, but on investigation it proved to be two visitors from Ashtabula, S. B. Krause and L. L. Sandy, who came to visit with Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Williamson. Mr. Sandy is on old Omemee boy and the plane which he owns is a sister of the machine that won the long endurance test in Detroit a short time ago.

On Sunday afternoon about two o'clock the plane took off for home after doing some wing-overs and spirals for the amusement of the spectators.

RENEWAL MISSION IS BEING HELD IN ST. MARY'S CHURCH

Rev. Fr. T. Mangan, C.F.F.R. and Rev. Fr. H. Flemming, C.F.F.R. of Toronto Conducting Services.

DEATH IS SERMON THEME.

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, June 2.— This week in St. Mary's church, Campbellford, renewal mission services are being held conducted by Rev. Father T. Mangan, C.F.F.R. and Rev. Father H. Flemming, C.F.F.R both of Toronto. Three services are being held each day, masses and instruction at 5.30 and 9 a.m. and Rosary and Benediction with sermon at 7.30 p.m. Tonight the service will be given over to the children with the children's choir leading the singing.

Last evening Father Flemming preached to a large congregation on the subject of death, taking for his theme the words from the Bible, "Who is the man who shall live and not see death?"

"Death is so terrible, he said, that men try and escape from it, that being the reason we so often see the grandeur at funerals we do with the expensive caskets and many flowers. It is the attempt by man to hide the horror of death, but it does not succeed for the grandeur of the funeral does not console. It is a good life that does this. Under the flowers and grandeur we find the corpse, and it speaks to us with terrible force, the preacher said, for it tells us that it is decreed by God that all men must die. Death is the one constant battle men are fighting, yet in the end it conquers. It is the one certainty we cannot escape.

"What does it mean to us?" Fr. Flemming asked. To the rich man it means that he will have to leave all his wealth behind. It will not buy him one second of life when he faces eternity. Death will not be more lenient to him because he is rich. If he has made his money just to gratify his life, then his life is a failure. Often money will damn the soul of the man who has made it if it is not used for the purpose God gave it.

Pleasure Not Forbidden

So it will be with those who are always seeking pleasure, Fr. Fleming stated. Pleasure was not forbidden, in its place, but only for those who give their lives up to it. Our pleasures will not console us at death, he declared, but are more likely to torment our last hours. Pleasure was not the end of life. Our end here on earth was to save our immortal soul. It was certain that we should die, but when and where were uncertain. Jesus had said "Be ye also ready for thou knowest not the hour when the Son of Man shall come." How can we go on and sin and remain in mortal sin with that command? the preacher asked. Death would come as a thief upon our lives, so how could we trifle with them. Two thirds of those who die are called suddenly, and if this was to happen to us would we be prepared to meet death in the company we find ourselves in, the sins we commit with others and by ourselves, the sins of married life and the shirking of parental responsibilities "Could we meet God in such a way?" he asked.

"We shall die the preacher said, as we live" and that was one thing that was more or less certain. We could not blame God if we lived a life of sin and liked it, for God would not be mocked. To watch and pray and be always ready was what we should always keep before us, Fr. Flemming stated. The thought of death was something to guide our lives by and that was what God meant it to be, and he gave two practical suggestions to the congregation as a guide to their lives. Keep out of mortal sin and make use of prayer and the sacraments of the church.

had walked abreast from over the hill and to the barn.

She did not know the accused Willis Douglas, although she knew that he had lived about two miles from her farm at Westwood.

William Stewart of 127 Lansdowne street, city, testified he had been in the chicken buying business for about three years. He had had a transaction with accused on December 18, 1931, when he purchased four bronze turkeys and one Naragansett turkey from him.

Under cross-examination by Mr. O'Brien witnsss said he knew the date of the transaction because he had made an entry in his cash book. Reading from the book witness said the entry was as follows: Willis Douglas, six turkeys, $13.00.

He stated he had put the entry in the cash book on the evening of December 18, having transferred the entry from a small note book. Counsel suggested to witness that all the entries had been made in the cash book at the same time, an allegation which witness stoutly denied.

Louis Green testified that he bought two turkeys in December last. He did not remember the exact date. It was about the middle of the month. He could not identify the men from whom he bought the birds. There were two men and one of them spoke "broad Scotch."

David Silvester, Provincial Police Constable in evidence told of an interview with accused on May 13, when the prisoner had made a voluntary statement. In the statement Douglas had said he sold two bronze turkeys to Mr. Green, and that he had bought the birds from Mrs. Russell Hill of Centre Dummer.

Cross-examined the Constable said he had said nothing to the accused following his arrest by way of warning before the statement was given. He had told the accused that it was better for a young man to tell the truth.

"And you were there in uniform with a gun hanging at your side," was Mr. O'Brien's comment. "Yes," replied witness.

"The weakness of the Crown's case is my defence said defence counsel in intimating that he did not desire to call the accused or any witnesses on his behalf.

heard from him since. Mr. Henry declared again that he has often invited Mr. Hepburn into the Provincial Legislature, but without result. Mr. Henry declared that whole sections of Mr. Hepburn's anti-H.E.P.C. speeches were lifted from pamphlets of Chicago origin. The Premier said that his duty has been to keep the public assured that Hydro is as well operated as it was in the days of active leadership of its founder, Sir Adam Beck. In answer to a charge made by Mr. Hepburn in the West York campaign, he said that the Government will continue to do everything to maintain and develop the Hydro, and he denied specifically the suggestion that the Chippawa development is to be closed.

The Prime Minister, touching the matter of taxation and the need for economy, urged teachers to co-operate with school trustees throughout the Province in order to accomplish a readjustment of salaries without harmful effect on the high efficiency of Ontario's educational system.

If necessary, the Government is prepared to spend more to ensure that the present high standards shall be not only mantained, but improved, he said.

Claims For Economy.

He claimed that the Government has led the way in economy, slashing the appropriations of various departments as much as 40 per cent., and reducing Governmental costs about $5,000,000. The number of sources from which the Government derives its revenues has been increased, but he maintained that the total tax burden has not been increased.

He declared vigorously that no one is objecting to the six-cent gasoline tax, and said that by spending $20 a year on taxes the motorist saves $100 a year on the upkeep of his car, due to better roads.

THURSDAY, JUNE 2, 1932

DOING GREAT WORK.

Peterborough has been entertaining for the past two days a group of public-spirited men and women who are banded together in the common cause of protecting our dumb animals, both domestic and wild, against cruelty.

It is a necessary and a splendid work that is done by the Ontario Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, not that there are many deliberately cruel people in this Province, but rather that there are careless folks who are not always as thoughtful as they should be as regards their treatment of dumb animals.

The S.P.C.A. seeks to educate all such people to the necessity of being more considerate and at the same time to see that the few who are not only careless but cruel are dealt with according to law.

It is well that there should be a branch of this organization in every community, for obviously it is capable of worth-while work; here in Peterborough we have been singularly well served by an energetic branch composed of citizens who have given liberally of their time and means to furthering the activities of the organization.

MONETARY REFORM.

From H. E. Spencer, M.P., president of the newly formed Canadian Monetary Reform League, comes a memorandum setting forth the principles of the organization, which has a provisional committee composed mainly of Progressive members of Parliament.

The league is seeking to effect a permanent organization and is endeavoring to secure the membership of all Canadians who believe there is a serious weakness in our financial structure, and that the time has come for a change in the monetary system.

Legislation obtained through a majority of the members of the House of Commons is the purpose for which the Monetary Reform League has been formed, and it is claimed that existing debts, both internal and external, cannot be met on a proper basis until commodity price levels are raised through an increase in the amount of money in circulation.

"It is advocated," says the league's memorandum, "that this additional issue of credit should be an issue on behalf of the community by the Government itself, and should not take form as an additional bankers' loan-credit."

Any reform in our monetary system, it is argued, must remove the control of real credit from the banking system and restore it to its right owners, the community, and exercise this control through government for the greatest benefit of the community.

Officers of the Monetary Reform League declare that financial reform is indispensable to satisfactory improvement in either national or world economics, and that a conference to discuss this whole matter should be called.

MUST FACE THE ISSUE.

Although it rejected a resolution that would have brought about a reduction of ten per cent. in the salaries of local teachers for next year, the Board of Education has given evidence that it recognizes the need of retrenchment by deciding to hold a special meeting to consider what economies can be brought about in the cost of education, and salaries, will naturally loom large in the deliberations.

Before teachers are engaged for the next term is the logical time to settle this question of salaries, and it is felt that the teachers themselves at this time are disposed to consideration of this important question in a manner consistent with conditions.

That there will have to be a sharp decrease in educational costs should be generally evident.

The maintenance of our schools is the heaviest item of expense in our public services, and with the income from which the taxes to be collected to meet that expenditure materially reduced, the only logical course is to ease the burden by inaugurating effective economies in the administration of our educational facilities.

It is difficult to see how these economies can be brought about without bringing the salaries of school staffs into line with general conditions, for while under normal conditions it would not be claimed that local teachers are extravagantly paid, these are not normal conditions, and public servants, including teachers, whose salaries come out of the pockets of people the majority of whom are poorer because of the economic situation, cannot hope to escape the effects of this period of depression.

Before new contracts are entered into the Board of Education should face this issue squarely, as other boards are doing, and effect a saving in school expenditures that will relieve the harassed taxpayers of a portion of the crushing burden they are attempting to carry.

BEER AND THE TOURIST.

The Moderation League, putting on the pressure in its agitation for the sale of beer and wine by the glass in Ontario, has launched a monthly publication, "New Business," the first issue of which has just made its appearance.

If the league's propaganda is not more soundly founded than the reference it makes in its first number to the tourist situation in this part of Ontario, it is not likely to create a very profound impression upon the people of Ontario.

Pointing out that the Peterborough Council made a substantial decrease in its grant to the Trent Waterway Development Association and that Campbellford decided not to vote any money to the association, the league's organ says that efforts to boom this district as a tourist centre will have to be materially curtailed, if not abandoned completely.

That, of course, is quite true, but it is followed by the insinuation that the situation would be remedied by a freer sale of beer and light wines, which is on the face of it ridiculous.

The authorization of such sale by the glass would not help a particle in bringing tourists to this part of Ontario, for the type of visitor who would be attracted by such facilities, the people who would want to sit down at a hotel table and get outside of sundry schooners of beer, would never get this far into Ontario; they'd call a halt at the first thirst-dispelling dispensary they happened to see open.

Border points might benefit from tourists of that stamp, although it is a debatable question, but certainly summer resort districts like our own Kawarthas would not gain financially or otherwise.

This section of Ontario attracts a different kind of tourist—people who come here because of the outing and fishing facilities and the beauty of our lakes and rivers.

Many of them, of course, like alcoholic beverages, but they are quite satisfied with the present liquor law which gives them the privilege of having liquor at their camp, and they are not asking for beer parlors to be opened for their accommodation.

BRITAIN'S FUTURE AT SEA.

Sir Thomas Bell, chairman of the directors of Messrs. John Brown and Company, Limited, who have the 70,000-ton Cunarder in an unfinished state on their stocks, Sir Robert Horne, ex-Chancellor of the Exchequer, and others, have been pulling the wires with the Government and with the Cunard Company with a view to going ahead to finish the job, but the latest news on the situation is that there is no immediate hope. Meantime thousands of men in the shipbuilding and cognate industries are idle and have to draw unemployment insurance

While British enterprise is standing still—which in the final analysis means going back—Germany France, Italy and the United States are forging ahead. Between now and next September five new luxurious, fast ships will have been made ready for the North Atlantic passenger trade between New York and continental ports. France and Italy will have two each, and the United States one, all about 30,000 to 40,000 tons, or about the size of the Mauretania.

British people throughout the world have been so long accustomed to British supremacy in maritime enterprise that this standing still is a matter of deep regret. At present the supremacy rests in German hands, with Europa and Bremen as the crack ships of the Atlantic. Announcement of the building of a super-Cunarder was hailed with joy as Britain's answer to all other rivals. What does Britain lose or gain by this policy of waiting?

On the credit side the line-up of facts are arrayed thus: Passenger traffic is attracted to ships that are new, luxurious and fast. Human psychology causes people to patronize what is the latest and best. Mankind prefers to travel in a new car than an old one, and the swanky ships gets the business rather than the "models" of five, ten or twenty years ago. The fact that one or more ships of a particular line are the undisputed queens of the ocean is of incalculable advertising value for the ships of the entire fleet. People will cross on a particular ship simply for the sake of saying that they have done so, and failing being able to do that, they will cross in lesser ships of the same line that bask in the refulgence of the smarter sister.

Against that there are these arguments: The bigger the ship the greater the cost of operation. The bulk of the traffic comes from Americans, and the flat condition of American pocket-books at the present time, and apparently for the next year or two, holds out no immediate prospect of profitable traffic for big, luxury liners. To build a super-liner and put it in commission this year or next would result in heavy loss, and the cost of "advertising" by this policy would be more than the Cunard Company could afford.

It should be noted that the ships put into the Atlantic trade next fall are about the same size as the Mauretania, and despite the glamor of her name—which is a wonderful asset—she lost $500,000 on last year's operation. If the Mauretania does not pay, how could a larger ship be expected to pay? Moreover, these ships are starting their careers at a time when cross-Atlantic trade will be at a minimum.

The chief point is: Can the Cunard, or the White Star Company, afford to let their opponents get ahead of them and create patronage which may be difficult to win back?

It all boils down to a question of economics, and only time can tell whether the present policy is wise or not.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

It is to be hoped that the League of Nations has not failed to notice what is being done to Toronto's ball club.

Everybody but Premier Henry seems agreed that the West York by-election result should be a lesson to the Ontario Government.

Windsor's new radio station is now on the air. It is presumed the tax collector will use its facilities in an attempt to gather in some of those back taxes.

Unless coroners' juries show greater courage in fixing responsibility for these shocking fatalities, it can hardly be expected that there will be any decrease in reckless driving.—Brantford Expositor.

"New Business" is the title of the Moderation League's official organ. What it is advocating, however, is certainly not new business, but a revival of a decidedly old trade.

Sault Ste. Marie's wolf week prospectus speaks of a bush program by an isolated town in the great Algoma forest. Jim Curran, however, would let no outsider speak thus of the "Soo."

The Health Association's work is more necessary under present conditions than ever before. Those who are in a position to help should remember that fact in making their subscriptions.

Baseball is not making much headway in Italy, and the Border Cities Star thinks the reason may be that it is practically impossible for Mussolini to umpire all the games.

The fish and game committee of the Legislature is to hold a session in Peterborough, and if the members keep their ears open while here they should carry away a new collection of fish stories.

In Lighter Vein

The Worm Turns.

An Indian down in Oklahoma, hard up, went to the bank to borrow $100. The banker said it would be all right, provided he had some security. The deal finally was made, the Indian giving a mortgage on 20 ponies.

Not long after that oil was struck close to the Indian's allotment, and he sold his oil lease for a lot of cash, so stepped into the bank and peeled off a $100 bill to pay the loan.

"That's fine," remarked the banker, when the business was completed, "but you don't want to carry all that money around with you. Better leave it here with me."

"All right," replied the redskin; "how many ponies you got?"—Capper's Weekly.

GRAIN, CATTLE, PRODUCE

TORONTO, June 2. — Increased offerings and only a fair demand forced prices lower on creamery solids yesterday. Local brokers were offering good No. 1 butter at 17c to 17¼c, the top figure being for Western makes. There was a good demand for No. 2 solids and prices obtained were a little better than the usual spread between the grades. The lower quality makes were quoted at 16¼c, with some at 16½c, which prices were steady with those previously quoted. The monthly report on storage holdings, at Toronto, showed about the half as much butter on hand this year in comparison with June 1, 1931.

Cheese.

Prices for new cheese were steady, brokers quoting 9½c for large, 9¾c for twins and 10c for triplets. Prices to retailers were 11c for new large, 11¼c for new twins, 11¼c for triplets and 13½c for Stiltons. The monthly report indicated half as much cheese on hand in this city, comparing with last year.

Eggs.

There was firmness on the egg market, prices moving up ½c for graded lots. The storage report gave 46,743 cases on hand and last year at this date there were 80,386 cases held. Brokers were quoting graded eggs in used cases at 15½c for extras, 13¼c for firsts and 11¼c for seconds, and storage stocks at 16c for extras and 14c for firsts. Receipts were light as Montreal continued to attract supplies. Country shippers were 13½c for extras, 11½c for firsts and 9½c for seconds, delivered, ungraded, cases returned, while retailers were offered supplies at 19c for extras in cartons, 17c for extras loose, 15c for firsts loose and 13c for seconds loose.

CANADIAN EGG MARKETS

At Montreal the Board of Trade figures show stocks of storage eggs on May 31 1932, as 73,967 cases, as compared to 80,629 cases a year ago.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK

MONTREAL, June 2.—There were 7 cattle, 220, calves, 268 hogs and 68 sheep and lambs for sale on the two Montreal live stock markets today.

The cattle offered were only common bulls.

Calves were of fair to good quality and were selling at about steady prices. The bulk of the calves sold between $4 and $4.10.

Hogs were slow. No early sales made.

Hogs were unchanged. Selects, bacons and butchers were weighed up at $4.75 to $4.85, fed and watered for those of good type. Sows were selling mostly around $4.50 to $4.75.

The MURDER at HAZELMOOR

by AGATHA CHRISTIE

"Oh! She's always the same—sometimes she says she's better and sometimes she says she's worse, but I think it's all the same really. It's a ghastly life, you know. Each year, I wonder how I can stick it—but there it is—if one doesn't rally round the old bird for Christmas—why, she's quite capable of leaving her money to a cat's home. She's got five of them, you know. I'm always stroking the brutes and pretending I dote upon them."

"Mr. Duke," announced the parlormaid.

Mr. Duke was a recent arrival. He had bought the last of the six bungalows in September. He was a big man, very quiet and devoted to gardening. Mr. Rycroft who was an enthusiast on birds and who lived next door to him had taken him up, overruling the section of thought which voiced the opinion that of course Mr. Duke was a very nice man, quite unassuming, but was he, after all, quite—well, quite? Mightn't he, just possibly, be a retired tradesman?

But nobody like to ask him—and indeed it was thought better not to know. Because if one did know, it might be awkward, and really in such a small community it was best to know everybody.

"Not walking to Exhampton in this weather?" he asked of Major Burnaby.

"No, Trevelyan will hardly expect me tonight."

"It's awful, isn't it?" said Mrs. Willett with a shudder. "To be buried up here, year after year—it must be ghastly."

Mr. Duke gave her a quick glance. Major Burnaby too stared at her curiously.

But at that moment tea was brought in.

After tea, Mrs. Willett suggested bridge.

"There are six of us. Two can cut in."

Ronnie's eyes brightened.

"You four start," he suggested.

"Miss Willett and I will cut in."

But Mr. Duke said that he did not play bridge.

Ronnie's face fell.

"We might play a round game," said Mrs. Willett.

"Or table turning, or tipping," suggested Ronnie. "It's a spooky evening. Mr. Rycroft and I were talking about it this evening as we came along here."

"I am a member of the Physical Research Society," explained Mr. Rycroft in his precise way. "I was able to put my young friend right on one or two points."

"Tommy rot," said Major Burnaby very distinctly.

"Oh! but it's great fun, don't you think?" said Violet Willett. "I mean, one doesn't believe in it or anything. It's just an amusement. What do you say, Mr. Duke?"

"Anything you like, Miss Willett."

"We must turn the lights out, and we must find a suitable table. No—not that one, Mother. I'm sure it's much too heavy."

Things were settled at last to everyone's satisfaction. A small round table with a polished top was brought from an adjoining room. It was set in front of the fire and everyone took his place round it with the lights switched off.

Major Burnaby was between his hostess and Violet. On the other side of the girl was Ronnie Garfield. A cynical smile creased the major's lips.

There were all the usual laughs, whispers, stereotyped remarks.

"The spirits are a long time."

"Got a long way to come."

"Hush—nothing will happen unless we are serious."

At last, after some time, the murmur of talk died away.

A silence.

A tremor ran through the polished surface. The table began to rock.

"Ask it questions. Who shall ask? You, Ronnie."

"Oh—er—what do I ask it?"

"Is a spirit present?" prompted Violet.

"Oh! Hullo—is a spirit present?"

A sharp rock.

"That means yes," said Violet.

"Oh! er—who are you?"

No response.

"Ask it to spell its name."

"How can it?"

"We count the number of rocks."

"Oh! I see. Will you please spell your name."

The table started rocking violently.

"A B C D E F G H I—I say, was that I or J?"

"Ask it. Was that I?"

One rock.

"Yes. Next letter please."

The spirit's name was Ida.

"Have you a message for anyone here?"

"Yes."

"Who is it for? Miss Willett?"

"No."

"Mrs. Willett?"

"No."

"Mr. Rycroft?"

"No."

"Me?"

"Yes."

"It's for you, Ronnie. Go on. Make it spell it out."

The table spelled "Diana."

"Who's Diana? Do you know anyone called Diana?"

"No, I don't. At least—"

"There you are. He does."

"Ask her if she's a widow?"

The fun went on. Mr. Rycroft smiled indulgently. Young people must have their jokes. He caught one glance of his hostess's face in a sudden flicker of the firelight. It looked worried and abstracted. Her thoughts were far away.

Major Burnaby was thinking of the snow. It was going to snow again this evening. Hardest winter he ever remembered.

Mr. Duke was playing very seriously. The spirits, alas, paid very little attention to him. All the messages seemed to be for Violet and Ronnie.

Violet was told she was going to Italy. Someone was going with her. Not a woman. A man. His name was Leonard.

More laughter. The table spelled the name of the town. A Russian jumble of letter—not in the least Italian.

The usual accusations were leveled.

"Look her, Violet," (Miss Willett had been dropped). "You are shoving."

"I'm not. Look, I take my hands right off the table and it tips and rocks just the same."

"I like raps. I'm going to ask it to rap. Loud ones."

There was a pause. The table was inert. It returned no answer to questions.

"Has Ida gone away?"

One languid rock.

"Will another spirit come, please?"

Nothing. Suddenly the table began to quiver and rock violently.

"Hurrah. Are you a new spirit?"

"Yes"

"Have you a message for someone?"

"Yes."

"For me?"

"No."

"For Violet?"

"No."

"For Major Burnaby?"

"Yes."

"It's for you, Major Burnaby. Will you spell it out, please."

The table started rocking slowly.

"T R E V—are you sure it's V? It can't be. T R E V—it doesn't make sense."

"Trevelyan, of course," said Mrs. Willett. "Captain Trevelyan."

"Do you mean Captain Trevelyan?"

"Yes."

"You've got a message for Captain Trevelyan?"

"No."

"Well, what is it then?"

The table began to rock—slowly, rhythmically. So slowly that it was easy to count the letters.

"D—" a pause. "E—A D."

"Dead."

"Somebody is dead?"

Instead of Yes or No, the table began to rock again till it reached the letter T.

"T—do you mean Trevelyan?"

"Yes."

"You don't mean Trevelyan is dead?"

"Yes."

A sharp rock. "Yes."

Somebody gasped. There was a faint stir all around the table.

Ronnie's voice as he resumed his questions held a different note—an awed uneasy note.

"You mean—that Captain Trevelyan is dead?"

"Yes."

There was a pause. No one knew what to ask next. Then the table started rocking again. Rhythmically and slowly, Ronnie spelled out the letters aloud—

M U R D E R—

Mrs. Willett gave a cry and took her hands off the table.

"I won't go on with this. It's horrible. I don't like it."

Mr. Duke's voice rang out, resonant and clear. He was questioning the table.

"Do you mean—that Captain Trevelyan has been murdered?"

The last word had hardly left his lips when the answer came. The table rocked so violently and assertively that it nearly fell over. One rock only.

"Yes—"

"Look here," said Ronnie. He took his hands from the table. "I call this a rotten joke." His voice trembled.

"Turn up the lights," said Mr. Rycroft.

Major Burnaby rose and did so. The sudden glare revealed a company of pale uneasy faces.

Everyone looked at each other. Somehow—nobody quite knew what to say.

"Silly nonsense," said Mrs. Willett. "Nobody out to—to make jokes like that."

"I wasn't shoving," said Ronnie, feeling unspoken criticism leveled at him. "I swear I wasn't."

"I can say the same," said Mr. Duke. "And you, Mr. Rycroft?"

"Certainly not," said Mr. Rycroft warmly.

"You don't think I'd make a joke of that kind, do you?" growled Major Burnaby. "Rotten bad taste."

"Violet dear—"

"I didn't Mother. Indeed I didn't. I wouldn't do such a thing. The girl was almost tearful.

Everyone was embarrassed. A sudden blight had come over the cheerful party.

Major Burnaby pushed back his chair, went to the window and pulled aside the curtain. He stood there looking out with his back to the room.

"Twenty-five minutes past five," said Mr. Rycroft glancing up at the clock. He compared it with his own watch and somehow everyone felt that the action was significant in some way.

"Let me see," said Mrs. Willett with forced cheerfulness. "I think we'd better have cocktails."

The situation grew a little easier.

"Well," said Ronnie, raising his glass. "Here's how."

The others responded—all but the silent figure by the window.

"Major Burnaby. Here's your cocktail."

"Thank you, Mrs. Willett. Not for me. "He looked once more out into the night then came slowly back to the group by the fire. "Many thanks for a very pleasant time. Good night."

"You're not going?"

"Sorry, Mrs. Willett—but it's got to be done. If there were only a telephone."

"A telephone?"

"Yes—to tell you the truth—I'm—well, I'd like to be sure that Joe Trevelyan's all right. Silly superstition and all that—but there it is. Naturally, I don't believe in this tommy rot—but—"

"But you can't telephone from anywhere. There's not such a thing in Sittaford."

THREE CHILDREN

The Gauthier farm house was located on the Bigwood-Rutter Highway, about one mile and a half from Rutter, and was of frame structure, which burnt rapidly. The family had retired late last night in pleasant expectations of Mr. Gauthier leaving in the morning for work as he has been unemployed for over six months, and the family was in straightened circumstances. There was only a small fire in the kitchen range and while both Mr. and Mrs. Gauthier cannot understand how the fire could have started from the stove, it is thought that perhaps a stick of stove-wood had been leaning against the range smoldering for some time to break into flames after the household had retired. When Mr. Gauthier was awakened by the fire and smoke the kitchen was a mass of flames that were quickly swept into the bedroom, where Mr. and Mrs. Gauthier and the youngest girl were sleeping. Momentarily dazed, Mr. Gauthier shouted to his wife and child and rushed to the door, which was partially blocked by his suitcase packed and ready for the morning. Jerking the door open and tossing the suitcase outside, he shouted to warn those sleeping on the second floor.

Mrs. Gauthier fought through to the door, but the parents attempted to re-enter in a frantic attempt to save the child who had not followed them. They were beaten back by the flames rushing out the open door. Mr. Gauthier ran to the front of the house in an effort to gain entrance to the bedroom by a window, but he was again beaten back. Here he met Miss Page and his son Aime who had jumped from the second storey window.

BOY LOSES EYE AS RESULT OF INJURIES

Five Year Old James Smith Operated on at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Five-year-old James Smith was operated on at St. Joseph's Hospital this morning for the removal of his right eyeball, as a result of injuries received on Saturday night last when the car in which he was riding with his parents was pelted with a barrage of missiles.

Mr. Smith accompanied by his wife and son was motoring on the road that runs west of Crawford's Grove when without warning a barrage of missiles, including a number of duck eggs was thrown at the car. The window was splintered and glass showered in the interior of the car. The child was struck in the right eye by a splinter of glass and the eyeball was cut through.

It is learned on good authority that investigations so far conducted by Provincial Police into the occurrence has resulted in the identification of six boys between the ages of twelve and fourteen years, who are alleged to have been implicated in the occurrence. The facts of the case are in the hands of the Crown Attorney.

EXTENSION PROGRAM PLANNED MAPPING OUT MINING AREAS

35 Officers With Corps of Assistants Start Work on Areas.

WIDE FIELD.

OTTAWA, June 8. (CP)—An extensive programme or mapping and exploration of mining areas in Canada is being carried out this summer by the Department of Mines, Ottawa. In a statement issued to-day the Department explains that some of the most promising mineral areas in Yukon territory, the Northwest Territories, British Columbia, Northern Saskatchewan Manitoba and in the Rouyn mineral belt of Quebec were to be explored and mapped. Intensive investigation in several of the older areas will also be carried out.

In forgoing field activities thirty-five officers of the geological survey of the Department will be engaged together with a corps of assistants recruited from the various Canadian universities. Eight parties have already left Ottawa and the whole contingent will be in the field by the middle of June.

On party, assigned to the pitchblende-silver area at Great Bear Lake reached that district early in March. It will be augmented later by several technical assistants, so as to allow for the operation of sub-parties during the brief summer season. Two other large areas in the Northwest Territories will receive attention, one to the north of Great Slave lake, and the other extending inland a distance of some 200 miles from Chesterfield Inlet, on the northwest coast of Hudson Bay. Both these areas are known to have favourable geological conditions for the depositing of minerals and the exploration and mapping is being done with a view to aiding and encouraging prospecting. In the Yukon a large area near Cacmacks, considered suitable for prospecting, will be mapped and explored.

In Manitoba it is proposed to outline the most favourable areas for the guidance of prospectors in a region north of the Churchill River, in the vicinity of Granville lake the mapping of Greenstone areas near Cross lake will be continued.

In the Amisk lake district of Northern Saskatchewan an area some 700 square miles in extent will be mapped. The area lies to the west of the Flin Flon Mines, and is known to contain a number of gold showings. The district to be mapped in the Rouyn field includes practically all of the mineral discoveries in that area. Additional parties will do more detailed investigative work in areas of known economic interest in British Columbia, Alberta, Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick, and Nova Scotia.

Actress Defendant In Affections Suit

CHICAGO, June 2. — Helen Hayes, stage and screen actress, has been made defendant in a suit for $100,000 instituted in Circuit Court by Caryl Frink MacArthur, first wife of the actress's husband, Charles MacArthur, playwright.

The suit was suppressed until to-day by Judge David M. Brothers, but service was obtained while Miss Hayes was starring in the Good Fairy at a loop theatre last night. She left for Montreal at the close of the Chicago engagement.

The basis for the suit, it was learned, will be a charge of alienated affections.

Caryl Frink McArthur is movie critic on the staff of the Chicago Herald and Examiner.

BARGAIN PAGES BIG ATTRACTION

International Circulation Managers Discuss Power of Advertising Appeals.

ELECT OFFICERS.

TORONTO, June 2. (CP)—J. T. Toler of the Atlanta, Ga., Constitution was elected President of the International Circulaion Managers' Association here to-day, with J. C. Montgomery, Detroit, being elected first vice president and Clarence Eyster Peoria, Ill., secretary-treasurer.

Statistics prove, according to Joseph A. Buntin, of the Bloomington, Ill. Daily Pantagraph, that one out of every two men is more attracted to bargain pages than other advertising. The statistics were obtained, he said, as the result of an interview campaign among 1,000 of his paper's readers.

Women Attracted

He declared 5.01 percent of the women were attracted by bargain ads, 16.79 percent by ads of the information type, and 26.2 percent were non-committal. Of the men questioned 32.7 percent were attracted by bargain pages, 41.89 percent by the information type of advertisement, and 25.41 were non-committal.

Parents of newspaper carriers should show evidence of courtesy, pleasing personality or sales ability before their sons are chosen to sell papers, said A. R. Poyntz of the Toronto Globe.

A. W. Cockerill, Syracuse Herald declared home delivery represents regular and not casual readers and is less sensitive to weather conditions. It has a higher value, moreover to potential advertisers, he said.

1,000 LIBERALS ASSEMBLE HERE

First Annual Meeting of Central Ontario Association for Peterborough.

FROM 16 RIDINGS.

The first annual meeting of the Central Ontario Liberal Association will be held in Peterborough on a date this month to be announced in a few days.

This decision was made at the meeting of the executive which was held in Peterborough Wednesday afternoon. One thousand delegates from the sixteen Provincial ridings from Muskoka to Kingston are expected to attend this assembly, and many other visitors will swell the attendance if the present plans materialize in their full extent.

J. J. Duffus, who was elected president at the organization meeting in Cobourg, was chairman of yesterday's meeting, and others present were W. A. Fraser, M.P., of Trenton; Fraser Aylsworth of Madoc, Dr. Falconer of Belleville, Hon. Nelson Parlament, John Dewart and W. F. Huycke of Peterborough and Harold Holton of Belleville, secretary of the association.

The date of the meeting here this month was actually determined, but it was subsequently learned that Colonel Ralston, Minister of Defence in the King administration, could not be present on that day. A change will be made in the date in order that Col. Ralston can accept the invitation from the Central Ontario Association.

Other speakers will be W. H. Moore of Oshawa, Mitchell Hepburn, W. A. Fraser, W. E. N. Sinclair, William Newman, W. J. Bragg.

On the same day, it is understood, the Liberal women of the district will hold an official meeting here to be addressed by one or more prominent Liberal women speakers. There will also be a banquet in the evening.

J. J. Duffus has recently attended local meetings at Marmora, Gravenhurst and Brechin, and on Friday afternoon will be present at the East Peterborough executive meeting at Norwood.

Nelson Parliament will be present, and Dr. Munro of Warsaw will preside.

ARCHBISHOP SWEENY

town where twenty were sent, and send them over to Russia to learn Communistic principles and come back here to spread them over the Dominion."

So the child who is educated in humane principles will remember these in later life and govern his ways in accordance with them. The reading of the Humane Society publication, "Animal Life," was recommended as a means to this educative end.

Mr. Kelso also made a plea for the stray cat, which often repays with strong affection the gift of a good home.

"Putting Humane Societies on a Business Basis" was the title of a very interesting and informative address given by Mrs. R. A. Plato, of St. Catharines, secretary of the Lincoln County Humane Society.

"We have to deal with a hard-headed and sometimes hard-hearted public," she said, "and we want to get our proposition across to this public. It has been said that it is sometimes easier to convince people who have no imagination, through the dollars and cents medium."

Just as a motorist needs three things to gain his goal: a mechanism, driving power and a lubricant, so any organization needs just those things.

Emphasis was laid on the importance of all members of an executive working together, instead of separately.

The speaker also stressed the value of really knowing the work, in order to tell others about it. She regarded the main qualities for an inspector as being agreeableness and tact.

"If you can get other people to like you, then you can do almost anything else."

Relative to Dogs

"Some random remarks relative to dogs," was the title of a brief talk given by J. A. Campbell, V.S., B.V.Sc., veterinary surgeon in charge of the Animal Hospital in Toronto, who has spent over thirty-three years in work among animals. This short talk from an expert was one of the most educational addresses of the conference and was followed by a barrage of questions from interested listeners.

The speaker urged emphatically the advantage of aiding a dog to shed its coat in the Spring months, and advocated the clipping of dogs as a preventive of skin diseases and skin irritation.

"Man conflicts with nature every time in the animals it produces," he said.

"Dogs should be well brushed and groomed in the shedding season and clipped, if necessary, in hot weather."

Persian cats often benefited by being clipped, after a general anesthetic had been given.

"A horse is better with a thin, dry coat than with a heavy, wet one," he asserted.

"The mistake that is often made by a lazy man is in clipping the legs and not clipping the body, instead of taking the opposite course."

In answer to various questions, the speaker said that the clipping does not coarsen or change the texture of the hair, any more than with cutting a man's hair.

He said that milk was a fine accessory to a dog's food and asserted that the pasteurizing of milk completely destroyed organizisms which might cause worms.

Meat also is the natural food for a dog and raw meat is better than cooked, except in the case of liver, which, when given raw, is apt to cause parasites.

The speaker referred to the advances made in recent years in alleviating distemper, by the discovery of a serum, derived from ferrets, and also said that many dog disorders were erroneously judged as distemper, by the public.

Magistrate Langley dropped in for a few minutes at the morning session, and, in the course of a few remarks, which included a welcome to the city, gave the members a strong hint that he did not relish indiscriminate criticism of his judgments in humane actions, such as was levelled during last year's annual meeting at St. Catharines.

He remarked that, in a British country, a case must be proved before being judged and said that faulty legal handling of actions often resulted in the wrong person being charged and a consequent dismissal of the action.

"Don't be too quick in blaming a magistrate who has sworn to do justice according to the law."

Past Year's Work

A report of work done during the past year was given by the manager of the Provincial organization, J. M. Wilson of Toronto.

He cited various cases which come up for consideration.

One of these had to do with a man, starving in a workless home, who also starved his horses. When the animals were taken away from him, his neighbors turned in and relieved the situation by loaning a team of horses to finish the work.

Another case had to do with two boys who took turns in trying to split open a dog's head. One was the son of a butcher and had been accustomed to watching the killing of animals by his father.

A unique punishment devised by Mr. Wilson, was in making the two boys learn a very eloquent eulogy of the dog.

Mr. Wilson regretted that present depressed conditions had caused the railways to cease construction of specially-devised, partitioned cars which had proved to be of much assistance in transporting food without damage.

He reported very encouraging conditions in transportation by truck.

Shipping of Horses

Mr. Wilson spoke of the conditions discovered last year in the shipping of horses to France. Old horses were quartered with prairie animals, with the result that there were many broken legs. At La Havre, where two thousand horses at a time were quartered in the slaughter houses, very cruel treatment was found to be the rule, when butchers determined the quality of the flesh by prodding with sharp forks of the shrieking beasts.

An appeal made to Lord Bessborough, however, brought immediate action in ameliorating these conditions. It was discovered that every rule had been broken in the handling of these horses.

Mr. Wilson mentioned the cruel treatment accorded horses shipped to the Argentine, as noted by the English society, the International League against export of horses for butchery. The matter of trotting races at the fall fairs was brought up. One member asserted that doping and whipping of race horses was all too common, and said that severe whipping was administered at Millbrook track last year.

Inspector Blane of Kitchener reported that the Grand Circuit is doing its utmost to stamp out objectionable practises on the tracks.

With regard to the cruelties practised in de-horning cattle, the speaker urged the education of farmers in the use of caustic potash when the animal is very young.

A woman delegate advocated the slitting of the calves skin and the removal of the horn kernel, as a better method. Dr. Johnston regarded the use of potash as better than the removal of the kernel or the clipping or sawing of the bone.

Speaking of the use of the steel trap in procuring furs, Mr. Wilson quoted one trapper who said that, in trapping muskrats, the legs of one out of every five of the animals was left in the trap. He advocated the use of a newer type which merely causes the limb to swell, and also asked that women join the group which refuses to buy furs caught in cruel forms of steel traps.

Mr. Wilson deplored the decrease in the number of humane societies in recent years and said that the majority of branches formed within the past two or three years had ceased to function. He asked for ten more societies before March 1 next.

Judge Huycke, present at the morning session, expressed his interest in the aims and objects of the organization and said the work was carried on very well in this locality. He also said that the majority of Peterborough's people were thoroughly in sympathy with the work.

"A humane man is more than a human man—he is a very good human man and the efforts you make in this direction make you better in every sense of the word."

The judge referred to the originator of humane societies, W. Frances of Assisi as the greatest worker in this direction that the world had ever known.

CHURCH UNION

Church and moved to that effect.

Ill-Will Should End.

Three or four delegates attempted to take the floor. Rev. James MacKay of London, Ont., suggested its spirit of ill-will between the Presbyterian Church and the United Church should end. "If ever there is to be peace between us there must be a palm held out by those who were wounded," he said.

When Dr. MacKay referred to a spirit of retaliation, Mr. Taylor rose to a point of order and the words were withdrawn.

Then Donald M. Rowat of Montreal moved an amendment.

It was that the Assembly "pray for the day when fraternal relations may be taken up with the United Church, but we feel it will not come until the United Church recognizes the fact that we de facto, if not in the subtlety of the law, are the Presbyterian Church in Canada."

Without deciding whether to receive fraternal greetings from the United Church, the Assembly then received a representative of Mayor George Hayman, of London.

Dean N. L. Tucker, representative of the Anglican Church, then brought greetings from Bishop Seager of Huron. The Dean predicted the day would come when all Protestant Churches would be united under one ministry.

No Legal Basis

The Assembly then returned to the question of receiving greetings from the United Church. Three or four delegates attempted to gain the floor and finally it was proposed to establish a committee of seven to study the whole question, including the protest from the United Church. When this protest was read, it was found to be from Rev. T. A. Moore, secretary of the General Council of the United Church. It reiterated the claim, made each year since Church Union, that the Presbyterian Church in Canada had no legal basis. It lost its identity, the letter said, when the Church Union Bill passed Parliament and the United Church protested against the use of the term "Presbyterian Church in Canada."

At this point it was announced that Dr. Endicott, who had been waiting outside in an ante-room had withdrawn.

The motion to establish a committee of seven to study the whole legal question, including relations between the two churches, then passed the Assembly.

Rev. S. Banks Nelson made another attempt to gain a hearing for Dr. Endicott. He moved the United Church official be received, without prejudicing the legal claims of the Presbyterian Church. It was ruled out of order by the Moderator, and the Assembly turned to other business.

MRS. J. M. PERCIVAL IS GUEST SPEAKER

Mount Pleasant and Cavan Institutes Guests at Bethany Meeting.

BETHANY, June 2 (Examiner Correspondence). — The members of Bethany Branch entertained the summer speaker, Mrs. J. M. Percival, of Addison, Ontario, of the Women's Institute, when Mount Pleasant and Cavan branches were guests at a meeting held in the Town Hall.

Mrs. A. Thorndyke presided at the piano and the president introduced Mr. Putnam, superintendent of Women's Institutes who gave a short talk as he and Mrs. Putnam were due at a banquet in Toronto later in the afternoon. Mr. Putnam spoke of the work the Women's Institutes did at the time of the war and spoke of the circulars he sent out, asking for help for the Red Cross, the Women's Institutes rising to the occasion and helped out in time of need. He spoke of having received a letter from the North Country expressing thanks for gifts of food and clothing received; also that the speakers sent out are demonstrators of special work. Mr. Putnam, who is this year completing 28 years as superintendent, stressed the fact that the ranks of the Women's Institutes should be open to everyone and always non-partisan.

Mrs. Percival.

The speaker then asked Mrs Percival to take charge of the meeting, and she spoke of the Essentials of the Women's Institute — kindness toward each other and each doing her part. It is easy to drop out, but very hard to come back. "Try to work together, forget little differences, and stand together and do your very best." The speaker showed samples of work to engage in making at small cost—mats of wool, quilts, socks legs for men, etc.

A short program was given as intermission period. The school children sang a couple of songs, and Teddy Mairs, aged six, gave two mouth organ selections which were much appreciated.

Mrs. Percival then spoke on preserving fruit and vegetables to last the year around, having in her own cellar 400 gems, also a new way of drying corn, and gave several recipes. The members were told how to whiten meal bags that can be used later for many other articles in the home and hints for success in handling incubators were given.

Mrs. Percival demonstrated ways of making articles from crepe paper and at the close of her remarks, thanked the audience for their good attention.

Reports were read from different branches, and a duet by Miss Richardson and Mrs. C. Rowan, entitled "Oh, Tell Us Merry Birds," accompanied by Mrs. A. Thorndyke, was much enjoyed.

At the supper hour Jack Clark played two lovely piano solos, and Mrs. S. Staples, secretary of the Cavan Branch, read a good report from her society of the work accomplished, stressing the motto, "For Home and Country," for which the Women's Institute stands.

Mrs. Garnet Shields, of Mount Pleasant, moved a vote of thanks to the Bethany Branch for the very pleasant and profitable afternoon spent in Bethany, at the close of the meeting and supper which was served by the Bethany ladies. Several visiting Cavan ladies assisted in serving the large number who sat down to supper.

Mrs. H. H. Ryley tendered a vote of thanks to all who had so kindly contributed to the program.

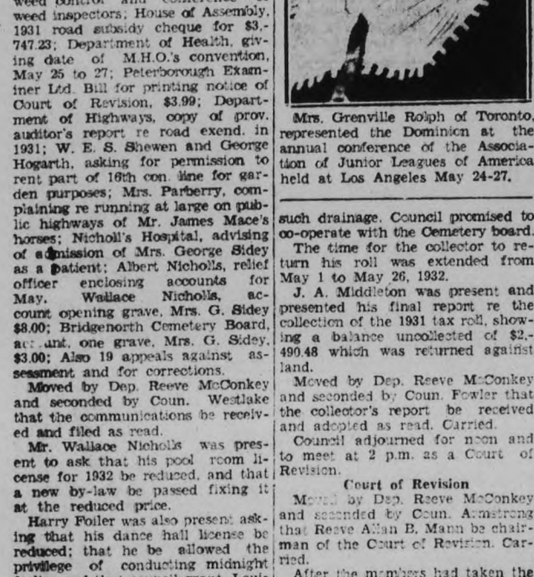
KEEP YOUR CHILDREN HEALTHY WITH ENO



To be really happy and healthy, children must never be even slightly constipated. The best and safest way to prevent this dangerous condition is to give them a dash of ENO'S "Fruit Salt" in a glass of water regularly. This simple precaution will ensure that all poisonous waste is dismissed from their systems, gently, naturally and thoroughly.

ENO contains nothing harsh or drastic—that is why it is so good for children. And how they welcome the morning glass of ENO once they have learned what a pleasant bubbly drink it is. Always have a bottle of ENO'S "Fruit Salt" in the house.

Mrs. Harry Tinney and daughter, Mary, spent the week-end in Toronto.

Mrs. Albert Tinney and Miss Annie Tinney were visitors to Oshawa on Wednesday.

The week-end excursion to Toronto on Saturday was well patronized at Cavan Station; the station platform was well-filled, presenting the appearance which it had in days gone by, when an excursion was advertised to the C.N.E.

If the old-time market rates were put on again on Saturday to Peterborough and accommodation provided on the early train for market, they would doubtless be well patronized also, and Peterborough would benefit very materially.

This year, gasoline is high, car repairs are costly, and the price paid for produce so very low, that many farmers who were in the habit of attending Peterborough market have decided that it does not pay, and are selling eggs and butter at the country stores and of course buying more supplies there.

BAPTIST YOUNG PEOPLE MEET IN MURRAY STREET CHURCH; 130TH MEETING OF DISTRICT

Port Hope Union Captures Banner for Largest Attendance.

DR. BINGHAM SPEAKS.

Picton Union Leads With Highest Average Attendance.

Nearly four hundred young people, with their leaders representing the Baptist Young People's Unions of Peterborough District, gathered last night in Murray Street Baptist church for the opening session of the 130th annual meeting of the Baptist association.

At 7.30 the opening devotions began with a service of song, enthusiastically led by Rev. L. M. Smith of Campbellford with Miss Enid Batley accompanying at the piano.

The reading of a Psalm of praise was followed by the prayer hymn, "Jesus Thou Joy of Loving Hearts" and this concluded the service of praise. Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, M.A., B.D. Moderator for Peterborough Association, and pastor of the convention church greeted the visiting delegates with warm words of welcome and on behalf of Murray Street B.Y.P.U. Mr. Ward tendered a cordial welcome to the young people. In response, Mr. Willard Meldrum of Port Hope congratulated the Murray Street Young People upon the success of their Union and paid tribute to the work of their pastor.

The President Miss Margaret Mann of Gilmour Memorial church was introduced by the Moderator and presided during the remainder of the program, supported by the secretary, Miss Dorothy Ough of Port Hope. An interesting business session was prefaced by the reading of last year's convention doings.

An unusually large representation of organizations was present and responded to the "roll call" with unions from the following centers: Campbellford, Bewdley, Cobourg, Eddystone, Gilmour Memorial, Lakefield, Norwood, Murray Street, Park Street, Picton, Port Hope, Selwyn, Sidney and Warsaw.

Banners Presented

A happy feature in connection with this was the presentation of banners for the highest average attendance and for the largest number at the rally. Picton union led with the highest average attendance of 88 and were presented with their banner by the Rev. T. E. Meldrum of Port Hope.

To Port Hope Union went the banner for the largest representation, which included over forty of their junior union, making a total of 72 present. With a few words of hearty congratulation, Rev. R. D. Wright presented the banner.

During the reception of the offering, the convention was again led in singing by Rev. Mr. Smith.

"Young Christians in a Changing World," was the challenging subject of the inspirational address, delivered by the Rev. Dr. H. H. Bingham, of Walmer Road Baptist Church, Toronto.

In his introduction, Dr. Bingham expressed his joy at being present and catching the enthusiastic spirit of this fine rally. "History," said Dr. Bingham, "is like a game of chess, with each generation taking up its play where the one before left off. To-day it seems as if we had reached the crisis of this great game, which we must play in this chaotic world.

"We would do well to remember that Christianity is both religious and moral in nature.

"Our Lord explained this to His young disciples when He said, 'Love the Lord, thy God,' the religious aspect, and He went on to give the moral side when He said, 'Love thy neighbor as thyself.'

"Can the young people of to-day meet the challenge of this changing world of ours, when the present generation is sorely afflicted with three maladies?"

Total Forgetfulness

Dr. Bingham termed the first malady as that of "total forgetfulness"; the second, "total recalling" and the third "total futurity," and he declared that young Christians should seek to escape all three.

Total forgetfulness has no concern for the past. Is that to be the attitude of youth? Are we to reconstruct life on totally new lines? We do have such revolutionary teachings giving us new standards and customs, but the young Christian must be willing to learn from the past and so avoid its mistakes and follies.

There are some who succumb to the malady of "total recall." They become absorbed with the past and are so shackled to old customs and ways that they lose their spirit of adventure.

They are constantly and unsuccessfully trying to pour new wine into old bottles. Christ warned us that this could not be done, so let us not try to pour the new wine of Christianity into the old bottles of organization.

On the other hand, some live entirely in the future. They look forward to citizenship in heaven and have no contacts with earth, either civic or political. This is not our Lord's teaching, for He said, "Ye are the salt of the earth." Salt has no value unless it is in direct contact with what needs its conserving power. So are we to make human contacts and by our influence and lives seek to purify others.

Reveal A Righteousness

The Young Christian must reveal a righteousness that will cause the love of God to outdo legalism. If our righteousness is just a sort of externality while the heart is still stained with sin, then it is an abomination.

Again, young Christians must reveal a righteousenss in which expediency will be superseded by principle. Expediency stands for success at any cost, while principle typifies faith and honor at any cost.

Jesus never used the word "success," but He did say "Be thou faithful." Therefore, let principle be the dominating note in your lives so that religion may become associated with business and work. By so doing, you may never gain worldly wealth, but yours will be a richness of spirit and character which no one can take away.

Lastly, the young Christian must reveal a righteousness which has a reverence for personality; above the rights of property. In the past, property came first, but the church has awakened to new responsibility in this regard.

Young people must think and read to get a new vision of world conditions, so they may lift the heart of the world a little nearer to God.

In closing, the reverend speaker made a ringing appeal that young people should seek the kind of exceeding love that will outdo legalism, that will put principle before expediency, and personality before property. Earnest prayer concluded this soul-stirring challenge, which was heartily endorsed in a few words by Rev. Mr. Sutcliffe, and the Rev. Dr. Bingham pronounced the Benediction.

The coming sessions of the convention were outlined by the pastor. The service this morning to open at ten o'clock and deal with reports and appointments of committees.

54 CANDIDATES ENTER CONTEST

Only One Acclamation is Assured in Newfoundland Election.

ELECTION ON JUNE 11.

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland, June 2 (C.P.) — Fifty-four candidatets were in the political arena to-day, nominated for election on June 11, when the people of Newfoundland will go to the polls to choose a new Legislative Assembly.

Only 27 of them can be successful. The Assembly was reduced to that number of seats by an act passed at the last session, the number of districts was reduced to 24, three of which return two members each. There were 40 members in the last Assembly, which Prime Minister Sir Richard Squires entered with a majority of 20 in 1928.

Sir Richard's majority was whittled to 8 at the last session of the Assembly, but he is still in the field, running in Trinity South and leading the Government forces. His wife, Lady Helena Squires, is running in Twillingate.

Nominations filed yesterday showed that F. C. Alderdice, leading the United Newfoundland party, had candidates in 26 of 27 constituencies. Hon. H. M. Mosdell, who resigned from the Squires Government before prorogation of the House, is unopposed as an Independent in Fortune Bay.

Two former Squires' supporters are ranked under the Opposition banner. They are P. J. Lewis, a former Cabinet Minister, in Placentia St. Mary's, and Mackey Brown, in Grand Falls.

MAY NOT QUESTION CHIEF GIMBLETT

Report of Cooper Fight May Be Ignored.

All the committees of the City Council will meet to-night, beginning at 7.30 o'clock, to wind up the month's business for the regular meeting of the Council on Monday night.

Whether or not the Fire, Water and Light Committee will make any reference to the reported bout between Albert Cooper and Fire Chief Gimblett is a possible development at present in doubt.

Alderman McNabb, chairman of the committee, intimated to The Examiner that he did not feel obliged to start an enquiry on the strength of a newspaper item. If Mr. Cooper had any grievance against the Chief or the Department there was nothing to prevent him from presenting his complaint to the committee.

"It is whatever the committee decides," Ald. McNabb said, "but speaking for myself I don't think it is part of our duty to go snooping around into every report we hear. There is a regular way of receiving complaints and dealing with them, and that is what I prefer to follow. If Mr. Cooper has nothing to say to the committee he simply won't come before us."

Ald. Phelan said he wasn't inclined to do anything about the fistic affair.

"It seems too they are both satisfied with the no-decision whatever it should have been," Ald. Phelan remarked, "and if they want to leave it at that I'm satisfied."

CHARGED WITH MANSLAUGHTER

CALGARY, June 2. (CP). Alwyn A. Cook was arrested to-day charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Mrs. Manley J. Edwards, fatally injured when struck by an automobile last night. Cook is alleged to be the driver of the car which struck Mrs. Edwards, wife of a well-known Calgary barrister.

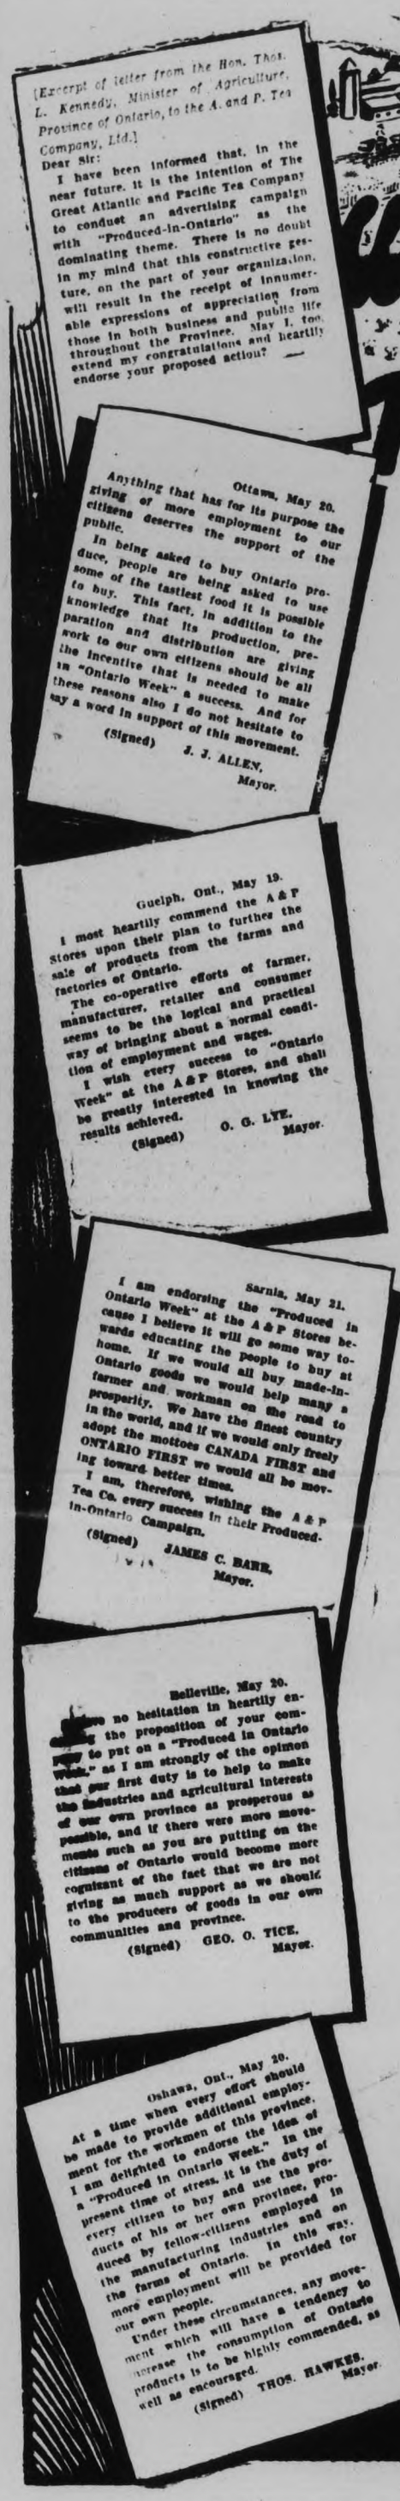
Do you realize what Ontario Week at A&P means to You?



(Excerpt of letter from the Hon. Thos. L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture, Province of Ontario, to the A. and P. Tea Company, Ltd.)

Dear Sir:

I have been informed that, in the near future, it is the intention of The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company to conduct an advertising campaign with "Produced-in-Ontario" as the dominating theme. There is no doubt in my mind that this constructive gesture, on the part of your organization, will result in the receipt of innumerable expressions of appreciation from those in both business and public life throughout the Province. May I, too, extend my congratulations and heartily endorse your proposed action?

Ottawa, May 20.

Anything that has for its purpose the giving of more employment to our citizens deserves the support of the public.

In being asked to buy Ontario produce, people are being asked to use some of the tastiest food it is possible to buy. This fact, in addition to the knowledge that its production, preparation and distribution are giving work to our own citizens should be all the incentive that is needed to make an "Ontario Week" a success. And for these reasons also I do not hesitate to say a word in support of this movement.

(Signed) J. J. ALLEN, Mayor.

Guelph, Ont., May 19.

I most heartily commend the A & P Stores upon their plan to furthes the sale of products from the farms and factories of Ontario.

The co-operative efforts of farmer, manufacturer, retailer and consumer seems to be the logical and practical way of bringing about a normal condition of employment and wages.

I wish every success to "Ontario Week" at the A & P Stores, and shall be greatly interested in knowing the results achieved.

(Signed) O. G. LYE, Mayor.

Sarnia, May 21.

I am endorsing the "Produced in Ontario Week" at the A & P Stores because I believe it will go some way towards educating the people to buy at home. If we would all buy made-in-Ontario goods we would help many a farmer and workman on the road to prosperity. We have the finest country in the world, and if we would only freely adopt the mottoes CANADA FIRST and ONTARIO FIRST we would all be moving toward better times.

I am, therefore, wishing the A & P Tea Co. every success in their Produced-in-Ontario Campaign.

(Signed) JAMES C. BARR, Mayor.

Belleville, May 20.

[illegible] no hesitation in heartily endorsing the proposition of your company to put on a "Produced in Ontario Week," as I am strongly of the opinion that our first duty is to help to make the industries and agricultural interests of our own province as prosperous as possible, and if there were more movements such as you are putting on the citizens of Ontario would become more cognizant of the fact that we are not giving as much support as we should to the producers of goods in our own communities and province.

(Signed) GEO. O. TICE, Mayor.

Oshawa, Ont., May 20.

At a time when every effort should be made to provide additional employment for the workmen of this province, I am delighted to endorse the idea of a "Produced in Ontario Week." In the present time of stress, it is the duty of every citizen to buy and use the products of his or her own province, produced by fellow-citizens employed in the manufacturing industries and on the farms of Ontario. In this way, more employment will be provided for our own people.

Under these circumstances, any movement which will have a tendency to increase the consumption of Ontario products is to be highly commended, as well as encouraged.

(Signed) THOS. HAWKES, Mayor.

It means low prices on quality foodstuffs, of course! Your dollar will go farther. But more than this. It means that you can do your share in providing MORE WORK for your fellow-citizens. And we have something like 125,000 unemployed in this Province!

Stocks representing carload after carload have been poured into our 174 Ontario "A. & P." Stores. "Ontario Week" means for you an opportunity to share in this "make-more-work" plan, it means greatly enlarged stocks of fresh goods. Wide choice. High quality. Wonderful values!

And every dollar spent in buying "Produced-in-Ontario" goods plays its part in keeping a factory worker at his place and giving the farmer cash for his crops.

NEWSPAPER THAT BRING RESULTS HAS CONCENTRATED CIRCULATION

National Advertiser No Longer Wants the Far Away Circulation.

DELIVERY BY TRUCK

TORONTO, June 2.—(By the Canadian Press).—The newspaper with the concentrated circulation is the one that brings results to the advertiser, declared John M. Schmid, Downer's Grove, Ill., before the International Circulation Managers' Association convention here yesterday.

One thing is certain from my knowledge of circulation work, he said, "is that the far-flung distribution is being gradually abandoned as close-in circulation is being gotten in its case. The publisher wants more concentrated circulation, so does the advertiser. It pays them both.

"The circulation manager who continues to hold a circulation hundreds of miles beyond the sphere of production for the advertiser is on the wrong track.

"The national advertiser no longer wants the far away circulation, much of which is duplicated by other newspapers published within the field. It is a waste for which he now refuses to pay," declared Mr. Schmidt.

E. P. Schwarz, Des Moines, Ia., thinks the United States political arena is as exciting a serial story as newspapers can feature, he said, and his own paper is making extraordinary arrangements to cover approaching political conventions.

J. R. Blaber, Toronto, outlined the benefits of motor trucks with regard to newspaper delivery. When the two Toronto morning papers found railway charges for the flying post a special newspaper train too high, they changed to motor trucks with excellent results.

Zion League Visits At Mount Pleasant

(Examiner Correspondent.)

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, June 2.—Zion League members paid a most enjoyable visit to the Mount Pleasant league on the Rawdon Circuit on Friday evening. Twice previously this event had to be postponed on account of illness and weather conditions. The weatherman did his best to wash out the affair this time, but in spite of bad roads a fair representation of Zion folk were on hand when President Will Jeffs of the Mount Pleasant group, called the meeting to order.

After a hymn and prayer by Rev. F. G. Joblin, Roy Fry, president of Zion League took charge of the program as follows: Music by orchestra, Evelyn Barnum, piano; Freda Petherick, Gladys Simpson, guitars, Grant Kerr, Art Petherick, violins; topic, "Friendship," by Don Barnum, selections by the Zion darky "Levinsky at the Wedding," vocal trio, Fred Barnum, Evelyn Barnum, Bessie Meiklejohn; music by orchestra; solo, "The Bird with the Broken Wing," Albert Gifford, Hawaiian orchestra selection, Misses Gladys Simpson, Cora Petherick, Gladys Peteherick and Mr. Frank Osborne; reading, "Mrs. E. McKeown entertains the Mount Pleasant Ladies' Aid," Mrs. L. Anderson, vocal duet, Misses Evelyn and Helen Barnum. These numbers were heartily encored by the Mount Pleasant group, after which George Brunton took charge of a session of stunts and contests, which provided fun for the contestants and no little amusement for the audience. After a most delightful lunch served by the hosts, E. L. Anderson and Rev. F. G. MacTavish voiced the appreciation of the Zion group, many of whom had on previous occasions partaken of Mount Pleasant hospitality as members of the Dramatic Club presentations in that locality.

A softball game between the two groups was scheduled for 7 o'clock but on account of the rain was postponed to a later occasion.

LARGER ISSUES MAY APPEAL TO UNITED STATES

Opinion Grows That Americans Will Attend Lausanne Conference.

WORLD REMEDIES.

Hoped That a Second Conference at London Not Be Necessary.

LONDON, June 2 (C.P.).—There was evidence to-day official circles were inclined to encourage the possibility that the United States Government would participate in the second half of the Lausanne Debts and Economic Conference this month instead of at a separate meeting in London to consider remedies for the world's economic ills.

Responsible persons pointed out that there is a sharp line of demarcation between the reparations phase of the Lausanne program and that section of it which deals with world economic conditions.

Since the ranking statesmen of the countries chiefly concerned will be gathered at Lausanne, and since the Imperial Conference in Ottawa and other international meetings pending are likely to make another London Conference inconvenient, there is a strong hope here in London that the United States Government will see fit to announce its participation at Lausanne.

There was a report to-day that the United States would be willing to do this, but neither the Foreign Office nor the United States Embassy had any confirmation of the report and in other authoritative quarters it was strongly doubted.

The consensus was that the next step was up to United States perhaps in the form of an answer to remarks in Parliament yesterday by Sir John Simon, Secretary of Foreign Affairs, who said that the possibility of American participation had not yet been ruled out.

SIGNS POINTED TO MAN'S DOOM

Explains Naaman Smith, Found Guilty of His Uncle's Murder.

MIND OF CHILD.

LUNENBURG, N.S., Jnue 2 (C.P.). — Naaman Smith, found guilty of murder in connection with the shooting of his uncle, Lem Smith of Nineveh, will be sentenced on Monday by Mr. Justice R. H. Graham in Supreme Court.

To-day the prisoner was in Lunenburg County Jail hopeful that his life would be spared, unshaken in his strange beliefs.

He killed Lem Smith "because the signs were checked against him." His uncle's lifeless body, a bullet in the head, was found last December 14 on a Nineveh woodlot. Nearby was a raincoat in which a note, signed by Naaman Smith, threatened the death of four other residents of the district.

In finding him guilty yesterday, the jury made a recommendation for mercy on his behalf, because of mental deficiency.

During the two-day trial, at which was unfolded the story of the murder and the 36-hour man hunt in the Nineveh Hills before Naaman Smith was captured, four doctors testified that he had the mind of a child.

"Poor" Millionaire Gives 97,411 Meals

CHICAGO, June 2 (C.P.). — A wealthy Chicago resident who denies himself the luxuries of life but who has furnished money for 97,411 meals for hundreds of poor Chicago school children, protested to-day that his philanthropy was "nothing."

William E. Turner, 78-year-old bachelor who wears inexpensive old-fashioned clothes, rides in a 1924 model automobile, and takes a day coach when he goes to his winter home in Foley, Ala., because he "can't afford" a Pullman, is the philanthropist.

"I'm not doing anything," he said. "I just told C. Edgar Johnson I would furnish the money. He's really handling the whole thing."

Johnson, who is assistant cashier of the First Union Trust and Savings Bank, revealed that Mr. Turner had been feeding hundreds of pupils in eight north side elementary schools since last winter, and that he was "ready to keep it up as long as necessary."

PRINCE OF WALES OPENS LARGE HALL FOR HIKERS

Hiking Movement in England is Given Royal Approval.

LONDON, June 2, (CP) — The hiking movement received royal approval to-day when the Prince of Wales visited Derbyshire to open a hostel for hikers of both sexes at Derwent Hall, near Ashopton, residence for two centuries of the Dukes of Norfolk.

Work of preparing this fine old house on the invigorating Derbyshire moors was accomplished largely by the hikers themselves who acted as voluntary laborers, cleaners and whitewashers.

CRUEL TREATMENT OF HORSES AT EXHIBITIONS IS DEPLORED BY HUMANE SOCIETY CONVENTION

Delegates Report Year of Activity in Local Societies.

FEEBLE-MINDED VICTIMS

Unlawful to Shoot Dog Even if Sign is Posted.

When they want a horse to look good at a show, they put it through a form of torture called breaking down and setting up its tail.

The tail is shoved forward to the head and a rack is placed beneath. The vertebrae are cut and broken, then a bustle is placed beneath and the tail is lashed around this mechanism. Sometimes the bustle is left on for seventeen to twenty days and often the whole operation is gone through once again. The tail of the horse is paralyzed and will never again be of any use, so the bustle must be worn constantly. The animal that has been termed the "friend of man" has no recourse.

J. M. Wilson, manager for the Ontario Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, asking the meeting to sponsor a resolution to be sent to the Canadian National Exhibition and the Royal Winter Fair, deploring this "damnable" practice.

Mr. Wilson described this cruel mode of procedure for the delegates to the twelfth annual meeting of the society, at yesterday afternoon's session in the Ladies' Parlour of the Empress Hotel.

The afternoon, devoted mainly to the presentation of reports from affiliated societies, saw some interesting discussion.

Mrs. J. S. Chandler, secretary of the local society, brought up the question of crooked horse dealing, where a man buys a horse at almost nothing and dopes it sufficiently to bring a larger price.

Mr. Wilson quoted a Toronto authority who asserted that every horse running on a certain Toronto race track is doped.

Dr. Thomas Johnston, local Humane Society inspector, referred to a recent case in Peterborough where a man bought such a horse and saw it drop dead on the road back to his home.

Feeble-Minded Victims

Inspector Emanuel Beam of Kitchener asserted that his method was to order the money refunded and to have the horse destroyed at once, if necessary. The inspector described persons who are victimized in a horse deal as usually being "soft, a little too honest and not too bright" and the meeting generally concurred in the opinion

U.S. Fliers Set Out To Find Canadians

BOSTON, June 2. (CP). Charlie Hubbard, former Harvard football captain, took off from the East Boston airport with two pilots at dawn to-day to begin an air search in the St. Anthony Bay section of Newfoundland for Arthur Sullivan, St. John's, Newfoundland flier and Dr. K. Karl Kuehnert, member of the Grenfell Mission who have been missing since Sunday.

Harold Crowley, Winthrop pilot, and Edward T. O'Toole, a pilot and also of Winthrop, accompanied Hubbard.

Crowley accompanied the former Harvard star last year in a flight to make a topographical survey of the Labrador coast.

The trio headed for Newfoundland in a monoplane owned by Dr. Alexander Forbes of Milton. The plane was equipped with floats and the flyers carried a complete stock of spare parts and tools should it become necessary to make repairs in Newfoundland. They planned to stop enroute for a supply of food.

The car was valued at $4,500, and Alex Nadon, also charged with arson, testified in court Plant had agreed to pay him $200 to burn it so the insurance money could be collected.

Woman's Body Found With Head Crushed

PORT ARTHUR, June 2 (C.P.). —With the head crushed, the body of Mrs. Kathleen Petznuik, 28, was found to-day near a refreshment booth she had been conducting in the north-end of the city. Police believe she was the victim during the night of would-be robbers, but their investigations have disclosed no definite information so far.

A new photo of Browne is shown above.

A USEFUL WIFE QUEEN VICTORIA WROTE OF MARY

Human Sidelights on Present King and Queen in Letters.

BIRTHDAY PLANS.

Trooping Colors By Guards Will Be Principal Public Celebration.

LONDON, June 2 (C.P. Cable).—His Majesty to-morrow celebrates his 67th birthday anniversary, and coincidentally the last volume of the letters of Queen Victoria were published to-day, with many human sidelights on the present King and his family.

A luncheon party will be held at Buckingham Palace to-morrow, and the honors' list to be issued in the morning will probably contain several new peerages, none of them, however, expected to be of wide political concern.

The principal public celebration in connection with the King's birthday will be the trooping of the colors before the Brigade of Guards on Saturday when His Majesty, attended by his sons and by the Duke of Connaught, will take the salute. Queen Mary will view the proceedings from a nearby window.

Queen Victoria's Letters.

Writing in 1897, four years before her death and four years after the marriage of George and Mary, then the Duke and Duchess of York, Queen Victoria wrote: "I took leave with much regret of Georgie and May. Every time I see them I love them more and respect them greatly. Thank God Georgie's got such an excellent and useful and good wife."

Of the present Prince of Wales, when he was two years of age, a letter of Victoria's remarked: "Dear little David is a most attractive little boy, so forward and clever. He always tries at luncheon time to pull me out of my chair, saying 'Get up, gangan,' and then to one of his Indian servants, 'Pull it,' which makes us laugh very much."

HOMEWARD BOUND.

YARMOUTH, N.S., June 2 (C.P.) —Driven to their dories by flames that destroyed the Boston fishing schooner Azores, 18 seamen were picked up yesterday by the Pubmico schooner Lucille M. and landed here.

The Azores became a mass of flames shortly after the generating plant exploded early yesterday morning, and Captain Foam Spinney and his men were able to get away with only the ship's register and their clothes.

The Lucille M. was about two miles away at the time, and the Boston fishermen reached her in six dories.

The Azores was homeward bound with 50,000 halibut in her holds when the fire broke out.

Engineer Stunned

Engineer Wilson Spinney of Argyle, N.S., son of the captain, who was charging the batteries, was stunned by the explosion and had to be hauled to safety. Twelve men taking a nap in the bunks at the time were awakened and rushed to the deck.

The Azores, owned by the United Fisheries of Boston, was the second of the United States fishing fleet to burn this year off Seal Island. The Louise Marshall was destroyed several weeks ago, her crew landing at Clark's Harbour.

YOUNG PEOPLE HOLD DEBATE AT CAVAN

Semi-final Contest Between St. James' and Cavan Society.

FRASERVILLE, June 2 (Examiner Correspondence). — The semi-final debate between St. James' United Church, Peterborough, and Cavan United Church Young People's Societies was held in Fraserville United Church on Tuesday evening. Miss B. Reesor, president of the Fraserville Y.P.S., acted as chair lady. There was a brief devotional service, which included prayer by Rev. J. E. Whithame of Cavan. The large delegation of Young People from St. James', Cavan, and all other guests were warmly welcomed by Miss Reesor, on behalf of Fraserville Y.P.S. Mrs. B. Seabrook in her usual good manner rendered a solo.

The main feature of the evening was an interesting debate: "Resolved, That more crime is caused, due to wealth than to poverty." St. James' Young People were represented by Miss Jean Hammond and Mr. Ernest Davis, who upheld the affirmative side of the debate, while Mr. Ralph Staples and Mr. Archie Matchett of Cavan Y.P.S. presented arguments on the negative side.

The judges, Messrs Reg. Sutton of Cavan, Edgar Clark of Norwood, and H. B. Cowan of Peterborough, gave their decision in favor of the negative side. Mr. Cleveland Robb acted as timekeeper. Each speaker was allowed ten minutes to present his and her points, and leader of the affirmative an additional three minutes for refuting.

Earl Hanbidge gave a monologue which was enjoyed by all, after which Miss Marjorie Swayne rendered a piano solo. The Fraserville Young People then served a dainty lunch in the Orange Hall, which brought an enjoyable evening to a close.

SEABURY SEEKS TO OUST MAYOR

Will Lay Removal Charges Against Mayor Walker of New York.

BROTHER INVEIGLED.

NEW YORK, June 2 (CP) — Speedy preparation of removal charges against Mayor James J. Walker was in prospect to-day.

Samuel Seabury's investigation of the Mayor's office, in which 14 months of toilsome enquiry reached a climax in a spectacular verbal duel between Seabury and the Mayor, wound up late yesterday. Newspapers predicted ouster charges would be laid before Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt soon, possibly next week.

Because Gov. Roosevelt is a candidate for the United States Democratic Presidential nomination and Mayor Walker is an adherent of Tammany Hall the possible effects of the Walker case on the political picture have come more and more to the fore.

Deposits $431,258

Very different from the flaming battle between the Mayor and Seabury was the set-to yesterday between the investigators and Dr. William H. Walker, the mayor's brother. A stout man who sat uncomfortably in the witness chair and bit his eye-glasses until they broke in two, Dr. Walker heard Seabury produce evidence to show his bank deposits in the last four years were $431,258.

To a question suggesting possible graft, he entered a denial. He acknowledged he split money with a group of doctors who received large fees from the city for treating injured employees, but denied splitting city fees, except with one doctor.

Seabury's charge that Mayor Walker had, under the city charter, forfeited his right to office by holding bonds of a corporation doing business with the city brought a rejoiner of "unfairness" from Mayor Walker, who is in Detroit. He said he didn't know the Reliance Bronze and Steel Company had a $43,000 contract for new traffic standards on Fifth Avenue.

UNDERMINING RIGHTS.

PIETERMARITZBURG, South Africa, June 2.—(C.P.)—One of the most important movements since the Union of South Africa was formed reached a new stage to-day with the opening of a congress formed by delegates favoring the secession of Natal from the Union.

The congress is a sequel to a resolution adopted at a crowded meeting at the town hall of Durban, Natal, some weeks ago, when protest was made against policies of the Union Government which were described as "undermining the rights of citizens as British subjects" and tending to the "economic ruin" of Natal.

GRADUATION EXERCISES ARE HELD FOR 9 NURSES OF ST. JOSEPH'S

Diplomas and Medals Are Presented By Monsignor McColl.

PRIZES AWARDED.

In the merging sentiments of valedictory and commencement, the end of preparation and the beginning of work in the world, the graduating class of St. Joseph's Hospital received their diplomas and special awards, glowing congratulations and good wishes for their future success, before a large assembly of their friends in the auditorium of the Knights of Columbus Club last night.

A profusion of the season's flowers, lilacs, roses, ferns and lillies of the valley made a beautiful setting for the exercises with which the graduates of 1932 bade farewell to their Alma Mater and to the staff of Sisters and Doctors who have assisted them in their long training.

Dr. W. S. Fitzpatrick, chairman of the Medical Staff, presided, and the major features of the program was an address by Dr. F. C. Neal, the presentation of diplomas and medals by Right Rev. Monsignor McColl of Lindsay, the valedictory of Miss Florence Stewart, representing the graduates, the reply by Dr. E. H. Wood, the presentation of special awards by Dr. J. C. Smith of Lakefield. A short address of congratulation by Mayor Denne and Dr. F. P. McNulty, and a musical program including a piano solo by Miss Josephine Lynch, vocal solos by Mrs. Leo Picard, a reading by Miss Ross, vocal solos by Dr. Smith and violin solos by Joseph Nolan. The accompanists were Miss Agnes Grant and Miss Veronica Scollard.

This year's commencement exercises were an outstanding success with an attendance that so exceeded the capacity of the hall that probably several hundred persons were unable to gain admission. Many of the doctors of the city were present, members of the Catholic clergy of the city and district, also the Mother Superior of the Hospital accompanied by some of the Sisters and undergraduate nurses. It was a happy, auspicious event for the graduates of this year, as they found themselves at the very parting of the ways in the presence of so many friends.

The Class of 1932.

The members of the graduating class were Miss Mary Sullivan of Kirkfield; Miss Mary Rita McMurray of Peterborough; Miss Eugenie St. Amand of Waubashene; Miss Kathleen Dorothy Walsh of Keene; Miss Florence Stewart of Vancouver, B.C.; Miss Mary Anna Lynch, Miss Marie Adele Turcotte and Miss Marcella McMurray of Peterborough; and Miss Gertrude Garvey of Downeyville.

Prize Winners

The special awards won by the nurses were presented by Dr. J. C. Smith of Lakefield as follows:

Proficiency medal given by St. Joseph's hospital was presented to Miss Stewart; and the second proficiency prize to Miss Walsh.

Practical work medal, given by Dr. J. C. Smith, was won by Miss Garvey.

Second practical work prize was won by Miss Turcotte.

First bandaging prize, given by the medical staff, was won by Miss Rita McMurray, and the second prize by Miss St. Amand.

Loyalty prize given by the Alumnae was awarded to Miss Lynch.

Obstetrical nursing prize was awarded to Miss Marcella McMurray.

The prize for charting and bedside observation, given by Dr. F. C. O'Reilly, was won by Miss Sullivan.

Dr. Neal's Advice.

In offering his congratulations to the graduates, Dr. F. C. Neal made a brief survey of trends and problems facing the medical profession and its handmaiden the nursing profession. He laid special stress upon the essential of education, and the increasing importance of the training of the mind. Education, he said, is not simply the filling of the mind with facts, but it comprehends the teaching of the individual in keener observation, in the preservation of health and in the discipline of the body.

Dr. Neal stated that the financial investment in hospitals, sanitariums and asylums in 1930 amounted to more than $250,000,000 and the cost of medical treatment of all kinds was $311,000,000. Such figures demonstrated the need, of serious attention to the question of nursing, and it might be proposed that special courses be established in the secondary schools for those who intended to take up nursing. In that connection it would seem important that the government should provide means for such work to be taken up. These and similar questions should be considered by the nurses' association for the reason that they were in direct contact with the changing conditions.

Leisure for continued study, for the opportunities of wide culture, for the reading of newspapers and periodicals to keep in touch with the movements of the times, were suggestions Dr. Neal presented. He also pointed out that even in prosperous periods it had been found that forty percent of the qualified nurses were not engaged. Because of the fact that many persons had not the means to pay for medical and nursing attention there had been some movement toward the socializing of nurses, giving them the status virtually of civil servants employed by the municipality or the state. Health insurance, particularly as adopted in Britain, was a development that affected nurses because of the financial arrangement for the adequate care of those who adopted the insurance system.

Dr. Neal concluded with a reminder to the young nurses to keep their ideals always before them "We cannot put medicine on a purely business basis. Our first object as doctors and nurses is to serve the patient, later to seek remuneration, and if that remuneration is not obtained we have the great satisfaction of knowing that we have done a good deed."

Monsignor McColl.

In presenting the diplomas to the graduates, Rev. Monsignor McColl of Lindsay extended his congratulations to them and also expressed his agreement with Dr. Neal's views.

"By service we mean the same as Christian charity. I like that word better because it is possible to have service without charity. To serve for the love of God is Christian charity. It means that we love our neighbor, and we are going to help him in every way because we love God."

Monsignor McColl said that the nursing profession was a very old one, and from the time of the Apostles it was motivated by the spirit of Christian charity. That motive would carry the nurse over many difficulties and would gain for her a great deal of credit.

"The work of the graduates is just commencing. The training at St. Joseph's hospital has always been good. They have a splendid staff of doctors and a great variety of patients to deal with, so that the nurses get a wide and thorough experience."

Mayor Denne.

Mayor Denne heartily congratulated the graduating nurses, wished them every success in life, and told them to strive for the top, to make their goal high and to keep it always in mind. He thanked the Sisters for the invitation that had been extended to Mrs. Denne and himself to be present at the commencement.

The program closed with the National Anthem and was followed by a reception and dance.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

THE CLEANSING OF REPLICA PLANTS and ornamental shell or porcelain flowers now in favor for decoration is important, if these smart novelties are to retain the freshness they had when purchased.

• • • • • • •

Cut flowers and growing plants are not the only ones to "fade" if not correctly cared for. This artificial kind will also.

• • • • • • •

The kind of "flora" may range from the amethyst and coral plants with leaves of genuine jade at fabulous cost, or the simple but effective flowers of shell, or any composition with a hard surface.

• • • • • • •

No artificial plants of the cloth or paper variety are under consideration in the methods of cleaning to be described.

• • • • • • •

A small, stiff-bristled paint brush of the sort used by artists who work in oil paints will be very useful.

• • • • • • •

Lukewarm white soap suds to which a few drops of ammonia are added and stirred, will serve as cleansing solution for flowers of shell, crystal or semi-porcelain stones.

• • • • • • •

Silver or other metals are cleaned by a variety of commercial cleaning products, but a home-made one may be devised of whiting applied moist, rubbed with a soft cloth, and finished where contours are irregular, with an old toothbrush.

• • • • • • •

After the hard surface flowers are freed from dirt and grit, a soft cloth of cotton or linen, absolutely clean, may be used to restore their brilliance. A piece of chamois is good for this also.

• • • • • • •

The old feather duster, so long despised, has its uses in the daily removal of particles of dust from the cleaned flowers. The soft fronds will reach into regions inaccessible to the ordinary duster.

• • • • • • •

Although the theory that such dusters scatter rather than remove dust still holds true, there are times and places where such dust is only dislodged by scattering it to the surfaces from which it can be removed by the most approved means.

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

"USELESS RUFFING"

As some philosopher has pointed out, fate deals the cards, whether in life or Bridge, and you are only responsible for the way you play them. The obvious thing is often the correct thing. The master player of the game of life or Contract is the one who can differentiate between the times to follow the obvious course and the times to take a by-path. In today's hand we have an example of the difference between doing the obvious thing under unusual circumstances and of stepping off the beaten path as a means of reaching the desired end. This hand was played in a Duplicate Bridge tournament in Cleveland. The lesson is one of defense.

South, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.
East and West not vulnerable.

The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1♠	2◇	2♠(1)	3♡(2)
4♠(3)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—A shaded Raise. West's diamond bid has decreased the value of North's hand played on the attack. However, the hand contains a Singleton and adequate support for the spade bid. North does not wish to risk the possible loss of a game through timidity.
2—Justified in view of the unusual distribution and the scoring situation.
3—South, anxious to score the bonus for a game and hoping to find more substantial support than is actually the case in his partner's hand, overbids his hand 1 trick

West opened the King of diamonds and when the Dummy disclosed its length in that suit he shifted to the Ten of hearts. All South players, when they studied their combined holdings, elected to play the hand at a cross ruff.

If South can utilize Dummy's three trumps to trump his losing clubs and his own trumps to ruff Dummy's diamonds, then he can afford to concede his opponents 2 tricks at the end, as he will with his top cards have fulfilled his contract. The Ace of clubs was led and the second round, upon which West played the King, was trumped in the Dummy. The Queen of diamonds was led from the Dummy and East, in order to prevent South from discarding a heart, used his only trump. South, in pursuance of his plan, overruffed with the trey of spades and led another club for the second ruff in Dummy. Here the defense play varied, and the player who elected to follow the obvious course of discarding diamonds on the third and fourth leads of clubs from the closed hand failed to prevent the making of a game. With that line of play, the following situation resulted:

South is in the lead and West cannot prevent him from making both the Ace and Knave of trumps as he is forced to trump a heart and thus take the lead. At one table, however, West ruffed both the third and fourth rounds of clubs. Dummy over-trumped in each instance, but the game was saved, as South, in the lead, could do nothing except lead a heart upon which West discarded a diamond and East won and returned the suit. Thus, by apparently useless ruffing, West had found a way to defeat the contract. West made a trump and the King of diamonds, while East won 2 heart tricks.

Visited Room Where Former Premier was Assassinated

TOKYO, June 2.—(CP)—Charlie Chaplin ended a three weeks visit to Japan today and sailed for Seattle from Yokohama.

Before he left he paid a visit to Premier Admiral Saito at the latter's official residence and asked to see the room in which former Premier Suyoshi Inukai was fatally shot.

Looking at the room, Chaplin asked why the former premier did not escape since it would have been easy. The policeman who acted as his guide said to do so would have been a violation of the Japanese Samurai code which forbids flight from danger.

MUSIC FESTIVAL IS PRESENTED BY RURAL PUPILS

Program is Presented in the Normal School by Over 100 Students.

SIX SCHOOL SECTIONS.

Presented primarily with the object of stressing the importance of music as a part of the school curriculum, and incidentally providing an adequate demonstration of the advance which the schools are making in this direction, a Rural School Music Festival was successfully staged at the Normal School auditorium last evening under the direction of William Potter, school music instructor.

Pupils to the number of over one hundred, representative of six different school sections of Smith township took part in the event, which included choruses, recitations and vocal solos. The schools represented and the teachers in charge were as follows: No. 1, Miss H. Stewart; No. 2, Miss Lowes; No. 3, Miss Hart; No. 4, Miss Frank; No. 5, Mr. Ball; No. 11, Miss Troop.

Dr. J. A. Bannister, principal of the Normal School, occupied the chair and in his opening remarks he extended a welcome to the school children and their teachers and the parents and members of the general public who were present on the occasion.

He remarked upon the fact that the teaching of music in the public schools was a development of recent years, and in mentioning that such opportunity for a musical education had not existed in the day when he attended public school, the chairman stressed the importance of the matter. The child of to-day," he stated, "is specially privileged in having a special instructor who has prepared himself for this line of work."

Called upon by the chairman for a few remarks, Reeve Allan B. Mann of Smith township, congratulated Mr. Potter and also the children on the excellence of the program they had presented. He also expressed the opinion that it was a splendid thing that the children had an opportunity of studying music at school.

The program, a most comprehensive one, was carried through without a flaw. In the choruses, many of which were songs of a patriotic nature, the children displayed a marked degree of co-operation, remarkable in view of the fact that six different schools were represented and that at no previous time had they all sung together.

Mr. Potter, remarking upon the fact that the children were not yet singing part songs, stated that it was his ambition to get the children familiar with that type of singing, as the next stage in the program of instruction he had planned for them.

Demonstating the ability of his pupil's so far as theory of music is concerned, the instructor put a number of questions to the children and was awarded by a great showing of hands. Picking on pupils at random, Mr. Potter requested answers the nature of which gave proof that the scholars had been well grounded in their subject.

In the various recitations that were features of the program, the children, without exception, acquitted themselves admirably, displaying good memory and assurance.

The complete program was as follows: Chorus, "O Canada"; Welcome by the Schools (chorus) "Let Us Be Joyful"; Recitation, "Popping Corn," Ina Robinson, No. 5; Chorus, "Whitecaps"; Recitation, "Two Offerings," by Hazel Telford, No. 5; Chorus, "Cuckoo"; Reading, "Company is Coming," by Doris Harrison, No. 2; Chorus, "Moonlight Sail"; Solo, "The Land of the Maple," Lawrie Mahood, No. 11; Chorus, "Come to the Fair" and "The Maple Leaf"; Recitation, "Canadian Born," by Keith Mahood, No. 11; Chorus, "May God Preserve Thee"; Dialogue, "Organizinz a Society," by Pupils of No. 1 School; Chorus, "If You Are a Dunce"; Recitation, "A Kid on the Block," by Lenora Stewart; Chorus, "Gliding Through The Meadow"; Recitation, "The Farm of Today," by Helen Rowland, No. 1; Chorus, "Billy Boy"; Recitation, "Teddy Bear," by Dorothy Telford, No. 3; Chorus, "The Clacker."; The King.

CRUEL TREATMENT

that they were usually of the feeble-minded type.

Lt. Col. D. S. Tamblyn of Kingston told the meeting that veterinarians working under him were forbidden to have narcotics in their chests, as "there are too many of the Tom, Dick and Harry type who might easily gain access to it."

He also asserted that "there is too much dope lying loose around the country," and that followers of fairs and race tracks were prolific sources of drugs.

Dr. Johnston spoke of the "loose buying of strychnine".

An interesting report from St. Catharines disclosed the fact that signs posted up as warnings that dogs running loose will be shot at sight are of no value legally, as a case in that city proved recently, when a stiff fine was paid by a man who shot a neighbor's dog and cited the sign as his authority for the deed.

Dr. Johnston spoke of a by-law of North Monaghan by which a man may shoot a dog running loose on his property or on an adjoining lot and mentioned a case where a man who wished to shoot such a dog had told him he had the authority of the Provincial Officer to proceed.

"When that dog is shot, send us a wire and we will come and give you legal assistance", said Mr. Wilson, remarking that the society was about to take a firm stand against wholesale slaughter of dogs.

"With one exception, however," he went on, "and that is the case of a dog which is a sheep-killer. There is no saving such an animal. The law is very strict."

He said also that the law requires that a dog which has bitten anyone has to be kept under observation for fourteen days at least, and must not be killed at once. The medical authorities demand this, he asserted, in order to prescribe the proper treatment for the victim and find out if the animal is suffering from rabies.

Reports Presented

The presentation of reports from the affiliated societies showed a fairly prosperous year, "considering everything", as Mr. Wilson remarked at their conclusion.

The majority of the reports stressed the education of children in humane activities, which is emphasized by the organization.

Mrs. T. W. Rutherford, reporting for Galt society, mentioned three Life Memberships of $100 each received this year by her society.

Mrs. Charles E. Hewer of Guelph reported 2,000 children as members of the Junior Humane Society, including children from the Separate Schools, who have come in for the first time this year.

A portion of the funds from this society, as in other cases, was used for relief work among the unemployed.

A very interesting report, delivered in the rich brogue which belongs to one of the colorful figures at the meeting, Major G. A. Heather, president of the Kitchener branch, was listened to with much interest. The major aroused a few smiles at the spectacle he drew in a few sentences of a Mennonite minister near Kitchener who took a little red book issued by the Humane society of that city and offered to read portions of it to his congregations on three successive Sundays.

In Kitchener, they rejoice in the possession of a legal advocate of Humane Society cases, "who doesn't charge a cent if we are beaten and takes what the court allows if we win a case."

"And that, sir, is how we are getting on in Kitchener," concluded the speaker, whose report met with much applause.

Mrs. B. H. Clement reported that the London Society has charge of the city pound there and augments its finances by what it receives from the city, for this service.

Peterborough's Report

The report for the local organizations was read by the secretary, Mrs. J. S. Chandler, showing a membership totalling 111.

Many complaints are registered locally about motorists who strike animals and drive on without stopping. Mrs. Chandler also mentioned some trouble with rural mail-carriers' horses in the winter time.

No report was made of the reaction of the man who, after being fined for cruelty to his horses, was sent two copies of the society's publication, "Animal Life", after the fine was levied.

Miss Victoria Grant reported for Port Hope and mentioned the co-operation given by Provincial police in checking on transportation of animals by truck.

Mrs. R. A. Plato of St. Catharines had a very interesting report of the work in Lincoln County. The society has 650 Junior members and has all legal services donated free. It has a balance of $700.85 on hand, also a balance of $383.76 in the Shelter fund.

Mrs. Plato mentioned several outstanding cases that had come up before the courts through action of the Humane Society.

One was a fine of $50 and a month's imprisonment levied on a farmer who starved his cattle in winter, the case having the moral effect of setting an example to others who thought this was quite the normal thing to do with the animals.

Another case was that of a valuable collie dog who commenced acting strangely and was found to have an elastic band wound round its head in such a way as to be hidden by the thick hair and to have almost completely severed an ear and cut through into the jaw.

At yesterday's luncheon, a most entertaining address was given by Mrs. F. E. Robson of Toronto, who has just returned from a trip to Europe and other countries.

Mrs. Robson brought with her samples of dolls from many of the lands across the sea, which were the object of interested attention and comment.

She spoke chiefly of conditions in Russia, as noted in her recent visit there, when she travelled 5,000 miles from the Baltic to the Black Sea, with a young girl as guide and interpreter.

Russia, according to Mrs. Robson, encourages people of other lands to visit her, so that she many collect as much money as possible from other nations.

There is no real equality in that land, where people are paid according to what they do, and there are three sorts of trains to travel on. Children are trained to the age of fifteen years before being taught Communism and after that, lead a very strenuous life. There is a law against the telling of fairy tales.

Police Court

A couple of transients were the only two occupants of the dock in City Police Court this morning to plead guilty to charges of being intoxicated on Highway No. 28 yesterday. Magistrate O. A. Langley, K. C. fined each of the offenders $10 and $4.50 costs or in default 10 days imprisonment.

The men of good appearance and of an entirely different type than the average transient, gave their names respectively as Morris Gallant, 22, truck driver of New Brunswick and Frederick Watts, 23, grocery clerk lately resident of Toronto and a native of England.

The informations against the two men were laid by Provincial Traffic Officer E. A. Hornick, who stated there was nothing flagrant about the conduct of the offenders.

James Vassilcu who was arrested here by Detective Hogan of Toronto Police Department on a charge relating to the theft of a peanut burner, was escorted to Toronto last night to face the charge.

ARMED BANDITS STAGE HOLD-UPS

Victoria Detective Injured By Gunfire of Two Robbers.

ESCAPE PPOLICE NET.

VICTORIA, June 2 (C.P.). — Police forces of Victoria and district to-day were scouring the countryside for two armed bandits one of them wounded by a police bullet in the left shoulder, who last night staged three hold-ups and shot and wounded Detective Walter Caldwell in the right arm while Caldwell with Police Chief Thomas Heatley and another officer were pursuing the gunmen in a car. Twelve shots were exchanged during the pursuit.

The bandits after holding up a drug store jumped into a stolen car and fled as police arrived. Previously they had held up a grocery store and a street car motorman.

Taking up the chase the officers were about to overtake the bandit car when its occupants opened fire, wounding Caldwell and smashing the headlights of the car. The gunmen abandoned their car after a bullet had punctured a tire. The robbers were believed to have taken refuge in a Chinese cemetery, but they escaped the police net.

Caldwll was not seriously injured, and after having his wound dressed, returned to the hunt.

Youngster Foils Plot Against Dad

CHICAGO, June 2. (CP) — A bomb plot directed at Bryan Hartnett, Democratic alderman of the 12th ward, was foiled last night by his seven year old son, Bryan, Jr., when he doused the fuse with water and threw the missile into the street.

A moment later another bomb planted at the rear of the home of Michael Hartnett, the alderman's father and a retired police sergeant who lives next door, exploded so forcefully, it jarred the neighborhood and caused $200 damage to the house.

The police expressed belief the bombs were planted by political enemies of the alderman.

BEDSIDE MANNER

If you're choosing between an old doctor and a young, consider---

That was what counted these days. . . . You just had to know how to wear a white jacket and talk sympathetic . . . Bedside manner!

By KARL W. DETZER

Illustrated By JOE KING

OLD DOC CARSTON was awake when the telephone rang. He rolled over quickly, for an instant forgetting his years; remembering them sharply when his feet touched the cold floor. But he crossed resolutely to the long, black, coffin-like instrument on the wall.

Wind, screaming in from the ice-locked wastes of Lake Michigan, pummelled the house with cold, bare knuckles. Half the night Doc Carston had been listening to its imperious voice. Twenty years ago he would have dreaded a call on such a night. Now . . . he was glad to get any kind of call now!

He couldn't afford to be particular. There seldom was a night call, or a day call, either. The storm charged boisterously around the small, lonely house. The telephone buzzed like a hive of angry bees.

"Hello," he shouted into the mouthpiece. "Hello, who is it?"

"Stella . . . the operator," a voice replied faintly. "They want you on the island, Doc. Yes . . . the island."

For a moment the buzz of the bees claimed the line. Then, still more faintly, the operator's voice reported: "Just called on submarine phone cable. It's at the logging camp. Five of the lumberjacks. All broke out . . . chests and necks and faces, all crazy with fever."

"Five of 'em?" Carston repeated.

"They think one's dying," the operator said. "They called for Taussig first, but he's in Detroit at the clinic, his wife says."

TAUSSIG! Of course they'd call Taussig first! He'd moved into the county three years ago . . . in three years grabbed off the cream! Cream, milk, everything!

"Team can't make it," the operator warned. "Jim Bassens tried today. Too many pressure ridges."

"I'll walk," Doc Carston decided.

He opened the drafts in the stove and stuffed in wood, good body birch and maple, greensplit and winter-dried. The fire roared. The old man turned up the lamp and rummaged in an untidy closet.

He pulled on a second pair of wool underdrawers and two pairs of wool stockings with crimson tops. His back pained when he bent to smooth out the heels. So they'd called Taussig first!

Again, damn him! And the upstart was off at Detroit! At a clinic! Studying to be a doctor! He knew he needed to study, did he? Well, Doc Carston knew it, too.

But the people believed in him. Called him first. Nearly always. Because he was young. And good-looking. And had a nice bedside manner.

THAT'S what counted these days. Manner! You didn't need to know nux vomica from arsenic any more. You just had to know how to look sympathetic and wear a white jacket and rubber gloves and talk sympathetic. And scare folks!

Carston packed himself in his second sweater. Then he shut the drafts in the stove and crossed to his small untidy office. On an open shelf behind the desk, bottles and jars stood in disordered regiments. Hanging on a hook beside them, his first aid pack gaped empty.

Five sick. Breaking out. Fever. Well, you couldn't make lumberjacks be vaccinated. And they wouldn't do it of their own accord. So when smallpox came, the doctor had his hands full.

He chose carefully among the bottles and boxes and jars. It wouldn't do to load himself down too much.

Fourteen miles of ice, of pressure ridges, of long, perilous detours around open leads where death lurked in the cold black water, 14 miles of insufferable winds, of snow that burned like sparks as it struck the skin, 14 miles between mainland and the island.

DOC CARSTON closed his bag, took his hand compass in one dog-skin mitten, his spiked staff in the other. Before he turned down the lamp, he opened a cupboard, hopefully lifted a squat flask, and held it to the light. It was empty. He shrugged heavily and tramped down the hall to the door.

Stars looked down upon him, and he was surprised to find the night so clear; when he went to bed three hours ago snow still was falling. But the wind, thrashing out of the northwest, roared vehemently. It caught his bundled body, sought to trip his old legs, tired already, before his start.

In the street two men, bundled like himself, greeted him with shouts. The light was on in the telephone office, so they halted there. Carston recognized these other two, Jim Bassens, the island mail carrier, and Will Garrett, deputy sheriff.

"You can't make it, Doc," Garrett warned.

Carston chuckled.

"My name ain't Taussig," he told them. "I've made it before, haven't I?"

"Yes . . . but, Doc . . ." Bassens hesitated.

"I'M too old? Wore out?" Carston demanded. "Well, I'm going. Of course Taussig couldn't do it. You know that. I know it. I wish he was there, though. . . . God, I'd like to show him up!"

"But with this wind, Doc . . ."

"I'm going," Carston replied.

"We'll go with you, then," Bassens said. "One man, out there alone . . ."

"I've done it before, Jim," Carston reminded him. "When the lightkeeper's wife had twins. When that lumberjack broke his legs. When the diphtheria went across the island like a herd of wild hogs . . . I made it, didn't I?"

"Yes, you made it, Doc."

"And you've never heard me say the weather was too bad, day or night, did you? I can get across. I'd better be able to! It's my last chance. I'll never get another call."

"Oh, yes, you will, Doc."

"No, Taussig will get 'em." He chuckled once more, humorlessly. "Taussig and his nice bedside manner! What does that upstart know about doctoring? But everybody calls him first!"

CARSTON was adjusting the ice creepers over his pack boots, and he looked up now, his red old face sharp with bitterness.

"It's his new ideas," Bassens said. "The women likes them."

"New ideas, hell! I know why they like him. He's got a way of coming into a sickroom. Like a blasted millinery salesman. A way of feeling very sorry for a patient instead of getting down to brass tacks. It's his bedside manner, the young squirt!"

He gave the creepers a final tug, and tried them cautiously against the wooden floor. Then wrapping his muffler about his chin, he stood up.

"Ready?"

The two men followed him. The clock in the bank window pointed to three as they plunged into the roaring night. Dawn would be late this morning, eight o'clock, perhaps. Five hours. Fourteen miles against a headwind . . . he'd still be miles from the island at daybreak.

CARSTON led the way to the beach. Ice piled in ridges along the wash, and Lake Michigan, struck mute by winter, crouched beneath the buffetings of the storm. Far to the southwest the winter lamp in the south island lighthouse glowed wanly. Twice Carston looked back and saw the younger men following him.

He crawled up the first tall pressure ridge, slid down the opposite side, and still chuckling humorlessly, faced the relentless gusto of Lake Michigan. There would be many such ridges to cross, he'd best take the first ones easy.

The men had been afoot an hour, three insignificant black spots on the frozen white face of the lake, when clouds scurried out of the northwest, and the wind, which had been pouring at them from the west, became even more vehement and shifted several points northward.

It was Bassens who tugged at old Doc Carston's sleeve. Carston had fallen twice, twice had staggered quickly to his feet, shame heating his thin body which wool and leather did not protect from cold.

"Better turn back," Bassens yelled. "We're just a mile off shore. This rate . . . take 14 hours . . ."

CARSTON'S voice congealed in his throat. He couldn't answer. But he shook his head vigorously and kept on. Turn back? When he had a chance?

He thought again of Taussig, sleeping in a warm room in Detroit, attending a clinic. Learning more fol-de-rol to practice on a lot of poor people.

He chuckled. But the young fellow'd hear something when he got back. He'd be thankful he'd been in Detroit; he'd worry for fear he wouldn't be away the next time a doctor needed to cross the ice.

The clouds were overhead now. Snow pelted out of them. Carston peered backward through it at the lights of the town. Two miles, three at most, lay between him and shore. But no man, even a young man, could have made better time.

The other two men caught up with him. There was a moment of argument.

"Better turn back . . ." it was Bassens, the mail carrier.

"No!"

"Be death for all of us," Garrett cried. "We'll never find the island!"

"And Taussig will be back tomorrow," Bassens said. "We'll go by daylight."

OLD DOC CARSTON straightened his bent back. They were scared, were they? And Taussig would be back. He looked closely at them. Snow rimmed his small eyes.

"All right," he said. "All right."

Bassens turned quickly and Will Garrett followed. Hesitantly Carston fell in behind them. The snow came thicker. For a moment he lost sight of the other two, found them, lost them again. Then he ran, heavily, till he caught up with them.

"No use of me going back to the dock . . ." he panted in Garrett's ear. "This wind will blow me . . . straight home."

"Sure?"

"Much quicker."

"All right," Garrett agreed. He waved his arm.

"Good night!" the doctor shouted. He took 30 steps shoreward, slanting away from the direction of the others. Then he halted.

THEY were out of sight. They would not miss him. No one would miss him. If he did not answer his telephone, they would say he was asleep, or drunk.

Deliberately he turned, and faced back into the storm. He felt the compass in his glove. He'd need it now, particularly after daybreak. Alone, a single small dark patch against the frozen gray of the lake, he moved painfully toward the island, many, many hours away.

All alone, a single dark speck moving against the frozen gray of the lake, he continued on his way, clutching the compass in his glove.

HE found himself wandering in a circle, got out the compass, and set his feet right again by its illuminated dial. He must be five or six miles out now. At daybreak he knew that he had passed the halfway mark.

He did not feel the cold in his feet. They were past that. He was very tired. He could feel his heart, thumping unevenly. He knew all about his own heart. It could do just so much . . . then . . .

He staggered on. Where was he? Had he missed the island? Gone around its north end?

He'd like to sit down. But he'd freeze if he did. It wasn't a bad death. Just unconsciousness. They could send for Taussig tomorrow. Thought of Taussig spurred him on.

Something loomed on the ice before him. His frozen eyes opened wider. Then he heard shouts. The wind had fallen off, he discovered.

Peering through the snow, he made out dark patches of pine woods. That was the island, up there. And this thing on the snow . . . something big as a wrecked mill . . . what was it?

These were men, and they were shouting at him. They stood in front of him, behind him, all about him. They touched his hand with theirs, yet he felt nothing. But he heard the voices, filling his ears, saw open mouths, bearded faces.

"Taussig!" they shouted.

"I'm not Taussig!"

"No! He's here already! Came by plane!"

Old Doc Carston staggered, jerked up his head, and cleared his thoughts.

"Why, Taussig's in Detroit, damn him!" he heard his own frozen voice crying. "In Detroit . . . safe and warm . . ."

The men were leading him toward the shore. One had him by each arm. He tried to break away.

"Taussig's wife telephoned him," one was saying. "He grabbed a plane at Detroit airport . . . came down an hour ago . . ."

"I'M not needed, then," Doc Carston said. He held back determinedly. "I'll go back . . ."

"No, no!"

"Sure! It's Taussig's case!" He tried to push away their hands. This ended his efforts. Let the young fool and his modern ideas have the practice.

"But you don't understand, Doc! Taussig's hurt. They turned over, landing. Look! That plane's upside down! Pilot's leg's broken. Taussig's sick. Says it's exposure. He needs you, Doc. Pilot needs you. Lumberjacks need you!"

Old Doc Carston chuckled.

"Flew?" he asked. "Exposure?"

"One lumberjack's died," the islander said. "Rest need you . . ."

"Need me?" Doc Carston straightened up. If that were true . . .

"NEED you worst way, Doc! So does Taussig!"

"Well, well!"

Carston undid his ice creepers. Maybe there was room for two doctors up here. He climbed toward the settlement. The man, tramping beside him, listened incredulously.

"All right, in its place," the old doc was saying. "Bedside manner's fine in its place. But its place is in town. Up here, brother, it takes feet to be a doctor. Understand?"

"Sure," the man answered. But he did not. Did not begin to understand.

The men had been afoot an hour, and the wind, which had been pouring at them from the west, became even more vehement and shifted around to the northward. . . . "Better turn back," Bassens yelled. . . . "We're just a mile off shore." . . . He shook his head vigorously and kept on.

CRUEL TREATMENT

that they were usually of the feeble-minded type.

Lt. Col. D. S. Tamblyn of Kingston told the meeting that veterinarians working under him were forbidden to have narcotics in their chests, as "there are too many of the Tom, Dick and Harry type who might easily gain access to it."

He also asserted that "there is too much dope lying loose around the country," and that followers of fairs and race tracks were prolific sources of drugs.

Dr. Johnston spoke of the "loose buying of strychnine".

An interesting report from St. Catharines disclosed the fact that signs posted up as warnings that dogs running loose will be shot at sight are of no value legally, as a case in that city proved recently, when a stiff fine was paid by a man who shot a neighbor's dog and cited the sign as his authority for the deed.

Dr. Johnston spoke of a by-law of North Monaghan by which a man may shoot a dog running loose on his property or on an adjoining lot and mentioned a case where a man who wished to shoot such a dog had told him he had the authority of the Provincial Officer to proceed.

"When that dog is shot, send us a wire and we will come and give you legal assistance", said Mr. Wilson, remarking that the society was about to take a firm stand against wholesale slaughter of dogs.

"With one exception, however," he went on, "and that is the case of a dog which is a sheep-killer. There is no saving such an animal. The law is very strict."

He said also that the law requires that a dog which has bitten anyone has to be kept under observation for fourteen days at least, and must not be killed at once. The medical authorities demand this, he asserted, in order to prescribe the proper treatment for the victim and find out if the animal is suffering from rabies.

Reports Presented

The presentation of reports from the affiliated societies showed a fairly prosperous year, "considering everything", as Mr. Wilson remarked at their conclusion.

The majority of the reports stressed the education of children in humane activities, which is emphasized by the organization.

Mrs. T. W. Rutherford, reporting for Galt society, mentioned three Life Memberships of $100 each received this year by her society.

Mrs. Charles E. Hewer of Guelph reported 2,000 children as members of the Junior Humane Society, including children from the Separate Schools, who have come in for the first time this year.

A portion of the funds from this society, as in other cases, was used for relief work among the unemployed.

A very interesting report, delivered in the rich brogue which belongs to one of the colorful figures at the meeting, Major G. A. Heather, president of the Kitchener branch, was listened to with much interest. The major aroused a few smiles at the spectacle he drew in a few sentences of a Mennonite minister near Kitchener who took a little red book issued by the Humane society of that city and offered to read portions of it to his congregations on three successive Sundays.

In Kitchener, they rejoice in the possession of a legal advocate of Humane Society cases, "who doesn't charge a cent if we are beaten and takes what the court allows if we win a case."

"And that, sir, is how we are getting on in Kitchener," concluded the speaker, whose report met with much applause.

Mrs. B. H. Clement reported that the London Society has charge of the city pound there and augments its finances by what it receives from the city, for this service.

Peterborough's Report

The report for the local organizations was read by the secretary, Mrs. J. S. Chandler, showing a membership totalling 111.

Many complaints are registered locally about motorists who strike animals and drive on without stopping. Mrs. Chandler also mentioned some trouble with rural mail-carriers' horses in the winter time.

No report was made of the reaction of the man who, after being fined for cruelty to his horses, was sent two copies of the society's publication, "Animal Life", after the fine was levied.

Miss Victoria Grant reported for Port Hope and mentioned the co-operation given by Provincial police in checking on transportation of animals by truck.

Mrs. R. A. Plato of St. Catharines had a very interesting report of the work in Lincoln County. The society has 650 Junior members and has all legal services donated free. It has a balance of $700.85 on hand, also a balance of $383.76 in the Shelter fund.

Mrs. Plato mentioned several outstanding cases that had come up before the courts through action of the Humane Society.

One was a fine of $50 and a month's imprisonment levied on a farmer who starved his cattle in winter, the case having the moral effect of setting an example to others who thought this was quite the normal thing to do with the animals.

Another case was that of a valuable collie dog who commenced acting strangely and was found to have an elastic band wound round its head in such a way as to be hidden by the thick hair and to have almost completely severed an ear and cut through into the jaw.

At yesterday's luncheon, a most entertaining address was given by Mrs. F. E. Robson of Toronto, who has just returned from a trip to Europe and other countries.

Mrs. Robson brought with her samples of dolls from many of the lands across the sea, which were the object of interested attention and comment.

She spoke chiefly of conditions in Russia, as noted in her recent visit there, when she travelled 5,000 miles from the Baltic to the Black Sea, with a young girl as guide and interpreter.

ARMED BANDITS STAGE HOLD-UPS

Victoria Detective Injured By Gunfire of Two Robbers.

ESCAPE PPOLICE NET.

VICTORIA, June 2 (C.P.) — Police forces of Victoria and district to-day were scouring the countryside for two armed bandits one of them wounded by a police bullet in the left shoulder, who last night staged three hold-ups and shot and wounded Detective Walter Caldwell in the right arm while Caldwell with Police Chief Thomas Heatley and another officer were pursuing the gunmen in a car. Twelve shots were exchanged during the pursuit.

The bandits after holding up a drug store jumped into a stolen car and fled as police arrived. Previously they had held up a grocery store and a street car motorman.

Taking up the chase the officers were about to overtake the bandit car when its occupants opened fire, wounding Caldwell and smashing the headlights of the car. The gunmen abandoned their car after a bullet had punctured a tire. The robbers were believed to have taken refuge in a Chinese cemetery, but they escaped the police net.

Caldwll was not seriously injured, and after having his wound dressed, returned to the hunt.

Youngster Foils Plot Against Dad

CHICAGO, June 2. (CP) — A bomb plot directed at Bryan Hartnett, Democratic alderman of the 12th ward, was foiled last night by his seven year old son, Bryan, Jr., when he doused the fuse with water and threw the missile into the street.

A moment later another bomb planted at the rear of the home of Michael Hartnett, the alderman's father and a retired police sergeant who lives next door, exploded so forcefully, it jarred the neighborhood and caused $200 damage to the house.

The police expressed belief the bombs were planted by political enemies of the alderman.

Enid Wilson Retains British Women's Golf Title

DEFENDING CHAMPION SCORES 7 AND 6 TRIUMPH IN FINAL

Takes Seven of First Eight Holes in the Match for Title.

PLAYS COLORFUL GAME.

SAUNTON, Eng. June 2—(CP)—Enid Wilson, today retained her British Women's golf championship, defeating Miss Clem Purvis-Russell-Montgomery, Scottish player, seven and six in the 36-hole final.

Miss Wilson's play was much improved in the afternoon round, as she was out in 35, even par, to take seven of the first eight holes, losing only the fifth.

Miss Montgomery rallied bravely but she could halve only the last four.

The champion won the first hole but Miss Montgomery ran down a three yard putt on the second green to square it. The third was taken by Miss Wilson when her opponent needed a five.

The fourth was halved in fives. Miss Wilson landed on the side of a hillock from the tee in the short fifth while Miss Montgomery found the green and again squared the match. The sixth was halved, each taking a five.

The champion's powerful driving won the seventh to put her one up but Miss Montgomery again squared the match on the eighth when Miss Wilson needed a five. The latter gained the ninth in four to make the turn one up.

The cards—

Miss Wilson—
Out ..... 335,545 454—39

Miss Montgomery—
Out ..... 445 535 545—40

Starting the afternoon round one up, Miss Wilson sent a 300-yard drive to within nine feet of the pin on the first hole, while Miss Montgomery, who sliced her drive, conceded the hole. The champion also took the second and third holes and swept on to a six-hole advantage by taking the fourth and fifth.

Miss Montgomery took the sixth, but Miss Wilson won the seventh and the eighth and the ninth was halved, Miss Wilson making the three-quarter turn seven up.

The tenth was halved in fours. Miss Wilson missed an eight-foot putt on the eleventh, which would have given her the match eight and seven. On the twelfth hole the champion was in the rough and still off the green with her second, while Miss Montgomery was almost on the green in two. The Scottish girl missed her third and needed a five, halving the hole and giving the champion the match seven and six.

Runaway in P.M.

Miss Montgomery held the champion in check through the morning round, playing her shot for shot on the second nine to halve every hole and end the first 18 only one down, but Miss Wilson made a runaway out of it in the afternoon.

She won the first three holes of the last 18 and finished the 27 seven up and nine to play, ending the match three holes farther on.

TENNIS STARS COMING HERE

Six Outstanding Canadian Players to Give Exhibitions.

SINGLES AND DOUBLES.

Six outstanding Canadian tennis players are coming to Peterborough on Saturday, June 18th, for singles and doubles exhibitions in the afternoon and evening. The local Lawn Bowling and Tennis Club has been unusually fortunate in obtaining such racquet stars as Gilbert Nunns and Walter Martin, of the Canadian Davis Cup team, John Proctor, Brian Doherty, Lorne McLean and another star of the Toronto Tennis Club.

These players are in demand throughout the province, playing regularly in various larger cities than this. But, owing to the enterprise of the Peterborough Club, they have agreed to appear here on that date. The local tennis officials believe their appearance will stimulate interest in the court game around here and give young players and prospective players an idea of how tennis is played by experts.

Mr. Nunns and Mr. Gilbert, both of whom make their headquarters in Toronto, have played on the Canadian Davis Cup team for several years. As the Canadian Lawn Tennis and Badminton journal says: "The team of 1932, which was composed of Dr. Jack Wright, of Vancouver, Marcel Rainville of Montreal, Gilbert Nunns of Toronto, and Walter Martin of Regina, must be congratulated on their fine showing and plucky spirits in the games at Washington."

Gave Fine Account

The two players who are coming here gave a fine account of themselves in a doubles with Frank Shields and Ellsworth Vines, United States stars. It was a battle of giants, all four players being in the six-foot class, and a slap-bang affair resulted, with the Americans taking the match, 7-5 and 6-4. This is what a tennis expert in the Saturday Night says about them:

".....Wright and Rainville will always give a good and rousing account of themselves, but it is unlikely that now they will ever eliminate a team of America's best. Nunns and Martin may do it in the years to come. Both are tall, young, physically powerful and hard-hitting. They play the style of knock-down tennis that Vines, Allison and Shields do. Some day with the veterans' help and coaching, with a winter's practice obtained before they pass thirty, with a Davis Cup team of four (and not two), Nunns and Martin may drop a bombshell in the tennis world by defeating an American team."

Here Last Year

Mr. Proctor and Mr. Doherty, both of whom were here last year with the Davis Cup players but were more or less rained out, play a great court game, singles or doubles. They are top ranking stars with the Toronto Tennis Club, as is Mr. McLean who comes here for the first time, with one more outstanding player, unnamed yet. Despite the rain last summer when the racquet luminaries visited Peterborough, a great crowd of tennis enthusiasts—and there are many here—were on hand at the Lawn Bowling and Tennis Club. This year, the club hopes to have temporary stands raised around the courts to help accomodate the huge crowd expected out June 18th.

CARD FINISHED FOR RING SHOW

Several of the Better Mitt Slingers to Take Part in Preliminaries.

A FIVE-BOUT PROGRAM.

The program for Friday night's all-star boxing show at the Brock street rink has been completed, five bouts in all having been arranged by Matchmaker Charlie Hallat, who, incidentally, appears to have excelled himself for this first professional all-boxing show. There will be two main bouts, as originally announced, these bringing together Jack Dane of Peterborough, and Joe Donovan of Buffalo, while Frisco Grande, Filipino champion, clashes with Frankie "Red" Egerton, of Toronto.

In another match, Eddie Judge, of Toronto and former amateur champion featherweight, is down to oppose Aleck Art. The latter gave Jackie Johnston a rare tussle here and has fought numerous other high-class boys. Eddie Judge as is well known has beaten the country's leading amateurs and since turning pro some eighteen months ago has fought with distinction in the moneyed ranks. These two can be relied upon to furnish a keen scrap.

Still another bout brings together Mickey McDonald, well-known Hamilton welter, and Walter Cox of Niagara Falls. These two are of the slugging type and should furnish a regular pyrotechnic display once they get going. They appear to be evenly matched in every respect, each scaling round 140 pounds.

The curtai nraiser will be between Tony Penick of Hamilton, and Charlie Falletta of Brantford. These are a pair of ambitious youngsters eager to earn more important places on future programs and will no doubt give of their best. They also are welters.

Thus every class from the bantam to the light heavy will be represented and there will be plenty of variety on a program that promises to provide an exceptionally keen night of milling.

All the out-of-town boxers will be on the scene tonight, thus guarding against any last-minute disappointments. Incidentally, each has put up a deposit as assurance to be on the scene and make the required weight, all the bouts, of course, being sponsored by the Ontario Athletic Commission, who will also appoint the referee and other officials.

And there will be no increase in prices for what appears to be as interesting a boxing program as anybody could desire.

Lacoste Eliminated

AUTEUIL, France, June 2 (C.P.).—Rene Lacoste, French Davis Cup veteran who is attemping a comeback after three years' absence from championship play, was eliminated in the fourth round of men's singles to-day by H. G. N. Lee, of England, 2-6, 4-6, 6-4, 5-7.

Lee forced the game throughout, throwing Lacoste off his usual methodical play and establishing himself as a player of much promise as Lacoste still is able to make the best of players go fast to defeat him.

FAVORITES FALL AT THORNCLIFFE

The Point, Anoka and Black Diamond All Return Handsome Returns.

LONG PRICES PREVAIL

TORONTO, June 2.—The best offering at Thorncliffe yesterday, the third of the meet and another Ladies' Day, was the fourth race, in which twelve started, at six furlongs. Black Diamond a 40 to 1 shot, took it. Thorncliffe always was his favorite track. It was a great race, decided in the final jumps. From the barrier rise, Hey There and Kopeck took the lead and made a team race of it in the backstretch. In the turn, Hey There got his nose in front but had to give over to Dunlin's Lad, who found his way through the pack on the straight, only to be headed in the drive by Black Diamond on the rail and Donny Johnny who also was inside him. Hey There lasted long enough to be fourth.

The daily double players got their biggest thrill of the meet in the first and third when $2,610.40 went up on the board for the three tickets held on The Point, who won the first race by six lengths, and Mad Mullah, who was second by inches in the third. Anoka was the winner of the third race, but there wasn't a ticket sold on him in combination with The Point.

First Race.

Before the first dash was run indications were that a near record crowd would be on hand.

This effort was at three quarters of a mile, with Gerard believed to be stepping down out of his proper class, an even-money choice. Sea Kale, although a Canadian-bred in an open race, was well supported on the strength of his easy victory at Woodbine. But in the running The Point proved to be the horse by a margin of six lengths, with H. Louman in the pilot house. The winner had number one post position, broke fast and led all the way, increasing his lead at every pole. Gerard, well back in the back stretch, got up to be second. John Bane, coupled with the winner in the field, ran third. The Point proved he was a right horse by going the journey in 1.12 2-5, which is mighty fast time for Thorncliffe. Get Goin was a bad actor at post and was manly responsible for a delay of three minutes at the barrier.

Demands Removal Of Mayor Walker

NEW YORK, June 1. — Samuel Seabury at a hearing of the Hofstadter committee to-day introduced testimony indicating that Mayor James J. Walker had owned bonds of the Reliance Bronze Steel Co., which received a $43,556.40 city contarct. Seabury declared that, in his opinion, that constituted grounds for the Mayor's removal from office

"I say the Mayor of this city has no right to hold stock in a company that has a city contract," Seabury said, 'and I say it is grounds for removal and has been so held and is so provided in Section 1533 of the city charter."

Japan may sell some of her 1929 raw-silk stocks, which have been stored under the indemnification act.

Jack Dempsey Is Very Attentive To Film Actress While in Reno

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., June 2 (C.P.). — Lina Basquette, film actress, and "Rosita Gonzales" to whom Jack Dempsey is very attentive are the same person, the actress' mother, Mrs. Ernest Belcher, said to-day.

Miss Basquette and Dempsey are now in Reno, Mrs. Belcher said. Despatches from the Nevada city said the former heavyweight boxing champion of the world had introduced the dark-eyed girl with him as "'Miss Gonzales."

Mrs. Belcher said her daughter had assumed the name of "'Rosita Gonzales."

Recently, Teddy Hayes, former trainer for Dempsey, charged Dempsey "stole" Miss Basquette from him.Dempsey denied any association with Miss Basquette. The actress fired Hayes as her business manager.

COGNAWAGAS CLUB WILL FIELD STRONG LINE-UP THIS SUMMER

Manager Al Davis Has Rounded Up Smart Looking Aggregation.

LOOP OPENS JUNE 7TH.

The strongest Cognawaga intermediate baseball team since the Cogs won the East Peterborough League in 1929 looks to be in the making now. It was in that year, the club team, playing fine ball through their E.P.L. schedule, captured the playoffs and went right through to the semi-finals, where they lost out to the powerful London outfit.

Manager Al Davis started early this year to build up his team and has already rounded up a smart-looking aggregation. While most of them are signed and others intending to, he is still somewhat doubtful about a couple of the positions. Once these are satisfactorily filled, Al will be ready to face the barrier on June 7th when the loop opens again.

Likely Hurlers.

Vannest, Billingsley and Don Wood are the likely hurlers for the Cogs, and all three are well-known for their pitching in the past. They have been going well in practises and if the seniors do not ask for them during the season, they should win a lot of games for their team. Cy Whatley will probably do the catching, and this youthful star should have a big year both offensively and defensively. Only the fact that Art Primeau had plenty of catching material kept Cy off the senior lineup.

The Cogs infielders include Rooke, Young, Mein, Cuthbertson and Williams, a bunch of fast, young and experienced ball players, good at hitting and fielding. In the garden will be Jimmie Hall, Doug Moore, Johnny Wilson and Fred Cripps, everyone a slugger and a good outfielder.

Taken all around, this year's Cogs appear to be a strong, well-balanced outfit, shaping up good in every department, and they are likely to cause plenty of worry in the camps of their opponents, C.G.E. and Orescents. The next Cog practise will be held at six Friday evening at the Exhibition Grounds, and Manager Davis requests those still having certificates out to turn them in at this time.

HELEN JACOBS IS ELIMINATED

Second Ranking U. S. Player Falls Beefore Play of Mme. Rene Mathieu.

AUTEUIL, France, June 2 (C.P.). — Helen Jacobs, second ranking woman player of the United States, was elimmated from the French tennis championships to-da yin the quarter-final round by Mme. Rene Mathieu of France, 4-6, 4-6. Mme Mathieu, France's leading woman player, was in good form throughout. Miss Jacobs led 4-1 in the second set, but then lost control, and Mme. Mathieu ran five straight games to take set and match.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody advanced to the final round with a 6-3, 10-8 victory over the German girl, Hilda Krahwinkel, in the semi-finals.

Fred Perry, English Davis Cup ace, defeated Franz Matejka, of Austria, 6-2, 6-4 6-4 and George de Stefani of the Italian Davis Cup team, won from Baron von Kehrling, of Hungary, 6-4, 9-7, 6-4, in fourth round matches.

Roderich Menzel, of Czechoslovakia, defeated the French veteran, Jacques Brugnon, in another fourth round match, 8-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Swanson was taken into custody by Sergeant Cousans and Constable Mennie of the Provincial Police, and Officer Lamb of Guelph, when he arrived at his home with 21 fowl in his car. He admitted having taken them from the farm of Sam Nurse, Erin Village.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

"SUNSHINE SUSIE"

What a dandy show for a year of depression. It makes you laugh and you don't know why, which is a very comfortable feeling and means that the laughter is spontaneous.

There isn't very much to the tale, there isn't much to the plot, but it is light and bright and infectiously gay. It has that quality which makes for real laughter, the spectacle of serious-appearing people who are really funny and don't appear to know it. When you are not smiling, you laugh; and when you don't laugh, you roar with the crowd.

Infectious gayety is the secret of the charm of "Sunshine Susie," but the lady, clever as she is, isn't responsible for the fun, by half. That tall gentleman, Jack Hulbert, as Hansel, is the prime fun-maker. He is as funny as a barrel of monkeys, with his dignified demeanor, his outsize coat and his rubber legs.

Susie gets a job in the Commercial Bank of Vienna. Herr Klapper, the office manager, tries to date her up, and, failing, becomes very angry. In the meantime, a more powerful lover has appeared on the scene and that is where the beer garden scene, with the uproariously funny male chorus and the inevitable tablecloths of checked gingham, comes in. Hansel, a fine figure of a man in his choir leader state, does his stuff in mock heroic mood, with a champagne elixir in his heels.

The toe-tickling little tune that runs through the trailer animates this talkie, and there are some lovely songs, in "I'm So Happy" and "Just Because I Lost May Heart to You."

Renate Muller, the screen's newest find, with her charming foreign accent, is the gladsome star. Jack Hulbert is her supporting funmaker, and Owen Nares has a way all his own as the other man.

—Jeanette.

FEW MORE ANCIENT PASTIMES THAN BOWLING ON THE GREEN

Origin of Popular Summer Pursuit Dates Back to 12th Century.

PROHIBITED IN 19TH.

(By E. A. Breckenridge)

Some people have funny ideas about lawn bowling. To sit on a bench or lean over a fence and watch a bunch of enthusiasts rolling round bowls along the green, following them frequently with peculiar attitudes contortions, and emitting the odd shriek, might make the uniniated onlooker think that there was nothing in the game but to roll the bowl and ape the comedian.

To those who follow the game, and in order to excel make a study of it, there is that in lawn bowling that makes it one of the most scientific in existence.

True, it is not strenuous nor mankilling, but after many years of experience on the lacrosse field, I frankly confess that to enjoy a leisurely but well contested game of bowls appeals to me rather than to chase the elusive lacrosse ball down the field with a club, wielded by a husky opponent banging with disconcerting regularity on my sacred anatomy, which, by the way, still bears scars of the game in which I indulged in my youthful and unregenerate days.

Ancient Pursuit.

It might be interesting, and perhaps surprising for some of my readers to know that lawn bowling is one of the oldest games in existence, dating back to the twelfth century, and it is reasonable assumption that if it did not contain a large content of merit, it would have passed out of the picture centuries ago.

I have before me a pamphlet published by the Ontario Provincial Association and compiled by a lover of the game who modestly conceals his identity under the initials G. E. A. Perhaps he wishes to convey the idea that the game is gripping, enjoyable, and all to the merry.

Be that as it may, the history of lawn bowling, as outlined in this remarkable pamphlet, is well worth repeating to all and sundry, and of careful preservation.

G. E. A. entitles his pamphlet "Seven Steps in the Game of Lawn Bowling" and in parenthesis gives the information that "next to archery, it is the old British outdoor pastime."

In the pamphlet, the diagram shows the seven steps, working up from the bottom to the top, but for convenience' sake we will reverse the steps and progress from the top downward.

Originated—12th Century

Rolling round stones at a mark in the twelfth or perhaps as early as the eleventh century.

In William Fitzpatrick's geography of Thomas A. Beckett, who was assassinated in 1170, he gives a graphic description of a game in which round stones were rolled at a mark.

Developed—14th Century.

Bias bowls, introduced following the substitution of wooden bowls for stones, the game thus taking its present form.

In Shakespeare's Richard II, act three, the queen replies to a lady's suggestion of a game of bowls: "Twill make me think the world is full of rubs and that my fortune rubs against the bias."

Restricted—14th-16th Century

Game prohibited by kings and parliaments in reigns of Edward III, Richard II, and other monarchs up to Henry VIII, for fear it might jeopardize the practice of archery, at the time so important in battle.

Advanced—16th Century

Game enthusiastically played and indulged in by royalty, and looked upon as a legitimate Sunday amusement.

James I recommended the game to his son, Prince Henry; Charles I was an enthusiastic bowler; Good Queen Bess delighted in the game, John Knox found Calvin playing the game at Geneva one Sunday.

Retarded—19th Century

Period of confusion due to use of bowls of various biases until a standard "three bias" bowl was established in 1892.

When the Scottish Bowling Association was organized in 1892, it was decided that it was time, in the interests of the game, to have a definite standard bowl. It was agreed that the bowls of a well-known tournament bowler named Brown (the father of Willie Brown, the famous Westmount, Montreal, bowler) were fair. They were not too narrow and they had a reasonable borrow (draw). His bowls were accepted as the standard and were called "three bias."

Finessed—19-20th Centuries

Period of continued use of bowls of various biases, and inclination to smash up ends by a few indifferent bowlers. From the time the standard bowl was established up to the present time.

Established—20th Century

The Provincial Lawn Bowling Association of Ontario, organized in 1931, and district championship games and lawn bowling carnival, inaugurated under the group system.

This was preceded in 1930 by the prohibition of bowls of less than the bias of the standard bowl, and by the extension of the size of greens and the adoption of the moveable mat, thus discouraging the practice of smashing up ends, with which the use of narrow bowls takes a lot of pleasure out of the game, and without which the game would be all pleasure.

Bowl testing tables are to be established in 1932.

Here the pamphlet ended, although G. E. A. might have referred to the increasing use of the "composition" bowl, which is rapidly replacing the old and well known "wooden bowl" and which marks another dividing line in this interesting history of lawn bowling.

Delight of Sport.

Quite evidently G. E. A. is a devotee of the game, and a firm believer in the efficacy of what bowlers call the "dram" game and whilst many bowlers may not agree entirely with his diatribe against running shots, all will agree that the "draw" is the real basis and foundation of the game.

There is nothing finer in all sport than to find oneself on a keen, perfectly drawing green, and to see the bowls draking leisurely into the "jack" one just nosing the other out, and to see, as all bowlers have seen, a cluster of bowls so closely bunched around the kitty that it is almost impossible to discern the winner.

Nevertheless, and here I think I have the support of most bowlers, much of the interest and sport of the game would disappear with the exclusion of the overdraw and running shot.

Space forbids me to discuss this aspect of the game at great length in this article, but it can come later.

Lawn bowlers everywhere owe a debt of gratitude to G. E. A. for his exhaustive research in tracing the history and progress of this grand old game.

Petes Swamp Norwood Squad Under 20-5 Defeat

LOCALS HOLD LEAD GAINED IN 1ST FRAME

Rogers, Norwood Goalie, Misses Several Shots in Off Form Night.

NEED MORE PRACTICE.

Petes Give Splendid Exhibition of Combination and Close Checking.

The Peterborough intermediate lacrosse team got sweet revenge on Norwood last night, smothering them under a 20 to 5 defeat in an exhibition game at the Brock. Working like a well-oiled scoring machine, the local players passed and shot perfectly and checked the visitors up closely, completely outplaying them from start to finish. They scored 4 to 2 in the first quarter, 4 to 0 in the second, 6 to 0 in the third and finished it up by slapping in 6 to 3 in the final period.

In all fairness to Norwood, it must be pointed out that it was the first time the players had worked on an indoor arena this year, and they weren't in the best physical condition either. Furthermore, Rogers in goal was off form and missed a number of easy shots.

Norwood Scores First

The game opened fast, with Fenton scoring after three minutes of play for Norwood. Right away, Dundas fooled the goalie with neat stickwork to tie it up. Bovin made sure of his own rebound to give the Petes the edge, and Palmer repeated in short order. As Norwodo began to fight back, and play speeded up and also roughened up somewhat with stiff checks, McConnell burned one in the Peterborough net, but Bovin made it 4-2 just before the end when he trotted through with no one covering him.

Bovin tore around the defence to score early in the second frame, followed quickly by King on neat combination with Magee and Bovin. The latter player scored again on King's pass, all three goals being within a minute as the Petes buzzed around the Norwood citadel. Then Bovin whipped the ball in the cage again on Mein's pass. Play was hot and more even toward the close of this stanza, with Palmer making a great backcheck late to save an almost sure goal for the Combines.

Petes Score Six.

The third go was about one minute old when Miller scored on Dundas' pass. The latter then sunk one off Bovin, and Magee took a throw from King to counter again. The Petes continued to hold all the play, with Shaw getting two goals in a row, one on Creighton's pass. Late in the period, Creighton rifled the last one in from a sharp angle.

Nine goals were scored in the hectic fourth quarter, the home team getting six of them. Dundas started it off on Magee's pass, and Bovin bounced the rubber in twice in short order, alone both times. The crowd cheered as Norwood finally scored one, Lang's hop fooling Lebarr as he shot from a little distance out. Bovin intercepted a pass to job in and bulge the hemp again. Scriber marked another one up for the out-of-towners with a whistling shot in close. Magee got it back a minute later alone, and the same player lifted one over again to King, who didn't miss. Stephenson, of the Combines, snared one just as the last whistle went.

Need More Practice

Several of the visitors looked fair and they all worked hard throughout, but more practice and conditioning are needed to bring the Combines back to their strength of last year. The whole Peterborough outfit looked fine from the goalie out. Lebarr was hard to beat in the net while his defence played well in front of him. Goodfellow checking very effectively. The passing and shooting of the Petes was first-rate, and all the players shared in the victory, with Bovin playing a star game and getting eight goals himself. Dundas, Magee, Shaw and King all were prominent offensively also. No penalties were drawn throughout. The teams:

Norwood—Goal, Rogers; defence, Webb and Fenton; rover, Dodd; centre, Scriver; forwards, Stephenson and Kitchen; spares, McConnell, Puffer, Tedford and Lang.

Peterborough—Goal, W. Lebarr; defence, Goodfellow and Miller; rover, Magee; centre, Dundas; forwards, King and Bovin; spares, Mein, Shaw, Creighton and Palmer.

Referee—Jack Creighton.

Packers Go Into Final Of Injured Players Cup

COMBINATION GOALS DEFEAT DELORO IN SOCCER CUP TIE

Jones and Ross Packers' Marksmen, Brown for Deloro—Visitors Unlucky Around Goal.

PACKERS 3, DELORO 1.

Two splendid combination plays by the Packers over the Deloro aggregation gave them the right to enter the final of the Injured Players Cup, by the score of three to one, before a large attendance of spectators, last night, on King Edward Park.

J. O'Neill, the Deloro custodian, was the outstanding player with his clever clearances. He deserves all the credit because he has never played the code before until this season in three games. G. Stewart and W. Simmons, boys just breaking into the game this season gave an excellent account of themselves and experience is all they need. The Canada Packers had to stretch themselves to keep Deloro from going into the final.

Late Start Off.

Both teams were half an hour late in kicking off. The visitors being the first to become dangerous through their extreme wing men placing deadly centres in front of goal that permitted Brooks to test Griffin at short range. Eventually Buchan connected up-field where his pivot man baffled the opposing defense men, as he travelled into the goal, where he gave the custodian no chance to save. Then O'Neill had a busy session in goal, holding his goal intact as the Packers bombarded his charge from all angles. He conceded some flag kick that proved fruitless when he would fist clear or make a marvellchs clearance in the scrimmages. Quick as a flash, the Deloro forwards went to the other end where Hakin and Asa Downer had their work cut out to prevent a tally being registered. Exchanges continued even for a while until a foul outside the penalty line against N. Downer looked dangerous when William Brown sent a lightning drive into goal. Brooks connected with his cranium at the opportune moment, in an endeavor to beat Griffin, but the latter made a brilliant save in below the cross-bar. The Packers halves checked very closely at this point to feed their forwards in the vicinity of the goal area where Ross, at inside left, dribbled his way close in to pick the corner of the net while the custodian ran out to stop his progress. Just before the interval, O'Neill had the measure of the opposing attack to give away fruitless corner kicks that he fisted out of danger from the opposing team's head. Packers 2, Deloro 0.

Pressed Continuously

On resuming, the forwards introduced the close passing tactics that made the pace fast and furious, with the custodians holding their charges free from danger. Deloro's wing men, Simmons and Stewart, carried the attack along the wings to centre the ball with precision, to Griffin's discomfort, as Brooks and Brown rattled shot after shot that missed by inches. This caused the Packers' halves to indulge in a defensive method, thereby allowing their forwards to make their own openings. Brilliant soccer continued throughout with the players demonstrating the finer points of the issue. A steady pressure by the Deloro aggregation failed to become successful, stead a break away by Newt Downer on the right, finally added another counter as he tore down the wing with two men in close attendance. A long drive from the corner went right across the goal mouth where Eric Jones wiggled his way into a favourable position, to run in close and make it three. Thereafter the visitors bombarded the Packers from every angle. Red Smith substituted from Simmons and harassed the Packers' full backs with his active tactics while in possession of the ball, Brooks going to the right wing where his presence resulted in Griffin showing all he had to keep his citadel clear. Stewart picked a corner with a low grounder. Griffin cleared to find Brown sending another grounder to the far corner. He had a busy session while Deloro were pestering him with bullet drives. Brown on one occasion smashed the cross-bar that was worthy a goal. He was successful on the next visit after a brilliant display of the code. The concluding minutes were in favor of the visitors and the breaks failed to favor them as the final whistle announced the teams' standing, Packers 3, Deloro 1.

Garagemen Defeat Oddfellows 18-17

Closest Game of Year Seen on Lakefield Grounds—Heavy Slugging.

LAKEFIELD, June 2.—(Examiner Correspondence). — The best game in the local softball league was played on Tuesday night when the Central Garage defeated the I.O.O.F. 18-17 in a snappy seven innings fixture which was anybody's game till the end. The scores have been top heavy in the league games and this being close excited lots of interest. The Central Garage had four home runs to their credit. Sam Spence and Frank Payne made one each in the fourth, Marshall Hamblin in the fifth and Harold Hamblin in the sixth. Fred Mortlock made the only homer for the I.O.O.F. in the fourth.

Messrs. Chittick and Blewett handled the game at plate and bases respectively.

The I.O.O.F. were short of some of their stalwarts and recruited from the ranks of the spectators with good results. The enthusiasm was especially keen as the score see-sawed back and forth and the fans got a real evening's entertainment. The line up was as follows:

I.O.O.F.—E. H. Northey, p; O. Carberry, c; R. Moore, 1b; W. Spence, 2b; H. Morrison, 3b; G. Chappell, ss; R. Frankish, rf; R. Tully, lf; F. Mortlock, cf.

Central Garage—W. Walker, p; E. Briant, c; B. Wannamaker, 1b; H. Hamblin, 2b; K. Junkin, 3b; F. Payne, ss; C. Payne, rf; M. Hamblin, lf; S. Spence, cf.

The score by innings was:

BISONS SWEEP HOME SERIES FROM TORONTO

Homers Plentiful as Herd Sluggers Hit Barnes Freely For 14-8 Victory.

4 CIRCUITS FOR ARLETT.

Oriole Outfielder Equals International Record—Skeeters Beat Bears.

(By the Associated Press.)

The current trend of the International League race appears to be a home run battle between the Buffalo Bisons and Baltimore Orioles, and so long as they have big Buzz Arlett slamming them out of the lot the Orioles will be a tough team to get in that line.

Running one-two in the standing both clubs have performed some remarkable feats of four-base clouting during the past few days, but it remained for the ex-Phillie to top all their feats yesterday by equalling the best job of hitting homers that the International League or the majors ever have seen.

Arlett hit a homer in each one of his four official times at bat against Reading yesterday, and almost single-handed gave the Orioles a 14-13 victory over the Keystones and kept them in their post only a game behind Buffalo. He walked and scored the other time he went to the plate, and altogether drove in seven runs.

The only better hitting feat ever recorded in the league was in 1919 when George Kelly of Rochester hit four homers and a double in one game. In the majors, no player has been able to hit more than three homers in a game since Ed. Delehanty connected four times back in 1896.

Nearly Turn Tables.

Despite Arlett's four homers, which brought his total for the year to 20, and four-ply wallops by McGowan and Jordan, the Orioles had a narrow escape when Reading fell on Harry Smythe for seven runs in the sixth inning.

Buffalo, still going in for collective home run hitting and big scores at the expense of Toronto brought its totals for four games against the Leafs up to 68 runs and 15 homers with a 14 to 8 victory, in which Ollie Carnegie hit his 14th homer, George Detore his 13th, and Jack Ryan and Ollie Tucker added another pair.

The home run duel now stands at 80 for Baltimore and 71 for Buffalo, with the Bisons leading 21-18 in the production for four days this week.

A little further down in the standing Rochester came up to tie Newark for fourth place a half game behind Montreal and Jersey City moved into sixth place, passing Toronto through yesterday's victories.

Ray Starr limited Montreal to three hits, while Rochester's Red Wings worked out a 3 to 2 victory, while Eddie Pipgras in a relief role, gave the Jersey Skeeters some fine hurling, and enabled them to stop their Newark neighbors for the third time in four starts by a 6-3 count.

DAILY STAR BEATS EXAMINER 11 TO 5

City Softball League Newcomers Play Errorless Ball to Cop Victory.

The Daily Star, one of this year's additions to the Men's Softball League, started their schedule last night at Central School grounds with a well earned victory over The Examiner nine, the final score being 11-5. The Stars who had not been seen in action yet this season upset the dope by beating the Newsies, who looked pretty good on paper. Last night's game as far as The Examiner was concerned was one error after another, almost every error eventually being the cause of a run. Manager Scates shifted his infield around several times in order to get a winning combination but without success, no combination seemingly being able to click. Both pitchers turned in a nice game with Price a little inclined to be wild at times. Price walked six and struck out the same amount. Mix for the Stars walked one, not striking out any.

Errorless Ball For Stars.

As has been said The Examiner infield was pretty bad, while the Stars' infield was practically airtight. Both outfields were good with O'Toole for the Stars pulling off two spectacular catches which were a treat. Levine nabbed a nice one for the Printers, robbing the Stars of a sure hit. Creighton hit the only home run of the game. The Examiner staged a snappy double play in the sixth, Westbrooke to Board to Hardill.

The Examiner jumped into the lead at the first with a single tally to give way to the Stars in the third when they netted three. This was increased in the fourth when the Stars, helped by two walks and a bunch of errors ended up five more to the good. This lead was cut down by two in the fifth and one in the seventh, which was as far as The Examiner could go. The Stars made their victory more impressive adding three more runs to their already substantial lead, one in their half of the seventh and two in the eighth, to finish the scoring of the game.

Line ups:

Examiner—Creighton, 2b, ss, 3b; Dugan, c; Westbrooke, 3b, ss; Gillespie, of; Hardill, 1b; Levine, lf; Board, ss, 2b; Taylor, rf; Price, p.

Daily Star—Wright, lf; Gray, c; Mix, p; O'Toole, cf; Gainey, 2b; Jones, 2b; R. Clarke, ss; MacDonald, 1b; Wylie, rf.

Score by innings:

TOEY IBEY ON COBOURG MOUND C. O. B. L. OPENER

Will Likely Oppose Kitchen or Holmes in Saturday's Game.

C.O.B.L. OPENER HERE.

Toey Ibey will likely do the flinging for Cobourg when that team opens the Central League season in Peterborough Saturday afternoon at Stevenson Park. The husky hockey and ball star twirled a great game at Kingston last week, errors by his teammates accounting for the 3-2 loss at the hands of the champions. In case Ibey is not ready to go on the rubber so soon, the flashy Hoot Gibson will start for the Lakeshore troup.

Manager Art Primeau is uncertain yet whom his selection for hurling duty will be. Both Russ Kitchen and Ernie Holmes are ready to go on, and the veteran Al Heckman has been getting in trim and should be in fair shape now. However, the game should be a real old-time local senior opening affair.

ADDED FIELD STRENGTH.

A. Johnson, E. Evans, K. Kearney and E. Roberts Are Stars for Winner.

The Park Hill maidens, making their debut in the Girls' City and District Softball League, were the star performers last night at the East City Bowl where they met and vanquished the well-balanced Brinton Carpet team by the score of 26 to 14, in a slugging contest that was featured by five home runs and several three base clouts.

The winners, who last year performed under the name of Rovers, have the same battery but have added strength in the outfield and at short. The rest of the infield played clever ball which showed that they have practised diligently, while in the base running the entire team was the best seen this season.

The Brintons certainly had an "off" night and from start to finish failed to click with any marked degree of success, with the exception of Eileen Pilling, Grace Fields and Irene Sturgeon, all of whom played clever ball. Olive Prest started on the mound for this team, but was taken out in the fourth after the Kearney team had pushed eight tallies across. Margaret Snowden then took over the duties but ran into difficulties at once by filling the bases with free passes when two were down. Madge MacFarlane, catching, saved the day by spearing a high foul to retire the side. After this the winners took kindly to the Brinton hurler's offerings and batted in eighteen runs.

Pitches Sterling Ball

Audrey Johnson pitched a splendid game for the winners and although the Carpet Makers bunched their hits, her teammates usually came through at critical periods with neat fielding plays. E. Evans in right was the fielding star with a perfect night on five chances, while K. Kearney behind the plate and E. Roberts at second were also good.

E. Hodson led the losers with the willow, slamming out a homer and a triple while her teammates, I. Sturgeon and M. MacFarlane each secured circuit clouts.

Circuit Clouts

B. Flannery and E. Roberts poled out homers for the Park Hill team while the latter player also made a triple. M. English, clever shortstop for the same team, connected for two doubles, one coming in the sixth frame with the bases loaded.

The teams:

Park Hill—K. Kearney, c; A. Johnson, p; B. Flannery, 1b; J. Playford, lf; E. Evans, rf; M. English, ss; M. Kearney, cf; E. Roberts, 2b; L. Trollope, 3b.

Brinton Carpet—E. Pilling, cf; I. Sturgeon, 1b; O. Prest, p; M. Snowden, p; B. Curtis, lf; G. Fields, 3b; M. MacFarlane, c; L. Heffernan, 2b; E. Hodson, ss; F. Pavey, 2b; M. Whitmore, rf.

Umpires—Jim Coursey and "Scotty" Maudsley.

CONTINENTALS DEFEAT WOOLER

Failure to Bunch Hits Accounts for Wooler Team's 7-1 Setback.

A PITCHERS' DUEL.

(Examiner Correspondence)

WOOLER, June 2. — The final game of the first half of the schedule of the Trenton Softball League was reserved for two teams among whom intense but friendly rivalry has been maintained during the past as well as the present season; namely the Wooler Leafs and the Continental Life.

The Continental Life won by a large margin, the score being 7-1, due to the Leafs' failure to bat in the runs when a hit would have made the score look different. Both the Leafs and the Continental Life have been having a losing streak, but it looks as if the latter team has started winning. They plays had the same snap, precision and accuracy with which they topped this league last year and which carried them so far into the Ontario finals. The Leafs after a few preliminary but costly errors played airtight ball when they were in the field, but fell down badly in wielding the bat.

The Continental Life scored a run on the first ball pitched to them and that doesn't mean a homer either. Their first batter hit the ball to second baseman who missed it, making a bad error and while the ball rolled out to the outfield the batter raced home. This shook the Leafs' morale and they scored four runs in the first two innings. The only homer of the game was by a Continental player and it came in the last inning with one on the bases.

The Leafs got their run and most of their hits in the sixth frame. Sager was the star of the game, allowing only four hits and having eight strikeouts. He was opposed by "Scup" Free who allowed a small amount of hits considering that the Continentals are a hard-hitting team. It was a pitcher's battle with both pitchers twirling airtight ball.

Lineups:

Continental Life—Larry, ss; Cook, cf; Johnston, lf; Jordan, 1b; Ruttan, rf; Bowden, 3b; Wemyss, 2b; Kidd, c; Sager, p.

Leafs—C. Ruttan, 3b; W. Reid, lf; Whitney, 1b; Stacey, 2b; Davy, rf; Redcliffe, ss; G. Ruttan, cf; A. Putnam, ss; L. Free, p.

Umpires—J. Lewis at the plate with A. Scarlett calling the bases.

Score by innings:

Continental Life	220 001 2—7
Leafs	000 001 0—1

OSHAWA DUKES WIN.

TORONTO, June 2.—The Oshawa "Dukes" scored their fifth straight victory at the expense of the champion New Toronto aggregation last night at the Goodyear Field, 8 to 5, in a West Toronto Baseball League twilight game, which attracted only a fair crowd, due to a steady drizzle during the entire game.

CASUAL COMMENT

The Brinton girls took it on the chin at the Bowl last night, the revamped Rovers—going under the monicker of Park Hill this season—outslugged and outplayed them for a fairly easy win. The girls' loop is made up of half a dozen well-matched teams, and the scramble down the stretch will likely prove interesting.

Daily Stars made the Examiner softballers like it at Central last night to the air of 11-5. The former squad looked smart, but the Examiner infield fell down badly and the whole crew was shaky. In fact, one might say there was a flock of typographical errors by the Pressmen's inner defence. However, it's one bad game out of their systems, and just goes to show that anything may happen this year in the fast men's circuit.

• • • • • • •

The pendulum swung back last night in the Petes' direction, and the Norwood Combines returned home with the shrunken side of a 20-5 lacrosse score against them. Last fall, the Peterborough intermediate players decided they'd give the box lacrosse game a try or two. They gave it several, down in Norwood, but took a nice drubbing every time. But all that was forgotten at the Brock last night as a much stronger local team sifted through that same Norwood outfit to put the ball in the end pocket no less than twenty times.

• • • • • • •

The Combines played below form at that, and a couple of weeks' practise and conditioning will make a world of difference. Still, the Petes will be hard to take this year. Led by Bovin, a strong scoring threat, they've built up a smart team which looks pretty good in every department. They'll be playing with Campbellford and Norwood in this district's O. A. L. A. grouping, and a meeting will be held in the latter place on Monday to get things started.

• • • • • • •

There wasn't a big crowd on hand last night. That means local sports followers haven't seen box lacrosse played yet or they'd be out regularly. It's a sport that sells itself with its speed, hard checking, and thrills. Action moves speedily as there are no offsides and very few stops made by the referee. When played by two experienced and finished intermediate teams, well, it's certainly worth watching.

The girls' softball fixture at the Bowl to-night is between Westclox and C.G.E., while C.N.R. meets Deck's in the men's game at Central. The former one starts at six, with the latter due to get under way at 6.15. Why not try to get these games started sharp on time? Lately, they've been anywhere from ten to twenty minutes late, and there's no saying what time they'll be starting in another week, unless checked up.

• • • • • • •

To-morrow evening at the Brock, a fine fight program will be staged by Charles Hallat, Toronto promoter. Five good professional bouts make up this card, featuring several pugs known in fistic circles in Canada and the States. Grande, the great Filipino feather, will share the spotlight with Jack Dane, hard-hitting lightheavy, who has a big local following. Those who like watching the scrappers who battle for their pork chops in action can't do better than take in this show to-morrow.

And Saturday afternoon, if old Jupiter Pluvius just gives us a break, the big baseball day of the year arrives. Opening day for the seniors! The ball fans will be out in force that day as the players, Petes and Cobourg parade behind a band over to Stevenson Park and pry off the lid for the home season. And what a difference the fans will see in this year's team! We've got a winning outfit this season, or so it seems now, and they should beat Cobourg here unless Hoot Gibson or Toey Ibey turns them back with great pitching.

• • • • • • •

The senior club is putting out schedules which may be obtained without charge from the following places: Capitol Theatre, My Valet, Pete Gosselin's Tobacco Shop, Selkirk's Men's Shop, Canadian Departmental Stores, and Quaker Oats. They'll be ready on Friday, and on each schedule will be a number printed which, if drawn at any home game, will entitle the holder, if he or she is at the game, to two free tickets for the next senior contest here. A number will be drawn at each game.

Yes, sir, this is quite a sporting town, particularly in the summer. Recently, through the co-operation of the various leagues and sport officials here and the Sports Department of this paper, we have been able to increase the sports section of The Examiner to three pages, and expect to continue at that. And we've been getting the latest telegraph sport dispatches in the paper, just as complete as in the Toronto evening papers, and out on the streets four hours ahead of them.

• • • • • • •

Just to show you how our sports news compares with that being read in a town the size of Toronto, here are some figures. Yesterday, one of the Toronto morning papers had 349 inches of news on their sport pages, the other morning paper had 404, while one evening paper carried 278 inches on their sport pages, and the other evening sheet had 312. On The Examiner's sport pages of May 30th, we had sport news amounting to just 414 inches. Yeah, a real sporting town, this!

Percy Williams Is Rounding Into Shape

VANCOUVER, June 2. (CP) In better trim than he has been since he ran his world record 100 metres at Toronto in 1930, Percy Williams, Olympic sprint champion, has arrived back in Vancouver after a training session with Hec Edmundson and his University of Washington track hopefuls in Seattle.

Percy was on the job at Brockton Point yesterday and went through his paces under the eye of trainer Bob Granger.

Granger figures that Percy will have reached his top form by the time the Olympiad rolls around.

A's IN FOURTH PLACE.

Senators Gain Second Position by 2-1 Verdict Over Boston Club.

(By Gayle Talbot—A.P. Sports Writer).

Rival American League managers can sit back now and cease worrying about the Philadelphia Athletics.

All spring Joe McCarthy, Walter Johnson, Bucky Harris and the others have worn a troubled expression every time the A's were mentioned. Even when Connie Mack's club loked its worst, which was frequently, the boys didn't like to discuss the subject.

They greatly feared it was all a mistake, that they would waken some fine morning to find they had been dreaming. In other words, it was tough on their nervous systems.

Therefore, their probable relief to-day that everything was all right again, that the elephants were coming right along. A perusal of the standing, in fact, revealed the elephants practically had arrived.

By knocking off the leading Yankees twice yesterday, 8 to 7 in 11 innings and 7 to 6 in a regulation 9-rounder, the Mackmen pushed into the big middle of the flag fight and wrapped the first division up tighter than a new drum. In fourth place, they were only four games back of the Yanks and one game behind the second-place Washington Senators, with the Detroit Tigers somewhere in between. The A's had won seven of their last nine games.

Yesterday's twin triumph, scored after five hours and 35 minutes of battling, was a thriller all the way. Max Bishop, on whom waivers were rumored to have been asked two weeks ago, won the opener with a home run in the last of the 16th. The nightcap was almost a duplicate, Jimmie Foxx supplying the winning runs with a circuit blow in the seventh.

Washington eased into second place by virtue of a hard-won 2 to 1 verdict over Boston, while Detroit was being rained out at St. Louis. Lloyd Brown registered his sixth win for the Senators when he blanked the Red Sox until the ninth inning.

Cub Lead Reduced.

The Chicago Cubs, facing a long road trip, saw their lead over the idle Boston Braves reduced to two games in the National League when they were whitewashed by Dizzy Dean of the Cardinals, 1 to 0. Dean notified by Manager Gabby Street he was overdue with his bright, young promise, held the Cubs to five hits.

The Phillies rallied against Bill Walker to score three runs in the eighth, beat the Giants 4 to 2, and send John McGraw's troupe tumbling into last place. Pittsburg and Cincinnati had an off day.

ASKS PRESS TO ASSIST RAISING OLYMPIC FUNDS

NEW YORK, June 2 (C.P.). — Dan Ferris, secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union, has put forward a plan designed to enlist the help of United States newspapers in raising the $300,000 necessary to support this country's athletes at the international games in Los Angeles this summer. So far, only about $35,000 of the total sum has been subscribed.

Ferris suggests that the newspapers of every large city promote contests to determine the most popular schoolboys between the ages of 13 and 17, awarding to each winner as a prize a free trip to the Olympic Games.

Senior Club Head

J. A. BELL.

The hustling young president of the local Senior Baseball Club, Jack Bell, is confident the Petes will go through to the C.O.B.J. title this year. Since coming here from Picton, where he played ball, Mr. Bell has worked hard for the game in Peterborough and had considerable to do with bringing Cobourg, which team plays here Saturday, into the league this year.

DRIVER UNINJURED BELLEVILLE SPILL

Burns McKane Thrown Into Tree During Harness Horse Race.

BELLEVILLE, June 2.—The harness horse season was opened in Eastern Ontario yesterday when the Belleville Agricultural Society held their yearly meet with three well-filled classes before one of the largest crowds in some years. There was only one accident to mar the afternoon sport, Jack Theobald going through the fence in the second heat of the 2.22 class when a hopple broke. The driver, Burns McKane, who will team Toll Gate in all his engagements this year, was thrown clear and landed in a tree, none the worse for his accident other than being badly shaken up. He was able to drive later in the afternoon.

Vic Rowntree of Weston took down the lion's share of the awards with two firsts, being closely followed by Louis Bennett of Port Hope, with a first, two seconds and a third. Rowntree was in the pilot house behind Miss Chillicooth, Dr. Cohen's good stake trotter, and Lady Isobel, the trotter getting down in front in the 2.16 class, and the mare winning the 2.12 class after four heats. Mr. Bennett piloted home his stallion Saint Charles in the 2.22 class, with Peter Greatworth also from the same stable being in the second hole.

CONFERENCE AT GRAFTON

Mission and Baby Band Gathering Held in Interests of Cobourg Presbyterial.

INTERESTING MEETING.

FENELLA, June 2. — (Examiner Correspondence). — A Mission and Baby Band conference, in the interests of the bands of the Cobourg Presbyterial of the United Church of Canada, was held in Grafton United Church on Friday, May 27. Mrs. R. Duffin, Cobourg, Presbyterial band secretary, conducted the conference.

Morning session opened at ten o'clock. The opening exercises were conducted by Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Maybee and Mrs. Snelgrove, of Brighton. Mrs. Brown had charge of the Scripture talk, speaking of the responsibilities of leaders in saving souls. She impressed the gathering with the importance of the work of all those who are leading in young people's activities.

After the opening exercises, Mrs. A. Gill, Fenella, and Mrs. A. G. Mann, Baltimore, were appointed a courtesy committee. Mrs. J. W. Roberts, Grafton, gave the address of welcome, which was responded to by Mrs. Hilton Eagleson, of Bethesda South. Mrs. Roberts in her address spoke of the W.M.S. as a "great beautiful motherhood" to younger organizations engaged in missionary activities.

Mrs. Rowland, of Stirling, Mission Band and Baby Band secretary for the Bay of Quinte branch, was the special speaker. In her talk she gave a bird's-eye view of the work that is being done in other Presbyterials in the Bay of Quinte branch as well as the Cobourg Presbyterial.

Luncheon was served by the Grafton Mission Band.

Mrs. J. T. Means, Port Hope, first vice-president of the Cobourg Presbyterial, conducted the devotional period at the opening of the afternoon session. Mrs. Means urged her hearers to remember they were co-workers with God. "Our task," said the speaker, "is carrying the gospel and proclaiming the truth to those who know Him not."

Mrs. Rowland conducted a round table conference where many problems in connection with Mission Band and Baby Band work were solved, as the gathering indulged in lively discussions and produced many questions regarding all phases of this work.

Mrs. W. J. Garland, Cobourg, third vice-president of the Bay of Quinte branch, in a paper on the various plans that are being made to promote world peace, made a stirring appeal to all those engaged in young people's work, to stress the truth on every possible occasion of the vital importance of world peace.

Mrs. Stevens, of Cobourg, favored the audience at both sessions with vocal solos and uplifted her hearers with her songs.

Billie McLaughlin, young son of Rev. and Mrs. McLaughlin, Grafton, who has been successful in winning first place in several oratorical contests, delighted the gathering with his address, "A Trip Through Northumberland County."

As the branch meeting is to be held at Cobourg in 1933, it was decided by motion not to hold a band conference next year.

Representatives were present from Port Hope, Cobourg, Baltimore, Bethesda South, Camborne, Colborne, Brighton, Grafton, Centreton and Fenella.

After the report of the courtesy committee was given a hymn, "Blest be the Tie That Binds," was sung and Mrs. J. W. Roberts, Grafton, dismissed the gathering with prayer.

Ontario May Annex Anglican Section

KINGSTON, Ont., June 2.—Possibility of the annexation of a section of the Diocese of Toronto which includes Peterborough and Port Hope to the Diocese of Ontario, was considered at the morning session of the Anglican Synod in St. George's Hall. A motion by Canon A. L. McTear was passed, recommending the appointment of a committee by the Lord Bishop of Ontario to consider the question.

In the presentation of the report of the investment committee, it was shown that the committee found great difficulty in getting in money due as interest on mortgages.

"Men who never failed us before have had to ask for an extension of time in which to pay, and this falling off in interest received accounts for the fact that we were only able to pay 4½% for 1931," it said.

What To-Day Means To You

By Mary Blake
"GEMINI"

If June 2nd is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a.m. to 9 a.m., from 3:30 p.m. to 4.45 p.m., and from 8 p.m. to 9.15 p.m. The danger periods are from 11 a.m. to 12.35 p.m., and from 5 p.m. to 6.40 p.m.

A consistently fortunate day is augured for June 2nd, and even fumblers and novices may expect success from their efforts. Young people celebrating this birth date may anticipate favorable results from important school examinations or competitive athletic sports and games. Romantic episodes will be found lurking in queer places.

Children born on this June 2nd will be undemonstrative and unobtrusive little individuals. Sincerity will be the dominant note of their character, and frankness will be stamped on their faces. They will keep their own counsel, and will never tattle on a friend. They will possess both passion and feeling, which they will endeavor to keep well hidden.

You, if born on June 2nd, have the courage nothing can intimidate, the trust that never loses faith, a sweetness which cannot be turned to bitterness. You are passionately fond of beauty, but you seldom allow your feelings any outlet of expression— your heart may be full, but your face is a mask. Your imagination takes you up in the clouds, but there is a grain of practicability in your make-up which enables you to descend from your dizzy heights, and face the material present. You tackle your work with verve and originality; hating half-measures, you are inclined to overdo yourself.

You are immune to the "prickles of perpetual vexation," and are keenly aware that with a touch of humor and a little imagination, worries and grievances can be met with a jest. You have all the charm of a sincere and natural manner, and are usually in great demand in social circles. You are more of a listener than a talker, and possess the gift of attracting speech from others and drawing out ideas.

You are a great lover of home life, and although you delight in adventures and travel, you are always pleased to return to your own fireside and old circle of friends.

NOT DOG ALONE WHO INTERFERES WITH FLOWERS

Miss Marshall Saunders Addresses Convention Banquet.

ILLUSTRATED TALK.

A banquet formed the program for last night of the twelfth annual meeting and convention of the Ontario Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Held at the Empress Hotel, and attended by about eighty people, it was featured by an address given by Miss Marshall Saunders of Toronto, author of "Beautiful Joe" and other stories of animal life, also a brief address by Lt. Col. Charles Ackerman, past president of the Peterborough branch of the society, and a short musical program.

The fine repass, served in the hotel's usual excellent style, was opened with Grace asked by the Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr.

Colonel Ackerman's short talk was pithy and interesting. The love of the Anglo-Saxon for good sportsmanship was, he said, the basis for work of the humane type among dumb animals "who never change."

"The sooner we get back to the simple things of life" asserted the speaker, "the sooner will this old world regain its equilibrium and among those simple things can be counted the dumb animals who gives us such affection and devotion."

Referring to those who find fault with dogs and are justified in their complaints at times, Colonel Ackerman said, however, that it is not the dog alone that interferes with flower beds. "Some people do that too."

The speaker thanked Lt. Col. Tamblyn of Kingston for his attendance at the convention, and for the interest which prompts him to offer for Humane activities a portion of the proceeds of the sale of his book, "The Horse in War."

Illustrated Talk

Miss Marshall Saunders repeated her address entitled "How Some Animals and Birds Resemble Human Beings" which was given here in April and was fully reported at that time. It was illustrated by a series of interesting slides which served to demonstrate the theme of the address.

They were slides from pictures taken by the speaker's sister over a period of time, showing just how Miss Saunders and her family always regarded their dumb friends of furred an dfeathered type, in birds, dogs, cats and even toads.

Miss Saunders described her cat and toad hospitals and boarding houses and showed just how easy it is to get a bird to do as you tell it, if you know how.

Miss Saunders, with characteristic friendliness, alluded to the energetic work in Humane Society endeavors done by one of the senior delegates to the convention, Mrs. Stephenson of Toronto, who was given the honours of the gathering.

Speaking in prelude to her illustrated address, Miss Saunders alluded to the work done by birds in keeping down the pest of obnoxious insects, and also spoke of the task of perpetuating live birds rather than storing them up, when dead, in museums. She referred especially to the extinction of many valuable types, such as the Labrador duck and the Eskimo curlew, for lack of such efforts.

The address was much appreciated and the speaker received the thanks of the gathering, interpreted by Colonel Ackerman, at its close.

The program included a very appropriate reading, splendidly recitated by Miss Viola Payton, who told the story of the faithful collie dog, in 'Beyond the Blue" with a brief encore in "How the War was Settled."

Miss Sophie Yeates gave a very Pretty toe dance in colorful rose costume, and a clever tap dance was presented by Miss Thelma Buller and Miss Isabel Duffus.

The banquet was attended by three representatives of the City Council, Alderman R. S. Cotton, Alderman D. J. Holland and Alderman Nagle Phelan.

GUITAR STUDENTS FEATURE PROGRAM

Conservatory Recital By Miss Ludbrook's Pupils.

A very interesting recital of Hawaiian guitar music was presented in the hall of the Conservatory of Music last night, by pupils of Miss Helen Ludbrook, assisted by Russell Rowan, pianist, from the studio of R. Gliddon, and Miss Norma Fair of Whitby Ladies' College, soloist.

The hall was artistically decorated with masses of lilacs, tulips and ferns, with the stage background of black and silver. There was a large and appreciative audience.

At the conclusion of the program Miss Ludbrook was presented with a beautiful bouquet of American Beauty roses, the gift of her pupils, the flowers being presented by little Ardyth Richardson.

The pupils played a very entertaining and skilfully presented program of lovely Hawaiian music, showing splendid training and interest in their work. Mr. Rowan played with fine expression and depth of tone, displaying much technical ability and Miss Fair's numbers were much enjoyed and splendidly rendered.

The program was as follows: Orchestra selection by the class, "Spanish Fandango" played by Marguerite Woods, Pearl Elliott, Helen Lillico, Lena Milne, Violet McNevin, Mrs. Turner, Cecil Montgomery, Max Graham, Keith Walsh, Mr. Trainer, Kenneth Sanderson, W. Holgate, S. Lawrence, S. Bowen, Harry Bluett, Clement Reed of Omemee, Dorothy Rollins; guitar solos, "Let Me Call You Sweetheart" and "On the Beach at Waikiki", by Max Graham; guitar quartette, "When the Moon Comes Over the Mountain" by Helen Lillico, Helen Ludbrook, Mr. Holgate and Mr. Lawrence; vocal solos, "Your Song from Paradise" and "Little Coon's Prayer" by Miss Norma Fair, accompanied by Mrs. Ludbrook; guitar solos, "Sleepy Valley" and "Down the River of Golden Dreams" by Harry Bluett; guitar solo "In the Garden" by Miss Ludbrook; guitar solos, "Pua Waltz" and "Pagan Love Song" by Keith Walsh; guitar selection, "Home, Sweet Home" by Pearl Elliott, Lena Milne, Mrs. Turner, Miss Ludbrook and Violet McNvin; piano solos, "On Wings of Song" Mendelsohn and "Country Garden" (Percy Grainger) by Russel Rowan; guitar quartet "My Wild Irish Rose" by Helen Lillico, Miss Ludbrook, Mr. Lawrence and Mr. Holgate; guitar solo, "Aloha Oe" by Clement Reeds of Omemee; guitar selection, "My Bonny", by George Bowen, Keith Walsh, Max Graham, Marguerite Woods and Miss Helen Ludbrook; piano solo, Waltz by Mosskowski, played by Russell Rowan; selection, "The Rosary" by Kathleen Ludbrook (tenor banjo), S. Lawrence and W. Holgate, accompanied by Mrs. Ludbrook; guitar solos, "Song in Hawaii" and "Don't Sing Aloha When You Go" by Marguerite Woods; guitar selection, "One, Two, Three, Four" by the ensemble of musicians.

ADVERTISING for the MERCHANT of TO-DAY

Conducted by HAROLD S. EDGAR
A series of weekly articles on advertising and merchandising prepared for the merchants of Peterborough district with the co-operation of The Peterborough Examiner.

More About Copy

In our further discussion on copy, let us consider in more detail the separate parts of an advertisement. The heading must compel interest, immediately attracting the reader's attention, and making him desirous of reading the balance of your advertisement.

A headline of a few words properly selected is more efficient than a long one. The head is usually set in a larger type than the text.

Type sizes used vary with the number of columns, the depth of advertisement, amount of text, and the length of the message. Type faces express certain characteristics, and if you study these faces you can pick a type which will suit your own particular business. Use this type for all your advertisements so that your advertisements will have a continuity of style.

To show samples of all the sizes would take too much room, but you can obtain proofs of the sizes from the advertising department of The Examiner.

In writing heading consider that:

A short headline delivers a fast message. Lines of the head pressed closely together make the message hard to read, like condensed type.

Use white space above, below and at the sides of the head. Do not separate the lines of the head by white space out of proportion to the space between the headline and the text.

Keep the thought of the headline in itself. A better head is obtained by using capitals and lower case rather than all capitals. Pick your type to fit your business.

Do not confuse the reader by tricky and fancy display in heads.

The headline must stand out on the page. This does not mean that large type be used. The proper balance and use of plenty of white space is more effective in attracting attention.

Four styles of setting are as follows:

The step head:

Herringbone Weave Features These New Dressing Robes

This style is difficult to handle in single column width because of the narrowness of the space.

The pyramid and inverted pyramid heads:

Healthy Chicks Mean Better Fowls and Will your Easter Clothes Be Only Half-Cleaned?

These heads are effective on one or more columns and in two or three lines.

The square head:

Many Interesting Dining Suites Specially Priced

Each line is flush at left and right. Two lines are sufficient. This head can be accomodated in one column.

A heading breaking into the border or illustration:

Real Good Values In the Men's Dept. For Dad and the Boys

A long head reading through.

Some examples of headings picked at random

Practicality

A difficult word to pronounce and of uncertain meaning.

Smartness for Easter

Would be better:

Smartness for Easter

Fatigued? Try Life Savers.

An arresting question — a command.

Get Ready for Easter

Good—suggestive—timely.

Four Helps to a Perfect Evening

The illustration placed at the left ran partly through the first word, and made an effective tie up.

These New Values Will Make New Friends!

A whole advertisements in the heading.

Mr. Edgar will be glad to answer questions in this column, if readers will address their communications in care of this paper. Confidential replies can be arranged through the editor.—(Copyright).

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION. NO. 16 By Edgar Rice Burroughs
(Metropoli tan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

As Tarzan approached, he heard the crashing of underbrush and the voices of men. Bolgani, the gorilla, was fleeing with greater haste than caution, thinking only of escape from the terrifying thunder-stick of the Tarmangani. Abandoning his usual wariness he hurried through the jungle and chanced to pass directly underneath a tree wherein lay coiled a great python.

The snake was disturbed both by the crashing sounds of pursuit and the roaring voice of Stimbol's rifle. Now, upon the full grown bull-gorilla the python launched his relentless coils, quickly encircling Bolgani, who strove desperately to tear away the slippery folds. But he was borne to earth beneath a living force that held him helpless.

It was on this scene that Stimbol and Tarzan came at the same moment. Moving as ever silently, the ape-man had remained hidden in the middle foliage whence he looked down upon the tragic scene beneath him. At once he understood th disaster that had overtaken the gorilla. Then he saw Stimbol raise his rifle, intent upon bagging two royal specimens with a single shot.

In Tarzan's heart was no great love for the gorilla. Since his childhood the shaggy man-beasts had been the natural foe of the ape-man and his tribe. But now when he saw the brute hard pressed by two enemies, there rose within Tarzan a sudden pity for the beast fighting without a chance. Before Stimbol could fire his weapon, Tarzan dropped upon his back, felling him to the ground.

JAPAN INTENDS NO WAR THREAT AGAINST SOVIET

Viscount Saito, Japanese Premier, Explains His Country's Position.

NO WAR DANGER.

Asserts That Japan Will Maintain Open Door in Manchuria.

(By Glenn Babb)

(Copyrighted, 1932, by the A.P.)

TOKYO, June 2.—Viscount Minoru Saito, Japanese Premier and Foreign Minister, asserted to-day in a written statement, that there is absolutely no danger of war between his country and Soviet Russia.

"The Japanese Government has stated repeatedly that no danger of war with the Soviet Union exists," he said. "The attitude of the Soviet Government respecting affairs in Manchuria has been perfectly correct, and we only wish that the Soviet Government might see a way to repost such a further measure of confidence in Japan's sincerity as would enable the Soviet Union to discontinue all concentration of troops in the Far East.

Unfounded Rumors

"This concentration, the Japanese Government believes, is the real source of recent unfounded rumors of dissension between our two countries.

"At the same time, it is feared that the effect of concluding a non-aggression treaty with the Soviet Union would be to weaken the force of the Kellogg-Briand Pact and to cast a shadow on Japan's relations with every other State with which no non-aggression treaty existed....

Legitimate Interest

"The interests which the Soviet Union may have in the Chinese Eastern Railway we do not believe to militate in any way against Japan's legitimate interests in Manchuria, where the policy of the open door is in full force and where full effect should be accorded to every vested interest of whatever national complexion. For these reasons it is not considered desirable that Japan should acquire any interests possessed by others in the Chinese Eastern Railway.

"The Japanese Government adheres firmly to the principle of the open door with equal opportunity for all nations in Manchuria. No customs union or economic federation between Japan and Manchuria is even contemplated. . . .

"Annexation of Manchuria certainly is not desired nor does Japan wish to control in any illegimate way the policy of the Manchoukuo authorities. She desires only to obtain from them satisfaction of her rights and interests in the regions under their control.

"The question of sending more Japanese troops to Manchuria depends entirely upon circumstances. Here again it is obviously impossible to prophesy nor is it possible to say how long military operations there may be continued."

NO NEED OF ALARM.

MONTREAL, June 2. — Nobody need fear that the St. Lawrence waterway is going to be deepened in too great a hurry, Charles Stewart, former Minister of the Interior, stated here to-day. He thought any immediate development of the river would be confined to those portions of the waterway where Hydro-Electric possibilities existed.

L.O.L. PLANNING NEW BUILDING

Acquired Property on Brock Street in 1914—Work Delayed.

PLANS APPROVED.

Depending upon the outcome of a financial campaign which the City of Peterborough district Orange Lodges are about to launch there is every prospect that work will be commenced early next Fall on the erection of a new Orange Hall on the property now occupied by a dwelling house at 184 Brock street, according to Associate Deputy Grand Master of Ontario East, E. F. Reid, who is chairman of the committee.

In an interview with The Examiner this morning Mr. Reid stated, 'I would say that property for such a building was purchased in 1914, just before the outbreak of the War."

Since that time he remarked any attempt to finance a building such as that now contemplated had been out of the question. A few years ago the Orangemen secured an option on the property which they now occupy, but they were no sooner settled there than the depression came along, giving a "knock-out" to that proposition at least for the time being, he said.

Two months ago the house which stands on Orange property at Brock street was partially burned To make thep roperty again habitable would cost more than the trustees felt justified in spending. Accordingly, the members of the Order were forced into a situation for which they were not wholly prepared.

Plans Approved

To tear the property down and build a new hall under present conditions was also formerly considered inadvisable due to the state of the finances on hand, so in order to arrive at a decision, Mr. Reid said a committee was appointed to get estimates on the probable cost of a suitable new building. In order to carry out their work the committee decided that a proper set of plans were necessary and authorized John T. Hornsby, architect to prepare a sketch of the proposed building. Later the committee decided the plans should be drawn up into a working drawing with proper specifications written up. The plans have now been approved by the members of the City of Peterborough District Lodges, for a hall suitable to the existing needs of the order and for the location in which it is proposed to erect the building.

"As far as the actual going ahead with the erection of the building is concerned" Mr. Reid explained "that will depend largely on the outcome of a financial canvas of the many members of the Order and their friends during the next few weeks."

He remarked that the Orange Order very seldom made an appeal for financial assistance to their friends, but having in mind the many demands being made for assistance and the fact that many members are on reduced working schedules and salaries, the committee feels that if the members will pledge themselves to about half of the present necessary funds the work could go ahead on the new building in the early Fall.

Mr. Reid declined to discuss the cost of the contemplated structure, which, in its completed state would be a two-storey building with basement having an approximate frontage of 35 feet and extending in depth from Brock street through to the rear of the Murray street Baptist church property.

He mooted the possibility that in the event that the whole scheme could not be carried through at once for some reason or other, it was probable the Order could see its way to go ahead with the building of the basement and first storey so that the second storey could be added at some later date.

BIG CELEBRATION GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Poast, of Omemee, 50 Years Married.

CHURCH MEETINGS.

OMEMEE, June 2 (Examiner Correspondence).—Mr. and Mrs. Richard Poast, highly esteemed citizens of Omemee, celebrated the golden anniversary of their wedding on Monday, May 30.

Mr. Poast was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Francis Poast, and was born on the Fourteenth Concession of Cavan Township over seventy years ago. Mrs. Poast, whose maiden name was Elizabeth Balfour, was the eldest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Balfour. They were united in marriage by the Rev. Edward Barass, pastor of the Omemee Methodist Church on May 30th, 1882. They settled on a farm in close proximity to their old homes, about four miles south of Omemee, where by ardous toil and careful management they made a great success of their undertaking.

The Children.

Four daughters and two sons were born of this union, all of whom received a good education, which enables them to fill a place of responsibility in life. The living are Mrs. P. H. Coad, Mrs. Elvin Leard and Winnifred Poast of Saskatoon, Sask.; Mrs. Melville Lethangue of Ballyduff and Orman Poast of London. Roy, the youngest of the family, at the age of 17, while attending Toronto University, heard his country's call and enlisted in the Great War, and paid the supreme sacrifice.

There are also eight grandchildren. Mr. and Mrs. Poast were brought up in Christian homes, where the old time Methodist religion was preached, and daily practised. They were both members of the former Methodist Church, and later entered into the United Church, Omemee. They are still very regular in their attendance at church, and very seldom miss either the morning or evening worship on Sunday.

Retired From Farm.

Thirteen years ago Mr. and Mrs. Poast disposed of their farm and moved to the village and built for themselves a comfortable home, where they have since lived a retired life. Both are in very good health and quite active in household and church duties.

Mr. and Mrs. Poast received at their home both afternoon and evening, when about 140 friends and relatives called to extend congratulations and good wishes. Mrs. Robt. Bannan, of Omemee, a sister of Mrs. Poast, and the bridesmaid of fifty years ago, assisted in receiving.

The guests were received at the door by their grand-daughter, Barbara Poast, and after signing the register in charge of a grandson, Keith Lethangue, were taken into the drawing-room, which was tastefully decorated.

The tea table in the dining-room looked very pretty with a lace cloth and in the centre a three-story wedding cake daintily decorated in gold, tea roses in bud vases and yellow candles in silver holders added beauty to the arrangement. Mrs. J. Bushnel and Mrs. W. Connell poured tea, and those assisting in tea-room were Mrs. Oral Grandy, Mrs. A. Stinson, Lily Race, Mrs. Lethangue and Mrs. O. Poast, Mrs. Balfour being in charge.

Besides, a number of other beautiful gifts, Mr. and Mrs. Poast were the recipients of a Sparton radio from members of their family. Among the many bouquets of flowers that were sent was 50 marigolds from the United Church.

Those who attended the golden wedding, who were at the wedding 50 years ago, were: Mrs. R. Bannon, Mr. S. Connell, Mrs. T. C. Ivory, Mrs. W. Connell, Mr. Robt. Balfour, Mr. S. Stinson.

The members of the family who attended were: Mr. and Mrs. Orman Poast and daughter Barbara, of London, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. Melville Lethangue and three boys, Keith, Neil and Rea, of Ballyduff.

It was deeply regretted that the other members of the family from the West could not be present to help celebrate this important event.

Out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. J. Seymour, Fairmount; Mr. and Mrs. W. Seymour, Fairmount; Mr. and Mrs. S. Stinson, Janetville; Mr. Chas. McCaffrey, Windsor; Rev. Geo. McQuade, of Oshawa; Mr. A. Byers and Mr. S. Rowland of Toronto; Dr. and Mrs. Irvine, Dr. and Mrs. C. Laidley, Mr. and Mrs. I. Laidley, Mrs. Staples and Miss Alma Irwine, R. Stinson and Mrs. D. Balfour of Lindsay; Mr. and Mrs. K. Griffin and Mrs. A. Mills of Bobcaygeon and the Rev. W. Smith.

Women's Association.

The regular monthly meeting of the Omemee Women's Association of Trinity United Church was held in the basement of the church on Thursday afternoon with the president, Mrs. Sandy, in charge. Satisfactory reports were given by the secretary and the treasurer. It was decided to hold a summer tea in the basement of the church on Tuesday, June 7th.

After the Scripture reading by Mrs. Stinson and the singing of a hymn the meeting closed with the benediction.

W.A. Of Christ Church.

The W.A. of Christ Church, Omemee, met at the home of Mrs. R. Johnson Thursday afternoon. The president, Mrs. Weir, opened the meeting with a hymn, followed by prayer.

Missionary papers were read by Mrs. McPherson, Miss Cornwall, Mrs. Jamieson, Miss Johnson and Miss E. Curry. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Johnson, assisted by Miss Johnson.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. C. Bent and will be a sewing meeting.

Attend District Meet.

A number of the Omemee A.Y.P.A. members attended the district plays held in All Saints' Parish Hall, Peterborough, last Friday night. Omemee branch presented a play, "Sarah's Young Man," and won the district cup. The cup has been held in Peterborough for a number of years by the various A.Y.P.A. branches in the city. The Rev. Bousfield of St. Luke's presented the cup to William Stephenson, who is the president of the Omemee branch.

MALTA DISPUTE FINALLY ENDED WITH APOLOGY

Dispute Between State and Catholic Church is Settled.

RESUME NORMAL POLICY.

Constitution Was Suspended in 1930—Inhabitants Italian.

VALLETTA, Malta, June 3 (C.P.).—A dramatic end to the long dispute between the State and the Catholic Church in Malta came to-day with an unreserved apology by Lord Strickland, Prime Minister, to the Bishops of Malta for his antagonism towards the authority of the Church.

As a result the bishops have withdrawn the pastoral letter issued in May, 1930, enjoining the Catholic electorate not to vote for the Strickland party in the elections which were to have been held at that time.

Constitution Suspended.

The growing bitterness of the dispute led to suspension of the constitution in June, 1930, since when Malta has been administered by the Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the British possession.

The terms of the apology of Lord Strickland, himself a Roman Catholic, are quoted in a substitute pastoral letter issued to-day by the bishops as follows:

"Lord Strickland, Count della Catena, sincerely regrets that in debates in the English and Maltese Parliaments and on other occasions in defending himself against his political opponents, he clashed with the Church and her authority and used words that should be withdrawn, and which he does in fact withdraw, for which he humbly and unreservedly asks pardon.

"Further, he is anxious to declare emphatically that during his whole lifetime he was always fully determined to be a faithful son of the Holy Church, in whose fold he desired to remain."

Resume Normal Policy.

The development apparently clears the way for resumption of normal policy in Malta. Following the suspension of the constitution, a Royal commission was appointed

INQUEST HELD INTO DEATH OF FRED ADKINSON

Coroner's Jury Unable to Determine What Was Cause of Accident.

WATER LET INTO PIT.

Normally Letting Water Into Pit Would Not Start Generator.

That Fred Adkinson came to his death from an accident while making repairs to a generator which was set in motion by some unknown cause, at the Canadian General Electric Company's Power House at the Peterborough Waterworks Dam on the afternoon of Friday, May 27, was the substance of the verdict returned by the coroner's jury last night after half an hour of deliberation.

Presided over by Coroner Dr. T. W. H. Young, and with Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., acting on behalf of the Crown, the inquiry brought out the evidence of fifteen witnesses yet failed to establish the actual cause of the untimely rotating of the generator, and which resulted in terrible mutilation and mangling of the victim's body.

Water Admitted to Pit.

Robert S. Cotton, one of the C.G.E. foremen, was one of the principal witnesses. He related how he had been in charge of a gang of men who had been undertaking repairs and renovations in the pit of the waterwheel underneath the generator. While the men were working, the water had been removed from the pit. Upon the completion of the repair work to the gates, and while Adkinson and his workmate Hector McKenzie were inside the generator making repairs to the collector rings, Mr. Cotton testified, he had given orders for the stop logs to be raised, and water admitted to the pit.

While admitting that he had realized there was a possibility that the two men might still be at work inside the generator, witness stated he did not know that the men were there at the time he gave orders for the raising of the stop logs. Normally, admittance of water to the pit should not be sufficient cause to start the wheel in motion.

Evidence of identification was given by Edward Adkinson, a son of the fatality victim.

Hector McKenzie, who had been working along with Adkinson inside the generator making repairs to the collector rings, said that he left the generator at about 3.10 o'clock on the afternoon of the fatality to go and telephone. He came back and he and Adkinson had been together inside the rotor for about ten minutes, he said, "when suddenly I saw the thing

CHIEF GIMBLETT MAKES REPORT TO COMMITTEE

No Investigation Into Sunday's Affair Committee Decides.

NO COMPLAINT LAID.

Chief in His Report Declares Cooper Was the Aggressor.

No investigation of last Sunday's clash between Fire Chief Gimblett and Albert Cooper, 336 Dunsford avenue, is contemplated by the Fire, Water and Light Committee of the city council.

If any person asks for an enquiry it will be considered only upon the presentation of a definite charge.

This opinion of the affair was expressed by Alderman McNabb, chairman, and members of the committee last night, but was not formally embodied in a resolution. Ald. Stocker's motion for adjournmen terminated the discussion after Chief Gimblett's report of the encounter had been read, followed by Alderman Tuggey's verbal recollection of a statement which he said he had received in writing from Mr. Cooper.

Mayor Denne—If they want an investigation, let them bring the evidence here.

That declaration was manifestly the consensus of the committee, and officially terminated the episode of last Sunday unless some one reopens it with an explicit charge.

Chief Gimblett's report in part follows:

"Mr. Cooper's boy about sieven years old, was the only one around when the fire started, and when I started to question the boy the father interfered and I told him to keep quiet that I would question the lad, but he kept talking back and I finally told him I would have him put out and I looked out the door for an officer and the father grabbed me by the arm and said if I am going out you are coming too, and he struck me on the chin and I grappled with him and we fell off the verandah and as he got up he hit me again and I struck him and knocked him down, and the next thing I remember was the blood running off my face.

Started in Shed

This fracas was started in the shed at the rear and attached to the house, and the only witnesses besides ourselves were Mr. Healy who owns the house, the boy and firemen R. Carr and J. MacFarlane.

This man Cooper twice apologized to me after the affair was over.

Unemployed Demand More Than Groceries

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., June 3.—(CP)—Refusing to work for groceries alone, unemployed of this city failed to appear on relief jobs today. The action of the unemployed followed a meeting of the Workers' Welfare Association last night, at which the opinion was expressed men required some money in addition to food to meet necessary payments on houses and other expenses.

J. G. Pateruon, chairman, advised the meeting there would be no Communistic utterances or destructive criticism heard, and the meeting was very orderly.

NEW ELECTIONS FACE GERMANY WITHIN 60 DAYS

Hindenburg Dissolves Reichstag, Making Election Necessary.

LACK OF CONFIDENCE.

Move Follows After Appointment of Von Papen as Chancellor.

BERLIN, June 3. (AP)—President Von Hindenburg issued a decree to-night dissolving the Reichstag.

Dissolution of the Reichstag had been expected ever since the president removed Chancellor Henrich Bruening and appointed in his place Franz Von Papen, who was an attache at the German Embassy in Washington before the United States entered the war.

His choice of a successor puzzled observers in Germany and abroad, for it was certain from the very beginning that the New Chancellor never could get a vote of confidence in the Reichstag.

It had been thought however, that Von Papen might appear before the house and ask for a vote. Then, if confidence were denied him that he would present the decree of dissolution.

Now, under the German constitution, there must be a new election within 60 days. Some predictions have been that the elections would be called for next month. The last election, which resulted in heavy gains for Adolf Hitler's National Socialists was in April.

COUNSEL WILL DEFEND CURTIS

Perpetrator of Lindbergh Hoax May Plead Not Guilty.

ARRAIGNED TO-MORROW.

FLEMINGTON, N.J., June 3. — (C.P.)—W. C. Pender, Richmond, Va., lawyer, arrived today and went immediately to the county jail to see John Hughes Curtis of Norfolk, who is to be arraigned tomorrow on a charge of having perpetrated a gigantic hoax on the Lindberghs and police seeking capture of the kidnap-murderers of the Lindbergh baby.

Curtis was arrested after he had typed and signed a confession that negotiations he had told of having with the kidnappers were all imaginary.

Because of this confession it had been generally believed that at the arraignment to-morrow he would plead non vult and throw himself on the mercy of the court.

After Pender's arrival today, however, it was learned from officials at the courthouse that there were certain indications that a plea of not guilty might be entered.

Three Officials Propose Plans to Enlarge Factory

One Of Proposed New Buildings Will Be 60 Feet By 150 Feet And The Other 35 Feet By 60 Feet—Company Officials Visit City.

MANUFACTURERS' COMMITTEE OF COUNCIL APPROVES MOVE TO SUBMIT BY-LAW.

During Past Six Months Company Has Installed New Machinery Which Cost $50,000—Additional Floor Space Is Needed.

Projected enlargement of their local plant by the construction of two new buildings was announced here yesterday by officials of the Canadian Raybestos Company, Limited.

The proposal which at present is a tentative plan of expansion was confirmed this morning by Robert Abbott, manager of the company's Peterborough factory.

One of the proposed new buildings will be 60 feet by 150 feet and the other 35 feet by 60 feet.

The announcement was made last night by Alderman Holland chairman of the Reception Committee of the city council, in a brief report of the two-day visit of three officers of Raybestos Manhattan Incorporated, and some of the details of the project were outlined by City Clerk Armstrong. At a subsequent session of the Manufacturers' Committee, with Mayor Denne presiding in the absence of Alderman Cotton, the following resolution was passed as as a recommendation to the council: "That, provided the Canadian Raybestos Company erects an addition to their factory in Peterborough of two buildings, one 60 by 150 feet and the other 35 by 60 feet, the council will submit a by-law to the qualified electors on January 1 next to give a fixed assessment except for school taxes and local improvements on terms to be agreed upon, and the council will recommend the electors to endorse the by-law."

The Visiting Officials

The visiting representatives of the parent company were Sumner Simpson, president of Raybestos Manhattan Inc., Bridgeport, Conn., E. P. Townsend, chairman of the Board of Directors of Raybestos Manhattan Inc. and head of the Manhattan division, Passaic, N. J., and George Webber, Vice-President of Raybestos Manhattan Inc. and head of the United States asbestos division, Manheim, Pa., also G. J. Monahan, Toronto, sales manager of the Canadian Raybestos Co., Limited. They were guests of the Reception Committee at luncheon yesterday at the Empress Hotel.

In referring to the plans which the company has been considering for the enlargement of the Peterborough plant, Mr. Abbott told The Examiner this morning that during the last six months new equipment costing $50,000 had been installed in the local factory. This machinery was for the production of extruded moulded lining and moulded clutch faces. At the same time the manufacture of other products is under consideration. As a result of the recent installation of new machines, additional floor space has become an actual necessity, and would become imperative if the production of other allied lines is to be undertaken.

To meet this demand for elbow room, it is proposed to erect the larger new building on the company's property east of the present plant to accommodate the office, shipping department and stock room. This would automatically relieve the congestion in the existing factory, providing space for increased equipment. The plans also include an addition to the treating room of 2,200 square feet of floor space. Both buildings will be one storey in height, and it is understood they will be of the saw-tooth roof type.

Mr. Abbott informed The Examiner that the company has deep confidence in the future of Canada, even in its ordinary progress, and that sentiment of faith is strengthened by the potential results of the forthcoming imperial conference.

"It is the feeling of our company," Mr. Abbott said, "that in so far as we are able to observe, the

POLISH PILOT STARTS FLIGHT TO HOME LAND

Hausner Takes Off From New York on Non-Stop Flight Home.

SECOND ATTEMPT.

Wife in Second Plane Provides Escort for Few Miles.

NEW YORK, June 3 (C.P.) — Stanislaus Hausner of Newark, N.J., took off for Warsaw, Poland, from Floyd Bennett Field to-day at 3.46 a.m. Eastern standard time. He hoped to make the flight nonstop.

It was Hausner's second start on the projected solo flight to the country where he was born. Last Saturday he took off but was forced back after several hours by unfavorable weather.

He was followed into the air today by another plane in which his pretty young wife rode as passenger. This plane merely intended to escort Hausner on the first few miles of his journey.

Built for Chicago Syndicate

In the second plane was also Rev. Paul Knappek, a Newark priest. Hausner's plane is the old rebuilt Bellanca monoplane Santa Rosa Maria, which was originally built for a Chicago syndicate which planned an ocean flight which never materialized.

Although Hausner's destination was Warsaw, he said before leaving that if condition necessitated he might make a stop at London or Paris. He planned to follow a course slightly to the south of the steamer lanes.

Headed Eastward

Hausner lifted his plane into the air after running 3,500 feet down the concrete runway, passing about 30 feet over a small crowd assembled to see him off. As he gained altitude, he turned the plane around and headed eastward.

A United States navy plane also accompanied him as an escort.

He carried 50 letters, some of which he planned to drop over the Croydon airport near London, and, if conditions were favorable, he hoped to fly over Le Bourget, Paris, to drop some.

His plane carried 525 gallons of gasoline, and he took along four chicken sandwishes, two ham sandwiches, a gallon of coffee and a gallon of water.

SPURNED LOVER SACRIFICES SELF TO FIRE GODDESS

Kidnaps Girl and With Her Leaps Into Volcano.

ON KILAUEA MOUNTAIN.

Bodies Lie 800 Feet Down in Sulphur Fuming Pit.

HILO, Hawaii, June 3. — Pele, dreaded fire goddess of Hawaiians, has claimed a human sacrifice of love and despair in her traditional home — the lava filled firepit of Halemaumau.

Clasping in his arms the body of the girl who had spurned his love, William Nunes, a young Portuguese, leaped yesterday into the deep pit of the world's largest active volcano. He apparently had slain the girl, Margaret Enos, before hurling himself into the lava-filled crater where some believe the ancient Hawaiians once offered human sacrifices to appease Pele's wrath.

Their bodies lay today side by side shrouded in sulphurous fumes 800 feet below the brink of the pit on the slopes of Kilauea.

Refused Love

Two days ago the High School girl refused Nunes' offer of marriage. Early yesterday morning the rejected suitor kidnapped Miss Enos from the home of her sister, Mrs. Manuel Furtado, shooting the sister in the hand when she tried to stop him.

As authorities reconstructed the tragedy, the 20-year-old youth drove to the brink of Halemaumau, presumably pleading with the girl to reconsider his proposal. Failing, yet wishing to spare his sweetheart the death he had chosen for himself, Nunes supposedly shot and killed the 16-year-old girl before making his dramatic leap.

Note Left

His blood-stained automobile was found on the brink of the fire pit. In it lay an automatic pistol and a note.

"Ten minutes to eight," the note read. "Margaret died instantly. She did not suffer. 'And now I must pay."

The possibility arose today that their bodies may lay for ever in the bottom of the smouldering lava pit.

Several men volunteered to dare the tortuous heat of the volcano, but the 16-year-old girl's parents were undecided what to do. The only way to reach the spot where the two fell, only 50 feet from the ever-boiling lava, is by climbing down a rope.

TRAIN CRUSHES THREE TO DEATH

Unidentified Finns Struck By Passenger Train While Boarding Freight.

THREE ESCAPE.

MONTREAL, June 3.—A railway train crushed three unidentified Finns to death at the St. Martin Junction north of the Island of Montreal, to-day. Three others narrowly escaped a similar fate.

The party of six Finns were about to board a freight train for Ottawa. As they crossed the tracks at the Junction they apparently failed to notice the passenger train on the other track. Three of them were killed instantly and the others managed to step back to safety.

Can't Identify Them.

Canadian Pacific Railway police were unable to establish the identity of the three men. The other three speak no French or English.

The Finns hoped to find employment in Ottawa or in Northern Ontario.

The train crew of the passenger train reported the train was moving at 15 miles an hour through the Junction when the accident occurred.

SIX CHILDREN AND TEACHER HURT AT LEVEL CROSSING NEAR GUELPH

Electric Car Strikes Truck Taking Children to O. A. C.

40 CHILDREN ON TRUCK.

GUELPH, Ont., June 3 (C.P.).—Six children were injured, and Miss Kathleen Thorp, Ingersoll, sustained slight injuries to her leg, when a Canadian Pacific Railway electric car struck a truck on a level crossing near here to-day. Forty children from Oxford County were riding on the truck, which was completely demolished.

En Route To the O.A.C.

The driver of the truck, Frank Witty, Ingersoll, was riding in the cab with his mother, but neither was injured. The party was en-route to the Ontario Agricultural College here, and was in charge of Ross Tuck, principal of a West Oxford school.

The truck was dragged 52 feet after it was struck by the train.

The children who sustained slight injuries, chiefly bruises to their legs, were: Betty Budd, aged 8; Helen Cuthbert, aged 12; Peggy Allan, aged 8; Pauline Gulfilt, aged 8; Grace Fairbanks, aged 11; George McNeill, aged 15.

The party of children from the two schools were coming to spend a day at the Ontario Agricultural College. Another truck-load from two other school sections was following.

The accident occurred at the C.P.R. level crossing three-quarters of a mile from the junction of highways Nos. 6 and 7. The truck was proceeding towards Guelph, and the electric car was leaving the city on the northern line.

Sun Spots Favor Growth of Wheat

OTTAWA, June 3 (C.P.).—Western Canada may expect fairly generous rainfall for some time to come if sun-spot data collected by the Dominion Observatory runs true to form. According to Observatory officials, Canada is now approaching a sun-spot period which should produce plenty of moisture for the Western grain fields. The effect of sun-spots, it was explained to-day, is to increase the rainfall over a long period. A sun-spot period lasts for eleven or eleven and a half years.

FINAL DEFEAT OF IRISH BILL IS FORESEEN

Oath of Allegiance Bill Is Given Second Reading in Senate.

NEW ELECTION LIKELY.

Bill Will in All Probability Be Defeated in Committee.

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, June 3 (C.P. Cable). — President Eamon de Valera's Bill to terminate the parliamentary oath of allegiance to the King will be considered by the Senate in committee next Wednesday, and to-day its fate was uncertain.

Last night the Senate gave it second reading by a 21 to 8 vote, while the Opposition members refrained from voting.

Big Push in Committee.

The Opposition, however, hastened to make it clear its fight was not ended. Supporters of former President William T. Cosgrave said their big push against the measure would come in committee when they will seek to gain approval for amendments robbing the Bill of its teeth.

Observers saw in this indication of a long deadlock which, they said, migh well result in a general election next fall.

Should the Senate send the Bill back to the Dail Eireann emasculated the Government would have two alternatives. It might accede to demands of Senate amendments which was thought unlikely or repass the measure in its original form. Then after 180 days, the Bill would become law, unless a general election intervened.

Further Suspension.

Even then a request of two-fifths of the members of the Dail Eireann, the approximate strength of the Opposition, or a majority of the Senate could suspend the effect of the Bill for a further 90 days. During the suspension 1-20 of the voters on the roll or three-fifths of the Senate membership could, by request, force the Government to put it to test in a referendum.

A tortuous committee stage was prophesied for the Bill. It was seen

Lightning Hits Tree Ten Sheep Are Killed

ENNISMORE, June 3 (Examiner Correspondent). — Ten valuable sheep were killed last night on the farm of Daniel Crough when lightning struck a tree under which the sheep were staying during an electric storm. The sheep belonged to Mr. Crough and James Gifford, and had been pastured in a field belonging to the former, about two miles from the Ennismore Church. It is thought that when the storm started, the sheep all grouped about under the tall elm in one corner of the field, and were killed when lightning struck it some time during the night.

HITLER OFFERS AID TO CABINET

Make Coalition But Only on National Socialist Principles.

END CLASS HATRED.

GUESTROW, Mecklenburg, Germany, June 3 (C.P.).—Adolf Hitler is ready to offer a coalition of his National Socialists with the powers behind the present new German Cabinet, he told a crowd of 25,000 voters here in a campaign speech last night.

The coalition could only be founded on National Socialist principles, however, he added, and parties and class politics would have to be abandoned.

"The Nazis are ready for a coalition," he said, "if there is a prospect that it would work upon National Socialist principles, but we would not be willing to continue the system of class politics and parties.

"We are not for compromises! Class hatred must end!"

"No one should believe," he said, "that a new Cabinet can accomplish a fundamental change and improvement in Germany's condition. Before any statesman could lead to a new rise in German fortunes, he said, a new power must be created by internal unity.

"Unity of Germans is an empty phrase," the Nazi leader declared, "unless the opinions of National Socialism and Nationalism are combined, and further decline of the national fortunes is certain."

Herr Goerning, a Nazi member of the Reichstag, who spoke before Hitler, was greeted with a storm of applause, when he announced that the ban against the Nazi storm troops promulgated by the Bruening Government would be rescinded in a few days.

Bad Manners if British Do Not Negotiate With Irish Delegates.

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, June 3 (C.P. Cable).—A warm rejoinder to the declarations of J. H. Thomas, Dominions' Secretary, at London, is made by the Irish Press, Eamonn De Valera's organ, to-day, under the caption of "Bad Manners."

While the President himself in the Senate last night referred only indirectly to Mr. Thomas's statement, the British delegates might not negotiate with the Free State at the Imperial Economic Conference, the Irish Press editorially commented:—

Pious Garments

"Mr. Thomas is piously clenching his garments about him lest they be soiled by negotiations with those deceitful Irish, it is as disgusting a piece of badly-staged hypocrisy as has been recorded in British politics.

"Also it merely shows how ignorant of Ireland and Irish affairs Mr. Thomas is, when he actually utters his refusal to negotiate as a threat. It will be received here without regret. We shall at least in future know where we stand with such cross-Channel statesmen as Mr. Thomas, which we never have known when we were in negotiation with them, accepting their promises and assurances like a lot of simpletons, as if they were meant....

BRITISH HOUSE SHORT OF TIME

Parliament Has to Postpone Important Measures Until Next Session.

LIMIT SPEECHES.

LONDON, June 3.—(C. P. Cable) —Parliament is going to make an extra hustle in the next few weeks.

Rarely, if ever, will the country be bereft of Cabinet Ministers as in the coming weeks when the Geneva Disarmament Conference, the Lausanne Reparations Conference and the Ottawa Imperial Economic Conference are over-lapping.

Two measures of first-class domestic importance are definitely postponed until next autumn— the London Transport Bill which attempts to grapple with a problem which daily becomes more perplexing and the Rent Restriction Bill which seeks to improve the measure passed when the House shortage after the war was at its worst, and was invariably accompanied by anomalies and hardships.

Important Bills

The Coal Mines Bill and the Sunday Entertainments Bill are major measures to be passed before adjournment of the House next month. The Coal Bill, providing for control of production, supply and sale for a five-year period, was given third reading in the Commons last night by a vote of 291 to 52 and is now going to the House of Lords, after encountering considerable opposition from the Labor members because of its failure to ratify the International Working Hours Convention for a seven-hour day, and failure to place wages, now controlled by a "gentleman's agreement" for 12 months, on a statutory basis.

Once more the speaker has been appealed to to save Parliamentary time by limiting speeches, this suggestion coming from a body of members who rarely speak themselves. The Speaker however confesses no method likely to satisfy all sections has come to light.

HIJACKERS SLAY TWO RIVER MEN

One Shot and Another Beaten to Death Along the Border.

BODIES FOUND.

DETROIT, June 3.—A down river killing in which two men who ed out for the shores of Ontario in a rowboat met death, was under investigation by Wayne County authorities to-day.

The killing—the first in several weeks in the section which once was the battleground of rum runners—came to light last night with the finding of the bodies of Earl Wiseman, 24, of Rockwood, and Joseph Machanack, 28, of Detroit. The bodies were in shallow water of Point Mouillier Bay, and were about a mile and a half apart.

Investigation Starts

Preliminary examination revealed that Wiseman was shot through the head and through the hip and that his companion was beaten over the head. An autopsy was ordered for to-day.

The men left Rockwood on Monday, May 23, and had not been heard from. Their boat was found a few days later, overturned. The bodies apparently had been in the water about ten days.

Coroner Edward Rupp of Monroe had the bodies removed to Flat Cock last night, but the case was later decided to be under Wayne County jurisdiction.

Authorities worked on the theory that the men were the victims of hijackers, and said that their names had previously been connected with bootlegging activities.

BEER SALE PLAN IS UNDER FIRE AT CONFERENCE

Quinte Conference Set Sunday, June 19 as Rural Life Sunday.

NOMINATIONS MADE.

Government Reminded of Its Pledge Against Sale by Glass.

LINDSAY, June 3.—Yesterday afternoon's session of the Bay of Quinte Conference was largely taken up with a discussion on a report by the Committee on Evangelism and Social Service, as submitted by Rev. Andrew McLaughlin, Chairman. The report deal with prohibition, the Government Control Board stores, and the movement to introduce the sale of beer and wine in public houses. One clause on temperance, which was adopted, reads: "Whereas the electorate of Ontario has in two successive elections supported the Government policy of making liquor accessible in sealed packages, with the definite pledge of exclusion of any provision for consumption of liquor in public places, the Conference records its disapproval of any extended encouragement of liquor drinking by allowing the sale of any liquor by the glass.

"That, in the opinion of Conference, the granting of beer and wine permits to public houses would be a retrograde step, and the Government should not accede to any request of that nature. At the same time, we reaffirm our unalterable opposition to the liquor traffic in all its forms."

Rural Life Sunday

Conference set aside June 19 as Rural Life Sunday, in accordance with the call of the Moderator.

Addresses were delivered by Principal James Smyth of Union Theological College, Montreal, and H. A. Kent, Principal of Queen's Theological College, Kingston.

FRIDAY, JUNE 3, 1932

ACTION IS NEEDED.

Premier Henry's pledge that no one shall be allowed to go hungry in Ontario had the right ring.

Unfortunately, however, starving people cannot be fed on speeches, so it is to be hoped that the Premier will lose no time in organizing his proposed committee and in launching a definite plan for caring for those who are suffering because of the present economic conditions.

The situation has not developed overnight, and it might reasonably be expected that at this late stage the time for making promises would have long since been left behind and a clear-cut relief policy would be in operation.

Mr. Henry's Government, however, has not been noted for quickness of action in putting its programs into effect, and at the moment when the Premier was telling his London audience that there was food for all and it was his intention that it should be provided for those who needed it, there were people in his own home county, York, whose need was great, and municipalities that have strained their financial resources to the breaking point in endeavoring to deal with the situation.

There is every need for haste, and the Government should not waste a moment in getting its relief policy under way, especially in those centres where the task is obviously beyond the ability of the municipal government.

HELPING OUR DUMB ANIMALS.

To-morrow is violet day, the annual tag day of the Peterborough branch of the Royal Humane Society, and The Examiner has no hesitation in recommending this cause to the generosity of the people of this city and district.

This is the only appeal made by the organization each year, and the funds secured in this way are devoted entirely to the splendid work of protecting dumb animals against the wanton cruelty of a few people and the lack of thought of a good many more.

Peterborough citizens who can afford to help such a movement financially can do so with the assurance that their money will be economically used, and that it will aid in improving conditions for the animal life of the district.

The organization has been in existence here long enough for the value of its work to be appreciated, and the public is satisfied not only that there is need for the Humane Society but that in Peterborough at least its activities are carried on in an active, yet sensible manner and to the general interest of the community.

To-morrow's tag day should simplify the financing of the society's work during the next few months.

A VALUABLE FARM BOOK.

Continuing its contribution to agricultural education, Imperial Oil, Limited, has just issued a most informative and carefully prepared book on "Feeding Farm Animals," written by Duncan Marshall, who for twelve years was Minister of Agriculture for the Province of Alberta.

This work, the fourth in a series by Mr. Marshall, promises to be as serviceable and as popular as its predecessors, and every progressive farmer will be delighted to add it to his library.

Obviously the subject is of prime importance to agriculture, for the farmer who has not a proper knowledge of the value of feeds for livestock is working at a decided disadvantage.

As Mr. Marshall puts it, "the aim of this book is to be scientific enough to be useful and practical enough to be easily understood," and it can truthfully be said that the author has succeeded admirably in attaining both these ends.

Successful farmers have supplied much of the information used, so that the data is based on practical experience.

A notable feature of the book is the introduction by Dr. Geo. I. Christie, president of the Ontario Agricultural College, who remarks that the Imperial Oil Company is rendering a great service to Canadian farmers by making available information on feeds and feeding, which is of first importance and value. "Livestock men, agricultural classes in the schools and many others," he says, "will welcome this practical, helpful book."

TAXATION.

The astounding growth of public taxation and current expenditures in Canada is revealed in an interesting compilation made by the Citizens' Research Institute, which shows that total taxation in this country increased from $296,221,266 in 1913 to $668,782,371 in 1930.

Dominion taxation in this period jumped from $127,478,067 to $296,276,260, provincial taxation from $8,721,314 to $91,149,854, and municipal taxation from $90,021,904 to $281,336,127.

Put another way, taxation in Canada, which was $30.04 per capita in 1913, had increased to $65.56 per head of population in 1930.

The figures should be arresting.

Taxes proceed, of course, from public expenditures, current and capital.

A current expenditure is paid once out of taxes and other current revenues and without interest.

A capital expenditure out of borrowed funds involves the repayment of the principal sum, and the payment of interest possibly totalling as much or more than the principal.

When a current expenditure is paid for out of current revenues it may cause pain, but the operation is all over with.

When an expenditure is paid for out of borrowed funds there may be little or no pain, but the grief has just begun.

Nor are payment of interest and repayment of principal the only burdens. Debenture funds are usually invested in buildings or establishments, necessitating operating expenses, which if not defrayed out of special revenues produced by the undertakings must be paid out of taxes.

The serious thing in short may not be the first cost, but the upkeep.

CANADIAN WHEAT OUTLOOK CONTINUES TO IMPROVE.

Another survey of the Canadian and world wheat situation has been issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics under date of May 26. International trade in wheat continues on a large scale, and surplus stocks in exporting countries are moving into consumption at a satisfactory rate. From August 1, 1931, to May 21, 1932, world shipments of wheat and wheat flour amounted to 666 million bushels, compared with 645 million bushels for the same period in 1930-31, and 495 million bushels for the corresponding period in 1929-30. A feature of the past four weeks has been the fact that Soviet Russia has not shipped any wheat, reflecting the internal conditions known to exist in Russia as far as the cereal industry is concerned. During the past six weeks Canada and the United States have shipped in relatively large volume compared with preceding weeks of the present crop year.

Supplies of wheat in the Argentine and Australia are diminishing rapidly, and it is likely that both these southern sources will have a relatively small carry-over at the end of July. Another important condition to be kept in mind is that the probable production of winter wheat in the United States this year will be less than 441,000,000 bushels, as compared with 787,000,000 bushels in 1931. These figures are based upon the estimate of May 1, and since then the American wheat crop has suffered still further deterioration. It is, therefore, clear that a substantial spring wheat crop will be required this year if the total wheat production in the United States is to meet the domestic needs during 1932-33. It bears repeating that Russia over-sold wheat during the fall of 1931, and that she has consequently found herself in difficulties during the past four months as regards supplies for both food and seed purposes. It is to be added that Russian sowings have this year fallen greatly below those of preceding years.

All these factors go to make the Canadian wheat outlook good. The promise is for a harvest of 500,000,000 bushels this season and, what is equally important, our exportable surplus will probably be sold at improved prices, partly because of the marked diminution in the world's exportable wheat surplus, and partly because of the preference in the British market which is likely to result from the forthcoming Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa.—Mail and Empire.

OTHERS ARE PAYING.

We have every sympathy for the unemployed. Our heart goes out to those who, by reason of circumstances over which they have no control, are forced to accept direct relief from the city in order to supply the wants of their families. Theirs is a sorry plight, and those who are in more fortunate circumstances have shown themselves only too eager to help.

But—there is a limit to what even those who are employed can do. There is a limit to what any city can do in feeding the families of the unemployed.

We write these words as the result of some complaints which have been brought to our notice regarding the supplies given out at the city relief store. A number of men and women have complained that the supplies received are not sufficient for their families. Some have received too little bread, some would like larger rations of meat, others have not been given sufficient butter, and so on. The complainants seem to forget that the system is new, and is open to readjustment as experience dictates, and that it should be given a fair trial. If there are grievances, the City Council committee will doubtless investigate them, and endeavor to satisfy the needs of those who have to be assisted.

But, on the other hand, there is such a thing as looking a gift horse in the mouth. If these people were in a position to supply their own wants, then they could dictate what they were going to have. But these necessities are being supplied out of public funds. They are coming out of the money of the taxpayers of this community. So, having been given supplies of the necessities of life as a gift from the rest of the citizens, it is hardly right that the recipients of this assistance should go around grumbling that they are not receiving enough.

Every consideration is being given to those whose families are in need. We believe that, when the distribution becomes more systematized, there will be no cause for complaint. Meanwhile, it is only fair that consideration should be given, by those receiving aid, to those who have to pay the bills, and that patience, instead of complaining, should be outstanding factors in the attitude of those who have become dissatisfied with what their fellow-citizens are doing for them.—Oshawa Times.

GRAIN, CATTLE, PRODUCE

TORONTO, June 3. — Though trade was fair on the local butter market yesterday, brokers did not find it easy to secure the low levels in effect on Wednesday for creamery solids. Receipts from Ontario points were showing a gradual increase, and Western creameries were asking lower prices for choice lots. Local brokers offered No. 1 solids at 16¾c to 17c, and and No. 2 at 16c with Western makes at 17c to 17¼c. Buyers were not taking large supplies, but enough butter was kept moving to ease the situation to some extent. Wholesalers were offering creamery prints at unchanged levels, 20c being asked for No. 1 and 19c for No. 2.

Cheese

Trade in cheese was slow and prices on new makes were slightly easier. Brokers were quoting new large at 9¼c to 9½c, new twins at 9½c to 9¾c and new triplets at 9¾c to 10c. Retailers were quoted new makes at the steady prices of 11c for large triplets, and 13c for stiltons.

Eggs

Receipts of eggs from Ontario points were moderate, but the local market was barely steady, due to weakness at Montreal. Supplies were not being purchased in the Quebec city as heavily as before, and local brokers expected more eggs on this market. Prices for graded eggs in used cases were 16½c for extras, 13½c for firsts, and 11c for seconds, with storage supplies at 12c for extras and 14c for firsts. Country shippers were quoted 13½c for extras, 11½c for firsts and 9½c for seconds, delivered, ungraded, cases returned. Retailers were offered supplies at 19c for extras in cartons, 17c for extras loose, 16c for firsts loose, and 13c for seconds lose.

Then and Now

Written in 1857—Just as Suitable To-day

Dean Stanley, in a recent number of his periodical, "Message," from the Cathedral, Long Island, quotes the following from "Harper's Weekly" of October 10, 1857:—

"It is a gloomy moment in history. Not for many years—not in the lifetime of most men who read this paper—has there been so much grave and deep apprehension; never has the future seemed so incalculable as at this time. In our own country there is universal, commercial prostration and panic, and thousands of our foremost fellow-citizens are turned out against the approaching winter without employment, and without the prospect of it.

"In France the political cauldron seethes and bubbles with uncertainty; Russia hangs as usual, like a cloud, dark and silent upon the horizon of Europe, while all the energies, resources and influences of the British Empire are sorely tried, and yet to be tried more sorely, in coping with the vast and deadly Indian insurrection, and with its disturbed relations in China. It is a solemn moment, and no man can feel an indifference (which happily no man pretends to feel) in the issue of events.

"Of our own troubles no man can see the end. They are, fortunately, as yet mainly commercial; and if we are only to lose money, and by painful poverty to be taught wisdom—the wisdom of honour, of faith, of sympathy and of charity—no man need seriously despair. And yet the very haste to be rich, which is the occasion of this wide-spread calamity, has also tended to destroy the moral forces with which we are to resist and subdue the calamity.

"Good friends! Let our conduct prove that the call comes to men who have large hearts, however narrowed their homes may be; who have open hands, however empty their purses. In times of peril we have nothing but manhood, strong in its faith in God to rely upon; a God-fearing man now, by helping wherever and however he can, will be as blessed and beloved as a great light in the darkness."

The MURDER at HAZELMOOR

by AGATHA CHRISTIE

SYNOPSIS

On a bleak English winter's afternoon, a party of neighbors, gathered at the home of Mrs. Willett and her daughter, Violet, in the tiny village of Sittaford on the fringe of Dartmoor, turned to table tipping as an amusement because there were six of them and one of their number, Mr. Duke, did not play cards. Seated around the table were Mrs. and Miss Willett, Mr. Duke, Mr. Rycroft who dabbled in the psychic, Ronald Garfield and Major Burnaby. For two months the Willetts had been occupying theh ouse of Captain Joseph Trevelyan, a retired navy man, who had been unable to resist an offer of 12 guineas a month rent and had taken a small house for himself at two guineas a month in the nearest town, Exhampton, six miles distant. Major Burnaby, his friend for years, occupied one of the five cottages Trevelyan built on land near his house. The Willetts' guests occupied the other Trevelyan cottages. All those seated at the table in the darkened room pretended to consider table tipping and rapping a childish amusement and they had some good laughs when they received spirit messages telling of their future plans and movements. Then they were startled by a message that Captain Trevelyan had been murdered. Although Major Burnaby had poo-poohed table rappings, he was as greatly perturbed as the others and insisted upon starting on a six-mile trudge through the snow, impassable for automobiles, to Trevelyan's home.

INSTALMENT TWO.

"That's just it. As I can't telephone, I'll have to go."

"Go—but you couldn't get a car down that road! Elmer wouldn't take his car out on such a night."

Elmer was the proprietor of the sole car in the place, an aged Ford, hired at a handsome price by those who wished to go into Exhampton.

"No, no—car's out of the question. My two legs will take me there, Mrs. Willett."

There was a chorus of protest.

"Oh! Major Burnaby—it's impossible. You said yourself it was going to snow."

"Not for an hour—perhaps longer. I'll get there, never fear."

Argument and entreaty had no more effect on Major Burnaby. He was an obstinate man. Once his mind was made up on any point, no power on earth could move him.

He had determined to walk to Exhampton and see for himself that al was well with his old friend. He wrapped himself up in his overcoat, lighted the hurricane lantern, and stepped out into the night.

"I'll just drop into my place for a flask," he said cheerily, "and then push straight on. Trevelyan will put me up for the night when I get there. Ridiculous fuss, I know. Everything sure to be all right. Don't worry, Mrs. Willett. Snow or no snow, I'll get there in a couple of hours. Good night."

He strode away. The others returned to the fire.

Rycroft had looked up at the sky. "It is going to snow," he murmured to Mr. Duke. "And it will begin long before he gets to Exhampton. I—I hope he gets there all right."

Duke frowned.

"I know. I feel I ought to have gone with him. One of us ought to have done so."

"Most distressing," Mrs. Willett was saying. "Most distressing. Violet, I will not have that silly game ever played again. Poor Major Burnaby will probably plunge into a snowdrift—or if he doesn't he'll die of the cold and exposure. At his age, too. Very foolish of him to go off like that. Of course, Captain Trevelyan is perfectly all right."

Everyone echoed:

"Of course."

But even now they did not feel really too comfortable.

Supposing something had happened to Captain Trevelyan—

Supposing—

Synopsis for preceding instalments:

Two and a half hours later, just before eight o'clock, Major Burnaby, hurricane lantern in hand, his head dropped forward so as not to meet the blinding drive of the snow, stumbled up the path to the door of Hazelmoor, the small house tenanted by Captain Trevelyan.

The snow had begun to fall about an hour ago—great blinding flakes of it. Major Burnaby was gasping, emitting the loud sighing gasps of an utterly exhausted man. He was numbed with cold. He stamped his feet, blew, puffed, snorted and applied a numbed finger to the bell push.

The bell trilled shrilly.

Burnaby waited. After a pause of a few minutes, as nothing happened, he pushed the bell again.

Once more there was no stir of life.

Burnaby rang a third time. This time he kept his finger on the bell.

It trilled on and on—but there was still no sign of life in the house.

There was a knocker on the door. Major Burnaby seized it and worked it vigorously, producing a noise like thunder.

And still the little house remained silent as the dead.

The Major desisted. He stood for a moment as though perplexed—then he slowly went down the path and out at the gate, continuing on the road he had come towards Exhampton. A hundred yards brought him to the small police station.

He hesitated again, then finally made up his mind and entered.

Constable Graves, who knew the Major well, rose in astonishment.

"Well, I never, sir, fancy you being out on a night like this."

"Look here," said Burnaby curtly. "I've been ringing and knocking at the captain's house and I can't get any answer."

"Why, of course, it's Friday," said Graves who knew the habits of the two pretty well. "But you don't mean to say you've actually come down from Sittaford on a night like this? Surely the captain would never expect you."

"Whether he's expected me or not, I've come," said Burnaby testily. "And as I'm telling you, I can't get in. I've rung and knocked and nobody answers."

Some of his uneasiness seemed to communicate itself to the policeman.

"That's odd," he said, frowning.

"Of course, it's odd," said Burnaby.

"Think he might have been taken bad?" The policeman's face brightened. "I'll try the telephone." It stood at his elbow. He took it up and gave the number.

But to the telephone, as to the front doorbell, Captain Trevelyan gave no reply.

"Looks as though he had been taken bad," said Graves as he replaced the receiver. "And all alone in the house, too. We'd best get hold of Dr. Warren and take him along with us."

Dr. Warren's house was almost next door to the police station. The doctor was just sitting down to dinner with his wife and was not best pleased at the summons. The snow was still falling.

"Damnable night," murmured the doctor. "Hope you haven't brought me out on a wild goose chase. Trevelyan's as strong as a horse. Never has anything the matter with him."

Burnaby did not reply.

Arriving at Hazelmoor once more, they again rang and knocked, but elicited no response.

The doctor then suggested going round the house to one of the back windows.

"Easier to force than the door."

There was a side door which they tried on the way, but it too was locked, and present they emerged on the snow-covered lawn that led up to the back windows. Suddenly, Warren uttered an exclamtion.

"The window of the study—it's open."

True enough, the window, a French one, was standing ajar. They quickened their steps. On a night like this, no one in his senses would open a window. There was a light in the room that streamed out in a thin yellow band.

The three men arrived simultaneously at the window—Burnaby was the first man to enter, the constable hard on his heels.

They both stopped dead inside and something like a muffled cry came from the ex-soldier. In another moment Warren was beside them, and saw what they had seen.

Captain Trevelyan lay on the floor, face downwards. His arms sprawled widely. The room was in confusion—drawers of the bureau puled out, papers lying about the floor. The window beside them was splintered where it had been forced near the lock. Beside Captain Trevelyan was a dark green baize tube about two inches in diameter.

Warren sprang forward. He knelt down by the prostrate figure. One minute sufficed. He rose to his feet, his face pale.

"He's dead?" asked Burnaby.

The doctor nodded. Then he turned to Graves.

"It's you to say what's to be done. I can do nothing except examine the body and perhaps you'd rather I didn't do that until the inspector comes. I can tell you the cause of death now. Fracture of the base of the skull. And I think I can make a guess at the weapon."

He indicated the green baize tube.

"Trevelyan always had them along the bottom of the door—to keep the draft out," said Burnaby.

His voice was hoarse.

"Yes—a very efficient form of sandbag."

"My God!!"

"But this here—" the constable broke in, his wits arriving at the point slowly. "You mean—this here is murder."

The policeman stepped to the table on which stood a telephone.

Major Burnaby approached the doctor.

"Have you any idea," he said, breathing hard, "how long he's been dead?"

"About two hours, I should say, or possibly three. That's a rough estimate."

Burnaby passed his tongue over dry lips.

"Would you say," he asked, "that he might have been killed at five twenty-five?"

The doctor looked at him curiously.

"If I had to give a time definitely, that's just about the time I would suggest."

"Oh! my God," said Burnaby.

Warren stared at him.

The Major felt his way blindly to a chair, collapsed on to it and muttered to himself while a kind of staring terror overspread his face.

"Five and twenty past five—Oh! my God, then it was true after all."

It was the morning after the tragedy, and two men were standing in the little study at Hazelmoor.

Inspector Narracott looked round him. A little frown appeared upon his forehead.

"Ye—es," he said thoughtfully. "Ye—es."

Inspector Narracott was a very efficient officer. He had a quiet persistence, a logical mind and a keen attention to detail which brought him success where many another man might have failed.

He was a tall man with a quiet manner, rather far away gray eyes, and a soft slow Devonshire voice.

STOCKS RALLY ON GOOD NEWS

Organized Support For Bond Market and Much Buying.

SOAR 1 TO 5 POINTS.

NEW YORK, June 3.—Spurred by reports that organized support for the bond market was to be undertaken by a group of banks and banking houses, security prices rallied strongly in active trading to-day.

Stocks fell back substantially after soaring $1 to $5 a share, but closed mostly higher. Bonds made even larger advances and generally held their gains. Profit-taking appeared to be the chief influence in the reaction of common shares from their highs, but a number of preferred issues retained generous advances, indicating that investment bargain hunters had been attracted to the market.

With the Tax Bill reported back to the House and Senate, prompt action toward final balancing of the budget was indicated, thus removing one of the market's chief worries of the past six months.

GIANTS' LEADER TO LEAVE BENCH

John McGraw Resigns as Manager of New York Team.

WON 10 PENNANTS.

NEW YORK, June 3. (CP) — John McGraw to-day announced his resignation as manager of the New York Giants after 30 years of leadership, because of ill health. He will be succeeded by Bill Terry, the club's first baseman.

McGraw will remain as vice president and stockholder.

The 69-year-old pilot of the Giants has been in ill health for some time, frequently being unable to actively manage the team. This, plus the slump which has kept the Giants around last place, influenced McGraw to relinquish control.

Under McGraw's management the Giants won 10 National League pennants, four of them in a row, 1921-1924, and three World Series.

Foggy Seas Delay Search For Fliers

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., June 3 (C.P.). — The seas off Goat's Island, Newfoundland, to-day was the goal of Montreal and Boston airplanes searching for Arthur Sullivan, Newfoundland aviator, and Dr. K. Karl Kuehnert Grenfell Mission dental surgeon, who have been missing since they took off for a pleasure flight from St. Anthony, on Monday.

Mrs. M. S. Sullivan, of St. John's, mother of the missing pilot, planned to go to St. Anthony by airplane to aid in the search.

A dense fog shrouded the sea off St. Anthony to-day, and advices from there indicated little possibility of prosecuting the search at present.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, June 3 (C.P.).—The exclusion of a Labor representative from the official New Zealand delegation to the Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa was protested to-day by Tom Holland, leader of the Labor Opposition in New Zealand's Parliament.

Mr. Holland deprecated the sending of three Cabinet Ministers — Premier G. W. Forbes, Downie W. Stewart, Finance Minister, and J. G. Coates, Minister of Public Works —representing all political elements of the Coalition Government, while the quarter of a million Labor supporters have no representative.

HOLD SUSPECTS IN RIVER MURDER

Police Seize Liquor and Hold Trio in Border Slayings.

WILL BE QUESTIONED.

WINDSOR, Ont., June 3.—(C.P.)—Charles Goodchild, 29, of Amherstburg, and MacGeorge Randolph, Detroit, are in custody of Provincial Police and to-day are being questioned in the hope they may have information which will lead to the arest of the slayers of Joseph Mchniak of Detroit and Earl Wiseman of Rollin Road near East Rockwood, Mich.

Goodchild is being held on a charge of illegal purchase of liquor and Randolph for having liquor without a permit. They were taken into custody at a dock in Amherstburg to-day. Police seized 98 cases of beer found in the building on the dock.

Never Returned.

In conversation with police they are reported to have said that two ment went on the river a week ago with a 'wet' cargo and had not returned. Later police were informed that the bodies of Michniak and Wiseman had been found this morning in Lake Erie near the mouth of the Huron river, in Michigan. Reports to police indicate that both men had been murdered and no trace had been found of their boat or of the 100 cases cargo it carried.

Goodchild and Randolph are not suspected of any complicity in the hijacking or the murders but it is thought that the boats operated from the same dock and the two men may be able to give some helpful information.

CONDITIONS IN KNOX COLLEGE ARE SURVEYED

Special Commission Makes Its Report to General Assembly.

ACTION RECOMMENDED.

LONDON, Ont., June 3.—(CP)—Unsatisfactory conditions, exist in the operation of Knox College, Toronto, the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church was advised today by a special commission.

Conditions seriously affecting the operation, life influence and usefulness of the college exist, the commission's report said, and the commission recommends that the assembly take such steps as in its wisdom shall bring the unsatisfactory situation disclosed to an end.

LONDON, Ont., June 3 (C.P.).—Divided opinions on the introduction of a liturgy in devotional services were expressed at the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church here to-day. Written prayers, said Rev. C. N. Miller MacKay, Levis, Quebec, were not anti-Calvinistic, and many forms of worship had degenerated into chaos. A liturgy often was considered odious because it smacks of Anglicanism and Roman Catholicism.

Opposition to liturgies was expressed by Dr. W. D. Reid, Montreal, who did not like "cheap imitations of Anglicanism in our church." He doubted if the New Testament contained a written prayer.

I do not like read prayers, said Rev. S. Banks Nelson, Hamilton, Ont.

On certain occasions, for instance the dedication of a church, standard prayers were quite satisfactory said Rev. Robert Johnston, the Moderator.

Drastic Reductions

Two overtures recommending drastic reductions in salaries and ministerial stipends will be presented to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, now in session here.

The Presbytery of Moose Jaw, Sask., will ask that salaries of church officials, including college principals and professors, be reduced ten per cent., and that instructions be given the spending boards that until such times as the givings of the people for any one years equal the budget requirements for the year, no new work involving the expenditure of budget money be undertaken.

The Lindsay, Ont., Presbytery asked that the General Assembly revise stipends and suggested those receiving salaries in whole or in part out of the budget funds of the church exceeding $3,000 per annum, be reduced 25 per cent; between $2,00 and $3,000, 15 per cent, and the minimum stipend of $1,800 reduced 10 per cent., all to take effect July 1.

Herriot Charged To Form Cabinet

PARIS, June 3 (A.P.)—President LeBrun called in Edouard Herriot to-night and formally charged him to form a Cabinet.

The Radical Socialist leader, whose victory in the recent election made him the logical successor of Andre Tardieu, expected to have his list of Ministers ready for presentation to the President tomorrow There was no doubt that it would be drawn largely from the ranks of his own party and its allies; Herriot himself retaining the portfolio of Foreign Minister.

WESTERN MISSION SITUATION IS REVIEWED AT CONVENTION

Four Young Pastors Introduced at Baptist Association Gathering Here.

MEMORIAL SERVICE.

The second day of the Peterborough Baptist Association now in session in Murray Street Baptist Church opened with a fine attendance yesterday morning, and was marked by the same spirit of optimism which obtained at the opening service.

Rev. T. E. Meldrum of Port Hope conducted the devotional period, which consisted of praise and prayer. Carrying out the theme of the whole convention, "Except ye repent," the scripture emphasized the necessity for a working church, for the message to the church at Ephesus was also meant for us today.

The chair was taken by the Moderator for the business session, in which many important questions were discussed and settled.

Appointment of committees resulted in a capable staff in charge of affairs throughout the convention.

One of the most interesting features of this session was the introduction of new pastors, four young men who have given themselves to the work of the church, and are now ready to enter into active service. These included A. G. Sinclair, Belleville; D. J. McNab at Sidney; H. J. Balsdon, Eddystone, and Rev. W. B. Walker of Lakefield. Each of the young men acknowledged in gracious words of appreciation, the introduction made by Rev. George N. Simmons.

Memorial Service

A brief but impressive memorial service in tribute to the memory of those who have entered into rest throughout the district during the past year, was conducted by Rev. T. E. Meldrum.

Seven churches of the nineteen in the district reported no deaths, but the remaining twelve churches report twenty removals by death.

Assisting in this service were Rev. Mr. Walker, Lakefield, who offered prayer and read from Revelation, "And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes and there shall be no more death." The Moderator added a few words in tribute, and closed the service with a two-minute period of silent prayer.

In his report on "Western Missions," Rev. H. H. Bingham brought greetings from the 18,000 English-speaking Baptists scattered from Winnipeg to Vancouver.

"We have seen a marvellous transformation in our West," said Dr. Bingham. "Seventy years ago buffalo were roaming the Prairies, and Indians were the chief inhabitants. But Eastern explorers went in and have transformed the wilds into modern cities of beautiful homes. There are universities second to none and the churches are a blessing and benediction.

Hundreds of miles having been redeemed from waste land to the present modern beauty. It is a land of fascination.

Dr. Bingham claims he had the privilege of dedicating the Baptist Church nearest the North Pole. Here you go down North. The map of Canada is constantly rolling back north, till we reach Churchill. There are now only two provinces without Maritime seaports.

Dr. Bingham on his first trip North travelled on a train at twelve miles an hour, and it only ran off the track once. Once he stepped off, gathered some raspberries and had no difficulty in overtaking his train again.

Slow Advancement

The organization of Baptist churches and Sunday schools have advanced surely if slowly. There are four Conferences in the West—Manitoba, Alberta, Saskatchewan, and British Columbia—at which annual Baptist conventions are held in October.

The Baptist Union is a great foreign mission force. One out of every eight in the West is a foreigner. A great German work is also being done in Western Canada. These people are very evangelistic in spirit and fit in well with the Baptist work.

The country to-day he described as one of hope and expectation of opportunities in spite of the terrible depression caused by being stormed out, hailed out and frosen out. The West still needs our assistance, our prayers and our gifts.

Rev. R. D. Wright presented many helpful suggestions for the good of the association, which were fully discussed.

The Benediction, by Rev. J. B. McCormack of Picton, brought to a conclusion a very busy morning session.

The ladies of Murray Street Church served dinner to the delegates and visitors at the convention.

Evening Service.

The devotional period opening the evening session was made one of true worship under the leadership of Rev. W. B. Walker of Lakefield. Inspirational singing marked this service, while prayer was offered by two of the young ministers, Rev. McNabb and Rev. Sinclair. The brief Scripture lesson was selected from Revelations 2, 12-17, and read by Rev. Mr. Walker. The Moderator of the association, Rev. J. H. Suteliffe, then took the chair and called upon Mrs. R. C. Weston, directress of mission circles, for her report. In a beautifully worded and capably delivered address Mrs. Weston told of her work as follows:

The 46th annual report of the Women's Mission Circles and Bands of the Peterborough Association for the year ending April 15, 1932—In reviewing the year's activities we are thankful to God that in this time of economic stress and much unemployment and consequent difficulty in meeting the obligations of the local church, the missionary spirit and activity has been maintained in our bands and circles. The workers have been faithful, indeed, there is indication of growth, for we have a reported increase of 28 in membership. Just here we pause to remember that some of our members have been called to higher service. We especially think of Miss Martha Nicholls, who did such faithful work for so many years in this church and circle. To the Murray Street Circle and to her sister, Miss Mary Nicholls, our former loved directress, we extend our deepest sympathy at this time of sorrow. There are 15 of the 19 churches of the Association contributing through the Women's Missionary organizations, with a total of 18 circles, 3 being Young Women's Circles. The membership total of women members in these 15 churches is reported as 725; of these 468 belong to the Mission Circles an increase of 26 over last year. But there are 257 women not yet taking an active part. Let us continue in the effort to get them into the work. Three circles report a total of four life members. This is one way of increasing the givings either by the circle uniting to make one of its number a life member or an individual doing it for herself. Miss Lucy Jones toured the Association, visiting 13 of the circles. Other missionaries have come to some organizations. In addition, the women keep in touch with the work by information gathered from various sources, especially from our own monthly, "Link and Visitor," using one or all in preparation of programs. The training gained in this way is at times of practical value to the local church. Thus, one circle reports that it conducted the morning service in the absence of the pastor, and another conducted a prayer meeting. Eleven boxes in all were sent to the various mission fields, while donations were made to the Missionaries' Rest Home and to the new Canadian relief. It is to be regretted that not more of the circles take up the work of the Indian Fund. It only means asking a ten-cent collection from the local church once a year, usually taken some Sunday in March. We have a real responsibility toward these original inhabitants of our country, which should not be neglected. Six circles reported moneys collected for this purpose — Belleville, Campbellford, Brighton, Gilmour Memorial, Port Hope, and Murray Street, Peterborough. There are 280 subscribers to the Link and Visitor, a decrease of 28 from that of last year. Of the 18 circles, the following have slightly increased their givings: Eddystone, Lakefield, Murray Street, Port Hope, Murray St. Young Women, "The Willing Teens." The total givings for circles and bands amounted to: Home Missions, $896.93; Foreign, $1,173.86; Specials, $78.45; Indian, $44.85, making a grand total of $2,194.10.

Paul in II. Cor., 8, commended the Macedonian churches for "in the abundance of their joy and their deep poverty they abounded unto the riches of their liberality." Will the delegates carry this message to the local circles, and I am sure your directress will have an increase to report next year.

Home Mission Problems.

Dr. C. H. Schutt, superintendent of the Home Mission Board, spoke with unbounded enthusiasm of his work, giving a frank talk on the Home Mission problems of the day.

"Our greatest need as churches," declared the speaker "is a revival of missionary impetus and purposes. What great joy should be ours that God has condescended to use us as His messengers. We must become seised with a more overwhelming conviction that man is lost and needs Jesus and that He is the remedy for sin." Continuing with vigor and passion, Dr. Schutt told of the great work being carried on in various Home Mission centres, and gave the raison d'etre of the Baptist Church, if for none other than emphasis on the simple Gospel. Home Missions he termed the keystone in the missionary arch, the foundation of all missionary enterprises. The Foreign Mission Board is dependent upon the establishment of stronger and more liberal churches at home.

In the last eleven years, the superintendent reported, six new chapels built every year, six new parsonages each year, and three new missions. On an average, 694 have taken on the Lord Jesus in baptism every year, making 7,634 in the eleven years.

A highlight in the present day is the fact that there is not a single home mission church without a pastor working full time. The same number of students, 34, as last year have been sent out to mission charges. Not only has there been a full staff, but in the last six months there have been a larger number of baptisms than in the same period last year.

The speaker also referred to the great need of work among the new Canadians, 52 per cent of whom live in Ontario and Quebec. In conclusion, he told of the latest developments in the Home Mission Work, and appealed that all should let their lives witness for Him Who has redeemed us.

A masterly message, straight from the heart, by Dr. H. H. Bingham brought to a fitting close the day's services. "The Path to Power" was the inspiring theme of this sermon, which was based on the question found in the Sermon on the Mount, "What do ye more than others?" and linked to the statement made of our Lord in the Garden of Gethsemane, "He went a little farther."

Jesus saw the religious leaders of His time emphasizing externalism and legalism, but not the heart of religion. He sounded a call to a discipleship—unskimped and uncompromising. The wooing note of the church to-day has none of this challenge, it does not call to a great sacrificial task. Multitude to-day are asking Christian peoples, "What do ye more than others?" for they are all partially at least concerned with the worldly mode of living. Christians should push on into the interior of Christian experience so that the world may know they have been with Him.

When Jesus went from the Last Supper into the garden, He took four distinct steps. The first was the step of solitude, which is also the first in the path to power. In this feverish age, we don't often care to be alone and even dread solitude. But repentance takes place in solitude and our souls are filled with the confidence of the Divine Presence.

When Jesus was alone in the garden, how He poured out His soul to God! If Jesus needed prayer, how much more do we. We must take the "prayer" step if we would be effective in the Christian life. If we abide in Christ there will be a perfect harmony of our wills and His and this is the secret of answered prayer. What we need to-day is, perhaps, less preaching and more prayer.

The third step to power is suffering, such as Jesus felt when He said, "If it be possible, let this cup pass from Me." The "cup" might be interpreted as separation from the Father which was infinitely worse than the physical suffering of Christ. Are we willing to enter into the great fellowship of His sufferings and to sacrifice that others might be saved?

The last and hardest step of all is that of submission, which will cost the Christian something every day and every week. "Thy Will be done" should be our motto in the kitchen or in the study—and we should do His will rapturously, gladly and whole-heartedly. This is a great step to take. May we walk in His footsteps in solitude, prayer, suffering and submission.

"When I Survey the Wondrous Cross" was sung as a closing hymn and prayer, after which the pastor, Rev. Mr. Sutcliffe, pronounced the Benediction.

MALTA DISPUTE

by the British Government to investigate the constitutional and political situation and nearly a year after its formation, the Commission recommended on February 11 last the restoration of the constitution and elections at an early date.

The Royal Commission had expressed confidence the next pastoral letter of the bishops would be framed with a view to the welfare of the Roman Catholic church and the vast British Empire instead of "comparatively minor Maltese interests."

The dispute came to a head in 1926 when Lord Strickland objected to the order of a bishop who wanted Father Micallef, British subject, removed from the island, Lord Strickland charging the prelate with political motives.

The British government intervened and made representations to the Vatican, bringing forth the declaration the Vatican entirely supported the Maltese Bishops who were protesting the activities of Lord Strickland.

Inhabitants Italian

The Maltese question, despite the fact Malta's population is only 250,000 was one of the most difficult of Imperial problems because the population is largely Italian and almost wholly Roman Catholic yet at the same time Malta is one of Britain's greatest naval bases. The Italian Fascist party has described Malta a "a part of Italy unredeemed."

Lord Strickland, a Roman Catholic, became head of the Ministry in 1927. An aggressive champion of secular progress, he founded his own native-language newspaper, "Forsight" and his wife founded the Ladies Imperial Club, non-political organization. In February the bishops forbade their followers to read Lord Strickland's newspaper, charging it was inciting the people against the bishops.

The Royal Commission consisted of Lord Askwith, Sir Walter Exerton and Count De Salis.

Chief Justice Orders Appeal Set Down

TORONTO, June 3.—Chief Justice Latchford gave judgment in the Second Appelate Division of the Court of Appeal, in the case of the Hon. G. N. Gordon, Peterborough, against A. A. Perrin, W. Gladstone Brown and Jessie H. Perrin, ordering the appeal to be placed on the June list, although the appeal had not been completed by the solicitors for the defendants.

Chief Justice Latchford said that although the list of appeals had been completed and published, he had spoken to the Chief Justice of Ontario, Sir William Mulock, and as there was some evidence of intentional delay on the part of the defendants the appeal would peremptorily put on the list for hearing this month.

Mr. Gordon, who appeared in person, alleged that the appeal was taken by the defendants for the purpose of delay only, and that they had negotiated for settlement and were attempting to delay the issue of an execution.

TWO CARS CRASH AT FRASERVILLE

Driver Did Not Stop Before Entering Highway Police Say.

NO ONE HURT.

When he allegedly failed to stop when proceeding onto the highway from a sideroad, a car driven by John Douglas of Water street, this city, was struck by another automobile and overturned at Fraserville this morning.

The other vehicle which was proceeding south was owned and driven by E. G. Patterson and according to police had the right of way. Both vehicles were badly damaged by the impact although none of the occupants of the two cars received injury, but they were severely shaken up.

Mr. Douglas was accompanied by his wife and daughter and was proceeding from his grain elevator near Fraserville station onto Highway 28. Traffic Officer E. A. Hornick investigated the accident and states that a charge is to be laid against Douglas for failing to stop before proceeding onto the highway.

THREE OFFICIALS PROPOSE PLANS

surface and underlying condition Canada is in a better condition than the United States, and naturally the opportunities for export business should be a very substantial factor if the Imperial Conference is productive of the effects that are expected of it. There are, therefore, two considerations in view: one looking to the normal growth of this country, and the other directed to possible developments in increased Empire trade. It is thought advisable to be prepared for such developments."

Employ Local Labor

"If we go ahead with the additions," Mr. Abbott stated, "we shall employ all local labor, contractors and workmen, and as much of material as possible will be bought in Peterborough. We expect, of course, that if we secure increased accommodation, and especially more business, we shall have to take on more employees, but just at present I don't want to promise too much in that respect. Everybody understands that a company might spend a million dollars in buildings and machinery, but unless more business is obtained there could be no more employment provided. This may be tooting my own horn, but I'd like to add that the officers of the company have approved of the progress we have made so far in Peterborough."

From City Clerk Armstrong it was learned that Sumner Simpson has not visited the local factory in ten years. On that occasion he was here with his brother, Howard Simpson, and Mr. Abbott, the day the company decided to locate in Peterborough, purchasing their present site, and also the Henry Hope Company, which they later sold to the Johnson Motor Company, and also the land that has since been disposed of to the Martin-Hewitt Company.

Mr. Townsend and Mr. Webber saw Peterborough and the Canadian Raybestos factory for the first time this week. Mayor Denne said last night that they were delighted with Peterborough. Incidentally, the fact of the absence of the officers of the parent company for that period suggests that the management of the local business by Mr. Abbott must have been highly satisfactory in the head office.

City Clerk Armstrong this morning informed The Examiner that the Canadian Raybestos Company's present assessment is $40,000 on real estate and $24,000 business assessment. He learned from the officials that while they have confidence in the future of their plant in Peterborough and are willing to make an immediate investment in new buildings, believing that the future has increased activity in store for this country, they are anxious to restrict their overhead at the present time.

They feel that the qualified ratepayers of Peterborough will welcome the expenditure in labor and materials that is proposed in the new plans, especially at a time when every sign of optimism and constructional undertaking is needed to relieve the temporary mood and the current unemployment. The assistance of the ratepayers can be extended in the terms of fixed assessment, which in accordance with the resolution of the Manufacturers' Committee, have not yet been decided.

Alderman Phelan remarked last night: "If Raybestos didn't build there wouldn't be any increase in the assessment of their present plant; if they do, the city will gain in employment, and we could leave the present assessment as it is for a while and be a great deal better off if they put up the two buildings."

Mr. Abbott said he believed that work would be started "almost immediately," if the circumstances were favorable. And City Clerk Armstrong pointed out that the ratepayers had never rejected any recommendation relating to fixed assessments that had been put forward by the council.

The National Anthem and a social half-hour closed the meeting.

BIBLE SOCIETY.

The Madoc branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society held their annual meeting on Monday evening in St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, with a very small attendance, but fairly representative, the United Church being the only one without a representative. The ministers of the town being away at conference, synod or assembly, the devotional exercises were in charge of Mr. William Stocks, the representative of the society, and the election of officers was conducted by Mr. George Wright. The officers for the past year were re-elected to office: President, Mrs. George Wright; secretary, treasurer, Miss M. Mackintosh. Collectors to be appointed at the executive meeting, of which all the ministers of the town are members of the executive, being vice-presidents by virtue of their position.

Mr. William Stock then dealt in a scholarly address with the subject of the romance of the Bible, speaking urgently of the great needs of the various countries and how these are supplied by the self-sacrifice of the missionaries, Bible women, colporteurs, and supplies generously furnished by the British and Foreign Bible Society, of which the Upper Canada Bible Society is a branch. Perhaps the most arresting statement made by this speaker was that in our own Canada there are 1,700 Sunday Schools devoted to the teaching of atheistic doctrine, and very many whole settlements without any form of worship or any teaching by Sunday schools.

Thanking the members for their generous support, Mr. Stock pleaded for more Bible study daily, weekly praver for the spread of the gospel, and an extra effort this year to collect for and support this noble work, and promised that generous help in supplies of leaflets, samples of literature and of "The Bible in the World" would be given or sent to for the executive meeting.

Mr. George Wright voiced the thanks of the hearers for the instructive and able address and closed with the benediction.

FRENCH PAPERS ADVISE CAUTION

Skeptical of Success of MacDonald's World Conference on Trade.

NEEDS STUDY.

PARIS, June 3.—(AP)— Reports that the United States Government had expressed a willingness to meet with the Lausanne Conferees at London to discuss improvement of world economic conditions provoked reserved comment in Paris newspapers today.

Le Matin said the French Government should study carefully the agenda of any such conference before consenting to attend it.

Le Journal said special agreements such as the recent accord worked out by Premier Tardieu and Ambassador Walter E. Edge on Franco-American trade relations, as well as serious efforts toward individual rehabilitation, were wiser than turning "in the vicious circle of general combinations."

Metal Holdings

Le Figaro warned Premier-Designate Herriot that England and the United States have taken every disposition to favor the passage of the metal holdings of the Bank of France into the coffers of the Bank of England and the Federal Reserve Banks in the United States.

Pertinax, noted political commentator of L'Echo Deparis was pessimistic. The London meeting, he said, would have the greatest difficulty succeeding if the Lausanne Conference ended in confusion.

VALERA'S PAPER

to make the conference as a whole a success. That Mr. Thomas's preliminary action is to announce Britain's adoption of a policy of bad manners is Britain's concern and nobody else's.

"The Free State imported more than £50,000,000 worth of goods last year. The Dominions can supply many of these goods as well as Britain. If business therefore is to be done at tOtawa—should the conference ever be allowed by Mr. Thomas to get that far—the Irish Free State is in a perfectly happy position.

Tariff Weapon

"She has a tariff weapon which she can use in favor of whatever Dominion has the good sense as well as the good manners not to go to Ottawa full of anti-Irish spleen. If Mr. Thomas does not wish to negotiate with us, nobody in Ireland is going to lose five minutes' sleep over it or him."

The Irish Independent observes that apparently the British Government does not appreciate "the advantages which this country gives to Britain in the shape of preferential rates." The Independent further questions where the Free State would stand at the tOtawa Conference if Britain continues to refuse to negotiate, in view of the fact the Free State's trade with other Dominions is not appreciable" and must continue so as their exports, are mainly, like ours, agricultural products."

Canadian Doctor's Great Discovery

IT is now recalled that a brilliant Canadian physician, M.D., M.C., L.R.C.S., Edinburgh, Licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians, Edinburgh, and post graduate of famous European hospitals, experimented for fifteen years to find a medicine which would act on the digestive and eliminative organs at once. The successful result he named Fruit-a-tives.

After a further period of use in private practice, Fruit-a-tives was made available to the public. It is a complete medicine, acting on five vital organs and will rid you of constipation, headaches, biliousness, indigestion. You can use it with confidence also for rheumatism or other uric acid diseases. 25c and 50c. Sold by all druggists.

Blood Transfusions To Check Paralysis

LINDSAY, June 3 (Special to Examiner).—It was learned yesterday that 12 citizens of Lindsay, in apparent excellent health, gave their blood yesterday to save children from the dreaded disease of infantile paralysis. The operations were performed by Dr. Sutton of Peterborough, Provincial district officer, and by a doctor from the Department at Toronto. This is said to be the only way of checking the dreaded disease after it shows symptoms in young children.

NEW TAX BILL ALMOST READY FOR PRESIDENT

Passes Before House of Representatives for Concluding Approval.

AFFECTS CANADA.

Economy Program and Salary Cuts May Be Revised.

WASHINGTON, June 3 (C.P.).—The titanic new tax bill, completed in a conference which broke all Congressional records for speed, was pushed to-day to the United States House of Representatives for its concluding approval.

With this and Senate concurrence the only steps still required, the measure may be ready for President Hoover's signature by to-morrow.

It was established that the high income tax rates voted by the Senate were approved, and that all four tariff items—import taxes on oil, coal, copper and lumber, were retained. The latter two will effect Canadian exports to this country.

Taxes Retained.

The revised bill carries the new high postal rates beginning with three-cent letter postage. Inheritance and gift tax rates were unchanged. Among Excise taxes retained in the bill were those on lubricating oils, toilet goods, furs, automobiles, trucks and parts, jewelry, yachts, motorboats, radios and phonographs, mechanical refrigerators, sporting goods, matches, candy, chewing gum and soft drinks, and many of the miscellaneous levies.

There was every indication also that the cent-a-gallon gasoline tax voted by the Senate in the last rush to build up the bills total yields, had been retained, and that the House's one-fourth of one per cent. tax on stock transfers was left out.

As the tax bill advanced, its budget-balancing companion, the economy program was stopped in Senate controversy over the 10 per cent. pay cut for all Government employees, with indications that this would be greatly modified. As now drawn, half the bill's $238,000,000 saving comes from this salary reduction.

POLISH PILOT

Hausner appeared cool as he superintended the final tuning up of his plane. He took out his watch, kissed his wife good-bye, and then calmly said:

"Well, let's go."

He climbed into the plane and was off a moment later.

The flyer estimated he would fly approximately 4,375 miles to reach Warsaw. The plane, equipped with a Whirlwind motor similar to that used by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and Clarence Chamberlain in their flights across the Atlantic, has a cruising speed of 100 miles. Hausner said he hoped to reach his destination in 44 hours.

The plane was equipped with six parachute flares for use in the event Hausner experienses trouble during the flight.

CHIEF GIMBLETT MAKES REPORT

timated that Chief Gimblett was the aggressor.

"This is not the first, second or third time this sort of thing has happened", Ald. Tuggey said. "How long is the city going to stand for it? The Chief blames it all on this man, and it seems to be up to the committee to see that it is fully investigated."

"I'll act as soon as official information is placed before this committee," was Ald. McNabb's comment. "But, I don't think we should do anything until we get concrete evidence. For example a citizen last Monday gave me the names of three men who were supposed to have seen the affair. I called them by telephone that evening. The first man said he was ten miles away at the time, and didn't know anything about it. The second said he was not there until it was all over. All he saw was the Chief going away. The third man told me he was not there, and if he were he would not have anything to say. That was enough hearsay for me, and I dropped it."

Ald. McNabb pointed out that no charges had been laid by either party to the hostilities, and he declined tto recognize street talk.

"I have had a conference with the Chief and I expressed to him the opinion of the public and of this committee as I have sized it up, especially in regard to the exercise of his authority at fires. I don't think anything like this will occur again. I regret that happened, because after the beginning made this year by the committee I have been proud of the efficiency in the Department. There is a good feeling between the officers and the men. We expect to have the new uniforms Friday, and I think the members of the committe should go down some evening to see the staff."

Obituary

PERCIVAL ROBERT JOHNSTON.

LINDSAY, June 3 (Special to Examiner).—Friends heard here with deep regret of the sudden death of Percival Robert Johnston, which occurred at Toronto as a result of an attack of pneumonia. He was a son of Rev. Francis Johnston, a gentleman retired from the ministry, but widely known throughout the Bay of Quinte Conference. The funeral will take place in Lindsay Saturday from the home of Mrs. Weldon, Cambridge Street North.

MRS. JANE STEWART.

Within a comparatively short distance of her birthplace, the remains of Mrs. Jane Stewart were yesterday afternoon interred in the family plot at Trent Valley Cemetery, Hastings, in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends who had journeyed from all over the district.

The funeral was held from the residence of the late Mrs. Stewart, 406 Sheridan Street, this city, the services being conducted by the Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, of which she was a faithful member.

Testifying to the high regard in which Mrs. Stewart was held the company of friends who met at the residence for the funeral service was so large that many were unable to find accommodation inside the house. In the course of a brief sermon Dr. Barr referred to the high Christian qualities which Mrs. Stewart had possessed and which had endeared her to all who knew her. She had fought the good fight, he said.

Mrs. Stewart, who was 68 years of age, passed peacefully away in her sleep early on Tuesday morning at Nicholls Hospital, where she had gone the previous day on the orders of her family physician. She had been quite active up to the end of last week when she was forced to take to her bed. Her death was quite unexpected, and came as a severe shock to her relatives and friends.

The family mourners at the funeral included: Mr. and Mrs. William Stewart of Markham, Ontario, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Carson and Miss Laura Stewart of Toronto, and five grandchildren, Mrs. Jane Stewart of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. M. Waddell of Hastings, Mr. James Williamson, Miss M. Stewart and Mr. F. Stewart of Toronto, Miss Helen Thompson of Vancouver, Mrs. Robert Reid and Mr. Harry Tudhope of this city. Mrs. Stewart also leaves another sister and brother Mrs. Ben Stewart and Mr. John Waddell respectively of Billings, Montana, and who were unable to be present at the funeral.

The pall-bearers were: Messrs. Elmer Davis, Harry Tudhope, S. R. Morton, Jack Williamson, Gordon Warner, and Ed. Sargent.

JAMES ARTHUR LOUCKS.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 3 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — James Arthur Loucks, one of the most prominent citizens of Campbellford, passed away early this morning when stricken with a heart attack.

The late Mr. Loucks, in his 63rd year, came to Campbellford many years ago from Stirling, where he was born, and established his drug store which at the time of his death was being managed by his son.

The death of the deceased, who was a member of the Board of Education for 27 years, will come as a loss to the whole community which he served unselfishly throughout his life. Besides being a member of the Board of Education, he had been a Rotarian since the formation of that club in Campbellford, and a member of the United Church there.

He is survived by his sorrowing wife, and one son Arthur K. Loucks. His funeral will be held on Sunday at 2.30 p.m. from his late residence with interment in Mount Pleasant Cemetery. Rev. R. C. Tait of St. John's United Church will officiate.

PORT HOPE WINS DRINKING TROUGH AT CONVENTION

Lt.-Col. D. S. Tamblyn Addresse Closing Session of Humane Convention.

IN GALT NEXT YEAR.

Memories of the Great War, from an aspect not often considered, were reviewed yesterday at the luncheon at the Empress Hotel which marked the final sessions of the twelfth annual meeting here of the Ontario Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Lt.-Col. D. S. Tamblyn, D.V.Sc., D.S.O., O.B.E., a veteran of the South African and Great Wars, president of the Humane Society of Kingston and author of a book entitled "The Horse in War," spoke to the assemblage on the value of the horse as an agent in carrying out war's machinery.

"The horse stands first, mechanization second, as an aid in war time," declared the colonel, who referred to the assistance given by horses in bringing up ammunition during hot engagements. He also drew for his hearers a vivid picture of the sufferings of these noble animals, when pressed into such terrible duty.

Mules and horses, both, he said, seemed to sense the coming danger when bombardment began.

On one occasion, the bodies of dead horses were used by their comrades as a bridge to pass over from one section to another.

With the keen interest of a soldier in war and its doings, the speaker described some of the engagements of the Great War, the "thrilling" battle of Amiens, as he phrased it, the entry into the burning city of Cambrai, and the Battle of Vimy Ridge, "Canada's glorious day," when the assistance of the horses was acclaimed by General Byng himself, as of inestimable value.

On one occasion, Lt. Colonel Tamblyn was in charge of a convoy of 800 horses, destined for South Africa, and only lost 16 during the voyage. To obviate the seasickness from which the animals suffer, in common with men, a lighter diet was given at first, the full strength meals coming at the end of the voyage.

Ontario, declared the speaker, contributed more veterinary officers to the last war than any other province. The percentage of casualties suffered in this section was greater than in any branch of the service.

Judge Huycke Present

His Honor, Judge Huycke, was a guest at the luncheon, and made a very entertaining, brief extempore address which pleased his hearers immensely and was mainly in a jocular vein.

First vice-president of the local society, Dr. J. E. Middleton, made a very capable chairman, his short address being marked by humor and interest.

The vote of thanks to the speakers was voiced by Mrs. W. R. Morris.

J. M. Wilson, manager of the Toronto branch of the Humane Society, then presented the prize to the best delegation present. This is a handsome enamelled dog trough which was presented for the first time last year at the St. Catharines convention and was won by Guelph.

This year, it went to Port Hope, which sent six delegates and has a membership totalling 75. Miss Victoria Grant made an appropriate acknowledgment.

At the brief business session which closed the meeting for this year, it was decided to hold next year's convention at Galt.

"Animal Life"

D. K. Eby, of Toronto, who is in charge of the publication of the organization, "Animal Life" (formerly known as "The Humane Pleader"), spoke of the endeavors of the magazine, and asked for renewed support.

Expressions of appreciation of the work done for the magazine by Mrs. F. E. Bevans of Toronto was voiced by the meeting, which also expressed its appreciation of the unfailing efforts put forth by J. M. Wilson.

The resolutions recommended by the committee and read by Miss M. D. Graesser of Guelph, included several which were left to Mr. Wilson and his committee in Toronto, to draft.

They had to do with preparing a pamphlet of information relative to humane matters, for children; the abolition of wild animals as highway and service station amusements; the proper definition of a shelter for animals; the doping of race horses, and the easy access to poisons; the distribution of information as to easy methods of dehorning cattle.

Mr. Wilson reported that a committee would meet shortly in Toronto, composed of representatives of the Canadian National Exhibition, the Royal Winter Fair and the Humane Society, to consider ways and means of eliminating the cruel practice of breaking down and setting up horses' tails for show purposes.

Mr. Wilson suggested that inspectors make visits to dog shows, where much neglect of the animals was noticeable at times.

Lt. Colonel Tamblyn of Kingston spoke of a mistake sometimes made by Humane Society inspectors with regard to shoeing of horses.

He said that the old practice of using pads for shoeing had been superseded by a practice not yet familiar to some of the inspectors. A broad-webbed shoe is now in favor in which the frog of the foot comes in contact with the ground, "as nature intended." This is now in use in all army work among horses.

The meeting closed to adjourn to Walkerfield House, where afternoon tea was served by the Peterborough branch ,with the departure

Expressions of thanks to local officers, the genial president, Thomas Sargent; the efficient secretary - treasurer, Mrs. J. S. Chandler; and the cheerful inspector, Dr. Thomas Johnston, all of whom were active, with other members of the executive, in preparations for the meeting, were voiced by the visitors.

The local members took time by the forelock yesterday when they sold many bouquets of pretty paper violets to the delegates, in anticipation of Violet Tag Day, to be held on Saturday to augment the funds of the local organization.

By an inadvertent omission, the names of Mr. and Mrs. E. Rowe, who contributed delightful vocal duetts, were left out of the report of the musical program at the banquet held at the Empress Hotel on Wednesday evening.

MYSTERY MAN IN POLICE NET

Salvatore Spitale, Beer Baron and Lindbergh Emissary, Arrested.

NIGHT CLUB RAID.

NEW YORK, June 3 (C.P.). — Salvatore Spitale, one of the "mystery men" in the Lindbergh kidnapping case, was swept up in a police net flung into the Playtime Club in Broadway's bright light district early to-day.

The raid, in which liquor was seized, bore no apparent connection to the Lindbergh case. Police found a gun on Spitale, but he produced a permit signed by Judge William E. Thorpe of Greene County.

In spite of this he and six others taken into custody were questioned from 2 a.m. until after 5 a.m. at a police station and detectives planned to take them to headquarters for further grilling. They had not been placed under arrest.

Appointed by Lindbergh.

Spitale was named by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh as his emissary to the underworld in the search for the kidnapped baby appointed with him was Irving Xitz, who appeared at the station this morning, looking agitated and consulting "Stitch" McCarthy, bondsman.

Spitale, known to the underworld as a beer baron, was projected into the police investigation or the slaying last December of Jack (Legs) Diamond, but he was not arrested.

While police entered the club they lined Spitale and the others against a wall and searched them. With Spitale was Abe Kettler, who said he was in the garage business.

Loaded Revolver.

Kettler ,who had a loaded revolver with a permit signed by Justice James P. Brearton of Troy, was taken to the station. Others detained were Julie Berhman, recently acquitted of a speakeasy murder, Samuel Schpritzern, described by police as a prize fighter with the ring name "Danny Lee,' Joseph Aaron, William Mausari and Albert Pine.

Ocean Flier Joins Husband In France

CHERBOURG, France, June 3.—(CP)—Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam—the only woman who has the distinction of having flown across the Atlantic alone—arrived from England this morning and met her husband, George Palmer Putnam, United States publisher, who came from New York.

Mrs. Putnam crossed the channel from Southampton in the motor yacht Evadne, owned by C. R. Fairey, president of the Royal Aeronautical Society.

With her were Mr. Fairey, Amy Johnson, noted British distance flyer, and a number of friends.

The Putnams arrived in the city at 9:15 a.m. to catch the 9:32 train for Paris, where they will arrive this afternoon.

Mrs. Putnam was greeted here at the Maritime station by the mayor. She wore a brown ensemble. "I flew the Atlantic because I thought it was time some woman should do it" she told the mayor when he greeted her.

CAMP OPENED FOR NUDISTS

400 Acre Estate in Catskill Mountains Operated By Olympian League.

SEVERAL GUESTS.

CAMP OLYPMIA, N.Y., June 2. (CP)—Nudism has come to the foothills of the Catskills where old Rip Van Winkle slept his peaceful 20-year siesta.

Here, on a 400-acre estate nine miles west of the Hudson River at Highland, N.Y., 77 miles from the Fifth Avenue of fashionable clothing, men and women and children are sun-bathing, swimming, fishing and playing.

The camp, operated by the Olympian League which has hitherto confined its activities to the dissemination of nudist propaganda, was opened a few weeks ago. It is the first in New York state and has been designed to accommodate 400 guests. The League expects more than 300 to spend vacations in it during July and August.

The chief playground for the nudists is a 30-acre spring-fed lake which abounds in fish

For the most part the guests have been professional people. During the past two weeks they included several lawyers from New York, an office manager from Albany, several writers, an accountant, a retired Baptist minister and son and daughter. The latter teaches Sunday School in a New Jersey village.

Two sisters, one a writer, the other a well-known artist, are remodelling a barn into a studio in which they plan to spend the summer.

Taxes on business profits and unearned incomes have been institute in Siam.

BRITISH VIEWS ARE EXPRESSED ON CONFERENCE

Chancellor of Exchequer Explains Need of World Economic Policy.

WIDE PROGRAM.

LONDON, June 3 (AP). It was indicated in authoritative quarters to-day that this country considers war debts and reparations to be bound up closely with the program of a proposed World Economic Conference after the meeting on June 16 at Lausanne.

This source referred to a statement by Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the Exchequer, which was published to-day, pointing out that such an expression by a cabinet member usually may be considered to be an expression for the Government.

Mr. Chamberlain said:

"I am sure that such an Economic Conference as is proposed should have the widest possible programme, because it is exceedingly difficult to separate the factors involved and to say that any of them can be dealt with successfully while others are ignored.

One Factor

"Monetary policy is only one of the factors. To obtain relief, monetary policy must be accompanied by renewal of confidence, and renewal of confidence is bound up with the solution of such difficulties as reparations, war debts, excessive tariffs, quotas and other restrictions on trade.

"The Lausanne Conference, I hope, will ease the way to final settlement of reparations and inter-allied war debts.

"But that is not enough. It is a first step, but it must be followed immediaely by examination of the wider proglems which I have mentioned."

The program for the proposed Economic Conference is a subject for conversation between the interested powers, but is still vague and indefinite. France and Italy were consulted yesterday and Belgium, Germany and Japan today.

PEER WEDS AT 71

Lord Plender and Mrs. G. N. Stevens Married in London

London.—A distinguished gathering, representative of society, politics, law, the arts and the stage, attended the wedding of Lord Plender, eminent accountant, to Mrs. George Norton Stevens, widow of the late managing director of William Stevens, Ltd., publishers.

Lord Plender, who is 71, was born in Felling, where his father had started a drapery business and later a grocery business.

Lord Plender's first wife died at Cannes on New Year's Day last year and her husband's peerage was announced on the same day.

At the ceremony at St. Margaret's, Westminister, the officiating clergy were the Bishop of Rochester, the Rev. Basil Bourchier, rector of St. Annes, Soho, and the archdeacon of London.

Noted Aviatrix Greeted By Admiring Throngs

LONDON CROWDS WELCOME WOMAN WHO FLEW ATLANTIC ALONE.

A cheering throng of flying enthusiasts greeted Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam when she landed at Hanworth Airport, London, in a British passenger airplane from Londonderry. The noted aviatrix was forced down at the Irish city after a record-breaking solo flight across the Atlantic. The above photograph shows the woman flier with the police escort which shielded her from the London crowds which pressed forward to welcome the former Miss Earhart.

Malcolm Campbell Has Narrow Escape

BROOKLANDS, Eng., June 3 (A.P.).—Sir Malcolm Campbell, holder of the world's land speed record, competing in a 1,000-mile automobile race, had a narrow escape from death of serious injury to-day.

He was rolling along at about 100 miles an hour when a rear tire burst and the friction set the tire afire. Campbell regained control and came into the pits. "That was a jolly close shave," he said. "I almost turned over."

A short time before that, Henry Leeson, driving a midget car in the same race, skidded, struck a parapet and was killed.

FLOATING POWER BACKED BY LONG EXPERIENCE

Floating Power, the revolutionary new engineering principle pioneered by Plymouth which it is claimed absorbs all vibrations and gives the four-cylinder engine the smoothness of an eight, is the result of long experience with rubber mountings and a series of rigid tests to assure their permanent performance, J. H. Hickey, director of service of the Plymouth Motor Corporation of Canada, disclosed recently.

Rubber engine mountings, whose unique location in the new Plymouth give the car its Floating Power characteristic, have been used in otherwise conventional mountings on Chrysler Motors cars for five years without a single case of disintegrating, loss of resilient properties or impairment of strength and firmness of adhesion between the rubber and steel plates, the official stated. This experience covering several hundred thousand cars stands behind the use of rubber mountings, he added.

Floating Power gives the new Plymouth its unusual smoothness not only through the unique property of rubber to absorb vibrations but also by the location of the two mountings. The front mounting has been raised from the conventional position so that a line connecting the two suspension points would pass through the center of gravity of the power plant. This allows the engine to rest in perfect balance, free to rock as the rubber absorbs and eliminates the effects of impulses in the engine operation.

Answering the question of how long this rubber will stand up in service, Mr. Hickey said, "The Floating Power principle has withstood every test. The mountings have been proved—in the laboratory and on the highway. They can withstand a far greater strain than can be put on them in the car. They will not rot, crack or soften and their normal life easily is twice the life of the car."

"A set of good tires will stand up under 10,000 to 20,000 or more miles of the hardest, most destructive usage imaginable. The rubber in tires is not nearly as strong as that used in the Plymouth mounting, yet the mounting receives no direct wear and in its entire life is not called upon to withstand the strains placed upon a tire in one thousand miles of normal driving."

Chrysler Develops Squeak-Proof Spring

Another in the series of outstanding Chrysler engineering developments to be found on the new Chrysler Eights and Imperial Eights is the Oilite Squeak-Proof Spring. The new spring which is unique, attacks a hitherto basic weakness of all car springs and as a result, provides a ride that is uniform for varying conditions.

The oscillation and flexing of the new spring is uniform and of a determined degree. It is the application of this principle that constitutes the radical departure of the Chrysler Oilite Squeak-Proof Spring from all previous spring designs. Also it is claimed the new spring cannot squeak.

Uniform flexing and oscillation of the new spring is accomplished by keeping the spring leaves separated by placing oilite buttons or discs between them at both ends. The spring leaves do not touch each other from their ends where the oilite discs are located to the center where the spring assembly is held together by the spring bolt.

Oilite metal, an exclusive development of Chysler engineers, is 40 per cent oil by volume. The buttons or discs between the ends of the spring leaves provide an oily film which keeps the leaves from "freezing" together. It is this "freezing" or dry leaves that makes springs ride hard. With the Oilite Squeak-Proof Spring there is no initial breaking necessary of a coating of rust, oxidation, or dirt at the ends and along the edges the spring leaves before getting a soft, smooth ride.

The uniformity of the riding quality of the conventional type spring never is constant or certain. The variation depends upon the freeness of the spring leaves to move and flex in relation to one another. That variation frequently is great.

As a precaution against dirt, sand, gravel or small stones lodging between the leaves of the Oilite spring leaves where the leaves do not touch, a metal spring cover is provided completely encasing the spring.

BIRMINGHAM'S FIRST LORD MAYOR IS DEAD

Sir James Smith Served City for Many Years

Birmingham, Eng.—Sir James Smith, first lord mayor of Birmingham, died at his residence, Edgbaston Hall, in his 88th year.

Though nearly twenty years have passed since he retired from public life, the service he rendered to the city between 1885 and 1914, during which time he was chairman of the public works committee, mayor and lord mayor, and a justice of the peace, are gratefully remembered by the older generation.

He was elected mayor in November, 1885, and in the following June the title of lord mayor was conferred on the chief magistrate of the city.

Harry Evans Resigns As Street Commissioner

FLUSH STREETS EVERY EVENING BOARD DECIDES

Harry Evans Asks to Quit After Serving City for 29 Years.

RETAIN SERVICES ?

$1,000 Will Be Spent on Improving Bathing Beach at Inverlea.

After twenty-nine years' work in the employ of the city, Harry Evans, street commissioner, tendered his resignation to the Board of Works last night.

In his letter, which was read by Alderman Hamilton, chairman of the Board, Mr. Evans asked that his resignation take effect on July 1. He wrote that the condition of his health compelled him to take this step, and his decision was made with deep regret because of his relations with the Board of Works had always been very pleasant.

Alderman McNabb suggested that Mr. Evans' information and experience might be retained by the city if he could be engaged in an advisory capacity at a reduced salary.

Ald. Hamilton—For some time Mr. Evans has felt that the job was getting too heavy for him. I know he regrets to sever his connexion with the city, and I believe he would like to be retained in an advisory position.

Ald. Phelan moved, seconded by Ald. Turner, that Ald. Hamilton and Mayor Denne interview Mr. Evans in regard to his continuing his service with the Board on a new basis, and also that they bring in a report recommending a reorganisation of the staff of the streets department.

Mayor Denne—If Mr. Evans owned the place he couldn't have taken better care of it. It is very sad to see him go after twenty-nine years.

Ald. Stocker—He is one of the finest employees we ever had.

Ald. Tuggey—I remember working with Harry Evans twenty-eight years ago when we used the first barrel cement mixer in front of J. R. Stratton's residence.

To Flush Streets.

On Ald. Fitzpatrick's motion, seconded by Ald. Phelan, City Engineer Parsons was instructed to have the street pavement in the business section of the city flushed every night. The details were left to Mr. Parsons, and likewise the area to receive the nocturnal wash. Ald. McNabb started to outline a district extending north to Brock street, but Mayor Denne proposed that it might as well reach up to the Public Library, and include the side streets. Finally the whole project was left to the discretion of the City Engineer, and it is expected that two or three men will be engaged, using second rate hose to be obtained from the Fire Department.

The Board objected to loading this special duty of street flushing on to the Department. It will create summer job for several of the unemployed.

Requested by Merchants

The Board's action was an immediate response to a request from a deputation of the Retail Merchants' Association composed of W. H. Freel, president, C. H. Saunders, manager of the Richard Hall Limited and S. E. Dewey of the S. S. Kresge store.

Mr. Freel said that a larger representation of the merchants could have been obtained, but it was felt that the members of the council realized the extent of the dust nuisance in the business area, and the damage caused to merchandise by reason of the fact that during the warm weather the store doors had to be left open. Mr. Freel remarked that the ideal plan would be to purchase a flusher, but it would cost around $12,000, and the council was not in a position to assume an expenditure of that amount. He also asked that the council take some steps to abate the coal dust nuisance which is particularly felt in the business section when cold weather sets in.

To Appeal Decision

City Solicitor Corkery was authorized to enter an appeal against Magistrate Langley's recent decision dismissing the action against Joseph Frith in respect to the alleged digging a pit in Ashburnham.

Mr. Parsons informed the Board that the excavation which had aroused ratepayers across the river had been filled in a few days ago, but Mayor Denne's attitude was expressed in the statement: "I'd go on and get a ruling. We don't know when a similar case might come up again."

Ald. Turner—It is too big a matter to have our solicitor, engineer and the Act itself turned down. We should know exactly where we stand.

Mr. Corkery said that the cost of appeal in Division Court would be on a rather light scale.

Improve Bathing Beach

Referring to an inspection trip around the city which he had made with Mayor Denne, Alderman Hamilton and City Engineer Parsons, Alderman McNabb urged that immediate action be undertaken to put the Inverlea bathing beach in proper condition.

"It takes three hundred loads of course sand, but it needs it," Ald. McNabb said. "It is the only public bathing place we have."

Ald. Macdonald—I'm just wondering where we are going to get the money. At the first of the year we said we would do no work unless we knew where the money was coming from.

Ald. Phelan—Can't we take it out of the miscellaneous account?

Mayor Denne—It is a disgrace to have it in the present shape. Fred Board's men are through at the hill, and they can start at Inverlea before going to Bolivar street. The big stones will have to be taken out, and a lot of other work can be done.

Ald. McNabb—Take out the roots and stumps, and cut down some of the limbs or a tree or two.

Ald. Turner—The last time we put sand there it turned to mud.

Mayor Denne—It wasn't course enough.

Mr. Parsons said the city would probably have to buy whatever quantity of sand was required.

The work will begin at once at an estimated cost of $1,000.

Ald. Macdonald—It is not permament. I think it is lost money.

Narrowly Avert Disaster When Ship Strikes Reef

ESCAPE EXPLOSION AS GASOLINE TANKS PUNCTURED.

Only good fortune prevented a terrible explosion when the Royal Fleet auxiliary vessel Kickorol encountered a reef at Ironside Shoals, Lake Ontario. Her tanks of gasoline were punctured and the high test explosive filled the pump room, not far removed from the ship's boilers. Prompt response to the orders of Captain D. R. McCutchan is believed to have saved the ship and its sailors. The Kickorol is under charter to the Sun Oil Company and was brought to Canada by its British captain and crew. In the above photographs, taken on board, are shown: (1) A view of the ship. (2) Captain McCutchan, and (3) a diver being lowered over the side to investigate the damage.

Birthday Party.

Mrs. W. McKee Bingham and daughter, Marguerite, visited at her former home, Harwood, last week, Miss Marguerite observing her fifth birthday with a delightful little folks' party on Monday afternoon and early evening. A feature that greatly entertained the small hostess and her guests was a brilliant display of fireworks in many fantastic and beautiful forms with a plentiful supply of 'sparklers' particularly for the little boys of the party. One grandmother confided to Mrs. Bingham that her little grandchild "always looks forward to Santa Claus, and Marguerite Bingham's birthday party."

Among those who motored to Balieboro last Friday and attended the joint meeting of the Millbrook and Balieboro branches of the Women's Institute for the summer meeting were Mrs. W. H. Ridge, entertained the boys and girls to an out-of-doors' gathering at the McDowell homested on Wednesday afternoon, games of all kinds keeping the young folk happily employed. The young guests came after school, and the older daughters of the home, Misses Dorothy and Madeline, assisted with the entertainment. A picnic tea was served on the shaded lawns, and altogether the occasion was one of complete enjoyment for the Band members, the nominal charge at the supper hour adding a little to the funds in the treasury, the allocation of one hundred dollars being the objective for the year's work.

Working Bee.

A working bee was held recently at the cemetery of St. John's church, Ida, at which the congregation was well represented, clearing up the land, planting flowers and shrubs, and other necessary activities occupying several hours of labor.

A special Service of Remembrance is to be held at the St. John's cemetery and church, on Sunday, June 19, at 3 p.m., when Rev. Canon Sawyers of St. Matthews Church, Toronto, will be the special speaker for the day. St. John's cemetery is the oldest in the township and was in use by families of all denominations in pioneer days. The cemetery committee in conjunction with the rector of the parish, Rev. William Simpson, B.A., is planning this special occasion, and extends an invitation to the general public to be present and take part in the service, friends bringing flowers to decorate the graves before adjournment to the church where Rev. Canon Sawyers will preach.

Friends of Thomas Bradburn will be glad to learn that he has sufficiently recovered from his recent serious operation at Dr. H. A. Turner's private hospital to be able to return to his home on Tuesday afternoon of this week.

The members of Ye Olde Tyme Village Quartette, who provided the program for the entertainment in St. Andrew's church on Monday evening in connection with the anniversary of the Men's Bible Class were supper guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Burnham after the concert, Mrs. Thomas Douglas, wife of the president of the class, pouring tea, and the Misses Jean L. Burnham and Francis Jones attending to the service. Rev. Mr. Jones and Mr. Douglas were among the guests. The quartette motored back to Toronto the same evening, leaving shortly after midnight for the return trip. Unfortunately Mrs. Burnham was prevented by illness from assisting with the entertainment of the guests in her home, her husband and daughters, Misses Jean and Mary, acting as host and hostesses in her stead.

The members of the quartette were well pleased with their initial visit to the community, declaring the audience a most appreciative and very pleasing one to which to sing. They will be warmly welcomed on a return engagement.

MOTOR BARGES FOR GRAND UNION CANAL

£1,000,000 Modernization Plan Will Displace Horses

London. — When the £1,000,000 scheme for the modernization of the Grand Union Canal from London to Birmingham is completed in two years' time, transport will be mainly by motor-barges in place of the present horse-drawn boats.

A motor-barge with its trailer, known among the bargees as a "butty," costs £1,200. To help the owners of the existing horse-towed craft to own these larger and speedier boats, the Grand Union Canal Company is arranging through a finance company, for the bargees to buy on the instalment plan.

SAMARITANS PLAN CONVENTION IN PETERBOROUGH IN SEPTEMBER

One of Largest Conventions to be Ever Held in This City.

COLORFUL PARADES

One of the largest conventions, both in point of territory represented and attendance for some years will be held in this city at the latter part of September. The northern division of the Ancient Mystic Order of Samaritans which consists of sanctoriums or lodges located in Canada and the United States decided at their last session in favor of Peterborough by an overwhelming majority. The general committee from the membership of Cyzicus Sanctorum No. 24 is already working hard towards the necessary preparations for this noteworthy event and sub-committees have been appointed to attend their own respective part of these preparations, such as the reception committee wih Samaritan James H. Price as chairman in charge of hotel accommodation, registration, etc., entertainment committee under chairmanship of Samaritan Bob Brawn, finance committee with Samaritan T. Doughty as leader, buildings and decorations committee in charge of Samaritan Alderman F. T. Tuggey, also publicity and program committee consisting of the entire general committee with Samaritan G. Wyatt chairman.

The entertainments outlined in a tentative program to be submitted to the general committee on Friday evening include some very colorful street parades with such noted participants as the Buffalo drum corps, Detroit patrols and many others who will also take part in the patrol drill competitions expected to be judged in one of the parks.

Something new in the line of accommodation will be required from the reception committee if any of the visitors decide to bring their camels, elephants and other mascots with them. An item of interest to this district is the fact that Samaritan Fred Thomas of Myoerinus Sanctorum of Lindsay is the incoming Supreme Monarchos of the Northern Division and will be installed in August at the Supreme convention in Toledo, Ohio.

Samaritan Thomas together with Samaritans Sam Botting, George Allen and J. W. Brown also from Lindsay attended the last meeting of the general committee of Cyzicus Sanctorum and gave much valuable assistance. The second annual picnic is planned to take place on Dominion Day July 1. It has been decided with the kind permission of the Nicholls Park Commissioners to hold it in Nicholls Oval and will be an attractive feature for the citizens who will be invited to bring their children and participate in the sports.

A soft ball game has been arranged for, the details of which are in the hands of Samaritan Fred Batten and his able committee, also tug-of-war and many other types of races and general sports most of which will be open events. The officers and members of Cyzicus Sanctorum are to be congratulated on their successful efforts to bring a convention of such magnitude to our fair city and there is no doubt the citizens of Peterborough will co-operate in every possible way to make the visit of the representatives and their families a pleasant one.

TEN ARRESTED; THEFTS ALLEGED

Woman Among Accused Apprehended in Tweed and Trenton.

SERIES OF BREAK-INS.

BELLEVILLE, June 3.—A series of break-ins within the last few months in the northern part of Hastings County near Tweed, also in Trenton, and Murray and Sidney Townships has baffled police for some time. Wednesday evening and early yesterday, four men were arrested at Tweed. The prisoners were: W. Boyce, Edward Thompson, John Moore and M. J. Finn. At Trenton the police took into custody Albert Stacey and his wife, William Stacey, Clifford Chard, Teddy Thompson and Charles Patrick. The police engaged in the case were Provincial Constables Hill of Madoc, Grey of Marmora, Kelly and Springer of Belleville headquarters, and Trenton local police. The four first-mentioned prisoners appeared in Belleville Police Court, and three of them pleaded guilty to four charges each of breaking and entering, and were remanded for one week for sentence, while Finn was charged under the L.C.A. and fined $100 and costs. They will appear in Trenton Police Court to answer similar charges.

The Trenton captives appeared yesterday and were remanded for one week. It is alleged that Mrs. Albert Stacey donned the garb of a man and accompanied the others. Clifford Chard was taken at Moira Lake when he came out of the bush. Provincial Constable Stringer had removed his coat and commenced to fish on the shore near by, when the man emerged.

RICHARD HALL LIMITED

INQUEST HELD

start up." The rotor commenced to move clockwise.

Continuing, witness testified: "I said to Adkinson this thing has started, let's get out of here." Witness was able to scramble onto a platform, while Adkinson remained standing on the arms of the rotor with a foot on each spoke.

Shouted Warning.

Witness shouted to Adkinson to duck down so that his head would not come into contact with the oil pipes. He did duck his head and the pipes missed him on the first round which the rotor made.

Asked by the crown attorney to explain why Adkinson had not been able to get on to the platform and to safety as witness had done, McKenzie stated: "I believe he could not get off and realized that his only hope was to stay on the arms of the rotor. I advised him to lie flat."

Warned by the shouts of the two men, witness described how Mr. Cotton and other workmen had come rushing into the power-house from outside the building. "Mr. Cotton rushed for the control wheel," witness said. The machine later came to a standstill. He believed that the wheel, which had a maximum speed of 72 r.p.m., was travelling at about 25 r.p.m. at the time of the accident.

Cotton Did All He Could.

After the other workmen had come into the power-house, witness said, he jumped down off the generator platform and went outside. He could not say what precautions were taken to stop the machine, but he exclaimed "Mr. Cotton did all he could."

McKenzie agreed with the crown attorney that the generator could only have been started by water. Witness had started to work on the morning of the fatality at ten o'clock. He was familiar with water wheels and generators, and for that reason had been sent by the C.G.E., by whom he was employed, to repair the wheel. The cleaning of the pit and renovation of the water wheel was an annual job undertaken at the C.G.E. power-house at the Waterworks dam.

Provincial Constable David Silvester gave evidence that on the afternoon of Friday, May 27, he was called to Peterborough Waterworks. It was about 3.40 o'clock when he arrived at the scene. He found the body of a man in a generator. He was jammed between two circular portions of the machine. Efforts were being made by other of the workmen to release the body of the dead man, and which was in a very badly mangled condition.

The constable produced in court a section of heavy metal screening which was in a badly battered condition and which had been taken from the interior of the generator. He stated further that there was another screen in its normal position and which was spattered with parts of the dead man's brains.

Terrible Mutilation.

Dr. Herbert Young testified that upon his arrival at the power-house he had found the generator was stopped. Describing Adkinson's injuries, he stated the head was completely severed, while the legs and arms were fractured.

As assistant coroner and in the absence of Coroner Dr. T. W. H. Young, witness investigated the accident. The following morning he examined the gates down in the pit. Witness went into the pit after the water had been drained off. He examined the shutters to see if a stick or any other object had been holding the shutters open. He found no signs of any obstruction. All the shutters were in perfect condition.

After the shutters had been examined, the assistant coroner explained, the logs were raised and water was admitted to the pit. He went on top of the generator to see if it would move. They had duplicated as far as was possible the condition that had existed at the time of the accident. The wheel would not start.

Later witness opened the gates slightly by turning the control wheel and the generator made about fifteen revolutions and then stopped.

Robert S. Cotton, foreman at the C.G.E. plant, testified that on May 27 he was in charge of a gang of men who were working at the Waterworks dam power-house. The generators were being cleaned and renovated. The work had proceeded for two or three days.

When the accident happened witness and his gang of men had finished their work on the water wheel, while Adkinson and McKenzie were still at work on the generator above.

Mr. Cotton explained that when the water wheel was first examined one of the gates was found to be broken that had been repaired and was in perfect condition on the afternoon of the fatality.

Shut Her Down.

Witness was standing outside the power-house door when he heard someone crying "shut her down." Witness rushed to the control wheel and tried to close the wheel. It was already shut as tight "as human hands could turn it," said witness. The accident did not happen from neglect on that account.

In the morning, he continued, the water had been out of the pit. It was about three-thirty in the afternoon when the water was let into the pit. The accident happened almost immediately afterwards. Witness stated, in reply to Crown Attorney McElderry, that he had given orders for the water to be let into the pit. He did not know the two men were working in the generator. He had seen them on the floor of the power-house sometime before.

He realized that at the time he gave orders for the stop logs to be removed that the two men might be at work inside the generator, he said in reply to a further question

When Water Reached Level.

It was when the water in the pit had reached the natural level of the river that the wheel had started to rotate. The water had reached its maximum height.

He could give no explanation as to why the wheel should turn. Witness had examined the wheel and satisfied himself as to its mechanical perfection before giving orders for the water to be admitted.

He agreed with the crown attorney that the machinery must have started from the water. It was not impossible for it to have been started by electricity. "But it was not started by electricity," he stated definitely. He further agreed that if the pit had not been filled with water until the two men had finished working inside the generator, the accident could not have happened.

Mr. Cotton had supervised the same operations at the Waterworks about thirty times. He had never before known a generator to start before by the admission of water into the pit and before the gates had been opened.

Not Probable.

To the coroner, the witness said his theory of the occurrence was that the extra flow of water when the stop logs were lifted might in some way have been sufficient to start the wheel. He also agreed that it was possible, though not very probable, that lightning might have jumped the switch and started the machine.

In answer to Mr. McElderry, he believed that if lightning had struck the machine and jumped a switch it would have burned out a part of the machine. There had been no signs of any portion of the generator being burned out.

William Rose, foreman of the C. G. E. Company, was in charge of the working party composed of the victim, Adkinson and McKenzie. At the time of the accident he was at the C.G.E. plant where he had gone to get some wrenches for his men. Returning to the power-house he had handed McKenzie a wrench, but he refused to take it, and said, "Fred has been killed."

Water Started Generator.

Witness's theory of the accident was that "admission of water to the pit started the generator to rotate." Both Adkinson and McKenzie were competent workmen, said witness.

Percy McNaughton, an operator at the power-house where the fatality occurred, stated his attention was attracted by "hollering of the men." He had been employed at the power-house four years and had never before seen men working on the rotor while water was admitted to the pit.

Alfred Hines, who had been engaged on Mr. Cotton's gang in the removal of stop logs, testified that he had started to remove the logs at about 3.30 on the orders of Mr. Cotton.

He described the manner in which the logs are lowered and raised, in great detail, adding that when the water in the pit had reached the level of the river he heard yells from inside the building. He had worked at the logs since 1911. There had been nothing unusual about the admission of water to the pit. He could not recall ever having seen men at work on the rotor wheels of the generators under similar circumstances.

Wheel Shut Tight.

Fred. Board, employee of the Utilities Commission, saw the logs removed and had heard the warning shouts of the two men at work on the generator. He ran into the building and had seen Mr. Cotton trying to turn the control wheel. It was already shut tight.

Robert Charlton, who was also on Mr. Cotton's gang, had helped to take out the stop logs. He heard screams from the power-house and had gone in to see what was the matter. Mr. Cotton was at the hand wheel along with Mr. Board. They did not seem to be able to turn it. It was closed tight.

He agreed that the yelling started just as the water in the pit had reached a level with the water in the river. The pit was full of water before he heard anyone shout.

Three other employees on Mr. Cotton's gang at the stop logs in the persons of Robert Pacey, William Lucy and Howard Schell gave corroborative evidence.

A. B. Hanna, plant engineer of the C.G.E., was familiar with the types of water wheel involved in the fatality. He advanced the theory that a sudden surge of water, following the raising of the logs, might have caused an abnormal head of water which would have a tendency to cause extra leakage of water through the gates.

Couldn't Start Wheel.

He spoke of the experiments that had been conducted on the day following the fatality when the conditions under which Adkinson had been killed were duplicated so far as was possible. They had failed to start the wheel except by normal methods.

"I think there was a surge of water. Electricity or lightning did not cause the accident," stated witness. He would not have believed that there was a chance of such an accident happening.

FINAL DEFEAT

likely that the Opposition might propose an amendment introducing into the measure a mandatory clause safeguarding the application and status of the Anglo-Irish Treaty so that the Bill might not become effective until approved by both contracting parties to the Treaty, that is Great Britain and the Free State.

Debate on the second reading closed with a long impassioned speech by President De Valera himself. Practically throughout three days of debate the president has sat by the speaker's chair, intently following the course of discussion.

Read Thomas' Speech

Late yesterday afternoon he turned for a few moments from the senate debate to read a newspaper clipping, which, in heavy type, reported the latest bombshell of J. H. Thomas, British Dominions secretary, who said in the House of Commons Great Britain might not enter into arrangements with the Free State at the Ottawa Imperial Economic conference. The Free State, Mr. Thomas added, had repudiated the Anglo-Irish treaty and the British Government had no reason to expect itw ould treat with greater sanctity treaties made at Ottawa.

Mr.. De Valera read and re-read the clipping with a smile, but in his subsequent defence of the bill he did not directly mention Mr. Thomas' declaration.

The main point of the President's argument was that the question behind removal of the oath was one of status. "It is a question" he warmly declared, "of whether our present status does or does not relieve us of any obligations which might have been originally implicit in the Irish treaty."

Did the declarations of the Imperial Conference of 1926 and 1930 on equality of status between the Dominions mean anything or nothing, he asked. If they really meant co-equality of status then the Free State was only doing what it had a right to do. If the limitations of the treaty still existed then there was no equality of status.

Not Policy of Severance

"We are not in this bill asking the senate to agree to a policy of severance" Mr. De Valera said. "That is not involved here." It was simply a question of whether a test should be imposed which prevented a section of the people from being represented in parliament, he continued.

If the people of Canada wished to remove the oath from their constitution they could do it, and the Free State claimed an equal right, he declared.

The President spoke of the Ottawa conference next month. "If," he said,—and the "if" was the subject of comment in the lobbies afterwards—"if we go to Ottawa, if we do meet the British representatives, and if there is a council representing other states and this questions is discussed, I do believe every one of them will realize we are fighting for a common right in standing for these principles. . . .

"It is precisely because this proposal touches our status that we can not give way. If we do, then the result will surely be that proclaimed co-equal status does not apply to us, that the right of interference so solemnly renounced by Great Britain, persists so far as we are concerned."

The Government has been questioned, Mr. De Valera said, as to where its policy was leading.

"I can say," he proceeded, "that the people must be free to choose what their form of association with Great Britain shall be. When that time comes I shall be ready to declare which side I stand on."

At this cries of "Oh" arose from Opposition Senators.

Better Off as Republic

"I believe that an independent republic for the whole of this country in such an association could be prosperous, the President continued. "I have defended such an association on the ground it satisfied the minority o fthe people who wanted it without interference with the rights of the majority. But if you ask me if Ireland has not a better chance as a completely independent republic, I should say it has.

"While we have heard a lot about the advantages which might be derived from association, we have heard nothing of the disadvantages," he declared.

There was nothing brusque or defiant in what the Government had done, he claimed.

"If I go my way, doing a thing I have a perfect right to do, and someone questions my right to do it, am I insulting him by doing what I think it right to do" he asked. "We ask this change because it recognizes the right of the Irish people freely to choose for themselves whatever form of government they want and whatever relations they want with other governments."

Hints at Dissolution

Mr. De Valera hinted at dissolution of The Dail if the Senate held up the bill.

"I can only say," he exclaimed with a touch of curtness, "that the Irish people will ultimately have to judge. That is no threat. It is only a democratic way of getting the will of the people."

The President charged that British subsidies had prevented the union of Ireland and closed with the assertion that he and his government were not animated by a spirit of emnity but rather by one of amity towards Great Britain.

Earlier Senator Quirke, Republican, said opponents of the bill were trying to wring from the people a hollow expression of loyalty to a foreign king and tribute to a foreign empire.

Senator John McLoughlin described the bill as foolish and futile. Under it, he said, Ireland's word of honor would sink lower that that of England sank when she repudiated the Treaty of Limerick in the 17th century.

LOOK OUT, MUM, I'M ARMED!

Swansea, Eng.—"Look out, mum, I am armed!" a pretty 13-year-old schoolgirl shouted playfully to her mother as she picked up an army revolver from the kitchen shelf of her home. She pulled on the trigger of the supposedly empty weapon, when, to her horror, there was a loud report and the mother fell dying.

This was the tragic sequel to a childish joke enacted at Clydach, a little mining town near Swansea. The victim was Mrs Agnes Griffiths, 37-year-old wife of Mr. Daniel Griffiths, mining overseer. The unwitting cause was Iris, their daughter.

Local Member Outlines Procedure in the Legislature.

QUESTIONS ARE ASKED

J. F. Strickland, K.C., M.P.P., addressed the members of the Kinsmen Club at their dinner last evening in the Empress Hotel. Mr. Strickland gave to his audience a most able outline of the workings of the Legislature, how the various bills were passed and the different committees which composed the House. He also impressed upon the members the diversity of ideas which are expressed by the members and how they all worked together for the benefit of the people as a whole.

The committee work in the House seldom found the members dividing along straight party lines and it was there where best in all members was brought out. All members have their hobbies along certain lines, and it was their understanding of these lines that enabled the best possible legislation to be passed. He paid tribute to certain members, especially George A. Elliott, of Middlesex North, who, although on the opposition benches, was able to give ideas in municipal legislation which every year saw improvements being made to the Municipal Act.

The speaker told how bills were introduced, and that the greater portion of these came from private members or individuals and municipalities outside the House.

Following the address, the members took the opportunity to ask the speaker about how certain legislation was handled and what constituted a defeat of the Government in the House.

A SENSITIVE skin should have frequent applications of rich cream to keep it from early fading and wrinkling. Any skin must be regularly soothed and softened.

The best time for applying cream is at night. First cleanse and tone. Then, using the cushion tips of the fingers, put on the cream with definite upward strokes, beginning at point of chin and working upward to the ear, the corner of the eye, the temple, with rhythmic, lifting pats. Smooth extra cream just under the chin where a "crepey" look must be guarded against. Pat for several minutes until the face and neck are warm and glowing.

Then dip your finger in Muscle Oil and pat this directly on lines, on forehead, neck or cheeks to smooth and give flexibility to dry or furrowed skin.

Another treatment which you must not fail to try when you wish to look unusually lovely for an evening engagement, is the Anti-Wrinkle Treatment. This cream has been specially prepared to produce quick results and you will be thrilled with the real beauty of your skin, if you use it according to directions.

ESTABLISH FUND TO HELP CLERGY

Minister to Assess Selves One Per Cent for Needy Brethren.

HAMILTON CONFERENCE.

KITCHENER, Ont., June 3. — urging ministers to assist their needy brethren by accepting an assessment of one percent of the minimum salary and wherever possible, one percent of the salary actually received, the Hamilton Conference of the United Church today decided to establish a general fund with an objective of $2,500 from which minister who are in financial need might be granted aid.

The measure was recommended by the executive committee in its report. The committee stated that some ministers are not receiving even their minimum salary rate because of the depression and the new fund is to assist such deserving cases.

The executive granted a special committee of the Niagara Presbytery permission to appeal to the conference for funds to assist Westminster Church St. Catharines which is in financial straits.

A recommendation in the report proposing a change in the method of electing commissioners to the general conference of the church necessitated a vote before being adopted.

The proposal is that each Presbytery recommend one minister and one layman as commissioners with the remaining four ministers and four laymen allowed the conference as commissioners be nominated on the floor of the conference. Rev. Dr. Graham of Hamilton led the opposition, claiming that no interference with the Presbyteries work should be permitted. However, the recommendation carried by a large majority. Rev. S. Burnside Russel of Wesley Church, Hamilton, was elected president of the Hamilton Conference. Rev. Mr. Russell, who succeeds Rev. Charles Packett of Port Dalhousie, will hold office for one year.

J. H. Burnham Writes Ministerial Body

The following letter has been sent to the Peterborough Ministerial Association by J. H. Burnham.

Reverend Sirs and Brothers:

"Mr. Bennett has at last called upon the Almighty to form a government for Canada and a policy. Mr. Bennett has abandoned "Canada First" after having tried it on his own innocent people and upon Great Britain. His supreme confidence has given way to the most abject prayer that He alone who can rescue them from his dismal swamp of failure and humiliation will do so.

"The glorious figure of Sir John Macdonald with his warning finger uplifted and with the words "Beware of the New Heresy of Canada First, a British subject I was born and a British subject I will die" upon his lips, stands forth to point the way to Canadians.

"Let your prayers be to God and your hopes for Empire First. Is it not wise at this critical moment to do what you can locally also to testify to God of the extreme need of this hour."

Almost Wild With Eczema

When the dreadful itching of eczema drives you frantic, you need Peterson's Ointment. It's so wonderful for skin eruptions, pimples, acne, and salt rheums, that usually only two or three applications are needed to make the skin clear and healthy. A big box 50 cents at any drug store.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

The return to normal living, after a period of severe illness is an adjustment that most persons have to meet some time in their lives.

* * * * * * *

It is a problem, not always easily met, and there are even individuals who seek the refuge of prolonging the semblance of ill health in order to avoid facing the situation.

* * * * * * *

However, it is not of those we speak today, but of the convalescent who is ready to make a sincere effort to take up the dropped threads of activity.

* * * * * * *

The onrush of duties must not be allowed to take alarming proportions. If they are considered en masse, and not as separate duties, each capable of being accomplished, the task will seem so stupendous as to bring a tendency to procrastination, without a sense of either relaxation or accomplishment.

* * * * * * *

This state of mind will lead to relapse and discouragement.

* * * * * * *

The return to activity should be gradual and entered into with as much joy as possible. In the running of a household, there are many duties which, although desirable, seem too trivial to devote time to, when health abounds.

* * * * * * *

Here is just the opportunity for their accomplishment. The old box of letters may be sorted out. Then, lest the task lead to retrospection, some cheerful guest may be bidden in to a cup of tea afterwards.

* * * * * * *

The social duties, as well as the household ones, are to be taken up, each gradually and pleasantly until strength increases from such calls upon it. Health grows with use of the faculties which one has, and not from inertia.

* * * * * * *

In illness, medicine has been employed to coax the body to normal activity. In returning to health, some sort of craft which absorbs and interests the mind is often found of immense value.

* * * * * * *

The mind of man is not a stupid organ, and when sufficient vitality has been stored for the vigorous resuming of normal activities, some indication will be felt in that direction by the individual.

* * * * * * *

Gradually life will assume its routine of work and play and health will become established, which in itself is a cause for happiness.

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

BEATING THE ODDS

Longfellow once stated, "Never give up; 'tis the secret of glory." The Bridge player who finds his pleasure in battling against seemingly insurmountable odds, using as his instrument the pasteboard representations of armies, is merely picturing the struggle of life itself. When a player has overcome what at first appeared to be insuperable difficulties and triumphantly achieves his end, he has a right to a measure of satisfaction.

In the hand below, my friend, Dr. I. H. Shelly of Philadelphia, playing in a Duplicate game at the Wissahickon Bridge Club there, found plenty of obstacles in the way of the achievement of his contract.

North and South vulnerable.
East and West not vulnerable.
South, Dealer.

The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1♡	Pass	5♡(1)	Pass
6♡(2)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—North's hand does not have a suit with which to force. His hand contains magnificent support for the proposed trump suit and in addition 3½ honor-tricks. While not quite strong enough to bid for the Slam, it does justify a Slam try by overbidding the game.

2—While South's Opening bid was made on a four-card suit, his hand does contain additional values over those required for an Opening bid, even though vulnerable. He, therefore, accepts his partner's invitation to try for the Slam bonus.

West, with tenace holdings in clubs and spades, selected as his Opening lead the eight of diamonds. This trick Dr. Shelly won and then proceeded to lead five rounds of hearts and two more rounds of diamonds, carefully watching West's discards meanwhile. He had correctly analysed the lead as probably locating both black Kings in the West hand. On the first 8 tricks West was forced to make four discards and he chose as his discards two spades and two clubs. The Ace of spades was then played from the Dummy and the spade suit returned, but Dr. Shelly refused to put up the Queen. West won and as his hand contained nothing but clubs, he was forced to lead a club which was won in the Dummy Hand. Another club was led which South won with the Ace and cashed the Queen of spades, making his contract and the Small Slam. Dr. Shelly had discarded a club from his own hand on the fifth round of hearts. Against this line of play West had no defense, as had he held three spades, the club suit would have been led after hearts and diamonds were exhausted, the first trick won with the Ace and the suit immediately returned. West would then have been compelled to lead a spade away from his minor tenace.

Thus, through the combination of three plays—a squeeze, a duck and an end play—the contract was made.

TIME TO BEGIN HAY FEVER TREATMENT.

It is estimated that about three out of every hundred people suffer with hay fever or asthma or both. That hay fever is due to the pollen from certain plants is now known, many hay fever sufferers dating the attack from the first day the pollen is being carried in the air, whilst many asthmatic sufferers have learned just what food or foods or other things such as feathers and hair bring on their attacks.

While we know that some individuals suffer with a sort of 'hay fever' or pollen catarrh due to roses and other plants, and to flowers that bloom in the spring, the majority of sufferers get their attack of hay fever toward the end of August and it remains with them until the frost or cold weather arrives.

Why has the medical profession not been able to find a cure or preventive for hay fever? Your doctor will tell you that hay fever can be prevented easily. All that is necessary is to go to the place during the hay fever season where there is no pollen in the air. Many sufferers have found these places and go there every year. In fact, a regular community life exists at these places as these sufferers meet year after year, and engage in various forms of exercise, play, and outdoor occupations.

Another preventive and some individuals are able to endure the life, is to live for a goodly portion of each day in an atmosphere that has been kept free of the irritating pollen.

However, both the above methods of prevention are within the reach of only a few individuals; the vast majority must remain in their home town or city.

What about the treatment of hay fever by the use of the pollen itself as now advocated by many physicians? Is this treatment always successful?

The largest percentage of 'cures' I have seen reported is 66 per cent., but this is very much higher than that recorded, by the majority of physicians giving this form of treatment.

Failures by this method are not always due to the method or to the physician but to the fact that the patient will not try it again if it fails the first year. Cures have been effected only after the second and third years of treatment in many cases.

It must be admitted that there have been many failures even after the most careful examination to get the right pollen, and three or more years of treatment.

However, the fact remains that there have been many cures, even in one year by inoculations twice a week for six or eight weeks before the attack usually comes on. It is thus worth trying, and May and June are the right months to begin the treatments.

ATROCITY

It takes two sides to make a war, and here you see them both in a powerful post-war adventure

By DAVID ROGERS

Illustrated By ART KRENZ

THE front page of the newspapers which had just been distributed in the smoking compartment of the Ottawa-Montreal express carried a report of the final sitting of the Canadian commission on reparations claims.

Featured in the lead of the story was the evidence of a former British aviator, who had testified that after he was taken prisoner by the Germans a wound in his side had been prodded daily for two weeks in an effort to force him to disclose specifications of a new Allied scout plane.

A casual comment by one of the occupants of the smoker had led to a general discussion of the subject of war atrocities, in the course of which a young Englishman had contributed the remark that he supposed, if the truth were really known, the Germans were "no worse than our own troops" when it came to actual ruthlessness.

"It has been definitely established," he said, "that most of the war-time reports of German atrocities were nothing but lying propaganda."

Just before he made this observation, a large, red-faced man had entered the compartment.

The newcomer immediately took issue with the Englishman.

"Were you in France?" he queried bluntly.

"I thought not," he continued, when the other man shook his head. "Well, I was, see. I'm a Yank, but I went over in '15 with the second Canadian contingent, and I'm telling you that the Huns were swine. They were worse than brutes. They were fiends, every last one of them, dastardly fiends."

HIS voice, harsh and dogmatic, rose discordantly above the roar and rattle of the speeding train. He glared toward the Englishman with an expression of savagery which seemed entirely out of keeping with the casualness of the conversation.

Most of us were so amazed by the suddenness and ferocity of his outbreak that we just sat there and stared.

But the Englishman was not so easily downed.

Very quietly, he said: "I don't wish anyone to think that I hold a brief for the behavior of the German forces during 1914-18, but neither am I prepared to agree with the view that all the brutes were on their side of the wire. I have spent considerable time in Germany during recent years, and over there one hears almost as grave charges with regard to the conduct of our troops as we hear on this side with respect to German atrocities.

"If you care to listen, I would like to tell the details of a personal experience I had in this connection a few months ago."

With poorly concealed lack of grace, the other man invited him to go ahead, his inexplicable resentment being replaced simultaneously by an air of blatant cynicism.

This is the story that the Englishman related:

A STRANGE and poignantly pathetic procession wended its way through the gayest street in Berlin one raw, blustery afternoon late in December. Preceded by a small detachment of mounted "schupo" came a long, straggling line of 2000 men, women and children.

Almost every man in the line of march, and some of the women and children as well, held a dog on the end of a leash. Most of them were big black-brown shepherd dogs or police dogs, although there were also smaller dogs.

These dogs didn't bark, and yelp, and tangle their chains about nearby posts like ordinary dogs. They walked straight ahead with noses up, ears cocked and tails out, splendidly impervious to the barking that arose from their more frivolous fellows along the route of march.

These 2000 men, women and children were blind people, the destitute blind of the city; and the dogs that accompanied them had reason to look serious and important, for they were the very eyes of those they were leading, and in some cases the livelihood as well!

I learned from a bystander that the blind of Berlin were proceeding to a public hall to persuade the city authorities that their monthly dole of eight dollars for the single people, and twice that amount for the married, was hopelessly inadequate.

To me there was an irresistible appeal to that silent demonstration. I decided to follow them to their destination.

FROM his grotesque little four-wheeled box at the corner of Lutherstrasse, a legless newspaper vendor shouted a cheery greeting to an acquaintance in the line of march.

A pitiful figure in one of the rear ranks sent back an answering hail. This man was not only blind, but he was bereft of a leg and an arm as well. An old army coat hung in tatters from his broad shoulders. Curly blond hair grew thick about his large, well-shaped head, conspicuous because he wore no hat. It was not difficult to imagine that he had once been a splendid specimen of Teutonic manhood.

But when he turned his head I was unable to suppress a shudder. Both nose and eyes were missing. The upper part of his face had been completely shot away. And yet in the same moment that I shuddered, the disfigured part of his countenance seemed to fade completely away, and I was only aware of his smile. What a smile it was! God must have given him that smile as a substitute for the mask which it would otherwise have been a kindness for him to have worn.

While I continued to stare with fascination at this extraordinary blending of beauty and ugliness, he spoke a low-voiced command to a magnificent shepherd dog that was tied to the wrist of his one good arm. The dog added a joyous bark of greeting to the grinning cripple on the sidewalk.

I hardly moved my gaze from this remarkable pair throughout the remainder of the walk to Bulowstrasse, and when they disappeared through the doorway of the assembly hall, I resolved that I also would enter.

IT was one of the oddest gatherings I have ever attended. The speakers were all blind men. They spoke quietly and without any attempt at fiery oratory, apologizing at the outset for having to make such a demonstration at a time when the city and the nation were faced with so many other troubles, and then convincingly justifying their conclave on grounds that what they sought was work and not charity.

I was hoping that the crippled blind man with the big dog would say something. But he remained silent.

In the end, it was decided to send a resolution to the city government advocating the formation of a special committee to help them in their search for work and at the same time to investigate their contention that 32 marks was too small a sum for them to live on.

After that they all filed out into the cold again. In a few moments the hall was empty. The blind had had their day!

I started after the man in the ragged army coat. It had occurred to me that it might be a decent thing to invite him to have a bite to eat with me.

It was dusk by the time I reached Nollendorf Platz and a biting sleet storm had set in. Ahead of me the man I was following had stopped to remove the overcoat from his own back and wrap it around his dog. They were starting out again in this fashion when I overtook them.

I accosted him with the word, "Cheerio."

IT was an inane thing to say to a man in such patently pathetic circumstances. But before I could form the phrase that I wished to say, without turning his head, he replied in perfect English, "Good evening, sir."

"And that's all I can remember . . . until several days later I came to and found myself in a British dressing station." . . . I didn't say anything else.

"Hello," I exclaimed. "You speak English then?"

He said: "Well rather. I was a clerk in London for five years before the war."

I asked him what his name was. His answer was disconcerting.

He said: "My name? Why, I have no name. But my dog's name is Holtz."

At mention of the name, the dog yelped softly, almost it seemed in remonstrance, and then nuzzled affectionately against the stump of the missing leg.

"You see," the man continued. "He thinks I have done wrong in giving my name to him. But I say I have done right. Of what use is the name to me? And besides, my dog is more entitled to it than I am."

All this time he was smiling. I was glad because when he stopped smiling it was necessary for me to look the other way. I think maybe he realized this.

HE went on: "My business is selling lead pencils. But it is not I who sells them. It is Holtz. We Germans oftentimes love our dogs more than we love humanity. Well, why not? Show me the human being that is more steadfast in his friendship and loyalty than a good dog."

Again, the dog barked softly.

I said: "I was thinking maybe you would have dinner with me?"

"Yes," he replied. "I would enjoy it, providing your invitation includes Holtz as well as myself."

That meal in Gustav's snug little black-panelled restaurant will go down in my memory as one of the weirdest I have ever eaten. Holtz and his master were greeted as old friends by the proprietor, who had himself lost an arm in battle, and since I was introduced as a friend, my own welcome was not less hearty.

We were given a table off in a niche by itself, and the waiter very solemnly pulled out a bench for the dog, Holtz, as well as for his master and myself. After that he tied a clean white napkin about the dog's neck, as if it were the most natural act in the world, and throughout the meal, which was a substantial one, the dog was served precisely the same food as were we, and consumed it without once spilling a morsel on the table cloth.

While we were eating, we talked mostly of existing conditions in our respective countries. He told me that he had always thought he would like to migrate to Canada. He had been on the point of going when the war broke out in 1914.

LATER on, over our mugs of beer, I said: "I wonder if you'd find it too harrowing to tell me about how you got shot up so badly?"

Right away his face became serious, and he said: "No, I'd rather not. It isn't a pretty story."

"But there's never anything very pretty about war," I argued.

"No," he replied. "War is never pretty."

Finally he said: "All right. I'll tell you. But I don't want you to think I hold any hard feelings."

I didn't realize what he meant by that until later. I'll tell you the story as nearly as I can the way that he related it to me.

He said: "I was a machine-gunner. I went through all the earlier years of the war with only a few minor scratches, and then came the summer of 1918. We were in the Niewekerke sector. Kemmel was the key position in that area and our high command decided it must be taken.

"I guess you're read about that battle. Our artillery preparation was terrific. I don't see how there was anything left living after our guns got through shooting. But when the first-line division went over the top, they were repulsed with terrible losses.

"AFTER that a Guards division was sent over. They, too, were beaten back with heavy losses. It was not until a fresh line division was brought up that we finally took Kemmel.

"Well, I told you I was a machine-gunner. When the British forced us out of Kemmel, a few days later, I and my crew, together with a lot of other sections, were ordered to fight a rear-guard action and to hold on as long as possible. I and my crew occupied a pill-box position that gave us a perfect sweep of the ground over which your chaps were trying to advance. We held on until we were almost completely surrounded. All this time, we had been inflicting heavy losses on the enemy.

"In the end, with two of our crew of five knocked out, the sergeant decided to surrender. We smashed the gun and stuck up a handkerchief to indicate that we were giving up.

"A small detachment of men came running up, led by an officer with a bandage wrapped around a wound in his forehead. He ordered us to hop out of the pill-box. We thought they were going to take us prisoners and started toward them with our hands held high.

"Instead, the officer, a big red-faced man, turned around and said something to three men who were carrying a Lewis gun, and then he turned back to us and in German ordered us to face about and run as fast as we could in the direction of our own lines. We were surprised, but thought it was just a case of their not wanting to be bothered sending an escort back to their own base with us.

"But as soon as our backs were turned I heard him order the machine-gun crew to 'Shoot the swine.' A few seconds later they opened fire. I saw the two men ahead of me go down in a hail of bullets. I remember looking back and cursing the officer who was responsible.

"As nearly as I could see, he was then operating the machine gun himself. I think the men had refused to shoot. After that, a burst of bullets tore through my face and at the same time I was hit badly in the arm and leg.

"And that's all I can remember until several days later I came to and found myself in a British dressing station."

I didn't say anything else. What else was there to say? I just shook hands with him, and with the dog to whom he had given his name, and after making an appointment to meet them at the same place a week later, I left.

"AND so, my friend," the man in the smoking compartment concluded, turning toward his fellow-traveler who had spoken so harshly about the Germans, "that is why I maintain that your attitude on this question is not exactly fair."

We were all waiting for the red-faced man to say something. But his volubility seemed to have deserted him. Several seconds went by before any words came from his lips.

Finally he said: "How do you know Holtz was telling the truth?"

The man who had been living in Germany extracted a small newspaper clipping from his pocketbook.

"Several days after I met Holtz and his dog," he explained, "I received a newspaper from home and quite by chance happened to run across this letter in the section devoted to communications from the public.

"It is written by a former British machine-gunner and describes, from the opposite side, an incident exactly similar to the happening related to me by Holtz. It corroborates the German's story in every possible respect, even to the detail of the wound in the officer's forehead. Maybe you'd like to read it?"

Without waiting for an answer, he reached it toward the man who had expressed doubt.

The other snatched it nervously.

Abruptly he crushed the clipping in his big hand and threw it savagely to the floor of the compartment.

"Served the damn squareheads right," he snarled. "If I'd been that officer I'd have done precisely the same thing."

At the same moment, the train gave a quick lurch, throwing him against the back of the seat so that his hat, which he had worn unusually low on his head, was knocked off on the floor.

A jagged, red scar stood out starkly on his bulging white forehead.

"To hell with you all," he muttered as he swaggered out of the compartment at the next station.

Golf

The caddies of Canada this year of depression will be a big factor in helping support many families whose men-folk and women-folk are out of work. Especially so will this be the case in the larger cities.

For instance in Toronto alone with its 26 clubs it is conservatively estimated that the next few months over $100,000 will be paid by golfers to the bag-toters and this will help many a home to balance the budget to some extent.

Mr. R. C. H. Cassels, K. C. president of the Toronto Club estimates that his club and the neighboring club, Lakeview, alone spend $15,000 in caddie fees. Then there is Lambton, Rosedale, Scarboro, Thornhill, Summit, Mississauga, Weston, Islington, the Royal York, and a dozen or more other clubs who employ boys by the hundred. In a few cases unemployed men have been taken on the caddie staffs by generally speaking players prefer the boys, many of whom have had several years experience and are much better at retrieving lost balls. Montreal, Ottawa, Halifax, Quebec, St. John, Hamilton, London, Winnipeg, Vancouver and Victoria are all centers where the freckled-faced caddie is in great demand, not to mention many of the smaller cities, so if Toronto spends $100,000 a season it can be readily seen that Canada's total caddie bill must run into very big figures indeed, and will be of great assistance to thousands of families this season.

Minor Leaguers Make Good In Majors

FORMER LEAFS NOW DETROIT "BIG SHOTS"

When the Tigers played the Leafs an exhibition game recently at Toronto, the affair was somewhat unique, inasmuch as most of the big leaguers were athletes who at one time or another were members of the Toronto club. Dale Alexander at the LEFT was for several seasons first baseman of the Leafs. Nolan Richarson next to him was the regular third baseman of the Toronto club last year, while Shortstop Bill Rogell, third in the group, was also here in 1931. Harry Davis at the RIGHT graduated from the Leafs just a few weeks ago and has already become a big league sensation.

LEAFS UNDERGO BIG SHAKE-UP

Shortstop Marvin Owen is Traded to Newark Bears For Bob Stevens.

ART SMITH MAY BE SOLD.

TORONTO, June 3.—Interesting developments are taking place in connection with the Toronto International League team. The big shake-up planned by local club officials is taking form, and already one deal has been completed and several players are heading this way to don Maple Leaf uniforms.

The Leafs were rained out at Maple Leaf Stadium yesterday, and the opening fixture with the Rochester Red Wings, last year's champions, who are making their first visit of the season here, was advanced until to-day, when a doubleheader will be played, weather permitting. However, local club officials were not idle, even though the players were. Keeping the telephone and telegraph wires hot, a deal was arranged with Newark, whereby Shortstop Marvin Owen is traded to the Bears for Shortstop Bobby Stevens and an outfielder, who will not be named until Sunday, according to word from Newark. George Selkirk may be the player named, although local club officials are endeavoring to obtain Fred Walker. Jesse Hill is a possibility also, although both Hill and Walker are rather fancied by the Newark management more than is Selkirk. All three players belong to the New York Yankees.

Owen, although a brilliant shortstop, has been a disappointment as far as hitting is concerned, and the trade may benefit both clubs. Owen is the property of the Detroit Club, and Newark would not have full title to him. It is likely the deal provides for the players concerned reverting to their original owners at the end of the present season.

Fitzgerald Reports.

Ray Fitzgerald, a former Newark player, who has been with Indianapolis for the past two seasons, joined the Leafs yesterday morning and will play in the present series with Rochester. He has been obtained on trial subject to purchase. He is an outfielder who hit .327 with the Indians last season in 160 games. Although it was said yesterday that Curt Walker, former Cincinnati outfielder, who has also been with Indianapolis for the past two seasons, would also join the Leafs. Mr. Dunn stated last night that the deal for Walker had not been completed as yet, although it might go through. Walker has always been a .300 hitter, but is not so spry in the outfield as he once was.

Art McHenry has been recalled from Harrisburg of the N.Y.P. League, where he was sent a few weeks ago, and he will be available for duty as soon as he reports. Although McHenry did not hit as well as expected at Harrisburg, when he reported there, he has been connecting with regularity of late, and local club officials figure he will be just as good here as any of the outfielders who have been playing for the Leafs.

Another announcement is to the effect that the Detroit club has asked for waivers on Heinie Schuble, with a view to sending him to the Toronto club, and if waivers are obtained he will report here next week. Schuble will be used at second base.

Art Smith May Be Sold.

Negotiations are also being conducted with the Chicago American League Club which involve the sale of Pitcher Art Smith. The White Sox are anxious to secure Smith, it is said, and if the deal goes through it will be a straight player proposition instead of a cash transaction. Three players may be obtained in exchange for the leading Toronto moundsman. Outfielder Anderson, now on option with the San Francisco Missions of the Coast League, where he is hitting .370, is likely to come to the Leafs in the deal. A pitcher, possibly McKain, is another one mentioned. It is also probable that a first-baseman may be secured. While Smith's departure will be regretted by local fans, the deal may prove one of extreme advantage to the Toronto club.

Marvin Owen's departure will also be regretted locally, but in Stevens the Leafs are obtaining a good shortstop, and one who is likely to hit better than Owen did here. Owen is only in his third season of professional baseball. He started as a first baseman with Santa Clara University and then joined Seattle in 1930 in the Coast League. He was purchased by the Tigers from Seattle, and started the 1931 campaign as regular shortstop at Detroit. However, his failure to hit prevented him staying in the major league. His work has been a feature of the Toronto team this season, and he has few equals as a fielder in covering ground and throwing out runners.

Art Smith Traded To the White Sox

CHICAGO, June 3 (C.P.) — Completion of a deal was announced to-day by the Chicago White Sox, whereby Pitcher Hal McKain and Outfielder Hal Anderson of the Hose were traded to Toronto of the International League for Pitcher Art Smith, a right-hander.

Smith won six games and lost only one for Toronto this season. Anderson was recently recalled by the Sox from the Pacific Coast League.

Lindsay Tip-Tops Beat Omemee 21-16

OMEMEE, June 3. — (Examiner Correspondence). — In a thrilling see-saw battle, Tip-Tops of Lindsay vanquished the home team by a score of 21-16. Tip-Tops, by some fine base running and smart defensive play, were just a shade too good for the homesters. Omemee lost the game by not playing the brand of ball they are capable of, and if they want to pull out a win against Downeyville on Friday evening they will have to play heads-up ball.

Two very regrettable accidents marred the game when Harry Sanderson, substitute centre fielder for Omemee, had the misfortune to break a bone in his foot when sliding into home plate. Mrs. J. Poyser suffered severe bruises when accidently knocked down by an Omemee fielder.

Line-up:

Lindsay—Smith, 3b; Martin, ss; Reeves, c; Myers, 1b; Tamlyn, p; Kennedy, cf; Houser, 2b; Armstrong, rf; Brooks, cf.

Omemee—Parsons, p; Adams, 1b; Mackey, 2b; A. McQuade, lf; S. Rehill, c; H. Sanderson, cf; L. McGuade, 3b; Stephenson, ss; Williamson, rf.

Umpires—D. Hayes on the plate, H. Rea on the bases.

Stella's Sister After Laurels

SAID TO BE AS GOOD AS STELLA

Stella Walsh, Cleveland's world champion sprinter, who is pointing for the Olympics, is joined in her preparatory work by her younger sister, Clara, who, according to Dr. Dan Griffin, Stella's trainer is painting a glowing future for the youngster whose performance of 11 3-5 seconds for the 100-yard dash at the age of 13 bears him out. It wasn't until Stella had reached 14 that she was able to beat this mark. Photo shows Clara Walsh, 13 (LEFT) keeping up with her sister during a training session in Cleveland.

SENIOR BALL PLAYERS WILL PARADE THROUGH THE STREET

BAND IN ATTENDANCE.

Plans were made for opening ceremonies when the Petes meet Cobourg at Stevenson Park Saturday in the first C.O.B.L. game here tomorrow, at a meeting of the executive of the senior ball club in the "Y" last night. Prominent sportsmen will go through the traditional baseball opening ceremony at the park, following a large parade from the Market Square headed by a band and made up of Peterborough and Cobourg players and many automobiles.

Following the reading of the minutes and some correspondence which was left in the hands of the secretary, the matter of publicity was decided upon. A large banner to be placed across a downtown street will be purchased and used for all home games. The certificate of Ray Rose was returned to the manager, as this player has been released back to the C.G.E. intermediate team.

Check Up on Grounds

President Jack Bell will check up on the condition and the proper measurements of the grounds Friday. More season tickets were handed out to members of the executive, and it was reported that the tickets were selling satisfactorily. Only holders of these tickets, entitled them and their companions to seats at all the home games, may sit in the reserved section of the main grandstand, directly back of home plate. It was decided to admit children under fourteen free to the opening game.

Each Peterborough player will receive two passes for each game, and these will be given out at the final practise preceding the home contests. The players are to be informed that they must attend all practises unless excused beforehand by the manager.

Parade to Grounds

It was agreed last night that the big parade Saturday afternoon should be from the Market Square, starting sharp at two o'clock, down Water street to King, over to George, north then to Hunter and east to the Park. The players of both teams will walk behind the band, with the executive members, their friends and others bringing up the rear in cars. The players will assemble at the Market Square at 1.45 o'clock.

The ceremony at Stevenson Park to start the first game of the year here, with a pitcher, catcher and batter, will be done by Bob Colling, Belleville, president of the Central Ontario Baseball League, Mayor Roland Denne and Jack Bell, president of the Peterborough Club Following some further discussion on minor matters, the meeting then adjourned.

"Two-Bit" Bleacher Plan More Popular

CHICAGO, June 3 (C.P.) — First returns from the American Association's "two - bit" bleacher front have brought both good and bad news to the club owners.

Indianapolis reported a rousing reception in favor of the new plan to admit fans to certain sections of the bleachers for a quarter; Milwaukee and Toledo reports were fair, but those from Kansas City and Louisville were discouraging.

Columbus, St. Paul and Minneapolis still were to give the bargain rates a try-out in their home parks.

Famous Stallion Dead.

Lord Glanely has suffered a severe loss in the death of his stallion, Grand Parade, who was found in his box at the Exning Stud, Newmarket, yesterday morning, with a broken leg, and was destroyed.

Grand Parade won the first Derby after the war, in 1919, at 33 to 1, this being the year when The Panther was such a dismal failure. Lord Glanely had another horse, Dominion, in the race, which was thought to be the better of the two. Grand Parade, who was by Orby out of Grand Geraldine, has been a great success at the stud, having sired winners of over 225 races to the value of $508,715. Best known of these are Diophon, Review Order, Grand Salute and Grand Knight, the last-named of whom has won a lot of money in New Zealand.

Roy Oliver Repeats In Halifax Marathon

HALIFAX, June 3 (C.P.)—Repeating his performance of last year, Roy Oliver of Thorburn today won the annual Herald and Mail 10-mile road race, leading a field of 64 runners from various parts of the Maritime Province. Noell Paul, Springhill Indian, finished 2-5 of a second behind Oliver.

Oliver ran the course in 53 minutes 45 seconds, his time last year was 54 minutes 20 seconds.

TIME LIMIT ON CRICKET.

Spectators at the ground of Stinchcombe Stragglers at Duraley, generaly voted Mr. B. H. Lyon's time-limit experiment, a success. The Stragglers who were reinforced by several county professionals, had two and a half hours in which to bat, and on a slow pitch made 201 in two and a quarter hours.

O'Connor (England and Essex) got his 75 in 55 minutes, including two sixes and eleven fours, and Eastman (Essex) also hit six sixes (one out of the ground) and four fours. Lyon put his tail in first and Gloucesterahire last eight wickets for 71 in an hour. Dacre hit five sixes in six balls.

A county professional contended that the time limit would substitute brawn for brains in batsmen, and would eliminate the slow bowler. "Any lucky sloggers," he added, "would get into first class cricket under these conditions."

GOMEZ AGAIN BEATS MACKS

New York Yankee Southpaw Scores His Fourth Victory Over Athletics.

BROWNS BEAT SOX 4-2.

(By Gayle Talbot, Associated Press Sports Writer.)

Bobby Brown and Huck Betts of the bouncing Boston Braves, a youngster of 20 and a veteran of 33, are putting on one of the greatest pitching acts seen in the National or any other league in recent years.

A club that can pick up one winning rookie in this day of keen competition is doing pretty well, but here Manager Bill McKechnie has found a pair who look like world beaters. Each has contributed five victories to the braves' pennant fight, neither has met defeat, and they are tied for the pitching leadership of the National League.

What makes their work even more impressive is the fact they have burst on the scene with little or no fanfare. Pre-season dope scarcely mentioned either Brown, the husky kid from Binghampton, or Betts, who had been a failure in a previous visit to the majors with the Phillies.

Apparently, no one except Al. Spohrer, Boston catcher, had an inkling of Brown's real ability. He was talking about the youngster the first week of the season, declaring he had the greatest hop on his fast ball that he (Spohrer) had ever seen, but the catcher's words were not taken too seriously.

Poisonous to Dodgers.

Brown has been particularly poisonous to Brooklyn, beating the Dodgers in each of four times he has faced them. Twice he has limited Max Carey's pupils to four hits and again to five. His second four-hitter was achieved yesterday, when he clipped the Dodgers, 5 to 1, in the second game of a doubleheader after Brooklyn had beaten Socks Seibold 6 to 1 in the first.

For eight rounds the rookie held Brooklyn to three hits and no runs, but Hack Wilson's homerun against the rightfield screen after two were out in the ninth deprived him of a shutout. It was Wilson's second of the day and his seventh for the season.

Even with their break for the day, however, the Braves lost ground to the leading Chicago Cubs, who were taking their opener at Pittsburgh, 9 to 5. Elwood English led the assault on three Pirate pitchers with two doubles and two singles. The only other game scheduled, the Phillies at New York, was rained out.

Lefty Gomez rang up his ninth victory against one defeat as the Yankees trimmed the Athletics, 5 to 1. The Castilian beating the A's for the fourth straight time, kept eight hits widely spaced and struck out 10 batters. Ben Chapman, with two doubles, featured the attack on four Philadelphia hurlers.

Washington strengthened its hold on second place in the American with a double win over the floundering Boston Red Sox, 6 to 4 and 8 to 1. Monte Weaver won his eighth victory in the opener and "Lefty" Bob Burke bunched two doubles and three singles with a base on balls in the third inning to score four runs off Al Thomas and beat the Chicago White Sox, 4 to 2. Cleveland's scheduled doubleheader at Detroit was rained out.

Yesterday's Stars

Elwood English, Cubs—Found Pirate pitching easy and collected four hits, including pair of doubles.

Dazzy Vance, Dodgers, and Bob Brown, Braves—Former allowed five hits, latter four as Dodgers and Braves split double header.

Vern Gomez, Yankees—Beat A's for ninth victory of season, six in succession.

Dick Coffman, Browns—His effective pitching with men on base beat Whitesox.

Monte Weaver and Bob Burke, Senators—Pitched Senators to two verdicts over Redsox.

Smokers Arouse Blue Law Leniency

HAMILTON, June 3. (CP)—The law which says tobacco smokers' needs shall not be sold on Sunday, will not be too rigidly enforced in Hamilton. The Board of Police Commissioners took the view that no abuse of the Lord's Day Act should be tolerated, but they felt police should "broadly interpret" the law on the theory no great crime was committed if a man purchased cigarettes on Sunday.

When the ban was tightly enforced last Sunday many citizens voiced disapproval, one irate citizen hanging a significant black crepe on the city hall door to show his indignation.

KITCHEN AND HOLMES READY FOR LOOP OPENER SATURDAY

Much Stronger Local C.O.B.L. Team Faces Cobourg Squad Here.

PARADE TO BALL PARK.

A strong Peterborough senior team opens the season here tomorrow afternoon against Cobourg, the game starting in Stevenson Park at three o'clock. The 1932 Petes are much stronger and considerably different from that of last year which trailed Kingston and Belleville all through. This season, the Petes are promising to go some place and they got away to a good start by beating Cobourg on the latter's diamond May 24th. They hope to repeat here tomorrow.

Either Russ Kitchen or Ernie Holmes, both big righthanders who throw them in fast, will start for the homesters. Al Heckman will be on hand for relief purposes, but the veteran is taking it easy till the weather warms up. His big bat will be available in case a pinch-hitter is needed. A fast, youthful infield includes Ash, Hickey, Scully, Hillier, Hollingsworth and Nicholls, while Dallin, Foley and Beavis will patrol the garden. Collins, Rogers and Ross are ready to do the receiving.

A Stronger Outfit.

This outfit is strong in every department. They have played errorless ball in Cobourg, in exhibition games and in practises. They can slug as no Peterboorugh team has batted in years, and they can run bases. With good pitching, hard hitting and steady defensive play, the new local senior squad should go far in the C.O.B.L. Manager Art Primeau does not know his starting line-up yet, but will decide after tonight's workout.

The Cobourg team boasts two fine hurlers in Hoot Gibson, last year's Belleville star, and Toey Ibey, husky hockey and ball player. Hoot failed to receive good support when he lost to the Petes the 24th, but may be sent back tomorrow. Otherwise, Ibey will get the call and if he pitches anything like he did in Kingston last week, the locals may have a real battle on their hands. He held the champion Ponies to six scattered hits and helped himself to two hits in three appearances also. A strong outfield, offensively and defensively and an uncertain infield makes Cobourg nobody's setup, though still something of a dark horse.

Both teams will walk behind the band tomorrow to the park where the opening ceremony will start them off once again. It should be a great game for the fans.

Hewitt Beats Cox; Shikat Is Winner

TORONTO, June 3. (Queensbury Club show). "Whitey" Hewitt, 215, Mephis, Tennessee, won the decision over Joe Cox, 208, Kansas City, in one-hour bout after each had scored a fall—Cox in 35:51 with crotch hold and body slam, and Hewitt in 10:36 with a giant swing.

Richard Shikat, 215 Germany, threw Matros Kirilenko, 219, Russia. First fall, 23:23; second fall, 1:16; each with crotch hold and body slam.

Jack Washburn, 235, Los Angeles, threw Jack Smith, 204, Chicago, with a flying mare. Time 10 minutes and 50 seconds.

"Tiger" Daula, 230, India, threw "Buck" Olsen, 224, Denmark, with a crotch hold and body slam. Time 6 minutes 59 seconds.

Frankie Hart 174, Toronto, beat Johnny Sylvi, 161, Hamilton, decision after 15 minutes.

BISONS BLANK ROYALS 4 TO 0

First Inning Attack Provides Winning Margin for the Leaders.

HEAVY SLUGGING.

(By the Associated Press).

The chief factor in the rise of the Buffalo Bisons to the top of the International League standing has been the heaviest batting attack in the circuit, but it might be mentioned that Ray Schalk's crowd of artillerymen have been getting some pretty fair pitching along with it.

In winning 11 of their last 12 games, the Bisons have collected 146 hits, 27 of them home runs, and scored 105 runs. With an attack like that, Schalk could start the bat boy in the box and have an even chance of winning, but, instead, he has had the benefit of tight effective hurling by Fred Fussell, Bill Gould, Joe Bloomer and others.

Blank Royals 4-0.

Gould, for instance, drew the call yesterday against the Montreal Royals, and blanked the Canadians 4-0, on six hits. Buffalo's famed attack struck early and then subsided for the rest of the day. Walter Brown essayed the task of halting the Bisons, but they hopped on him for four runs in the first inning. Winsett's home run with two on was the big punch of the inning. Brown was relieved with none out in the second inning, and Pomorski and Brannon pitched effectively in relief roles, but by that time it was too late.

Baltimore nosed out Reading in a night game at Baltimore, 8-7. Eddie Kenna tied the count with a home run in the eighth, and then won the game by singling with the bases filled in the ninth. Earlier in the battle he had combed Reading pitching for a pair of doubles. Jordan and Sand also hit home runs for the Orioles. Fred Bennett collected four hits for Reading and pitched the last two and two-thirds innings for Baltimore, allowed only two hits and was credited with the drove in three runs. Harry Smythe victory.

LAKEFIELD A. A. SETTLES ISSUE

Lucky Strikes-High School Game of May 26th May Be Replayed.

TIME OF GAME.

LAKEFIELD, June 3 (Examiner Correspondence). — The Lakefield Amateur Athletic Association met in the Town Hall on Wednesday evening to discuss matters of business. The president, C. S. Tanner, was in the chair. The first item was the protest of the Lucky Strikes of their game with the High School played May 26th and called at the end of the sixth innings because of darkness by the umpire, R. C. Chittick.

The matter was discussed from every angle, and several citizens took part, including J. F. Harvey, L. J. Charlton, C. C. Stinner, N. W. Kyle, W. G. Morrison, C. Webster, and R. C. Chittick. While the discussion was keen there was no indication of ill feeling as the League was organized to promote clean British fair play in sport and not to make ill feeling, and the gentlemen all agreed that they wanted fair play.

It was finally decided, on motion of N. W. Kyle, that if this game would affect the play-off that it will be played over with the identical teams which played on May 26. This was agreed to, and the matter was settled amicably. It was felt that perhaps there was a little slackness on the part of the L. A. A. regarding rules for the League which had no specified number of innings which constitute a game, but it was tacitly understood that the games would be seven innings.

It was decided that the games start at 6.30 sharp, and that the teams scheduled to play lose a run for every minute they are late, and that the League games be seven innings, but if five innings are played and for rain or darkness, the umpire calls the game, it shall constitute a game.

The question of a monster celebration on July 1st was discussed and as the attendance had dwindled to a very small number, and it was felt by the officers that this meant a lack of public support which was not encouraging to the Association, and as the cost of putting on a sports day would necessarily be large and the returns a matter of speculation, it was decided to drop the idea. The idea of a subscription list to pay off the hockey club deficit was discussed and the matter left in abeyance till a later date.

Shipments Through Churchill Are Ready

WINNIPEG, June 3. (CP) A ship soon will bring the first commercial cargo to Churchill on Hudson Bay, and will take away the first commercial shipment of grain from the new harbor.

W. H. Harling, Montreal agent, announced yesteerday a cargo boat of the Dalgleish Steam Shipping Company will load general merchandise at Antwerp and Liverpool destined for Canada's mid-west via Churchill. The ship will arrive in July and return with about 300,000 bushels of Canadian grain.

At the same time the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool at Regina revealed a second shipment of grain, amounting to 280,000 bushels would leave shortly for Manitoba's ocean port over the Hudson Bay Railway to swell Churchill's grain in storage to 2,280,000 bushels.

Thefts by marauding neighbors of the excellent crops grown by the new syndicate organized to farm in Hainan, South China, by modern methods, has thrown the organization into financial trouble.

Khan's Udaipur Wins Classic Oaks Stakes

EPSOM DOWNS, June 3 (C.P.)—The Aga Khan's three-year-old Udaipur, by Banlford out of Uganda, won the classic Oaks Stakes this afternoon by two lengths from Lord Westavington's Will o' The Wisp; with Lord Derby's Guidecca third, another two lengths back.

The betting was 10 to 1 against Udaipur; 9 to 4 against Will o' The Wisp, and 10 to 1 against Giudecca.

Twelve of the finest fillies of the turf raced in the renewal of the race, the fourth of the season's five classic races.

When Douglas Fairbanks sailed to the South Seas on location for his new picture, "Robinson Crusoe of the South Seas," he took along projection machines and four Mickey Mouse comedies. His belief that Mickey would establish friendly relations with the natives was proved correct. The first time he gave a show on deck, natives came from miles around to hear and see Mickey on the screen.

RALPH-CRARY ON THE MOUND

Bary, Gordon, Abbie Rose, Stan Jones and Corbett Will Make Up Infield.

WHATLEY BEHIND PLATE.

After a slow start, the C.G.E. intermediate baseball team is gradually taking form and may yet turn out to be the strongest team in the East Peterborough League this year. This, despite the fact that the team which won the title last year, lost five stars to the seniors this spring!

The best workout of the season was held by the Electrics Thursday evening and from the number of promising players who turned out, many of them being signed after the practice. Manager Eddie Dugan feels confident he will have another strong team. They hold another workout at two o'clock Saturday at the Exhibition Grounds and request every player to be on hand, and to bring his certificate.

Two pitchers at present lined up by his club, with one or two more in view, are Ralph and Crary, both good intermediate twirlers. With Doug Hatton working nights, the team will likely play Oy Whatley regularly. Whatley is one of the best senior prospects playing in the E.P.L., being young, fast, a smart catcher and a hard hitter.

Clever Infield

Barry or Gordon will cover the initial sack, with Abbie Rose back on second again, Stan Jones at short and Corbett holding down the hot corner. There is a mixture here of youth and experience which should result in a finely-balanced infield, made up of consistent hitters as well. Len Hollingsworth, Jack Hope, Holland and Joe Jones will likely comprise the outfield, these players being able to cover the ground, peg and take a mean cut at all kinds of pitching.

The C.G.E. squad this year shapes up well, and may surprise the other teams by turning out to be a powerful aggregation notwithstanding the loss of so many of last year's stars. They are due to open June 7th, next Tuesday, against the Cogs, and by that time should be working well together. They deserve a great deal of credit for their efforts to put a classy intermediate team in the field after being practically disbanded.

RAILWAYMEN FALL TO DECK'S 16-11

Heavy Hitting Enables East-enders to Cop Second Straight Victory.

Hard hitting gave Deck's East City softball team their second straight win in as many starts, C.N.R. falling before them, 16 to 11, in a City League fixture at Central last night. While the Deck outfit got just three more hits than their opponents, eleven against eight, three of them were home runs that accounted for five markers. Better fielding in the late stages of the contest held the Railwaymen down, blanking them the last four frames.

The losers were poor defensively, a flock of infield errors paving the way to defeat. Grisdale started on the mound for the Sandmen but ran into trouble early, hits by his opponents and errors by his teammates giving C.N.R. five runs in the first, one in the second and two more in the third. Elliott went in in the fourth and held them scoreless the rest of the way, except for three in the fifth. He received good support.

Clouted Freely.

Ab Delahaye twirled two innings for the Nationals but was clouted freely and his infield backing was poor. He retired in favor of Cliff Carruthers who went fair but ran into trouble in the third and fifth stanzas. A walk, an error and homers by Wilshaw and Starr sent four in in the fifth, while Montgomery's four-bagger in the eighth accounted for the last run. Deck's got five in the first, two in the second, three in the third, four in the fifth and one each in the seventh and eighth innings.

Both outfields went good, and the winners looked snappy in the infield the last half the battle. The opposing centre fielders, Jim Grisdale and Lewis, pulled of fine running catches that looked like extra-base hits, and Jimmie Ellis roped in a hard one in short right field. The teams:

C.N.R.—Batten, 2b; Hartley, ss; Kitchen, rf; Parsons, 3b; A. Delahaye, p and 3b; Frick, 1b; Weir, lf; H. Delahaye, c; Lewis, cf; Carruthers, p.

Deck's—Ellis, 1b; Wilshaw, ss; Milliken, lf; Starr, 3b; O'Rourke, c; Merritt, 2b; Montgomery, rf; H. Grisdale, p; J. Grisdale, cf; Elliott, p; Gardner, 2b.

C.N.R. ..... 512000000—11 8 9
Deck's ..... 52304011x—16 11 5

Umpires—Batley at plate; Holyman on bases.

CASUAL COMMENT

A nifty five-bout pro boxing card is lined up for to-night at the Brock, Charles Hallat introducing an all-fight show here at 8.30. And all five scraps sound pretty good with well-known moneyed pugs getting started for the summer season. The popular up-and-coming Jack Dane will be back again in one of the two main bouts, tacking the tough Buffalo lightheavy, Joe Donovan.

• • • • • • •

Frisco Grande, a game little Filipino who has met the best and beaten many of them, goes on against "Red" Egerton, in the other main scrap. The two prelims feature Eddie Judge against Alec Hart, and Mickey McDonald versus Walter Cox, while Tony Penick meets Charlie Fajletta in the curtain-raiser. Some of these are not so well known in Canada, but the whole card compares favorably with the kind drawing big crowds in Toronto regularly.

Senior baseball comes back to town once more tomorrow afternoon with Cobourg opening against the Petes. Ball fans who never miss a Central League game will be out in force for this tussle which is likely to be a pitchers' battle. There are Hoot Gibson and Toey Eley on one side, and Russ Kitchen and Ernie Holmes on the other. These boys are all fast ball hurlers.

• • • • • • •

The Petes have a fast, smart fielding and slugging team and that covers pretty nearly everything. It's been some time since we had a real classy C.O.B.L. outfit, but it looks like we have one this time. If they can "take" the Lakeshore crew tomorrow—well, we're serving notice now that Belleville and Kingston have a job on their hand. A big parade, opening ceremonies and then the cry of the umpire over at Stevenson Park, "Play Ba-a-a-l-l-l-!"

• • • • • • •

President Bob Colling, of Belleville, Mayor Denne, and J. A. Bell, local senior president, will perform the opening ceremony at the ball park. The parade starts at two from the Market Square with both teams, the band and a flock of cars coming up George street and over Hunter. Kids will be let in free for the opening game. And if it rains tomorrow afternoon, then there's no such thing as justice, that's all.

• • • • • • •

Cogs, Crescents, and C.G.E. intermediate teams of the E.P.L. are shaping up okay and will be ready when the barrier is sprung next Tuesday evening. The Electrics looked to be in a bad way when they lost Holmes, Ash, Hollingsworth, Beavis, and Dallin to the seniors this spring, but they have not only survived this blow, but may yet build up another championship team. They're coming along nice and looking for no sympathy.

• • • • • • •

And we're glad to lift the duke to another C. G. E. team, the Apprentices of the Junior City League. Two weeks ago they weren't even thinking of a ball team, and now they are getting well organized, a new outfit bought, and the players are figuring on making something of a splash in the city loop pond...The Baseball Commission and Jack Bell were responsible for getting this junior team going.

Three round-trip tickets by Deck's put the C.N.R. out of business in the Men's Softball League game at Central last night. The Ashburnham athletes rapped out three long homers late in the game to give them a 16 to 11 win, their second in two starts. It was an exciting game.

• • • • • • •

Over at the Bowl, before another big crowd of rooters, the Westclox girls moved to the head of the lasses' league by turning back the C.G.E. softballers handily. Marjorie Self, pitching for the latter team this year, went good, but the Clockmakers from Armour Hill were going strong and ticked off the runs regularly. Choates go to Sixth Line to-night, and it's Brintons vs. Keene away and Westclox against Choates here on Monday.

• • • • • • •

In an exhibition men's softball game at the Oval last p.m., Sugar Bowl made it two straight over Bryson's of Lindsay, better hitting giving them a slight edge to win out 16 to 14...Naish got the hooks in the sixth when he began to get wild after smart twirling till then. Old Bill Simmons was pretty steady the rest of the way. Threatening weather made for a small gallery.

Where do all the hockey players go in the summertime Well locally, a great many of them are still active in sports, chiefly box lacrosse and softball. Just a few of them go into retirement during the hot months. It's the opposite with pro players.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY EXAMINER

WESTCLOX WIN 2ND STRAIGHT

Defeat C.G.E. 27-13 in One-sided Girls' Softball League Struggle.

WEBB HAS TWO HOMERS.

The Westclox girls battled their way to the second consecutive league win of the season last night at the East City Bowl when they downed the blue-clad C.G.E. damsels by the count of 27 to 13 in a rather one-sided struggle which was marked by poor playing on the part of the losers until the fifth innings when they began to get over a mild attack of stage fright.

The C.G.E. girls were making their debut for this season and showed marked nervousness in the early stages of the game, but improved in the last three innings, when they displayed plenty of pep and team-work.

Dorothy Webb led the attack for the Clock-makers with two homers, one coming in the second with the bases loaded, and the second in the fifth frame when she started first. The rest of the Westclox team showed a steady style which marks them as one of the main contenders for the league laurels this season. Clever fielding and heavy hitting rather than pitching were the main factors in securing the victory for the Westclox, as the Electrics hammered the offerings of L. Charlton and H. Joyes for fifteen safe bingles but time and again the runners were left stranded.

Weak Fielding.

The Clockmakers also had a heavy night at bat, although Marjorie Self on the mound for the losers smoked the pill across with the same pep that made her one of the outstanding pitchers of the league last season, however, the team behind were decidedly shaky in both outfield and infield, and as a result the Clockmakers capitalized on singles that should have been easy outs. Hilda Joyes and Marie Ferguson topped the list for the winners with the willow, while Belle Thirnbeck and Audrey Crary were the top-notch fielders.

Marjorie Hallihan and Marj. Baldry holding down short-stop and the hot corner respectively played heads-up ball for the Electrics, while the first named also slapped out three singles. Marg. Todd with a triple, Kay Ashmore with a double were the only two in this class, but M. Self and H. Peryer both secured three singles apiece.

The teams:

Westclox— G. Mortimer, 1b; D. Webb, c.; H. Joyes, l.f.; A. Crary, c.f.; M. Mortimer, 3b.; M. Ferguson, s.s.; L. Chartren, p.; B. Thirnbeck, 2b.; N. White, r.f.

C.G.E.—M. Baldry, 3b.; M. Hallahan, s.s.; M. Amyotte, l.f.; M. Conners, 2b.; M. Self, p.; K. Ashmore, c.; M. Creighton, c.f.; M. Todd, 1b.; H. Peryer, r.f.; L. Bosley, l.f.

Umpires—Coursey at the plate, Holden on the bases.

BOXERS HERE FOR TONIGHT'S RING PROGRAM AT THE BROCK

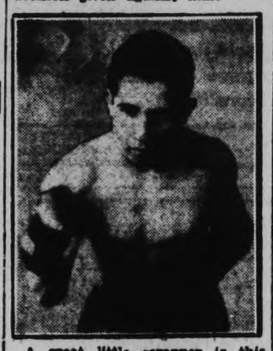
Three Preliminaries and Two Main Bouts Make Up Good Mitt Slinging Show.

DANE IN FINE FETTLE.

Everything is ready for to-night's all-star boxing show at the Brock street rink. All the boxers are on the scene and reported under weight and in the best of shape. All that remains now is for the fans, to pack the local rink and indications are that the place will be filled by the time the curtain-raiser begins.

Incidentally, it behooves all to be on hand in time for this opening bout as Matchmaker Charlie Hallat has made a change in his program, putting on a curtain-raiser that was to have been a special preliminary. This will bring together Walter Cox, of Brantford, and Mickey McDonald, of Hamilton. This will be six rounds.

Another extra bout has been added to the program, taking the place of the latter which has been relegated to the curtain-raiser position. The added feature will be a six-rounder between Pancho Linda, a Filipino, and Harry Abernathy, of oNrth Carolina. Linda is the boxer who fought Frenchy Belanger in Toronto a few weeks ago and was considered unlucky to have the decision given against him.



A great little scrapper is this Linda as was testified by the great ovation he received in Toronto after his bout with Belanger. And he is meeting a sterling foe in Abernathy, who comes here with a splendid record. These two are to contest six rounds but it will not be surprising if the bout ends in a kayo.

The other preliminary brings together Young Art, of Hamilton, who has already displayed his wares here, and Eddie Judge, former amateur champion who has been fighting with great success since joining the moneyed ranks. This bout is also over the six-round route.

And then there are the two main bouts. That between Frisco Grande, Filipino champion, and Frankie "Red" Egerton, will probably occupy the semi-final position on the program but only because a home-town product, Jack Dane, appears in the other feature against Joe Donovan, Buffalo sensation.

Grande and Egerton will only go four rounds as the club could not afford to pay Grande what he wants for a six-round bout, with two features on the program. However, four rounds should be enough for him to show his class. And the same goes for Egerton, who is a quick starter and does not waste a couple of rounds feeling his man out.

And then there is the tidbit of the evening which will show here the greatly improved Jack Dane, Peterborough's own boxing product and one she has reason to be proud of. This will be Dane's acid test as in Donovan he will be meeting an opponent who has been boxing the best and who should show just how good the local boy is.

This bout is scheduled for six rounds but here again both will try to end matters summarily and a knockout is not altogether unexpected. Dane is probably the harder hitter but Donovan has had far more experience. No doubt about it, Jack will have to show his best to get past the Buffalonian tonight. Incidentally Donovan recently had no trouble beating Ray Russell, who gave Dane such a stiff argument in Toronto recently.

Not Exhibitions

It might be pointed out that these are not exhibitions, but are honest-to-goodness scraps, with decisions, these to be rendered by judges and a referee, all appointed by the Ontario Athletic Commission, and whose identity is not made public until shortly before the show starts. Boxers cannot afford to lose decisions as it impairs their value and thus all will be trying for all they know how, to cop the bacon to-night, which means some real exciting milling.

The first bout starts at 8.30 p.m. sharp and there will be no delay between the scraps. Nothing has been left undone in the way of arrangements and the comfort of patrons will be well attended to.

This is the first time a professional show confined to boxing has been staged in Peterborough and judging by the card arranged it will be the forerunner to many others. Should to-night's prove a financial success—there is no doubt about its being a sporting success—other and more ambitious affairs will be arranged and boxers of outstanding reputation will be brought here.

NEWLYWEDS CAN SECURE ADVICE

Departmental Official Besieged With Questions on Housekeeping.

ACCIDENTAL MEETING

MILLBROOK, June 3 (Examiner Correspondence). — Speaking of "Helps for Young Housekeepers," a visiting departmental official brought a number of useful suggestions to a gathering of Institute members that included several newly-weds who were most anxious for just such help, their eager questions showing their desire to become reliable home-makers.

The gathering was practically of an accidental character, the workers having met at the home where the speaker for the summer series was being entertained, and as the conversation went on and the questions poured in, the meeting simply "developed," because of the need, and because of the fact that the visiting lady was of a wise turn of mind and ready to "do good as she had opportunity."

Take a Rest

"I know you grow tired," she said, "when you find the tasks piling up to which you are not accustomed; and I urge you not to keep on until tempers are irritated because of muscle weariness and nerve strain, but to take time to rest and thoroughly relax, if only for five minutes. You will be surprised at how much better you will feel, and how much easier the work will seem; yes, and how much more sweet-tempered you will be, from the relaxation and repose."

Another word from the speaker had reference to appearance, or as she put it, "the psychology of clothes" in preserving an unruffled mind and a sense of self-respect, while going about household duties. "Do not, on any account, allow yourselves to get into the habit of being slovenly about your dress, or general appearance, while in the kitchen—morning, or any other time. If you decided, wisely, to wear out your silk stockings with run in them for morning, mend the run, and have your shoes with low heels, and comfortable as to fit,, so your feet are neat-looking, your stocking whole, even if they are mended, and your housedress clean, nicely ironed and attractive. There is no excuse in these days for anyone not having a dainty housedress for they are to be bought so reasonably, or made so readily out of such suitable material, with pretty coloring and design, one may possess plenty to be always ready to answer the door, or receive unexpected callers, without embarrassment as to appearance."

Must Dress Properly

"The day has passed when "any old thing" will do for morning wear; or any material except what will launder readily when about one's work. Elaborate crepe dresses that have done their duty for afternoon or evening wear are emphatically not fit to pass on as housedresses—they are out of place in the kitchen, the lovely prints, and ginghams, or similar wash materials being the correct thing to choose. Give away the crepe frocks that have seen their day, and on no account start their wear when about your daily homemaking tasks."

"How well we will do our work, and what atmosphere shall prevail in our homes, depends on the spirit in which we approach the tasks to be accomplished. If we decide we will do the daily round with pleasure, and a spirit of contentment and thankfulness, seeing an enjoyable side even in the most menial of our duties, then we will be nourished by our work, and in our homes a cheerful spirit will be predominant. Physically, mentally, and spiritually both 'you and yours' will reap a happy result."

Among the questions answered was one asking what to do to remedy the taste of burn from food that, unfortunately has been allowed to become scorched. The speaker told her own experience of taking the pan immediately from the fire, and placing it in larger pan filled with cold water. "By this process the burned taste is drawn down, and by keeping the water cool, in five or ten minutes no taste of the burn will remain."

Quebec Unemployed Rounded Up By Police

QUEBEC, June 3 (C.P.). — Provincial and city police ushered 21 unemployed men into the Recorder's Court here to-day, following an extensive round up in the lower town last evening. A total of 38 were arrested in the raid, but 17 were able to give an account of themselves and were set at liberty. The 21 were lodged in the cells on a technical charge of loitering.

J. H. Tremblay and P. D. Gagnon appeared in court yesterday and were remanded till next week on a charge of holding an illegal assembly in the lower town, at which police allege plans were discussed for unemployment demonstrations.

Before any demonstration could be formed, police took an unexpected move in rounding up all the unemployed they could find in groups on lower town street corners.

EFFICIENCY LEAGUE CONCLUDES YEAR

Rev. W. L. Archer Praises Organization for Its Work in Church.

LAKEFIELD, June 3 (Examiner Correspondence). — The efficiency League of Regent Street United Church officially closed for the season on Monday evening after a very successful year's work. The meeting was held in the school room of the church, which was prettily decorated for the occasion with the colors of the four divisions featured in their various corners. The idea was original and effective; the attendance was 139—red 48, blue 33, khaki 33, and white 26. Following the opening exercises the pastor, Rev. W. R. Archer, B.A., expressed his personal gratitude to the Efficiency League as a whole and its members individually for their cooperation during the year. All had readily and cheerfully responded to any call for assistance and in consequence the year had been very successful.

Mrs. Mae Millen moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Archer for his help and inspiration during the year Mrs. H. E. Moore seconded the motion, which was unanimously carried.

On motion of Rev. W. R. Archer the executive will call the first meeting of the autumn season. On motion of Mrs. J. E. Charlton a vote of thanks was extended to the Decorating Committee.

Presentation Made.

Rev. W. R. Archer presented Phyllis Webster with a silver cup, with her name engraved upon it, as a prize for winning the oratorical contest held recently.

It was decided to hold a picnic at the park during the month of July, the date to be decided later. The program was in charge of the blue side, with Fred Mortlock in the chair. The Regent Street Orchestra gave several excellent numbers. Miss Frieda Webster gave a reading, and Walter Walker contributed a guitar solo. Miss Una Archer and Mrs. Mae Millen sang a duet, and Messrs. Clayton Bullock and Fred Mortlock gave a violin duet, and Miss Etta Garbutt and Mrs. H. E. Moore contributed a piano duet.

Miss Helen Porter gave an interesting report of the Students' Volunter Convention held in Buffalo in the Christmas holidays, at which she was a delegate, representing Queen's University. Miss Porter added interest by her charming personality and her enthusiasm for the cause. Mr. Morley MacDonald told of the forestry, fishing, and mining in Northern Ontario, which was of real educational value, as Mr. MacDonald has lived in the north and felt the lure which leads men and women to leave the comforts of Old Ontario to pioneer in the hinterland of this big Province Votes of thanks were given the speakers on motion of Rev. W. R Archer and Mr. Mortlock.

The khaki and white sides served refreshments and a pleasant evening was brought to a close by a vote of thanks from the red side to the blues for the program, and to the khaki and white sides for the refreshments. Stanley A. Darling is president of the League and Fred Mortlock, Mrs. D. A. Allen, Mrs. N. M. Stinson, and Norman Lemay the vice-presidents, Mrs. Stanley Richardson is secretary, and Carroll Evans the treasurer.

CHEESE FACTORIES BUSY.

Heavy Supply of Milk Increases Local Output.

Cheese production in the Peterborough area has been steadily increasing with the larger volume of milk that has been received at the factories since the pastures have been renewed by spring. In some of the factories, G. A Gillespie told The Examiner to-day, the output is actually larger than at the same time a year ago. The opening of the season was not promising, but the improvement has rapidly accelerated. Rain has been ample, and in regard to production the results and outlook are most encouraging.

What To-Day Means To You

"GEMINI"

If June 3rd is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:20 a.m. to 11:45 a.m., from 5 p.m. to 6:30 p.m., and from 10:35 p.m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 8 a.m. to 9:20 a.m., and from 2 p.m. to 3:35 p.m.

June 3rd is an adverse time for change or the promotion of new interests. Stick fast to old posts and guard existing interests! The day will be enriched by a feeling of unusual mental and physical fitness. There will be a desire to do something exciting and out of the ordinary—a longing for dance and music.

The child born on this June 3rd will be joyous and blithe-hearted; its fervor will be as startling as it is gratfying. It will be wildly ambitious and will insist upon taking Fate in its own hands. It will be highly emotional, possessing feeling which are easily played upon. Its mind will be quick and comprehensive.

Born on June 3rd, you are capable of being all things to all men, and your friends or even relatives yould not be able to paint similar pictures of your character. Those who meet you on a business plane, would accentuate your shrewdness, hardness and "money sense." To them, you are not the generous, lively, companionable self which you usually display within domestic circles. To certain classes of people, you seem an intellectual snob, suffering from a superiority complex. To your real mental superiors, you assume an almost devotional and humble attitude. You are most approachable and sympathetic when you wish to be so, and are quite the reverse when you dislike or are in different to your associates.

No one can play fast and loose with your good nature. You are really very sensitive and stand rather exposed to slights and injuries. You are cruelly unforgiving, and allow a trivial or thoughtless word or act to make you unhappy, and to speak with venom. On the other hand, your spirits soar withoutm uch stimulation.

You need not rely upon any particular type of work for success, for you are versatile enough to make good at most anything into which you throw your real efforts. You often, however, only play at things, and it cannt be wondered at if your rewards are indifferent.

LOVE TRIANGLE RUMORS DEEPEN FARM MYSTERY

Young English Farm Hand H as Disappeared and Body of Young Bachelor is Discov ered Badly Decomposed.

BACHELOR TOOK VIOLENT EXCEPTION TO ATTENTION B OY WAS PAYING FARM GIRL

MOOSOMIN, Sask., June 3.—(CP)—Conjecture over the disappearance of Richard Arthur Hudson, young English farm hand, April 11, reached fever pitch of excitement with the discovery of the body of William Ritchie, 38, a bachelor of the district. Rumors of a love triangle involving a girl of the district deepens the mystery.

Hudson disappeared from the farm of Tom Fry, Spring Creek resident, for whom he had been working, leaving his money and clothing on a table.

A horse that Fry had left on the farm on the night of April 11 to visit a neighbor was found next morning in its stall.

When found, the body of Ritchie was badly decomposed and death is believed to have occurred Saturday or Sunday. The man had been missing since Saturday morning.

Ritchie, it is said by neighbors, took violent exception to the joking manner in which friends referred to the alleged attentions Hudson was paying to a farm girl Ritchie was interested in.

The body of Ritchie was removed to Moosomin and an inquest opened and adjourned to Thursday, June 9. An autopsy was performed and the stomach sent to the provincial pathologist at Regina for analysis.

I.O.D.E. ACCEPTS HALL INVITATION

Mrs. Young Gives Interesting Account of National Meeting Held at Toronto.

The 57th Regiment Chapter, I.O.D.E. held its last meeting for the season in the Armouries yesterday afternoon with a large attendance. Correspondence was read regarding the work stressed by the Provincial executive and from the Canadian National Institute for the Blind urging the Chapter to sponsor a tag day and giving a detailed statement of the amount sent them from Peterborough during the years 1930-1931 and the amount spent here by the Institute, showing a deficit of nearly $200. It was decided to leave the matter over until the September meeting. Mrs. Sharpe for the Sick and Visiting Committee, reported 33 visits made and Mrs. W. Gordon Hall, convenor of the Relief Committee, reported a quantity of clothing given out and milk tickets purchased. The Chapter was delighted to hear that Mrs. Hooper, Regent of the Peter Robinson Chapter, had been appointed one of the five councillors of the Provincial Chapter, and that Peterborough is now represented on the executive. It was decided that the Chapter assist in defraying the necessary expenses. A report of the placing of flags on the graves of departed soldiers at Little Lake, St. Peter's, and an a veteran's grave at Bridgenorth on Empire Day was submitted. Under the convenorship of Mrs. B. Poole, assisted by her committee, two hundred graves were visited and flags placed there. A cordial invitation was received from Mrs. W. Gordon Hall for the Chapter to hold their picnic at her summer cottage Crawford's Grove. This was enthusiastically accepted, and the sub-executive appointed to make arrangements regarding a suitable date and program.

Mrs. Young gave an interesting account of the National meeting of the I.O.D.E. held in Toronto, describing the impressive service held at St. James' Cathedral and the sermon preached by Rev. Canon H. F. D. Woodcock, in which he lauded the work being done by the I.O.D.E. and their intense patriotism. After the service Mrs. C. E. Burden, National President, entertained at a delightful reception at her home on Avenue Road, where tea was served, comprised entirely of Empire products.

The opening meeting at the Royal York was a very impressive function attended by Her Excellency the Countess of Bessborough, who is an honorary president of the Order, and who made a brief speech. Mrs. Burden's address was very instructive, outlining the work of the I.O.D.E., showing $110,000 had been spent during the year in child welfare and relief work and large sums on education. In all $350,000 had been raised by the I.O.D.E. with one-third being given strictly to I.O.D.E. activities and the remainder going to other institutions aided by the Order. Mrs. Graham Thompson in her address stressed planning for the future and becoming enlightened and informed citizens if we are to play our part in the rebuilding with which we are confronted. Edmonton, Alberta, was chosen for the thirty-third annual meeting next year, and Mrs. Burden was re-elected as National President. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to the Regent. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION. NO. 17

By Edgar Rice Burroughs
(Metropoli tan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

Before the cursing Stimbol could stumble to his feet, Tarzan had snatched the hunter's knife from its scabbard and leaped full upon the writhing mass of beast and python. Stimbol could not believe his eyes. Naked, except for a loin cloth, bronzed, black-haired, a giant white man battled with the dread Python.

Tarzan's steel fingers grasped the python just back of its head. With his free hand he drove Stimbol's hunting knife into the serpent's flesh. As it realized that a new and a more deadly enemy had entered the battle, the snake quickly uncoiled from about Bolgani, and tried to crush the new enemy.

The spark of life all but quenched, the gorilla lay gasping, unable to help his deliverer. Thus was Tarzan pitted, single handed, in a duel to the death with the great snake. About the ape-man's middle and one muscular leg, curled the deadly coils of the python.

Tarzan, seeking to weaken its hold, was now concentrating his efforts in an attempt to cut the python in two. With a final steel-like tightening the serpent closed his giant coils spasmodically. At the same instant Tarzan with a mighty lunge cut through the vertebrae of the snake.

TIME INSURANCE
...is important, too!

YOU are probably proud of your watch. It serves you faithfully day in and day out. But are you carrying "time-insurance"? In other words, do you take it to an expert watchmaker regularly for cleaning, oiling and testing? Before it stops altogether, bring it in to us: the low cost of "time-insurance" makes it available to all. And "correct time" is of the greatest importance these days.

At the same time, bring us your old-fashioned jewellery for estimate on making it up-to-date and beautiful. Surprising how little it costs!

WATERS FLOOD CITY STREETS

Rising Waters of Bow and Elbow Rivers Threaten Residents of Calgary.

PERILOUS SITUATION.

CALGARY, June 3 (C.P.)—Hundreds of Calgary families saw dawn break to-day with the Bow and Elbow Rivers still rising and still pouring thousands of gallons of water across stretches of boulevard and streets. Whether the peak had been reached it was impossible to say early to-day.

Throughout the farming and ranching territory south and west of Calgary, the Sheep, Fish and other creeks were still breaking from their banks. At High River and Okotoks, towns south of Calgary, the situation was still serious, with boats being used for travel through high river streets.

Realizing the danger residents along the banks of both the Bow and the Elbow in Calgary stayed awake all night. They heard rumors galore that the Calgary Power Company dam at Ghost River and the city water supply dam at Glenmore had burst, and heard prompt denials from official sources.

THREATEN LIFE OF STAR'S BABY

Bodyguards Watch Over Child of Marlene Dietrich.

DEMAND $10,000.

LOS ANGELES, June 3.—Bodyguards watched over Marlene Dietrich, screen star, and her young daughter to-day following threats to kidnap and harm the girl.

District Attorney Buron Fitts said a thorough investigation of the threats, which demanded $10,000, would be made. But he expressed the opinion that they were the work of cheap chiselers trying to collect easy money and who had no intention of harming the little girl, Maria.

Pay or Death

Three letters were received by the actress. The last one read:

"You, Marlene Dietrich, if you want to save Maria to be a screen star, pay; and if you won't, she'll be a loving memory to you. Don't dare to call detectives again. Keep this to yourself.

The letter instructed her to wait for further information as when and where to pay the $10,000.
